Gulf Drive development gets Commission nod

By Roxanna Motchan

Sanibel's Planning Commission yesterday approved a request from developer and realtor Frank Joyce for a development permit to construct eight single family homes, a pool and a tennis court on Middle Gulf Drive, across from Clam Shell condominiums.

The final vote was 4-1, with Commissioner Joe Searing casting the dissenting vote. Commissioners Ann Winterbotham and Bill Hagerup were absent.

The development, which is named Sealoft Village, will consist of nine dwelling units on a 10.7 acre parcel of land. (One dwelling unit was allocated to Joyce in the rate of growth period ending June 30, 1980.)

This parcel of land will be bi-sected by the proposed Gulf Drive connector. All of the dwelling units will be clustered on the southern portion of the parcel, which consists of 4.26 acres of land. Remaining land north of the proposed Gulf Drive connector, approximately five acres, will be dedicated as open space.

A planning staff report, prepared by City Planner Bob Duane, indicated that "the proposed utilization of the parcel is well integrated with the characteristics of the site, and meets or exceeds all required performance standards of the Comprehensive Land Use Plan (CLUP)."

Joyce has agreed to incorporate recommendations by the planning staff which include: that the open space north of Gulf Drive be dedicated and conveyed to a homeowners' association; that three small areas of separate rights-of-way be dedicated to the City for the preferred alignment of Gulf Drive, and to insure adequate right-of-way for future construction of a bike path; and that recommendations of the Vegetation Committee be adhered to.

Two-thirds of the renourishment pie may be private land

By Pat Harmel

Judging by a recently released report on the establishment of an erosion control line for South Seas Plantation, the State of Florida may settle for one-third ownership of the new beach proposed for the site by renourishment.

Henry Dean, an attorney for the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and the hearing officer assigned to the erosion control line issue, has recommended to the Trustees of the Internal Improvement Trust Fund that they establish an erosion control line.

Without specifically recommending Mariner's proposal (one-third public and two-thirds private ownership of the proposed new beach) Dean's findings include: "1) There is a definite need to restore the subject area where severe beach erosion has occurred over the past 20 years" and "2) The establishment of the erosion control line and proposed beach nourishment project

Chiles aide to visit Sanibel

Do you need help in solving a problem with a federal agency? Would you like your senator to know how you feel about proposed or needed legislation? If so, your chance is here.

U.S. Senator Lawton Chiles is sending his assistant, Damon Smith, to meet with Lee County residents in hopes of gaining citizen input and to offer assistance in solving federal government problems.

On Monday, August 4, Smith will be at MacKenzie Hall on Sanibel Island from 10:30 a.m. until 11:30 a.m., and at the Cape Coral City Hall from 2:30 p.m. until 3:30 p.m.

On Tuesday, August 5, he will be at the Fort Myers City Hall from 10 a.m. until 11:30 a.m., and at the Lehigh Community Building from 2 p.m. until 3 p.m.

"I know many people have problems with federal government red tape or errors caused by federal agencies," noted Chiles.

"If you're having difficulties, or if you just have a view on some issue that you would like to have passed on to me, I hope that you'll visit my district assistant while he is in your area."

"We're able to cut red tape in a wide range of cases," said Chiles, "and it is also important that I know how Floridians feel about such issues as government spending, foreign policy and the energy situation."

When he walked the state in 1970, the most frequent complaint Chiles heard was that the federal government was too far removed from the people. In an effort to close that gap, he sends an assistant to every city twice a year.

Chiles is the chairman of the Special Committee on Aging; the Subcommittee on the Treasury, Postal Service and General Government and the Subcommittee on Federal Spending Practices and Open Government.

Edison Theatre's Marty Grasgreen

By Roxanna Motchan

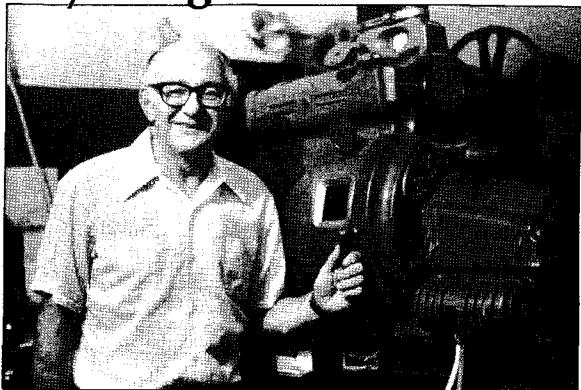

As a child, Marty Grasgreen sat in darkened movie houses in Queens, New York. He munched popcorn and watched Saturday morning serials, Dick Tracy adventure films and Westerns.

Although Marty didn't realize it then, his heart and soul were to remain in the theatre and become an influence in a lifelong career spent in the motion picture business; a career which would ultimately lead to a home on Sanibel Island and the renovation of the Edison Theatre in downtown Fort Myers.

Grasgreen is one of the many Island immigrants who became hooked on the beauty and serenity found on Sanibel. After vacationing here for almost 15 years, the Grasgreens decided in April, 1979 to become permanent residents.

Now, at 55, Grasgreen feels he is just too young to retire. Since 1975, he has been in business for himself both as a representative for film producers and involvement in the importation of foreign films. There were plans to continue this line of work from the Fort Myers area, but Grasgreen says, "It's very difficult to do that here because most everything happens in New York. When I left New York I lost some of my contacts."

Still, he wanted to keep active. After mulling it over and with the help of Harold Spears, President of Floyd Theatres, Grasgreen took over the Edison Theatre and started programming films which have caused a slow but steady ripple in the community.

Remember Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers? Longing to see "Gone with the Wind" for the tenth time? Want to experience a Bolshoi ballet on film? Thirsting for a little bit of the cultural activity usually available only in a bustling metropolis? Fret no more. The Edison Theatre offers all.

this, and much more.

"There's more to life than 'Grease' or 'Saturday Night Fever,'" Grasgreen says. "The fact is there should be an alternative kind of programming and that's what I've tried to do. There has been no exposure locally of the really top foreign films. There's nobody who runs a retrospective type of cinema like we do, showing the older classics; and nobody tries to do any of the classic music films - ballets and operas."

It's a fact that Lee County is one of the fastest growing areas in the nation. Grasgreen feels that in this type of market, which is experiencing rapid growth, more and more people will become interested in his unique programming.

"We opened last September with an Academy Award winning foreign film, 'Get Out Your Handkerchiefs,' and that did very well," Grasgreen recalls. "We started bringing in some of the Fellini and Bergman films too. Little by little I see an improvement in the attendance. Not a gigantic one," he hastens to add, "we're just about getting to the point where the business is close to breaking even but it's certainly not profitable."

Grasgreen is so involved in his business and the customers that it is not uncommon to see him greet many of them by name. "It's getting to be almost a cult following," he admits. "You should come by on a Thursday or Friday evening. I know just about everyone by their first name - I can tell you who takes butter on their popcorn and who doesn't, who takes Pepsi and who takes root beer, stuff like that."

One of the idiosyncrasies of Grasgreen's method of programming and style of presentation is his refusal to keep the concession stand open when a ballet or classic opera film is being shown. "I just don't feel that the smell of popcorn goes with a ballet," he says, grinning.

Instead, at intermission time, cookies and coffee are served "on the house" in the lobby. Grasgreen feels this is a rather intimate and fun way to gather and talk about the film, mingle with the crowd, and socialize with friends.

Future plans include the construction of a small stage so live productions may be offered. Grasgreen envisions children's concerts, small stock productions by local talent, and musical performances.

In the short time Grasgreen has been a permanent resident, he's managed to get his finger in more than a few pies. He has started a film course in conjunction with Edison Community College, is a member of the Board of Directors of Lee County Alliance of the Arts, and a member of the Program Committee of the Barrier Island Group for the Arts (BIG Arts).

You may remember Grasgreen as the emcee for the tremendously popular Saturday Super Supper Show presented by BIG Arts at the Sanibel Community Association last May.

"I wish we could generate more interest in BIG Arts," Grasgreen muses. "I don't know what the problem is. I think it will get going eventually. After all, it's just in the first year, and it's struggling."

Grasgreen feels that part of the answer to the attendance problem at the Edison Theatre stems from local residents' lack of previous exposure to anything of this nature. "If you play something on film that's totally foreign to people they're going to stay away," he notes. "It's like anything else - you're going to be afraid of some things that you don't know about. I'm hopeful that we'll be able to involve the young kids in school. This way they'll become exposed to films like this at an early age and as time goes on be a little bit more well-rounded.

"I'm not trying to be an educator," Grasgreen says, "it's just that this is the kind of thing I enjoy. I know that many other people will enjoy it too."

Citing the Bogart era of films as his personal favorite, Grasgreen also admits that the film 'Casablanca' will always be number one to him. "I have a tape of it at home and I watch it frequently," he says.

Grasgreen feels that the current film trends toward science fiction and horror will continue for awhile. "The type of movies being made today are geared to the people who are going. However, I predict a resurgence of the musical; not like 'Carousel' or 'South Pacific' but more in the mold of 'A Star is Born' or 'The Rose.'

The Edison Theatre is almost a second home to Grasgreen, and most of his family is involved as well. Wife Shirlene and son Ira help sell tickets, work at the concession stand and greet customers with as much familiarity as Grasgreen. Another son, Alan, is the tennis pro at the Dunes Country Club on Sanibel.

Grasgreen's biggest goal is to see the Edison Theatre evolve into a forum for the performing arts. He can foresee both live and film entertainment which will eventually have broad appeal for the entire area.

Slowly but surely, for Grasgreen is a determined and enthusiastic man, this goal is being accomplished.

County Attorney expects denial of Estuaries

By Bill Scheel

The lawyer representing Lee County in the fight to halt the proposed "Estuaries" development has told the County Commission that, based on oral arguments before the Florida Supreme Court, he expects a ruling by next spring upholding the County's denial of development permits.

James Humphrey, former County Attorney and now acting as special County counsel for the Estuaries case, said in a report to the Commission, "Based on their questions and comments, the Florida Supreme Court was very receptive to our arguments."

In 1976, the County Commission refused to give Estuary Properties, Inc., permission to build over 24,000 housing units along the north edge of Estero Bay, between Fort Myers Beach and Harlem Heights. The County's decision was supported by the Southwest Florida Regional Planning Council and the Florida Cabinet, but last December the First District Court of Appeals ordered the development permits to be issued, saying the County was illegally "taking" land owned by Estuaries Properties.

Humphrey said the County, supported by state and federal attorneys, rebutted that argument before the Supreme Court by citing a New York City zoning case where the Penn Central Railroad was prevented from building rail tracks over the historic Grand Central Station.

The other major argument made by the government attorneys opposed to the development was that "the First District Court abused its discretion by substituting its judgment for that of the local governing bodies," Humphrey said.

Humphrey praised Ken Tucker, an Assistant Florida Attorney General, and Ann Gayless, of the U.S. Department of Justice, for their arguments and briefs submitted to the state high court.

Because of the number of attorneys involved in the case and the length of the briefs submitted, Humphrey warned the County Commission that a decision from the Supreme Court could be a long way off. "I would not be a bit surprised if it is next spring before we get an answer," he said.

Parents of students entering Lee County Public Schools for the first time are encouraged to have them registered at their school of assignment prior to the opening of the fall school term on August 25, 1980.

Beginning August 5, 1980, school centers will be open at 8 a.m. Monday through Friday for the purpose of registering students and providing needed information to parents and students. High school guidance counselors will be on duty to assist with registration.

Parents and students are encouraged to bring evidence of a physical examination, inoculations, previous report card and any other information which might assist in the registration process.

Two more reasons why you should bank with BOTI

Drive-thru banking may seem impersonal to some folks, but not to Gail Gillies and Connie Martin. They're two of the girls who are at the other end of that drive-thru machine you do business with.

Even though they're separated from their customers by a lot of glass and electronic gadgetry, they manage to convey a lot of friendliness and welcome to every one who stops by. They add the personal element to drive-thru banking. That certainly beats banking with some sort of robot that only knows you as a number. Next time you're in the neighborhood stop by our drive-thru and meet one of the girls. Just press the button and say "Hi."

Commission

Joyce told the Commissioners, "I agree with the Planning Department completely. This project is two years in the making. I took over the development aspect one year ago. The construction managers who do all of Mariner's work will be handling my project also."

Joyce also explained that the homes will be special pre-cut homes, on pilings which are surrounded by lattice work.

Commissioner Joe Searing pointed out that Joyce's present home, similar in design to the proposed homes, sits on a pedestal instead of pilings. He suggested waiting to review the project after the matter of a home on a pedestal is resolved.

Joyce indicated that he was unhappy with Searing's remarks, claiming, "This is not the same product, it has nothing to do with what I'm talking about today."

Commissioner Don Manchester, pointing out that one home would be separated from the rest, inquired why. Joyce said that an existing old sand road will separate one house from the rest, and that the separate house will be used as a model. That way, construction of the remaining units may go on without disturbing those who are looking at the model home.

Manchester then mentioned that the site plan showed removal of large amounts of Buttonwood. Joyce said, "We're planning on retaining as much vegetation as we can. Vegetation will surround all of the buildings. You must have encountered some of these problems in your Gulf Ridge subdivisions."

Planner Duane assured the Commissioners that there would be minimal destruction of vegetation.

But Manchester interjected, "What are you going to do to keep contractors from hurting the property, save carrying a shotgun to the site?"

Joyce answered that he would visit the site daily to make sure no excess harm was being done to the vegetation. Manchester further suggested that Joyce rope off areas of vegetation to assure this.

"I welcome that suggestion," Joyce said.

Commissioner Fred Wallin asked Joyce why the five acre parcel of empty land, which would be deeded to a property owners' association, couldn't instead be deeded for the purpose of below market rate housing.

"I prefer to have that land remain as open space," Joyce answered. "People who want low cost housing are frankly people who want to pay $185 a month in rent just to have a pad here and I don't know a developer who can do this anymore."

Manchester, in a motion to approve, asked that the word perpetuity be added so that the association could not decide at a later date to develop the parcel of open space. He also mentioned, as a condition, that in addition to the staff recommendations, interval ownership never be allowed in the development.

Further Planning Commission considerations were unavailable at press time.

Local voter registration rolls raise questions

By Roxanna Motchan

According to Melena Eskew, Sanibel resident and Committee of the Islands (COTI) representative, there has been a decrease of approximately 1,100 registered voters in the City of Sanibel.

"Admittedly this was an unscientific study," Eskew added. "I went through last year's voter rolls from Lee County and subtracted people I know have moved away or died. They don't keep those lists up to date."

However, according to Enid Earle, Lee County Election Supervisor, as of last Friday there are 2,333 registered voters on Sanibel, an increase over the registered 1,738 voters in the 1976 general election.

Earle said that the voter rolls are being constantly updated and claimed that staffers go through the obituaries daily, and also receive vital statistics from Jacksonville.

"It's a little bit different if people move," she said, "because we can't remove them until they have registered in another area. Every two years we send out what is known as a purge card. Voters sign and return it if they wish to remain on the active voter's list. If they do not return it they are placed in inactive status. Finally, if they fail to respond within a three year period they are removed."

"It's a difficult job to keep up with," Earle admitted, "since the Lee County population is so transient."

South Seas

would accomplish the stated purpose in Section 161.161, Florida Statutes.

Dean further recommended that the Trustees receive written confirmation, upon establishment of a line, that no building will ever occur on the renourished beach and the beach area will not be used to increase overall development at South Seas.

The South Seas proposal calls for the dredging of 765,000 cubic yards of sand from Redfish Pass to renourish 10,000 linear feet of South Seas shoreline. South Seas would then claim ownership to two-thirds of the newly created beach, while one-third would belong to the State. Opponents to the proposal charge that the South Seas project is, in effect, taking State owned sand and by moving it, turning it into private property.

Ken Oertel, attorney for South Seas, explained the two-thirds, one-third formula at a public hearing held last April. The formula, according to Oertel, is based on the fact that the project would cost $3 million if the sand was bought at a cost of $1 per cubic yard. Since South Seas property owners are willing to pay $2.2 million - or two-thirds of the estimated total - they should be given two-thirds of the new property.

Attorney Richard Roosa, also present at the public hearing as a representative for several Captiva property owners, disagreed, charging that, "they're asking to fill State land with State sand and then take ownership."

The ultimate decision of ownership of the new beach, should the project eventually gain approval, now lies with the Trustees of the Internal Improvement Trust Fund.

Endangered species

The U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service recently released the 1980 list of endangered and threatened wildlife and plants. Of the 776 species carried on the list, 276 are native to the United States and approximately 22 are historically found in Florida.

Among the commonly seen animals in this area on the list are the Manatee, Brown Pelican, American Alligator and Loggerhead Turtle. It also includes the Everglade Kite, Okaloosa Darter and Bahama Swallowtail Butterfly.

This year's endangered species list is up 77 from 1979. According to the Fish and Wildlife Service, that is because of the continued, general deterioration of the world's wildlife environment.

The next snake out of the bag was a long brown Sand Boa named Duke. "Isn't he ugly?" He looks like the world's biggest earthworm," Phillips said. "Gross!" came the audience reply.

Unperturbed, Steve brought out yet another reptile, a Burmese Python named Sally. Four-year-old Andy Weaver held out his arms and Sally gladly rested on them. Andy smiled and stood proudly with his new friend.

"Isn't that nice!" Phillips beamed. "You ought to ask your mom if you can have one." Near the rear of the room, Cheryl Weaver quickly shook her head, nixing that idea.

The snake show-and-tell marked the summer's last session of the Sanibel Library's Wednesday morning youth program. Steve Phillips, an employee of the Conservation Foundation and herpetologist, was the principal speaker, but it was his guest slitherers who stole the show.

Goodness snakes!

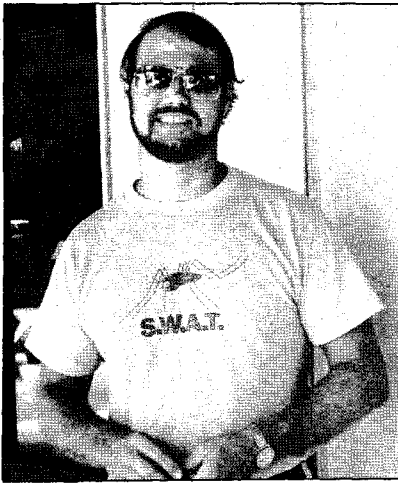

Steve Phillips' pillowcases wiggled, shook and looked downright haunted. As the young group of Islanders kept their eyes peeled, Steve reached a hand into the bins and pulled out a seven-foot-long Boa Constrictor.

"This is Samson," Phillips said. "I went through college with him. He got his Master's Degree - I only got a Bachelor of Science!"

SWAT team

Sanibel Swim Team members last week received T-shirts with their new symbol. The letters S.W.A.T. (for Sanibel Waster Attack Team) appear just under a friendly but rather large mosquito.

"We were sitting under the poolside one day," said S.W.A.T. coach Dick Noon,

"talking about what we could put on the shirts. Someone suggested 'Skeeters' and we finally came up with S.W.A.T."

Donating their time and efforts were Sanibel artist Peter Smith, who drew the bug, and Wings, who provided the screening. Money for the shirts themselves came from dedicated swim team fathers Joe Feeney, Robert Kelly, Dick Muench and Jerry Muench.

Rainy season

Lately, the sun and rain clouds have taken turns on Sanibel Island and vicinity, but most of the year sees the sun exclusively. Did you know, however, that snow once hit the area. That was in 1899.

According to a summary by the National Climatic Center, rainfall in the Fort Myers area averages over 50 inches per year, with about two-thirds showering from June through September.

Thunderstorms usually occur every month, but are infrequent from November to April. Again, June through September are the popular months for thunder and lightning, occurring on two out of every three days on an average.

The annual average temperature is 74. In January, averages in the low 60's are common, and 50's to 70's are normal from November to March. June to September are the hot months with daily averages of 90 degrees.

Signmaker

"My grandfather had a sign company in Boston, and I served as an apprentice there," says Charles LeBuff of his sign-making skills. "I started tinkering in his shop when I was about 12 years old."

LeBuff is now the biological engineer at the Ding Darling Wildlife Refuge, but he still enjoys making signs in his spare time.

In the late 1960's, LeBuff had a sign shop on the Island where he worked as a sideline. "Some of the signs I made then are still up," he says, adding "I make them to last."

LeBuff has made signs for the Conservation Center, Jim's General Service and a number of signs on Gulf Drive. His most recent effort was the modern graphic in front of IWA's Reverse Osmosis plant. "If somebody wants me to bid on a sign, I will," LeBuff says, "but it has to be something with a little bit of character."

Shelling Tips
by Mike Fuery
This time of the year when people are walking on the beach and sand flats

When we talk about clams, most shellers get hungry instead of conjuring up visions of another interesting specimen to be added to a prized collection. But there is one clam that is terrible for eating and great for collecting. It's the jackknife clam, and this week let's look at this peculiar shell.

These shells are somewhat clear in color, although I've seen some that are a brown or greenish shade. They don't look anything like what you might expect a regular round clam to look like. These are long and skinny, and as for the name, with a little imagination, you could say they do resemble a jackknife in size. And if you aren't careful when digging one out, it resembles a jackknife in sharpness, too.

I've only found half of one outstanding example of a jackknife clam but I have found relatives of this shell in shallow, muddy flats. From what I've observed about the shell, it is agile in its own way, able to dig deeply into safety when threatened.

There is actually a large family of similar shells and most of them are referred to as razor clams. In Florida, the jackknife clam is the only one of the family found with any consistency and that might mean coming upon one or two a year.

Actually, the jackknife and razor clam family is found all around the shoreline of the nation and, in California, they get large enough to be eaten when they reach a length of five inches or so. Our little (by comparison) clams are still not any good to eat, so don't bother trying to gather enough for a meal.

As with most unusual shells, the jackknife clam is difficult to find, especially alive. We know that they like a muddy bottom, but to find one is almost impossible. I have never personally found a live jackknife clam, but have found many halves and parts of shells, so obviously there are areas of Pine Island Sound where these clams do grow.

I would say that your best chance of locating jackknife clams is in the dead shell line on the outside, or Gulf beaches. Incidentally, don't let the jackknife clam and the similarly colored and shaped, tagelus shell, get you mixed up on identification.

The tagelus shells are in the clam family and only grow to be an inch or so long, but look much like a small jackknife clam. You are going to find a lot more tagelus clams than you will find jackknives, but a session with a shell book will probably explain the differences.

Clam shells are, of course, the leader in the "most common shell" category around the world. They seem to take so many different shapes and sizes, but surely the jackknife clam is among the most prized and interesting that you will find on our beaches.

For Captiva Island Gulf side, subtract 30 minutes from each high tide, and subtract hour and 16 minutes for each low tide.
For Captiva Island, Pine Island Sound (Bay) side, add 1 hour and four minutes for each high tide and add 52 minutes for each low tide.
In between these points, gulf or bay, guesstimate and have good fishing and/or shelling.

On the water

By Captain Mike Fuery

If you could peek over a successful fisherman's shoulder, I expect that you might notice he does several things that account for him catching fish on a day when "wasn't nothin' biting."

One way to give yourself a big edge is with sharp hooks. Sounds simple, because most everyone can see that hooks made nowadays are about as sharp as can be. But I can't think of a top fisherman I know who doesn't carry a file or small "hook stone" to touch up the metal.

The problem with a file is that it has a very short life in a tackle box on a boat used in salt water. I have a six-inch file now which is about a month old and will last another month, then it will be so full of rust that there will be no edge to it at all.

I have looked for some solutions to this and perhaps you have the same problem when it comes to files. A friend of mine suggested putting the clogged file in a bath of muriatic acid. He said the crusted file will be somewhat improved and deliver a little more life onboard.

I didn't have a lot of success with that idea. Since then, I have searched fishing house catalogues trying to find some new file material, but no luck so far.

In the meantime, I've come up with this idea. I cut six inches off an unused garden hose. Then I plug one end with a wooden dowel and then spray in oil and set it upright in a corner of my tackle box. Then I put the file in it, immersed in oil. That's about the only method I have come across that will keep the elements from rendering the file useless.

Once you have that file preserved so it will keep a sharp point on hooks, then you can reach into the tube and touch up that hook more often.

Some hooks, by the way, are much more easily filed or sharpened than others so select yours accordingly.

The pre-packaged hooks most tackle shops sell are nickle plated. They come in neat little plastic boxes but because of the hard coating material, its difficult to maintain a sharp point.

I use a cadmium and tin coated hook and it is not only easily sharpened, but is lighter than the others. That also makes a difference to the fish, like snook, which can sense something wrong with the bait if the hook makes it feel funny.

Occasionally you will find hooks made of stainless steel. These hooks take an edge very well. You can easily sharpen them, but they are just too heavy for the type of fishing we do around the Islands. One place where good stainless steel hooks are superior is out in the Gulf of Mexico, fishing for grouper in the rocks. Grouper don't worry about such niceties as hook weight when they are hungry.

There are a couple of other hook materials but they don't seem to work with the local fish. I'm referring to the gold plated, blued and other specialty hooks some anglers around the country seem to think catch more fish than others.

I mentioned the honing stone and that is what many people have used for years. You can get one about any place where tackle is sold and it doesn't rust and it doesn't matter how salty it gets, the old faithful stone always works. I don't like them as much because they are bulky and not as fast as a good file, but until a non-rusting file comes along there will be little choice other than buying files or keeping with the stone.

Good fishing this week and try for grouper in 30 to 60 feet of water west of Captiva Pass if the snook seem to be eluding you while you are on the water.

The Island Handicapped

This week our article deals with the concerns of the handicapped for one of their basic needs, shelter.

We approach this task with some apprehension because on one hand the federal government wants to provide handicapped people with a barrier-free environment so that they may become taxpaying workers, but on the other hand legislation is passed that requires homes to be built at raised elevations. These raised elevation homes may be fine from an actuarial point of view, but they represent expensive, fearful accessibility problems for the handicapped.

Let me take you through a handicapped home here on the Island. It's a single family CB home with the floor level four feet above grade. It has a concrete driveway. A very gradual walkway (less than one-inch per one-foot change in elevation) goes completely around the house. A ramp is provided from the walkway to the pool and patio area, and from there to the breakfast room. All areas of the home are accessible by wheelchair or crutches. A washer, dryer, supplementary food storage area and freezer are provided on a raised concrete platform in the garage. The food preparation and dishwashing areas are well planned and adequate for a handicapped person.

Grab bars are installed in order to aid the handicapped person in taking a shower or to attend bodily functions. A stool is provided in the shower stall for safety reasons.

Most people would say that this handicapped person is very fortunate, and it's true - they are. But let's continue.

On this particular day the handicapped person drove to Fort Myers on her solo shopping tour. Yes, they can drive. Fortunately, only this woman's left leg was removed and she can drive a car with automatic transmission and with turn signals on the steering post. We place the wheelchair in the rear of the car. It comes apart and the pieces are fairly easy to lift. With a tender farewell and a show of concern for the maiden voyage of this handicapped person, it's off to town.

The voyage to town is uneventful soon the Edison Mall is in sight. The handicapped person parks the car in a provided handicapped parking space close to the entrance of Maas Brothers behind the Mall. Very shortly, a young man and his family come by the car and the handicapped person asks for assistance in removing the wheelchair, for which service remuneration is offered. The young man will have none of this, and before the handicapped person can get on her crutches he has the wheelchair assembled and ready for service. This same young man opens the door to the Mall while expressing amazement at how well the wheelchair functions, and his hope that the handicapped person will have a good time. I know the handicapped person thanked the young man and I hope that someday I will too.

The shopping trip was very delightful except for very narrow shopping aisles in the clothing areas and the lack of adequate dressing rooms to accommodate a handicapped person and a wheelchair. After an excellent lunch, the handicapped person starts for home. The door from the Mall is opened by a lady who is entering the Mall and the wheelchair is returned to the rear of the car by a young man waiting for a bus. He too refuses remuneration.

The trip home is also uneventful, but it takes some time for the handicapped person to attract the attention of the fellow working in the yard at home to aid her with her packages. This hard working gardener finally hears the car horn, stops his work and answers the call of the horn. After a hug and a squeeze and some discussion about the journey into town, we unload the wheelchair from the car. With the packages we proceed to traverse the 200 foot walkway to the pool screen door. After opening the screen door to the pool area and the door to the breakfast room, the triumphant handicapped voyager arrives at the floor level of her home.

The journey to town by this handicapped person would be of little note and of small concern to the average person, but I can tell you all that I was concerned and the handicapped person was apprehensive, if not fearful. But then I'm not too sure this handicapped person could not or would not have completed this journey even if she knew no one would lend assistance.

It may seem that the description of this journey digresses from the subject. That may be, but the point to be made here is that accessibility problems existed not only in the home but at the entrance to a large department store and within the store, and that some kind of assistance was required along the way. Other points that should be made here are that in a private residence, the handicapped had better be prepared to correct any condition that bars accessibility to the home; that the installation of grab bars, stools, large doorways and ramps help make the handicapped independent of others, and they can be great morale boosters.

In previous articles we indicated that there are organizations dedicated to solving the particular problems of the handicapped. I would suggest that handicapped people communicate with other people that are handicapped, and with handicapped organizations. You are not alone, and there are people who care about you. Take courage, "Anything you do or dream you can, begin it. Once engaged the mind becomes heated. Begin, and the task will be completed." (Goethe)

ARTS and ARTISTS plays

A first summer production is being staged by the Edison Community College Theatre Department. According to Richard Westlake, theatre instructor at the college, this additional presentation will provide area audiences with the opportunity to attend four plays at the college each year. The fall, winter and spring productions were well attended and some evenings played to sell-out audiences.

An experimental drama, "The Serpent," will premiere Thursday, July 31 at 8 p.m. in the Fine Arts Auditorium on the Fort Myers campus. Performances will be repeated on August 1 and 2. Tickets are $2 each and are on sale in the college cashier's office located on the first floor of Building E. This office is open Mondays through Fridays from 9 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. If seating is still available, tickets will be on sale at the door preceding each performance.

"The Serpent" was first produced in the United States in 1969 by the Open Theatre. According to Westlake, the play is quite unusual. "The concept of Open Theatre was to strip the theatre of its 'theatricality,'" said Westlake. "There are no costumes, no scenery, no recorded sound effects, no props and no structured props." The play sets a mood and explores a central theme. It is considered a modern morality play with serious religious and moral issues being explored.

The cast is comprised of ECC drama students and several area high school students who have enrolled for the summer theatre class.

Pianist Margot Thomson will present a benefit recital for the Barrier Island Group for the Arts, Sunday, August 3, at 5 p.m. at the Sanibel Community Center. The recital will serve to dedicate a Steinway grand piano which is on loan to the Barrier Island Group from Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thompson of Sanibel.

Mrs. Thomson, who has studied in New York with Frank Glazer, and at the Fontainebleau, Paris, with Robert Casadesus and Nadia Boulanger, will perform works by Chopin, Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart and Debussy.

A wine and cheese reception in honor of both the pianist and Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will follow the recital at the Community Center.

Tickets for the benefit, priced at $2, will be available at the door.

The Lee County Arts Center, 5111 McGregor Boulevard, announces an outdoor bluegrass concert by the Red Apple Band on Monday, August 4, at 8 p.m. The Red Band will be the first in a "Summer Sunset Series" presented by the Arts Center on Monday evenings during August.

The Red Apple Band, featuring the McIltrout brothers and Steve McPherson performing on hand-made instruments, will entertain with bluegrass and old-time music.

Bleachers will be provided, but lawn chairs and blankets are welcome. Come and enjoy the sunset, the music and the good life in Southwest Florida.

Donation: $2 for adults and $1 for children under 12. Benefit: The Lee County Alliance of the Arts.

exhibits

"Paintings and Pottery" will be the featured exhibit at the Cape Coral Arts Studio August 5 through 28.

The painting part of this exhibit is by Anne Blakeley. Her skillful and picturesque technique in painting landscape, seascapes, and farm scenes reflects a beauty in the old and well-worn subject matter of yesteryear. Mark Helmann's beautiful blend of glazes enhance his stoneware creations. Utilitarian plates, casseroles, along with his unique mirror faces, become works of art when he creates in clay.

The opening reception will be held August 8 from 5 to 7 p.m. Both the reception and exhibition are open and free to the public.

The Arts Studio is open to the public Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. It is located at 4533 Coronado Parkway in Cape Coral. Phone 542-7714.

Thirty-nine pieces from the Graphicstudio will be on exhibition in the Edison Community College Gallery of Fine Art August 1 through August 22. This collection opens with a public reception on Friday, August 1, from 7 to 10 p.m. in the Gallery Hall.

Through the cooperation of the University of South Florida's University Galleries and sponsored locally by the University's Fort Myers Campus, the exhibition provides the first opportunity in southwest Florida to view a representative selection of the Graphicstudio work. Included are silkscreen prints, lithographs, intaglios, clay pieces, photographs, sculptures and reliefs. Artists included in the exhibition are Phillip Pearlstein, Robert Rauschenberg, Frank Rampolla, Jim Dine, James Rosenquist, Donald Saff and others.

Graphicstudio was founded in 1968 by Dr. Donald Saff, chairman of the Department of Art at the University of South Florida, to bring together artists of national and international reputation to produce their graphic art in a university setting. The ECC show is a generous sampling of major contemporary graphic art from this collection.

Available at the gallery sales desk are copies of "Graphicstudio U.S.F.," a catalog assembled by the Brooklyn Museum. As a part of the gallery enrichment program the film "Printmaker" will be shown Thursday, August 7 at 7:30 p.m. in the college auditorium. This film examines the work and techniques of several prominent artists working in the print media. This program is free.

The exhibition is assisted by grants from the Ellis Bank of Fort Myers and the Fine Arts Council of Florida.

CABLEVISION - SANIBEL

Open Letter to Current and Future Subscribers:

As a long-time subscriber myself, I have been aware of certain problem areas in the quality of reception. I would like to acquaint you with what is being done to overcome these problems.

● FCC regulations require that, when two stations being received over cablevision carry the identical program, the local station must be given preference, with the more distant station blacked out during that particular program segment. In the past, this was done by manual pre-programming of the switcher. This did not always work smoothly, due to human error or last minute program changes of which Cablevision-Sanibel had not been advised.

Consequently, the manual system has been discarded and a new piece of equipment -- an automatic switcher (containing an audio sensor with a time lag of no more than ninety seconds) -- has been installed. Its performance has been checked, and all indications are that it operates well. Subject to the vagaries of automated equipment, it appears that this source of annoyance has been eliminated.

● The most persistent problem for the past several months has been the uneven and frequently unsatisfactory quality of reception of WEDU (PBS) in Tampa on Cablevision Channel 3. Since many (if not most) subscribers installed cablevision precisely because they want to receive PBS programming, this problem has been the source of greatest aggravation and unrest among subscribers -- and understandably so. Computer studies tell us that there should be no problem with the relay tower on Pine Island (i.e., there should be no electrical interference from near-by power lines, causing the "glitches," or from so-called "co-channelling," which causes the picture to blur or break up). However, as we all know, such interferences persist -- and unfortunately most frequently, due to atmospheric conditions prevailing at those hours, during prime viewing time.

Consequently, a basic decision has been made by Palmer Broadcasting to substitute the Miami PBS station for the one in Tampa. Once this is accomplished, subscribers should notice a substantial improvement all around. The reception should be of high quality on a sustained basis, and the programming (PBS Miami being a more affluent station) will be more diversified. Unfortunately, this solution cannot be put into effect right away. Not because of its cost (even though it involves a major capital investment in our system), as the financial commitment has been made. The delay is due to the fact that the switch to PBS Miami entails the construction of additional microwave links to bring that signal to the island -- and this entails lead time on obtaining FCC approval and the necessary equipment. My principals assure me that the FCC procedures have been initiated and that the equipment has been ordered. They are confident that everything will be in place and working properly by no later than the end of the year. Admittedly, this seems like a long time to wait. However, since a substantial improvement in the reception of PBS Tampa appears technically not feasible, we must ask that you be patient and bear with us in the interim.

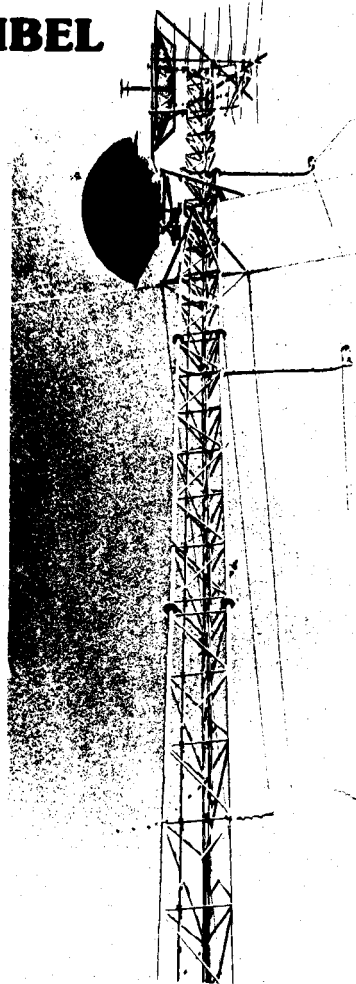

● Many of you have been asking when Home Box Office (HBO) and certain other programming will become available. On this there is decidedly good news. The "dish" for satellite reception, and its attendant gear, was ordered some time ago. In the absence of currently not anticipated difficulties, this equipment should be in place and functioning some time this fall. At that time, Ted Turner's "Super Station" and one or two other highly desirable signals will become available on our system without additional charge to the subscriber. Since the number of channels we can use is limited, some of the programming now being carried will have to be discontinued altogether or during prime viewing time. I am assured, however, that no widely desirable programming will be so affected.

HBO will begin being carried at the same time, with its availability to each subscriber (at an extra cost of $10.00 per month) dependent only on the installation of the necessary unscrambling devices to the subscribed-for television sets.

In sum, improvements to the system are being made as rapidly as technically feasible. As an island resident experiencing the same problems as you are, I assure you that I would not have taken on the job of managing the local cablevision system, if I were not convinced of Palmer Broadcasting's full commitment to doing everything possible to give you the quality of service which you have the right to expect.

P.S. The newspapers were kind enough not to follow through on Councilman White's mischievous request that my home phone number be published in a banner headline. Nevertheless, it's in the phone books and I am reachable. However, I'm not a technician and, suffering from vertigo, refuse to climb the tower even if I know that that is where the problem lies. If I can be helpful, do not hesitate to call me at home. Otherwise, please call the answering service, since calls to it will, under certain conditions, result in the dispatch of an after-hours technician to the troubled area.

Heidi Koch is in love with her Bad Car. "It's a good little car," she maintains. "It runs like a top—I wish that I could find a good body to put on it."

Before Heidi obtained the car it was under divine ownership. The original owner was a nun, who in turn sold it to a minister. He's a car nut, and he inherited it from his father. He's a car dealer in Ohio," explains Heidi.

Even after driving it for a year after the trip down from Ohio, all the car has required mechanically is a new U-joint. The main problem is with the rust, which "is just as bad as when I got it," according to Heidi. Duct tape supports the radio antenna, metal plates are strategically placed over holes in the floorboards to prevent Heidi from becoming a low driver and a wire holds the right headlight in place. The car proudly sports current plates and State inspection stickers and the "horn works real well." But the left turn signal has been malfunctioning recently. "I need to get some wire for the back light real soon," explains Heidi.

Bad

They are the kings of the road, tra down the streets and highways with an authority that says to all the other car: out of my way!" They are survivors are not pretty. They are Bad Cars.

There are millions of cars around, but a select group qualify as Bad Cars. Ba look like they are one step from Junkyard, but they keep on going odometers on most Bad Cars have 1 the 100,000 miles mark at least once.

Frequently, Bad Cars have had owners. Some took good care of them not. A single Bad Car may have below a mobster, little old lady, college as family of six and newspaper reports.

You know your car is a Bad Car wh take it to a service station for a new pump (Bad Cars may go through 1 lifetime) and the mechanic tells you cost more money to fix it than he wo the car for.

You know your car is a Bad Car get out of it and foam rubber chips your back; when you have four winds should open and only one does; wh drive off and leave a trail of bonds behind.

When you start, idle and drive a B a symphony of noises begin: fr engine, worn gaskets wheeze and creak and groan. From the trunk bottles crash together like cymbal you turn or come to a stop. Underne seats, cellophane wrappers, fuzz b loose change collide in muted sym.

Most Bad Cars have been given n their owners. This is a reward for l on. A brand new shiny Firebird can a name; a '63 Impala can. Nam between descriptive and affect Common Bad Car names are: Th The (Blue, Black, White) Bomb, and You Worthless Piece of Junk.

Most people have owned or ridden i Car at some point in their lives. I ha Car in college. It was a '66 Old Dynamic 88. It had a 450 cu. inch

This car is so bad it has to wear a T-shirt to keep its stuffing in! Owner Shirley Mahoney says it's the only way to keep the foam rubber in the seat from harm's way. "It's really an old rag that I used to use to clean the windshield," she says. This car has extreme interior badness.

Mac McArthur turned his truck into a Bad Car in just one night. The damage occurred when he rolled and tipped the truck on Wulvert Road. "Wulvert Road has trees that Mac and the truck both survived without fatal wounds, but the fender had to be amputated in order to keep it from rubbing on the wheel and the windshield had to be secured with duct tape to keep the window from shattering. "If I didn't have the tape on the window it would shake out on Wulvert Road," explains Mac. The tape blocks McArthur's vision some, but he adjusts. "You can see if you move over a bit like a mail driver," he says.

ook premium gas and got about 5 miles to the gallon. I bought it during the gas shortage of 1974 for $350.

It was a big car, and frequently seven or eight of my friends from the dorm would ride with me to Taco Tico late at night. The car always smelled of Mexican food. (Bad Cars usually have some strange not quite identifiable odor.)

The Olds was white and we called it The White Bomb. It had burgundy interior with a dozen patches of duct tape covering holes where manilla foam rubber tried desperately to escape.

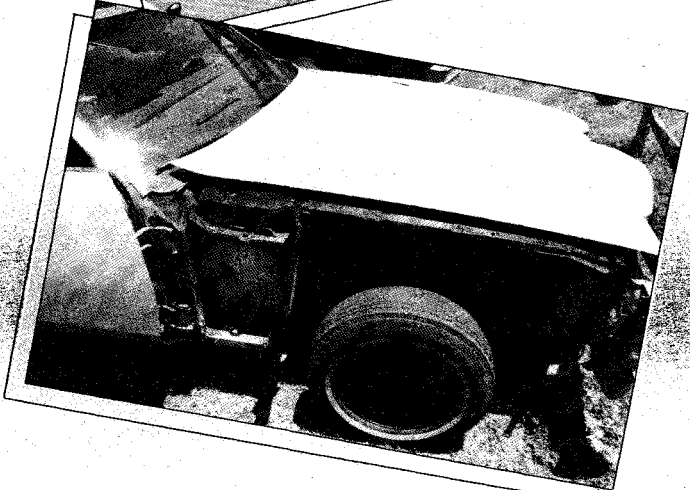

When I turned on the heater, it sounded like a vacuum cleaner vrooming into action. The Bomb developed age spots (rust) around the fender areas that gave it character like a mature gentleman's gray sideburns.

You can't get collision insurance for a Bad Car, nor theft or fire. The $150 deductible is usually more than the car is worth. About all you can get is liability for the unfortunate soul who happens to cross your path without looking.

A Bad Car will show no mercy for its younger, fresher counterparts. A flashy new Toyota will be quite sorry it tried to take on a '66 Buick Electra. Bad Cars know no fear; nothing can hurt them.

When it's you in your Bad Car and a '80 Mercedes both converging from two lanes to one, there's no contest who will back down. The grill of the Bad Car, once having taken the lead, grins its toothless grin from empty grill and winks its eye, as all Bad Cars have an odd number of headlights.

"I'm bad!" it says proudly for all the world to hear. And why not? The Bad Car will still be going strong when the brand new cars it passes on the street are blocks of compressed metal.

Islander photographer Mark Harmel drives a '70 Cutlass, a Poor Car (Poor is on the edge of Bad). Reporter Bill Motchan's 1969 Camaro has a long way to go. Both are former Bad Car owners.

Lions Club news

By D.E. Cooperriider

The installation of the Sanibel-Captiva Lions Club officers for the 1989-90 year was conducted at Chadwick's on July 12. The evening included a buffet banquet and dance and was well attended.

The new officers were installed by Lions International Director Lyonal Lindsay of Lebeland, who was also greeted by three Past District Governors of this region and their wives. These were Past District Governors William Van Duzer of Fort Myers Beach, Kenneth Williams of North Fort Myers and Garland Roberts of Tice.

The officers installed were President William Hatcher, 1st Vice-President Fred Comlossy, 2nd Vice-President Fred Valtin, 3rd Vice-President Larry Van Til, Secretary Don Cooperriider, Treasurer Norwood Melcher, Lion Tamer Joe Underriiter, Tail Twister John Wilcox and Board Members Art Corace, Bob Potts, Bill Thomas, Norm Chambers and Len Yaeche.

Several members of the Sanibel-Captiva Lions Club were in attendance at the regional forum for officers and board members held at Fort Myers Beach on July 23.

Past District Governor William Van Duzer spoke on the reasons for the forums and commented on the fact that there are more countries represented in Lions International than in the United Nations. This year is also the 100th year of Helen Keller who was instrumental in starting the Lions Clubs on their sight and hearing conservation programs in 1925. A stamp has been issued by the U.S. Post Office in commemoration of Helen Keller and her teacher Anne Sullivan and the great work they did in focusing attention on the difficulties of the visually handicapped.

Ten area clubs from North Fort Myers Marco Island were represented at the meeting with over 100 Lions in attendance. Islanders present were President Bill Hatcher, 1st Vice-President Fred Comlossy, 2nd Vice-President Fred Valtin, Treasurer Norwood Melcher, Secretary Don Cooperriider, Tail Twister John Wilcox, Lion Tamer Joe Underriiter, Board Member Len Yaeche, Past Deputy District Governor Dee Amon and Member Bob Dornier.

The job nobody wants

"Kill the bum!" is a phrase as American as apple pie. You can hear these magical words at almost any major league baseball game and they are usually directed at the umpire, the one person on the field who can please no one.

The ump has a rough go. He suffers physical and mental anguish. Hecklers on both teams and in the stands call him any number of unpleasant things. As he crouches over the catcher to call the balls and strikes, he slowly develops a severe pain in the back. That quickly disappears after he takes a foul ball or two in the knee.

Convinced that umping is not all fun and roses? Wait until you hear the thoughts of the six intrepid souls who officiate the Sanibel Softball League. You might even soften up enough to hold back the raspberries and yell out an occasional "Good call, ump!"

Dino Schultz has 16 years of umping behind him. He has overseen games from little league all the way up to semi-pro ball. Dino says the umpire starts working long before the game begins.

"First you make sure the bases are firmly attached, see if there are any new holes around the fences, and that the gates are working. You have to check for broken glass and rocks on the field; if a ball hits a rock and takes a bad hop, it can bounce up and really hurt somebody," Schultz says. "Basically, you make sure that the field is in good playing condition."

After that, he says, the real fun begins. "You've got to keep your eyes open. There are things that you can't afford to miss; if you do, somebody sure as heck is going to see them."

Dino admitted that standing behind the plate for three straight games can get a little tiring. "It takes quite a bit out of you - it's an awfully long evening. The $10 a game to split between the home plate and second base umpire acts as somewhat of a balm to soothe your shattered nerves, but it's not an incentive to do it."

What kind of person can be an umpire? "I don't think it's restricted to any one particular personality type," says Dino. "I suppose the ideal umpire would be deaf and dumb - but not blind!"

Oscar Gavin has been umpiring for about seven years. Why does he do it? "Because 90 per cent of the ballplayers don't know the game, and I'm teaching them!"

A strictly business approach is how Oscar handles the teams he umpires. He tolerates no catcalls and will not hesitate to give warnings, although he says the toughest part of being an umpire is throwing a player out of the game.

On judgement calls, Gavin says he has made some decisions that have been marginal, but there is no turning back. "You have to make the call right now, then stand by it and don't be intimidated."

"You have to have a knowledge of the game and confidence in yourself," he says.

"I don't care if I walk out on the field to umpire the Pirates and the Yankees. If I know the rules, hey, that's it!"

"None of the umpires is perfect," says Mike Courtney, "but you do the best you can under the circumstances. There are a lot of 'Jacky and Hydes' out there. When you are the umpire, you are the bad guy."

"I've been called things you can't print! And the ones that do the most grumbling are the least likely to go out there and umpire themselves."

Courtney believes it is impossible to think the umpire can ever please everybody. "Some of the fans are going to yell 'Yea! Good eye, blue!' and the other side is going 'Boo! You're a bum!' The umpire is the punching bag out on the field."

The job of the umpire, as Courtney sees it, is multi-faceted. "Most of the time, I have to find somebody to go up in the press box and run the scoreboard. Sometimes I have to take care of the score sheets myself. I've got to remember the keys to turn on the lights, and then I have to keep the momentum of the game going."

Why does he take the abuse of the job? "Because I want to participate in the game and get the league some kind of consistency." And what is Mike's solution to the umpire's unpopularity? "I think it might be good if every umpire was about six-foot-six and 300 pounds and could take a bite out of the bat every now and then - that would command a little respect."

Umpiring as relaxation? That's the opinion of Jim Anholt. "I like the teams and the players - it's a getaway for me," Anholt says. "I just call them the way I see them. They can rant and rave all they want."

"Behind the plate, you're in charge of the whole field. Trying to watch a fly ball and somebody tagging up at the same time though, gets a little hairy."

"Just keep control of the game. Once they get that in their minds, the game moves along pretty smoothly," he says. "You have to be able to block out a lot of stuff. It takes a different breed of person to become an umpire. I just have a lot of fun."

"Sometimes the arguing bothers you," says Mark Heimann. "You make a call that's controversial and somebody will get upset. You have to stick by your calls and not let yourself be intimidated by the fans or players."

Heimann believes it is important to have good concentration and always be on top of the action to call the play. "It's definitely a demanding spot - the eyes get tired and the body, as you run from play to play."

Mark, an umpire for about three years, says he does it for a number of reasons. "I like the game, and it's a different spot to be in on the field. I'm doing my part to see that the game is played properly."

"Have confidence in your ability and your calls," Heimann says. "A loud voice helps - it makes things very clear."

Dick Muench is the founder and President of the Sanibel Softball League. He is also the head umpire. "I give a lot of credit to the guys who are doing it," he says. "They have real dedication to the game and the players."

The umpire, according to Muench, has complete control of what happens on and off the field. "We know the rules, so that's it. We're going to keep the rules and keep the league going."

Muench says it's not right that any umpire should take constant verbal abuse, and is very clear about his personal philosophy. "I'll throw out a guy at the drop of a hat for swearing."

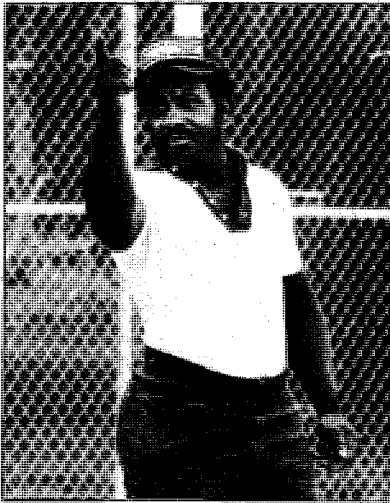

"I feel that I know the game, and I'm going to go out there and run the game as smoothly as possible. If I don't do it, nobody else is going to. Anybody can be a coach, but it takes a special breed of person to handle the coaches."

Long-time umpires have seen a lot of ball games and a lot of strange events. Dino Schultz was umpiring a hardball game with some teenagers once when a play developed between third base and home plate.

"I was at third, saw the play coming to the plate, and started to back up," Schultz said. "The catcher, meanwhile was coming up behind me. We collided, fell and got all twisted up. That was probably the most embarrassing experience I've ever had."

Jerry Muench was umpiring a game on Sanibel when a bizarre thing happened. "The batter hit a home run, and there was a runner at first looking to see if the ball would clear the fence," Muench said. "The batter was really trucking - he passed the guy at first right up, pushed him out of the way, and passed him. I had to call him out, and boy, did that stir up some stuff."

Dual taxation - an issue for the courts

Members of the Tri-City Committee on Taxation met last Friday and reviewed a draft resolution requesting the County to remedy taxing inequities in the parks and recreation system.

The citizens of Sanibel, Fort Myers and Cape Coral are currently being taxed for dozens of County parks that provide no real benefit to the municipalities, according to Fred Zander, Cape resident and Committee chairman.

Zander drafted the resolution, which requires a response from the County within 90 days. The Committee presented the County Commission with a similar resolution regarding the County road and bridge system last month, but have not yet received a response.

Committee members said last Friday that they were not surprised by the County's lack of response to the road and bridge questions and they expect the same type of treatment on the parks issue.

Roger Henderson, representing Fort Myers, said County Administrator Layon Wisner had told him she could not and would not answer all the questions posed in the road and bridge resolution. "She'll say the same thing about this (parks resolution)," Henderson said.

Zander agreed that the County "probably won't pay much attention to" the resolution, but said the main reason for presenting the petitions is so the Committee can prepare for a court case against the County.

"What we're doing is building a court case," Zander said. "These resolutions become exhibits, the County's response to the resolutions becomes an exhibit, and then we have the basis for a court case."

Some of the parks that the Committee wants removed from the county-wide taxing system include Boca Grande Beach, the Dunbar Neighborhood Park in Fort Myers, the Leigh Community Center and Bonita Beach.

Dual taxation has long been a standing issue between the County and the cities. The County claims the cities use benefit from all the facilities that are free through county-wide taxes. The cities, however, claim certain facilities are mainly for use by the residents of unincorporated areas.

Both County and city officials agree litigation is apparently the only way a decision will ever be made regarding the controversial topic.

"Let the judge decide," County Commission Chairman Dick Steele said. "I welcome a lawsuit to settle this thing and for all."

"Another find in Sanibel is The French Corner, one of America's best restaurants. A bit of Paris transplanted... I've rarely sampled better French food." -Gentlemen's Quarterly Magazine, March 1980

GOLF

A small field of 13 golfers turned out for the Beachview Men's Association Tuesday outing. Winning the match was the team of Don Purcell, Eben Joy, and Ray Howland finishing with a plus two score.

On Saturday the field expanded to 26 players. Two teams tied for first place at plus two. The tie was broken on the second hole in a sudden death playoff. Don Purcell again was on the winning team, this time with Bob Robertson, and Roy Hull. The second place finishers were Ed Barone, John Forster, Dave Wooster, and Eben Joy. Dave Wooster also took high individual honors at plus six.

Five foursomes entered the Association's mixed scramble on Sunday. Winning on the third hole of sudden death was the foursome of Eileen and Eben Joy, and Ray and Herta Howland. The second place finishers at one under par were Jeff Dean and Vee Ogellhorpe, and Agnes and Mac McClintock. In third place, at even par, were Betty and Charlie Uhr, and Ray and Herta Howland.

Shopping

Sanibel is a veritable shopper's paradise. Tasteful boutiques and casual island shops join forces to present visitors with everything - and anything - a vacation shopper could hope for.

At the Lighthouse (Eastern) end of the Island, Punta Ybel Plaza and The Sea Horse Shops are right across the street from each other, providing a variety of products that can cure your sweet tooth or tickle your shell finder's fancy. Need a good haircut or coiffure? You can get it in either of these shopping centers. Most businesses open at 10 a.m. and close at 5:30 p.m. This holds true for many island stores, although during the winter season, some are open evenings.

Tall Australian pines shade Periwinkle Way as the shopper travels west along this main thoroughfare. This stretch of road is truly a shopper's paradise! It's all here...the fast and not-so-fast eating spots, casual and elegant boutiques, hand-wrought jewelry, craft designs, shell shops and balms for health produce fanatics.

Watch to your right and left as you drive or cycle along. Photographic supplies, bait and tackle, deli foods, fresh seafood and baked goods, knick-knacks and what-nots can all be found along the drive to the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road. Along the way, shopping centers such as the Heart of the Islands, Periwinkle Place and Tahitian Gardens offer a variety of island delights.

Palm Ridge Road, the Periwinkle Way turn-off to Captiva, offers several new shopping centers featuring everything from a gift shop for the discriminating shopper, plants and shells, to a sandwich shop, ice cream parlour, boutique shop and the Island Apothecary pharmacy.

At the Tarpon Bay-Periwinkle Way intersection, the Island Shopping Center features the island's only supermarket, dry cleaners and movie house.

A left on Tarpon Bay Road takes the visitor past Sanibel's original schoolhouse, which now holds original island watercolors and woodcuts. Then on to West Gulf Drive and westward to an interesting little artisan's shop and gallery.

At the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road, you may choose instead to turn right and follow the signs to the Tarpon Bay Marina, where you will find a cluster of quaint shops overlooking the back bay...Some antiques, shells and shellcrafts, what-nots and clever clothes can be found here, as well as a great seafood sandwich and soft drinks.

The spectacular ride to Captiva, with its lush foliage and enchanting view of the Gulf, is well worth a day's outing. Talented artists display their works in one roadside shop, while others feature some nifty gifts for Grandma to take home to little hands as a pleasant hodge-podge of remembrances from these barrier islands.

Whether for shopping, or merely browsing, island shops offer a surprising variety - from one-of-a-kind collectibles for the discerning shopper to postcards for the simple souvenir hunter and of course, for all, shells, shell jewelry, shell lamps, just plain shells...the most beautiful shells in the world from the most beautiful shelling beaches in the world.

BICYCLE RULES

If you're not used to a lot of bicycle traffic, watch out for the network. The extensive network of bicycle paths on the island is clearly marked along the edge of the road. Observe caution when driving on the bike path. A State Law and City Ordinance combine to PROHIBIT PARKING OR DRIVING ON THE BIKE PATHS.

Planning on spending some time on a bike to enjoy the island sun and sights? Make sure your vehicle is equipped with a bike flip, horn, good brakes and a light for night riding. Under Florida law, bicycle riders have the same rights and responsibilities as motor vehicle drivers. Drive Safely!

DOGGY DO'S & DON'TS
If you're visiting Sanibel with the family Flo in tow, all the better. All family members can enjoy Southwest Florida sun and sand. The Chamber of Commerce can tell you what accommodations are available for family pet travel. Remember: wherever you are, keep your dog on a leash. A friendly reminder...Leave nothing on the beach but footprints and a happy memory. There's no leash law on Sanibel, but of course an excellent courtesy and it's a better off when controlled with a leash.

SPEED LIMITS
Varying speed limits (20-30 m.p.h.) as one comes across the causeway, and there is a very good reason for them...to preserve the beauty and tranquility of the island. This speed limit is strictly enforced on the causeway and 24-hour basis by both the Sanibel Police Department and the Lee County Sheriff's Department. Driving or parking a motor vehicle or moped on the bike path is strictly prohibited. Violators will be ticketed.

For Your Information

BEACH ACCESS
Sanibel has miles of public Gulf-front beaches, any one of which is only minutes from your lodging. Lighthouse Point is a stretch of Federal land on the eastern tip of Sanibel Island, and is accessible from the Gulf beach is accessible again at the end of Dogas Street, at Tarpon Bay Road, at Bowman's Beach (off Sanibel-Captiva Road) and Turner's Beach, which is located at Blind Pass between Sanibel and Captiva Islands.

On Captiva Island, public beach access can be found at Turner Beach (which has public facilities) or further north, just past the entrance to South Seas Plantation.

NOTE - STATE LAW PROHIBITS MIDE SUN-BATHING ON ALL LEASED BEACHES. VIOLATORS WILL BE PROSECUTED.

CAMPING
Camping on the beach is prohibited and while everyone enjoys a beach fire, Sanibel Fire Board has signed into law an ordinance that prohibits beach fires. Prior to the ordinance, a permit was necessary for a beach bonfire, but as of July 18, 1980, it is now illegal. An example of a fire ordinance is a fire in an approved cooking container up to 48" x 24" x 12" deep with an extruded metal grill for non-combustible food preparation. This type of container will be allowed on the beach without a permit, if you have your beach party, it is recommended that you assume the responsibility for the cleanup of any debris or litter in your area.

GATORS
Feeding alligators anywhere within the Sanibel City Limits is not only illegal (violators of the law are subjected to a fine up to $500, or up to 60 days in jail, or both), but can be extremely dangerous. Alligators can weigh 45 m.p.h., so if you're close enough to feed an alligator, he's close enough to feed on you. An alligator fed for fun loses his natural fear of humans and becomes a potential threat to children and pets.

SURROUND YOURSELF WITH A HOUSE YOU LOVE!
 AND YOU'LL LOVE YOURSELF AND YOUR SURROUNDINGS!

This very, very special home reflects the warmth and charm of the present owners, as they surrounded themselves with a home they have loved. Located in SANIBEL LAKE ESTATES, we offer this two bedroom, two bath (this election year) with the same excitement and elation that we would if we had just listed "THE WHITE HOUSE." Very few homes compare to this secluded siesta on Sanibel! You will be proud to give this as your new address.

The home features so many extras that most potential home buyers have to add later, such as: a water pump, screened enclosed Hydro Spa, outside shower-head and all of the kitchen appliances that you will ever need. Carpeted and draped, plus the very popular energy saving paddle fans in the Master Bedroom, Family Room and Porch. The decorating of the interior is traditional Floridian with greens, yellows and whites predominating. The living area, two car garage, patio and entrance foyer give you a total of 2160 square feet. Relax on the lovely porch and enjoy all of this beauty and tranquility for $99,000.00.

OF ALL THE HOMES YOU TOUR THIS WEEK - THIS IS ONE HOME YOU DEFINITELY SHOULD SEEK. ANOTHER GREAT BUY THROUGH SRI.

We got our money's worth —and then some.

This is great! We're playing tennis and golf, taking it easy on the beach, doin' a little sailing, dancing at night and we're not spending a bundle.

Erad and I have our own place here on the beach at South Seas Plantation for two weeks every year. Plantation Beach Club sells interval ownership and we were able to buy just what we could use and afford. We've fixed the cost of our vacations and didn't let ourselves get tied down.

You see, there's this exchange program that lets us trade our vacation time at South Seas Plantation and go to other resorts around the world. So, not only can we travel, but we're not tied down to taking our vacation the same time every year.

Our friends Rob and JoAnn are also owners here, and we've planned to spend one week here next spring and then all go to Acapulco together. We really look forward to the vacations we can now afford to take.

We figure we'll get our money's worth in a couple of years —and then no matter what inflation does—we'll still be taking first class vacations every year.
