AERO

Fitness through dance

Aerobics are now in motion on the Islands. Muffet Hayes, a certified aerobics instructor for the Lee County Y.M.C.A., is offering classes in aerobic dance at 7 p.m. each Tuesday and Thursday evening at the Sanibel Community Center.

"Aerobics in Motion," explains Muffet, "is a cardiovascular fitness program of choreographed dances, designed to enhance endurance, improve flexibility and muscle tone, and at the same time, have fun."

According to the Towson, Boston Y.M.C.A., which holds the patent on aerobic exercises, the basic objective of any aerobic exercise, such as, running, swimming, bicycling, jogging, and dancing, is to increase the maximum amount of oxygen that the body is able to process within a given time. This is called "aerobic capacity."

"Aerobic capacity" is the ability to breathe large amounts of air rapidly, which forcefully delivers large volumes of blood and oxygen to all portions of the body. It is, therefore, one of the best indicators of physical fitness.

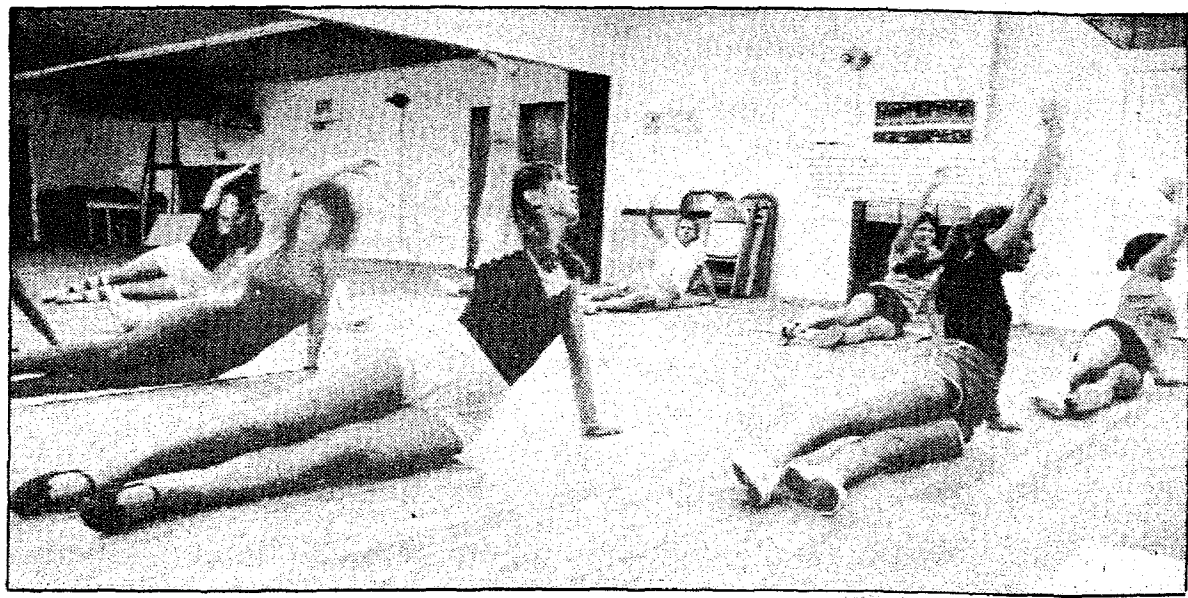

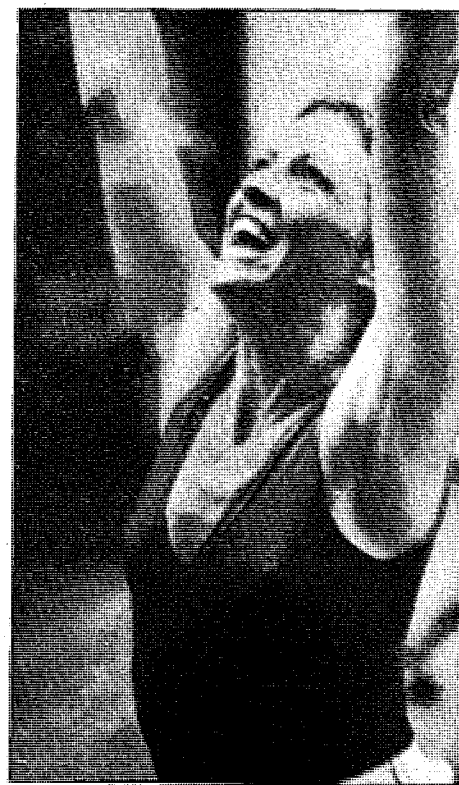

"The classes," Muffet explains, "consist of a pre-warm-up which is intended to stretch muscles; a two part warm-up which starts at a low level and works up to a medium level rate." But that is only the beginning.

"Then nine dances," Muffet continues, "each three to four minutes in length, ranging from medium to high level activity. These dances put enough stress on the heart to achieve 'aerobic effort,' that is, enough stress to cause the heart to become stronger and more efficient and pump more blood with each stroke.

"It's demanding at first," Muffet says, "but most people learn very quickly. Women past 45 are just doing great." Since the class meets only twice a week, Muffet feels it is a good idea to take up some other aerobic exercise to complement the classes.

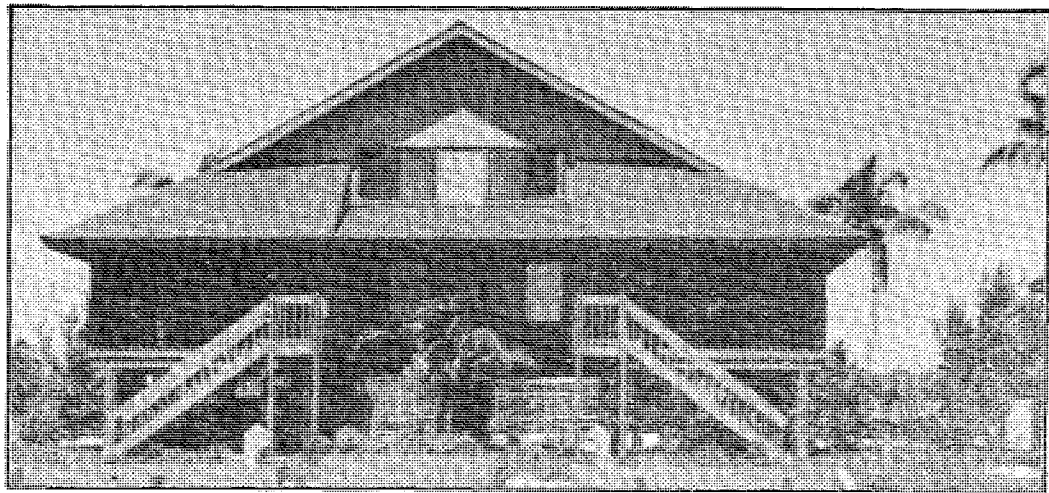

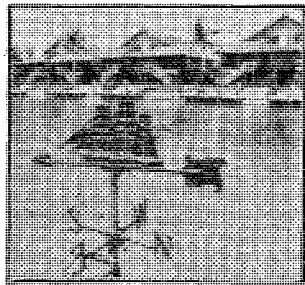

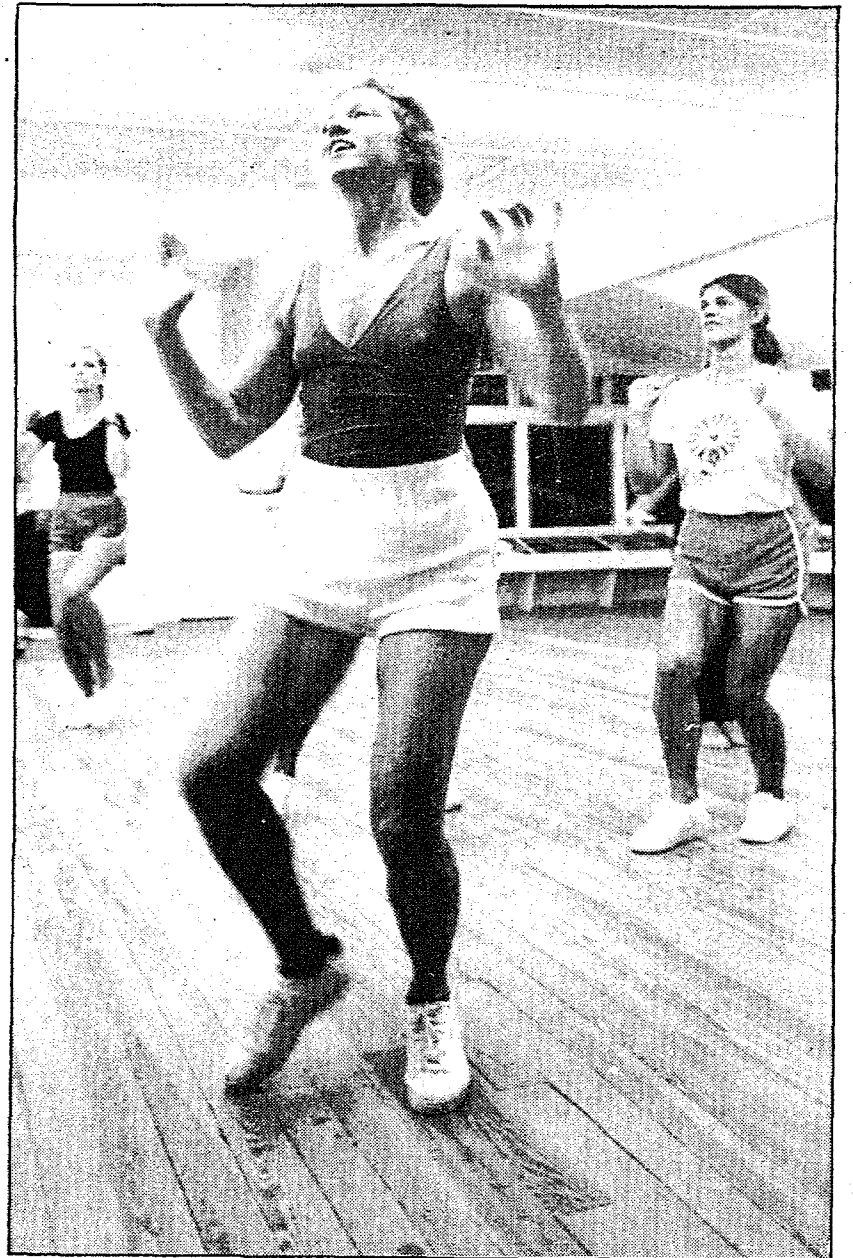

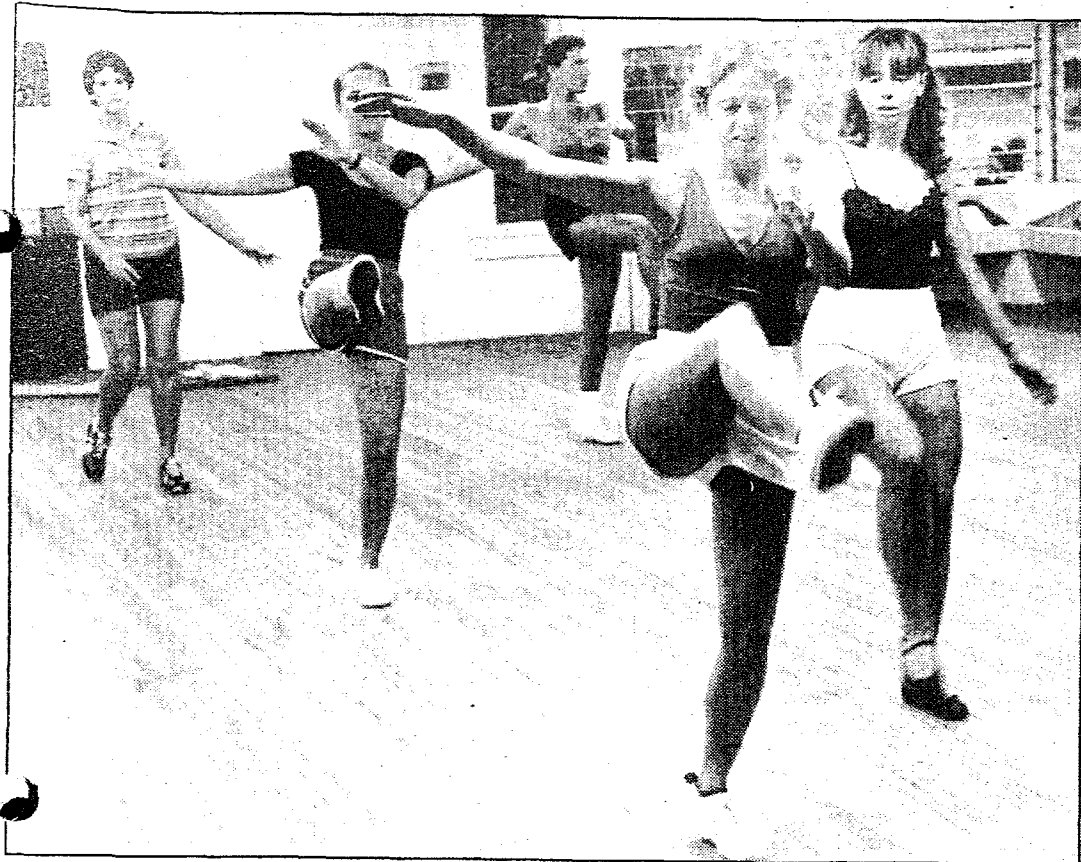

Children are getting in on aerobics as well. Each Wednesday morning Muffet visits The Children's Center of The Islands to explore different "locomotions" with the children. The song "This Old Man" is used to familiarize the children with creative movement. Together, Muffet and the children go hopping, skipping, galloping and rolling around to the music. The kids love it.

Oftentimes, people would like to get themselves into an exercise routine but find the imagined drudgery of it enough reason not to exercise at all. That is why Aerobics has become so popular; it is exercise put to music so that you're dancing and having fun, not just exercising.

Cayo Costa - Upper Captiva low on state's priority list

State Representative Frank Mann (D-Fort Myers) is criticizing the recent low ranking of Cayo Costa and Upper Captiva on the state's priority list for acquisition of environmentally sensitive lands.

Mann still maintains, however, that "there is still a good chance of successfully concluding those purchases next year" despite their low ranking.

According to Mann, "public pressure" on the Governor and Cabinet could help in upgrading the priority ranking of the project to within a "fundable limit" in 1981. He has announced that the State Department of Natural Resources will be conducting a public hearing on the environmentally sensitive land acquisition list on October 21, in the Lee County Commission chambers at 6 p.m.

"It is extremely important for as many people as possible to attend this hearing and testify in favor of upgrading the priority ranking of Upper Captiva and Cayo Costa," said Mann, adding that he would be seeking support from local and County governments, environmental organizations and concerned citizens.

"The State of Florida has already spent $11.2 million to acquire more than 1,100 acres of those two islands, and it is simply inconceivable to me that we would now turn around and say that it is not the first priority to conclude those acquisitions before we consider any new ones," said Mann.

"I think anyone who has taken an objective look at this situation would agree that Cayo Costa-Upper Captiva should be among the top priorities of the selection committee, rather than risk the development of those remaining parcels or waiting even longer to finish the purchases while the market value of this 'exclusive' land continues to inflate," he added.

Mann said that the state estimates it will take an additional $13 million to complete the acquisitions on the two islands, which have already been designated the Cayo Costa State Preserve. "If this project slips through our fingers this next year, then the chances of completing the purchases becomes more remote with each year that passes," Mann warned.

The Governor and Cabinet will still have to rule on the recommendations of the committee and could scrap the list or revise it, said Mann, and "it is extremely important that they hear from the people of Southwest Florida that we want this project upgraded and funded for next year."

Mann also said that state DNR officials have also indicated that a "willingness" to conclude purchase negotiations quickly by potential sellers of Cayo Costa land could accelerate the purchase even if the priority ranking is still low. "We have some indications," he said, "that as a practical matter, if people are willing to sell at a reasonable price without any prolonged negotiations, then the state is going to act to acquire land when it is available and not simply wait until everything else on the list is acquired before whatever number on the priority list Cayo Costa is eventually ranked at."

State land acquisition officials indicate that almost two-thirds or more of the two islands have already been acquired and most of the remaining tracts of land are subdivided into smaller lots. Lee County owns the upper portion of Cayo Costa and operates it as a County park.

Although Division of State Lands Director Richard Luddington had predicted that Cayo Costa would be the state's top priority, the new selection process created after the grand jury investigations and indictments of former DNR Director Harmon Shields placed that project 14th on the list. "I know that Dick (Luddington) was very disappointed also, but the committee simply did not follow the recommendations of his professional staff in ranking the projects," Mann said. "Dick has been extremely supportive throughout this process and has been a real friend to our efforts here in Southwest Florida."

"We simply have to regroup and begin to work on the Governor and Cabinet on this issue, and letters and telegrams of support should be sent to every one of them from as many people as possible," Mann said. "It's going to take public and private pressure to turn this thing around."

Concerned citizens should attend the October 21 meeting or send their comments to Governor Bob Graham, Attorney General Jim Smith, State Treasurer Bill Gunter, Commissioner of Education Ralph Turlington, Commissioner of Agriculture Doyle Conner, Comptroller Gerald Lewis and Secretary George Firestone. Letters can be mailed to the Governor and listed cabinet members through The Capital, Tallahassee, Fl. 32301.

A letter from the chief

To the Citizens of Sanibel:

Last April, at the request of the Sanibel Fire Control District, the Insurance Services Office performed an evaluation of Sanibel to appraise the fire protection provided the fire district. The ISO promised a report to be mailed October 1. The Sanibel Fire Control District is happy to announce that the insurance classification for Sanibel has been improved to a Class 7.

The change from a Class 9 to a Class 7 should reduce premiums for all property owners. The size of reduction should vary in degrees depending on the use of the building, the type of building construction, hazard of contents, and other rating factors.

Any insurance company that uses the ISO classification system will make any necessary changes when changes are made in the coverage or when the policy is up for renewal, and in any case is prorated. For any other information call your insurance agent.

Stopping commercial rape

To the Editor:

At last we have a Councilman who has seen the light and is trying to stop the Commercial Rape of Sanibel which should have been done by the Planning Commission. But no, they let the developers run hog wild and if one developer wanted to add to his property all he had to do was give a large donation say, $50,000.

They put a moratorium on one-family homes but they let the condominium developers build and build and destroy a once beautiful place to live.

OTI supports moratorium

To the Editor:

The Committee of the Islands strongly supports the action of the Sanibel City Council and the Sanibel Planning Commission in approving the initial reading of an ordinance declaring a moratorium on commercial development. This should provide time for Sanibel to make an in-depth study of the Island's needs and the means for controlling the proper growth of our commercial community.

We recommend the Council initiate prompt action on the request for proposal for a market profile presented to the City Council by the City Manager on April 10, 1980.

Island asphalt jungles

A copy of the following letter was given to the Islander for publication:

Commissioner Don Manchester
City Of Sanibel
Sanibel, Florida

Dear Mr. Commissioner:

I wish to bring to your attention the remarks made by you at the Planning Commission hearing on September 29, 1980 at approximately 5:15 p.m. wherein you conveyed your feelings about the commercial rape of vegetation as done by the Burger Emporium and one other establishment, to a full audience of Island residents that included committee chairmen, City Council members, the press and candidates for public office, to mention a few.

To set the record straight, be advised that the developer of the Burger Emporium in Gulfside Plaza did not destroy vegetation but instead spent many thousands of dollars to transplant the existing vegetation removing only the unwanted pepper and casuarina trees. In addition, much new vegetation was purchased and planted.

I resent the inference of your placing the Burger Emporium in the same light with a developer that violated the vegetation plans and was required by the City to post a performance bond to replace the destroyed vegetation, which was never done.

We broke no laws at this site and received no favors, nor asked for any. We worked hard and diligently to preserve what was here and still provide walking and driving safety through the grounds, and did this through consultation with City officials who were responsible in this area, including George Campbell.

If you deem it necessary to cite examples at public forums, I am sure there are several asphalt jungles that could be addressed.

Now that you have the facts Mr. Commissioner, I would hope that the time has come to stop all this foolishness concerning the Burger Emporium and Gulfside Plaza.

Very truly yours,
(s) Louis Martelli, President
Burger Emporium

Commercial ROGO?

The Islander Editor:

Presumably, last year's Rate of Growth Ordinance was calculated on the basis of how many persons, at peak levels of dwelling-unit occupancy, the public facilities (utilities, protective services, etc.) on this Island could effectively and efficiently support. After all, there is just so much useable land and available water.

A similar kind of calculation suggests itself for administering applications for commercial development. This community of so-and-so many persons, according to RoG figures, can support (profitably for the "commercants") only so many business-professional establishments of various kinds. Free and fair competition would dictate that at least two of each kind of establishment be approved, within the context of the Comprehensive Land-Use Plan, of course. This could be expanded to three, or even four, perhaps, given the geographical distribution of the population on this long, thin strip of "paradise." It is too late to "cluster" all commercial ventures at one designated mid-way point, even if that were desirable.

For example, we could probably support at least one more hardware-building supplies outlet, dry-cleaning establishment (including a cobbler?), stationery-supplies store, and perhaps another pharmacy to allow for seven-day, 24-hour availability on a rotating basis. Duplication-triplication of such services should, if possible, take into account the population-spread throughout the Island.

On the other hand, we do not need yet another supermarket or grocery, fast-food emporium, shell shop, or "boutique." Shopping centers tend to attract such places; we would do better to encourage the small businessman rather than the commercial developer, in the directions appropriate to our needs.

It would seem reasonable, logical, and uncomplicated to administer both the CLUP and the RoG Ordinances in terms of (1) the Island's capabilities to provide essential public utilities and services, and (2) how many commercial outlets of various "necessary" kinds the accepted population-level (1) can support, consonant of course with the principles of free and fair competition.

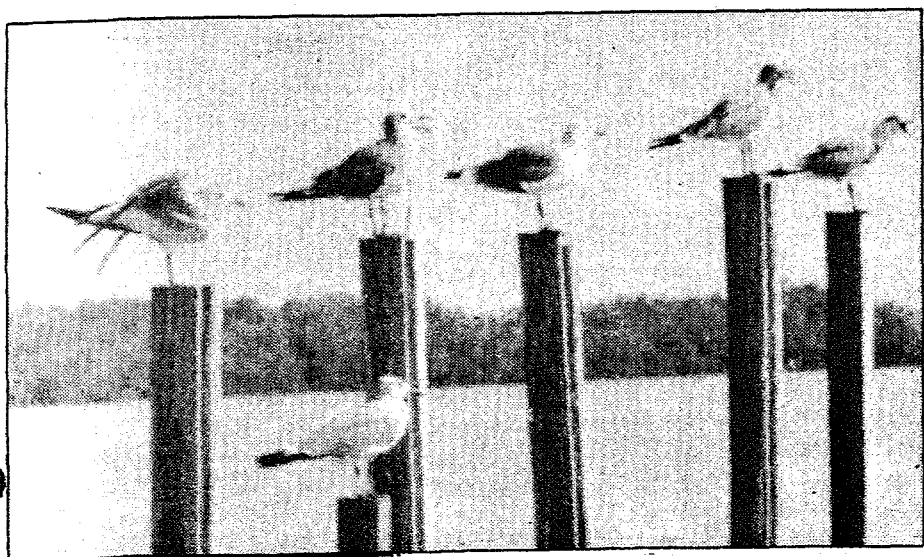

Whatever device will make this work: moratorium, yet another "study," and-or a loud and clear mandate from the people, strictly observed, is most clearly essential.

Register now for community courses

The Community Courses Committee is paving the way for their fourth year in a row of serving the Island community with quality adult education classes.

Initiators of the Committee in 1976, Carol Davenport and Ann Marsh, established the program to serve several functions. At that time, the Edison Community courses were petering out on the Islands and the first objective of the newly formed committee was to provide courses on the Islands for the people who live here.

The committee wanted to create an environment where the Islands' socially isolated residents could meet new people and make new friends, which can sometimes be difficult in a resort oriented area. This ideology was two-fold in effect: It provided Islanders with an opportunity to pursue interests that they could not have pursued otherwise, while giving them the chance to get out and meet other Islanders with similar interests.

Another gap the Community Course Committee filled, was to create an opportunity for Islanders who had previously been teachers to come and share their talents with other Islanders.

"The Community Courses Committee emphasizes friendship over course credit."

The Community Courses Committee emphasizes friendship over course credit. While they are certainly interested in presenting new information in their classes, their real interest is in providing students with an enjoyable time; a place to meet friends while enjoying the opportunity to expand one's knowledge in selected subject areas.

One of the most popular courses offered has been Bridge. Although the course was only offered for five weeks, many students are still playing with members they met in their class. Parapsychology and ESP was a course that also received much acclaim. There was so much interest generated over the topic of ESP that five weeks just didn't suffice. Students continued meeting for a year and a half after the scheduled class had finished.

Over the past four years, the Community Courses Committee has provided the Islanders with over 50 different course selections and has enrolled more than 1,500 students. The Committee is sincerely dedicated to the goals they have established and is interested in offering the greatest benefits that a community, such as the Islands, can offer its residents.

The Community Courses Committee is celebrating their fourth birthday this fall, however, the possibilities have only just begun; it is the tradition of this committee to continually serve Sanibel and Captiva and the community's best interests.

BIG Arts stirs up season's cultural agenda

By Charlotte Heilmann

Plans for the '80-'81 season are being stirred up by the Barrier Island Group for the Arts (BIG Arts). Chairman Peter Smith presided at a meeting for the Board of Directors on Monday, September 29, and a tentative schedule was discussed.

BIG Arts has an ambitious slate of speakers and musicians, plus two community events slated for active participation by Islanders and visitors.

What BIG Arts wants to do for the Islands cannot be done without financial support from residents, visitors, and the business community. There is to be a membership drive in November, an effort to enlist contributions from public-spirited corporations and individuals interested in enriching the quality of Island life.

Membership in BIG Arts is a clear indication of such interest, whether as a benefactor for $1,000 and up, or as a single supporter for $15. Special recognition for members will be given in printed programs and in other ways to be announced periodically.

This season's program will open at the Sanibel Community Center on Sunday, October 26, with a concert by Dennis Hill's Jazz Quartet. This talented group from Edgewater Community College is sure to be enthusiastically received.

On Saturday, November 29, BIG Arts will sponsor its First Annual Arts & Crafts Festival, the Big Top Bazaar. Hours will be 10 a.m. to 7 p.m., on the grounds of and in the Community Center.

Two enormous tents will be set up with displays of work by the finest of local artists and craftsmen, a bake sale, daylong refreshments, coffee, soft drinks, beer, wine, and live music.

BIG Arts is delighted to have engaged the Blue Grass Little Bits to spark the occasion. This unusual band, from Orlando, is composed of youngsters aged 10 to 14, and their music is packed with contagious joy.

The last week in December will bring Peter McHugh, violinist, and Lee Luvisi, pianist, in a joint concert, also at the Sanibel Community Center.

Other programs on the proposed BIG Arts agenda for winter and spring are Peter Driscoll, mime, novelist James Dickey, pianist Marianne Ulyot, classical guitarist Peter Segal and author Leonard Moseley.

The final event will be the Second Annual Saturday Super Supper Show ("SASSSS!"), probably at the end of April to accommodate winter residents. This time, the entire Community Center building will be used, to ensure enough room for everybody.

This kind of evening shows BIG Arts at its best, encouraging local talent and participation by all Islanders. It should be a fitting close to a successful season, a cooperative venture between BIG Arts and the community.

Lynn's Binge

By Lynn Daus

Chef, is on vacation. In his place, Frank Deehan, Maitre d', donned his bow tie and sport jacket last week to cook us up his specialty, Bananas Foster, learned years ago at Brennan's in Dallas, Texas.

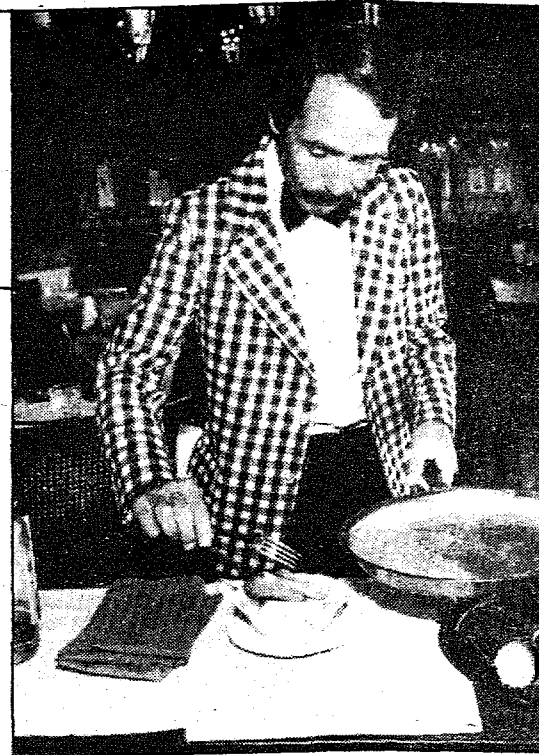

Bananas Foster, Frankie explained, is made with brown sugar as opposed to Bananas Flambe which is made with white sugar. The cart used to cook on is known as a garridon and the cooking element is a richard. First, a generous amount of butter is melted in the copper pan, then a touch of cinnamon is added along with the brown sugar, and then the bananas, split in half lengthwise and sauted on both sides, are added. Brandy and banana liqueur are the final ingredients. They're added and flamed, which is always a nice touch, and all the while Frank is cooking he is talking.

He is Mr. Showbiz all the way. In fact he told me there were no calories in the sauce. Then he added that if I believed that he had some swampland in Immokalee he would sell me. The bananas and butter sauce are served over vanilla ice cream and that touch of cinnamon made this dessert a real taste treat. I recommend it.

Photographer Mark Harmel and I also shared a piece of homemade key lime pie. It was slightly frozen and delicious, not too sweet. Frankie treated us very well, and said that the emphasis in the Bahama Room is good food and good service.

We had both.

Sanibel Scouts participate in Camp Lanochee weekend

Seven Scouts and one adult leader of the Sanibel-Captiva Boy Scout Troop 88 joined 20 Scouts and four adult leaders from Troop 101 of Ft. Myers for a weekend campout. The Scouts camped at Camp Lanochee near Paisley between Orlando and Gainesville.

The Scouts of Troop 88 left Sanibel on Friday evening at 6:30 p.m. and arrived at 11:45 p.m. at Camp Lanochee where Troop 101 had arrived only a half hour earlier. Once again the Scouts had to pitch their tents after dark. The Scouts then turned in for the evening.

Saturday morning got off to an early start, digging a fire pit so a fire could be built for breakfast. When the fire burned down to where there were enough coals for cooking, a breakfast of pancakes, sausages, and orange juice were prepared in a dutch oven by Todd Noon, Mike Howard, and Grant Slay. Everyone helped with the clean-up.

After breakfast everyone worked on such camp improvements as raking the campsite, cleaning the fire pit, cutting and stacking firewood for the rest of the weekend, and straightening up their tents.

After a period of working on camp improvements, all of the Scouts got together for a brief tour of the camp. All Scouts were run through the obstacle course with Chris McCann running the fastest time of one minute, twenty-six seconds.

The Scouts then returned to camp for lunch. Everyone in Troop 88 prepared their own lunch of hamburgers, potatoes, peppers, corn and onions wrapped in aluminum foil, and ice tea.

After dinner the troops headed for the swimming pool for some relief from the heat. After some time of free swimming, the patrols got together for some competition and chicken fights.

The rest of the afternoon was spent working on advancement and scouting skills until dinner.

For dinner, Mark Mellaci, Todd Noon, and Grant Slay prepared spaghetti with meat and sauce, garlic bread and fruit juice.

The time after dinner was opened for free time for the Scouts. The Scouts used this time to engage in a football game as others went out to explore the camp.

The evening campfire of skits and songs by the patrols was enjoyed by all.

Immediately following the campfire all Scouts hiked down to the waterfront area for an evening vespers service on the dock which was put on by the patrol leaders of each patrol, and very well done. The Scouts then returned to camp and retired for the evening.

Sunday morning was greeted by that unpleasant task of cleaning up and taking down camp. The Scouts left camp at 11 a.m. and, with a stop for lunch, did not get home until 5:30 p.m. Camp Lanochee was a 240-mile trip for the Scouts.

Those in attendance were Bryan Welker, Todd Noon, Mark Mellaci, Matt Nichols, Mike Howard, Grant Slay, Chris McCann, and Scoutmaster Ron Sebald who was also the driver.

On the water

By Mike Fuery

The most crucial part of boating a large fish comes during those last frantic moments when a snook, redfish or whatever is thrashing about at the side of the boat. All the skill of setting the hook and playing the fish will not amount to much if you or your partner fouls up the netting procedure and allows the fish to escape.

We have all had it happen to us and "the one that got away" stories usually boil down to a bad job of netting the fish. This week, let's talk about some of the tips you may want to keep in mind when it comes time to put that big one in your boat.

I remember just a few days ago when I went against my own better judgment and fought a 16-pound snook all the way up to the boat, but allowed one of the passengers on board my charter boat to give netting the fish a try. I truly had my hands full, with the fish having run under the engine and the anchor line.

As the snook began to splash about at the side of the boat, a well-meaning fella reached down and tried to net the fish. It only took the snook, now halfway into the net, a second to slash a large hole in the material bag. After a second try to get the fish, I just about fell over when the fish went right through the hole. Then it really began to swim wildly at the side of the boat, but the net was virtually useless. Somehow, the guy wrapped the snook into the net by twisting it around fins, gills and tail. It was about as bad a netting job as I could ever imagine - but we still got the fish!

It brings to mind some things I try to remember when embarking on the job of landing a fish. Probably the most important aspect is the net itself. If you ever wander through a tackle shop, you know there are many kinds of nets. Some are good and some should never be sold.

Two of the biggest mistakes you can make is to buy a short-handled net, of say less than three feet long, not including the hoop; or buying the wrong-sized mesh.

On the net handle, I look for one about four to five feet long. You never know how far down you may have to work from a seawall, pier or boat side. A short-handled net will have you hanging from your toenails from the side of the boat to get it under a fish.

There are some specially built nets that have handles eight to 12 feet long. These are for bridge fishing, mostly. The material of the handle is important also. I used to be partial to wooden handles until I learned the hard way. A handle made of wood will snap right where it goes into the round net hoop if there is enough pressure. I would suggest keeping with the more reliable tubular aluminum material. Some of the better manufacturers put foam inside the handle so that if you drop it over the side, it will float. That's an important factor if you have ever lost one and had to watch your $10 net slowly sinking to the bottom.

The mesh size is something I change with the fishing seasons. I usually will wear out or tear up approximately three nets a year. In the winter fishing season, when we mostly fish for sea trout or small redfish, I use the smaller mesh nets that have one-half to one-inch between knots in the material. For snook season, I take a longer-handled net with larger openings in the knots.

Incidentally, don't buy any net that doesn't come made from man-made materials. The old style made of tied cord or material that will rot is just a waste of money - so avoid it. Don't worry about the color of the net. A big snook is going to be "hacked off," when he sees that net, and the color won't make any difference to it. The quality of the net material and the strength of the handle is what puts 'em in the boat.

The final consideration is the shape of the net hoop. The old, standard round size is still popular and works fine, especially for smaller fish. There are, however, some new nearly rectangular-shaped nets with offset "dips" in them. You can get the net down under the fish somewhat easier. I use this type, and many guides I work with like them too.

All the netting skill in the world won't keep a poorly hooked snook or redfish from escaping at the side of the boat. But a well selected net (which should cost you approximately $6 to $12) is about the best insurance you can have against having to say, "You should have seen the size of the one that got out of the net."

Conversion table: The above tides are for the lighthouse point of Sanibel only. To convert for Redfish Pass (North tip of Captiva), add 55 minutes to the time shown for every high tide. Subtract two minutes for every low tide.

For Captiva Island Gulf side, subtract 30 minutes for each high tide, and subtract hour and 16 minutes for each low tide.

For Captiva Island, Pine Island Sound (Bay) side, add 1 hour and four minutes for each high tide and add 52 minutes for each low tide.

In between these points, gulf or bay, guesstimate and have good fishing or shelling.

Shelling Tips

By Mike Fuery

Have you ever noticed that there are different kinds of sand on the various beaches you have visited on Sanibel and Captiva Islands?

Sand is sand, right? But, apparently shells are very sensitive to the type of sand in which they feed and live. Take the delicate angel wing shell, for instance.

These white shells like to burrow into the sand and often live up to 18 inches below the surface. But the angel wing shell doesn't like pure beach sand, rather, it seeks out a type of sand found on the Pine Island Sound side of the Islands because that sand is mixed with a type of muddy sediment material. The reason the shells seek this type of material is because they send a long siphon up to the surface to gather microscopic bits of food. That passageway from the shell to the surface is packed sand and mud and will remain open so that the live shell will always be able to feed. If a live angel wing tried to burrow out in the Gulf in the regular sand the sides of the hole would continually cave in. So, it is a very special type of sand which attracts the angel wing.

There used to be several of these mud banks in the Sound where the angel wing could be found but, unfortunately, this shell was a victim of over shelling and today they are practically wiped out because so many were dug up by shellers determined to take as many live ones as possible.

The tiny coquina, or donax shell, is another which picks out its living quarters very carefully. These are highly colorful shells, about half an inch long and are sometimes called butterfly wings. The gulls and other sea birds eat these tiny shells as they wash in and out with the surf on the beach side of the Islands. You hardly ever find coquina shells alive on the Bay side of the Island because they need clear water and light sand to burrow in quickly as the wave washes back to the deeper waters. These shells are found in large numbers on certain parts of the beach, but sometimes you will walk for several hundred yards before encountering a bed of them.

The live sunray venus shell is a clam family collector's shell which has a stained glass effect when opened and held up to the light. These shells like to bury themselves just under the sand, but they like dirty sand. That is, they like the soft sand which has lots of sediment mixed in. On a small sandbar Island along the Gulf of Mexico, you can often find the sunray on the back side, or side facing away from the wave action of the Island. Apparently, the surf makes the sand too hard for them to properly bury themselves and search for food too.

The big horse conchs, so sought after by beginning collectors, like that same type of sand that the sunray seems to avoid. In other words, the horse conch likes to bury itself on the outside, or wave side, of the sandbars. I have often come upon these shells with their foot end sticking perhaps an inch out of the sand. The shells work their way along the sand, trying to locate suitable clams or other shells on which to feed.

I have come upon horse conchs on mud flats, of course, but the majority of them are living on the Gulf side of the Islands where the clean sand is easy to hide in and also easier for them to search out and get food.

Sand dollars are seekers of a type of sand which always feels grainy to me. It seems that these live shells like a coarse sand and often are found just under, or half buried, in the sand. There are certain areas along the beaches which have this type of sand and that is why you don't find dollars all along the beaches.

Refuge

By Charles R. LeBuff, Jr., Biological Technician, J.N. "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has presented Lee County with additional money made available from the Refuge Revenue Sharing Act. The payment last week of $8,878.00 brings the total amount received by the County this year to $25,350.00.

The Refuge Revenue Sharing Act provides funds to counties in lieu of taxes. The Lee County share is based on the Fish and Wildlife service lands on the J.N. "Ding" Darling and Pine Island National Wildlife Refuges. The J.N. "Ding" Darling Refuge is situated on Sanibel Island and totals 4,860 acres of land and water. The Pine Island Refuge consists of half a dozen mangrove islands totaling 615 acres in upper Pine Island Sound.

Officer Noon to address Rotary

Speaker Dick Noon of the Sanibel Police Recreation Club will cover "Sanibel's new Pool and Recreation Program" at the Sanibel-Captiva Rotary Club meeting on Friday, October 10.

The Rotary Club speaker for Friday, October 17, will be Dr. Howard Frankel who has practiced medicine for 28 years. Dr. Frankel was a professor at New York University Hospital for 15 years and has written about 25 articles on research for dental and medical journals. His wife, Marilyn, a retired attorney, will accompany him. They have five children, three of whom are following their father's example; two are doctors and one is studying nursing at Edison College with a view towards being a doctor. Dr. Frankel's subject will be bio-feedback.

The Sanibel-Captiva Rotary will be meeting again at The Timbers Restaurant on Rabbit and San-Cap Road on Friday, October 10. The meeting starts at 12 noon.

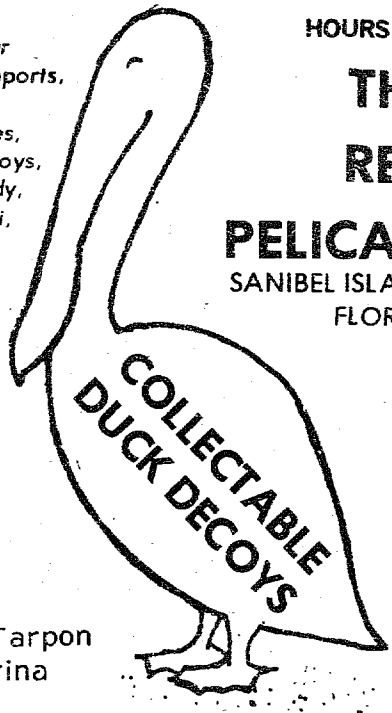

Scouts

Local Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts will be knocking on doors and soliciting near shopping centers beginning this week. They're out to sell thousands of tickets to the 1980 Scout Show, slated for December 6 at the Lee County Arena. Tickets, including free parking, are $1. Children accompanied by an adult will be admitted free.

The production, "Scouting's Reunion with History," will include Cub Scout packs, Boy Scout troops and Explorer posts from all over Southwest Florida in a Scouting extravaganza never before seen in this area, Peg Pigott, Scout Show Chairman, said.

Scouting units earn up to 50 percent commission on each $1 ticket sale, she said. In addition, official high quality Scout equipment prizes can be earned by individual Scouts for selling 25 or more tickets. Ticket sales often produce enough money to fund a unit all year, Pigott said.

flexible, luxurious, and economical --interval ownership makes sense.

Yes, Our vacations are special — we like to travel, stay at top resorts, dine at fine restaurants, and enjoy a variety of activities.

We've been visiting the islands for several years and have thought seriously about buying a vacation home here. We looked around, and discovered the interval ownership program at South Seas Plantation offers our kind of vacations — very economically and allows us to vacation more frequently.

In fact, it made sense for us to purchase four vacation weeks — two for our vacations at South Seas Plantation, one for our children to come and visit, and another week to use with the exchange program. The exchange week we'll use to go to Hilton Head, Europe, Hawaii or wherever.

Let's face facts. Renting accommodations at first class resorts is expensive. The vacation villas at Plantation Beach Club are luxurious, the one-time purchase price is very reasonable, and we always have something to show for the money we've spent.

Membership at South Seas Plantation and our beachfront vacation villa — that's the kind of vacation we value.

Islands

"This is Walter Klie, coming to you from Sanibel Island."

Walter Klie, executive director of the Sanibel-Captiva Chamber of Commerce, feels that over the years the Islands have grown more harmonious and viable as a community.

Unlike most cities, where the Chamber of Commerce is designed to encourage industry, the Sanibel-Captiva Chamber plays a different role. "We help visitors," explains Mr. Klie. "It's an information center. We process visitors and find them accommodations, motels, golf courses, restaurants."

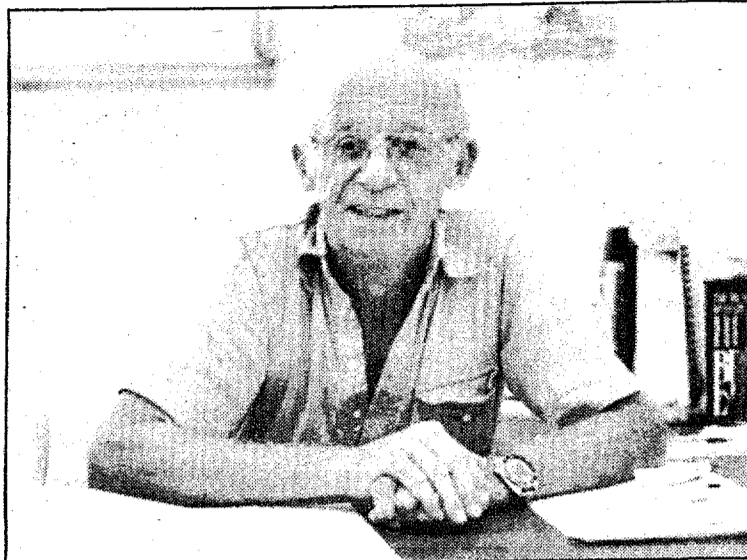

During the tourist season, Mr. Klie and his staff "process" 1200-1300 people a day. Without the Chamber, there could be total Island havoc with the tourists trying to find everything for themselves. "We have a tremendous staff," says Klie. "They have patience and understanding and a good sense of humor." All of which are severely tried day after day at the Chamber office.

For some time now, Mr. Klie has been doing a five minute radio spot every Wednesday at 11:40 a.m., on channel WMYR 14.10, focusing on the Islands. "I do little vignettes," he explains. "I just say what I want to say. I cover amenities, shops, crafts, restaurants, or maybe just talk about fishing or sailing."

Lately, the Chamber has been updating the five year old Sanibel-Captiva map and the "Things to Do" on the Islands booklet. They continue to direct the tourists and keep the Island's businesses happy by making sure everyone finds the place they are looking for.

The little red barn

Over on the corner of Main Street and Periwinkle Way is a red barn brimming with bikes. It's called, obviously enough, The Bike Barn, and is run by Fred Miller and his wife who have been in the bicycle business for over 40 years.

The Millers came to Sanibel about 10 years ago after retiring from the sporting goods store they had been running up in Long Island. But upon coming to Sanibel, and being retired, they needed to do something constructive with all their newly acquired extra time.

"I can't just sit around. I have to do something," says Fred. So, he started his own small scale biking business where he rents bikes to tourists, repairs Islanders' bikes, and sells new bikes. "It keeps me busy," he explains.

As a rule, Fred likes to keep an inventory of 50 bicycles and five tandem bikes on hand, although during the season, claims Fred, "We sometimes don't have a bike here." He has had customers write him from up North to reserve bikes for the days they will be vacationing here.

One of the benefits Fred offers to the Islanders is free safety inspections. He feels it is important to stress riding safety and riding a safe bike, especially since there are so many bike riders on the Islands.

Abandon your car for a change and see your Islands by bicycle.

Don't hit me!

Keeping in line with their creative philosophy of education, the Sanibel Resources Center continues to initiate new ideas for both their students and their students' family members.

Comparable to the parent-teacher's night traditionally held at public schools, the SRC held a "New Games Picnic" last week where students and their families gathered together for an evening of fun.

"New Games," explained SRC instructor Linda McCarthy, "are designed from old games. They downplay competition and stress fun. They are designed for all ages and have simple rules."

Some of the games the SRC group played were boffer tag, mingle, cookie machine, rock-paper-scissors, knots, and the lap game. It's one of those experiences that one must see to understand - to describe the games in words would leave your mind even more boggled than the titles of the games manage alone.

One thing is for sure, there was plenty of laughter and fun for the parents as well as for the kids. After an hour or so, when everyone had worked up a hefty appetite, the group moved from the playing field to the kitchen where the Moms had prepared a smorgasbord of tasty delights to fill all the empty stomachs.

The evening was a success for the Resources Center. The "New Games Picnic," a novel idea, is a definite change from the ordinary parent-teacher's night, for all involved.

Through a child's eyes

The Photographers' Gallery, a non-profit, educational Island organization, has a special treat in store for the children and and parents of the Islands.

"Seeing Through A Child's Eye," the Gallery photographic exhibit slated for an October 26 opening, will feature photographs taken by fourth and fifth grade students at Sanibel Elementary School.

Emil Fray, Gallery manager, met with the students last week during class time to explain the project and set up a date for a darkroom demonstration and Gallery field trip. Each student from the two participating grades was asked to take pictures of their community, friends, family or whatever else they chose, turn the finished prints or poloroids into the school office by October 21, and participate in the hanging and opening of the exhibit.

Said one fifth grader, "Oh man, it's gonna be so cool! I'll take pictures of that spider in the front yard, my cat, my friend, our house, the clouds....!"

Leslie LeBuff

Age: 21

Height: 4' 11 $\frac{3}{4}$ "

Roots: Sanibel

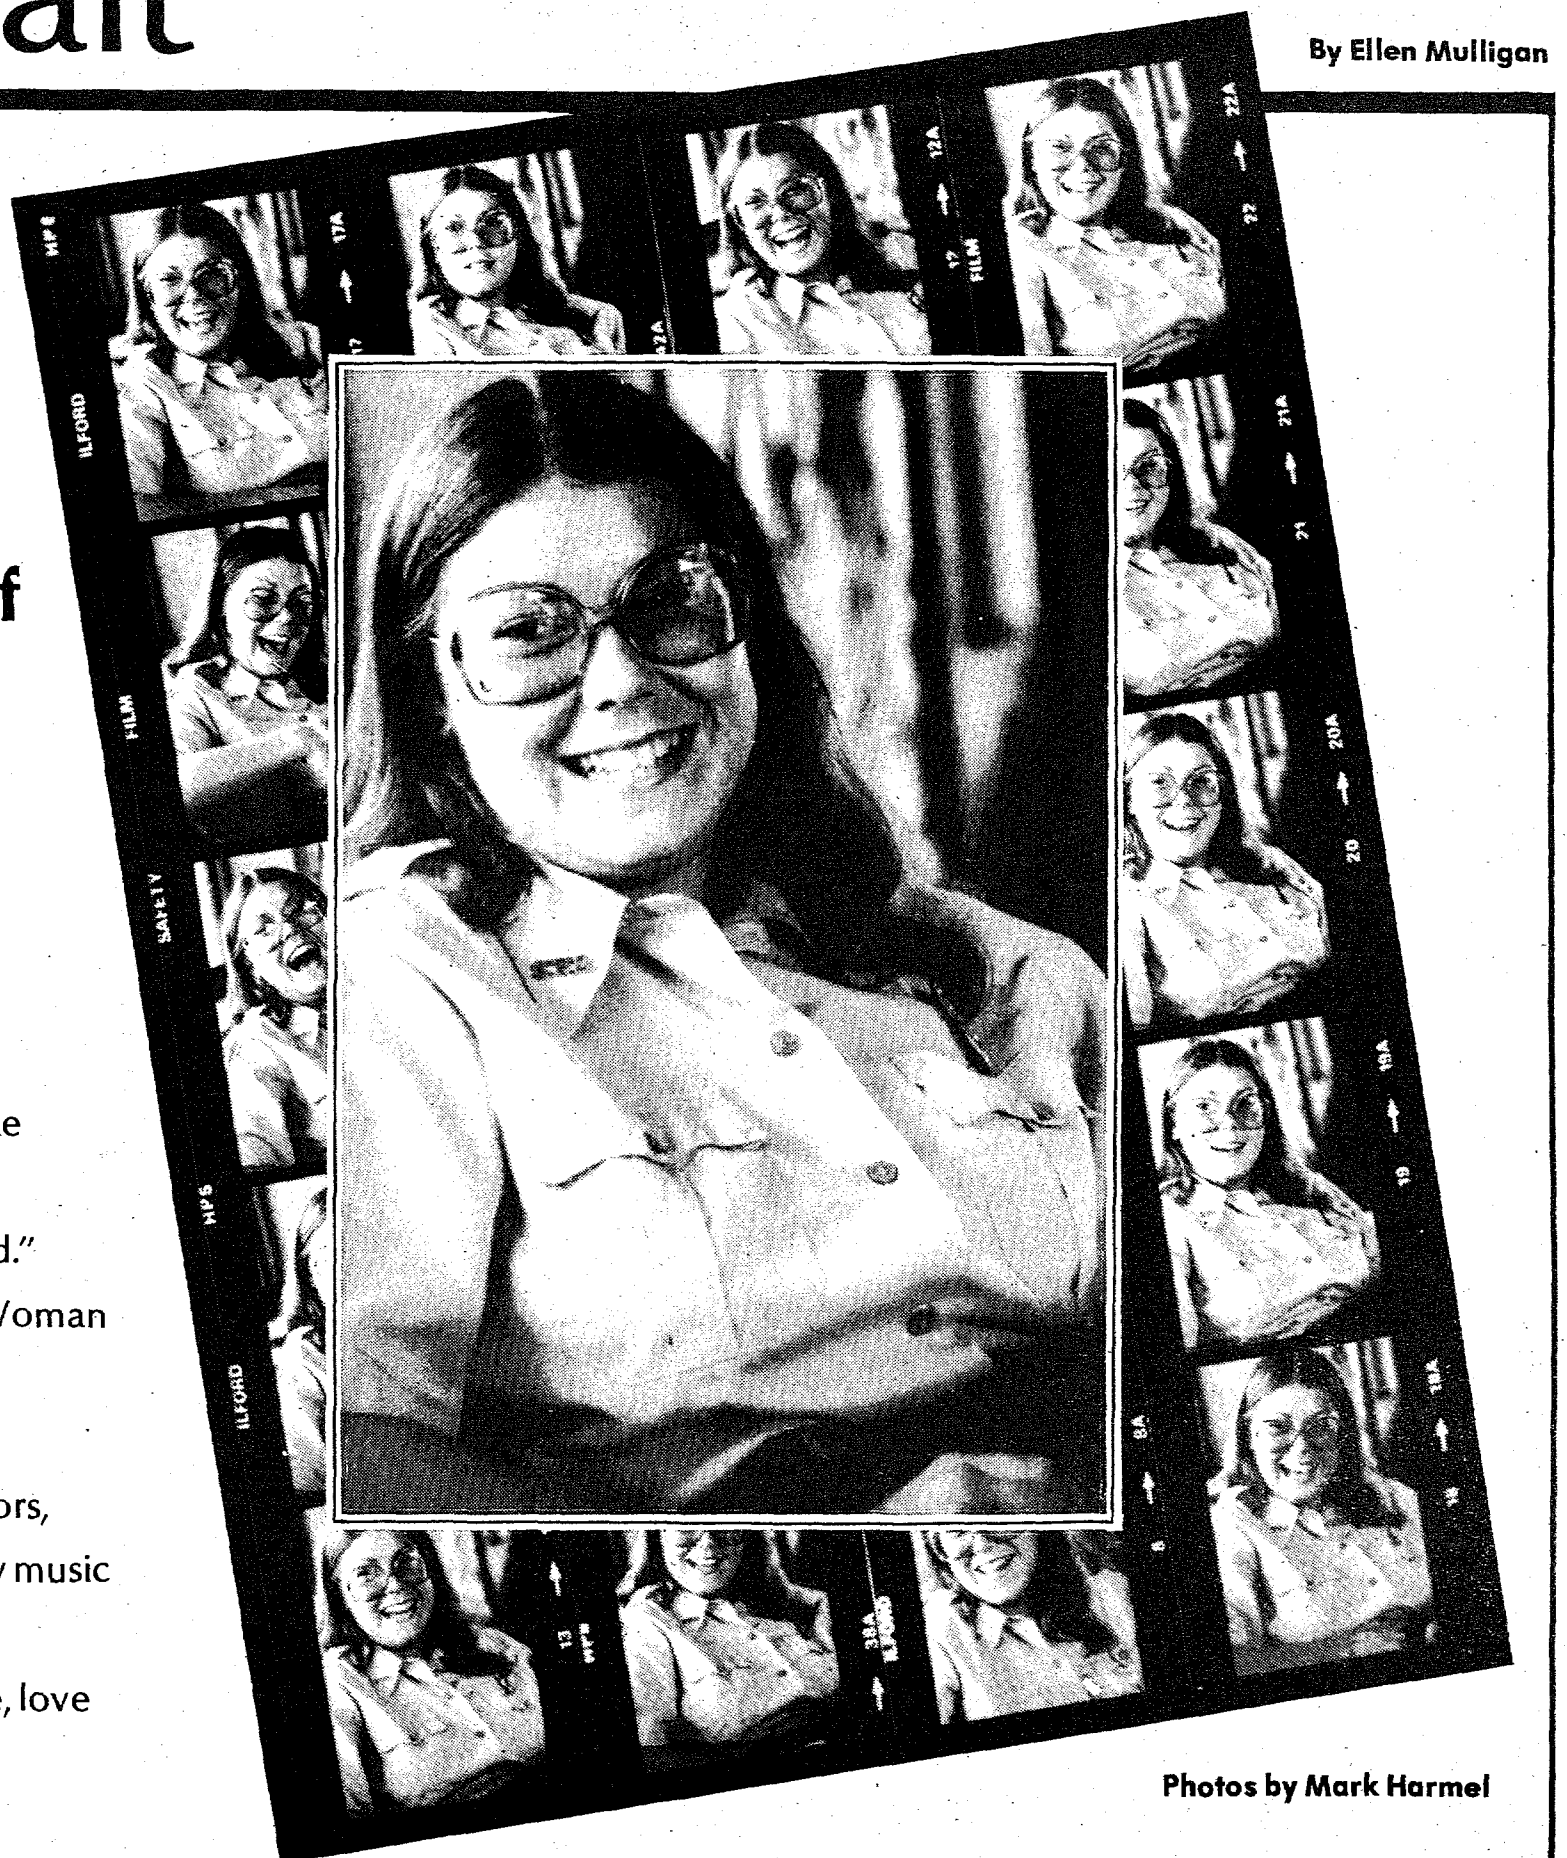

Wish: "I wish that I could find a pot of gold at the end of my rainbow."

Mentor: "I'd like to be like my mother. She's a neat lady; she's my best friend."

Last Book Read: "Man, Woman and Child by Eric Segal."

Pleasures: "Sleeping, backpacking, the outdoors, collecting shells, country music and rainbows."

Words of Wisdom: "Live, love and laugh. That's me!"

"Sanibel Emergency, Dispatcher LeBuff, is this an emergency?" queries Leslie LeBuff into the phone receiver, pretending a calm voice this graveyard shift night. The voice on the other end replies, "Yeah, what's you all's zip code over there."

Although that was no emergency, it is a prime example of what being a police dispatcher is all about. "I answer the phones and take complaints. It's mostly people who are scared that call," Leslie explains.

Being a police dispatcher, she must be able to deal effectively with the sometimes trivial problems of the community as well as the real emergencies. "If there's an emergency, I send out whoever I need too," she says.

Since only being on the job for a month, when the emergency phone rings, Leslie confesses, "I freak out, then I calm myself down and answer the phone." Never knowing what problem lies at the other end of the line is what makes Leslie's heart skip a few beats every time the phone rings.

Along with three other dispatchers, Leslie helps keep the Sanibel police station running smoothly and responding promptly to any problem. The dispatchers rotate shifts to insure that the phones are manned 24 hours a day; which means that the dispatchers must alternate shifts and that includes the graveyard shift as well.

"I wasn't sure about the shifts at first," Leslie says, adding, "but now I like them. The graveyard shift is quiet, no dinky complaints." When Leslie is on the graveyard shift, she averages about five hours of sleep a day, explaining that when she gets off in the morning, "I'm so wide awake and so wired." She gets home and starts talking with her roommate and drinking coffee which makes it even harder for her to sleep.

"I like this field. I like what I'm doing now," Leslie says. Having always been a Sanibel resident, and now, with her new job, Leslie thinks she'll be here for a while. "I'll work here as long as they let me stay," she says with a giggle.

"This is what I know," explains Leslie, "I was brought up here. I have my family and loved ones. I'll be here for a while."

Leslie feels she is very much a country girl, and although she has adjusted to the development of the Islands, says, "I liked it with one little gas station and one little grocery store and lots of trees and animals."

Having spent some time at Edison Community College when she hadn't really decided what she wanted to do, Leslie left school in hopes of finding her place by getting involved with the world.

During that time, she worked as a waitress, as a teller at the Bank of the Islands and at one point, even found herself in Houston working as a secretary for an oil field service company.

Really spreading her wings, Leslie spent this summer camping around the country and exploring places that many of us only read about.

But, nobody has probably heard of one of her favorite places, Luckenbach, Texas. It has a population of four where the tourists come to sit around and drink Lone Star beer! But she also visited the Grand Canyon, Colorado, Mexico and New Mexico and, as she explains, "I saw a lot of different things."

Leslie's journey finally brought her back to her home, back to Sanibel. And in the search for her identity, she has acquired a strong interest in the law enforcement field.

Besides finding a pot of gold at the end of her rainbow, Leslie wishes to return to school. It is more realistic to her now since becoming involved with the police department. Education-wise, the job has narrowed down her interests from the world as a whole to an interest in law. Which certainly helps on registration day.

After spending some time with Leslie, it's easy to see how she got the nickname "giggles." Her youth and vitality are connected by her giggles; and what's more, all three are contagious.

Wanting to be a little different, Leslie also has a tattoo. Not surprising, it's a rainbow. Someday, she wants to put a pot of gold at the end of it. So, even if her first rainbow doesn't pay off, Leslie's bound to get at least one pot of gold.

Lions learn about drug program

By D.E. Cooperrider

The regular meeting of the Sanibel-Captiva Lions Club was held at the Beachview Country Club last Wednesday, October 1, and an International visitor from Norway was recognized. Odds Vegard from Fredrikstad, Norway, gave the Club an exchange banner and was given a Florida Lions Pin and a Sanibel-Captiva vest.

The program presented by Cindy Beach and Steve Brightwell on the Palmer Drug Abuse Program (PDAP) was very enlightening and the Lions showed great interest in their descriptions of the people that are drug users and abusers. Both have had very personal contact with family members who were involved with the use of drugs in the youth community. Mr.

Brightwell became interested and involved in PDAP as a result of his own problem which started in high school. Both were emphatic in their statements that the user starts small as a result of peer pressure and progresses from pot or Quaaludes, or both, to hard drugs. They did say that not all go this far but the trend is for those that depend on drugs to proceed to hard drugs because the accumulative characteristics of the drugs makes higher dosages necessary to reach the high needed. They stressed that abusers need all the psychological help they can be given if the habit is to be broken.

The next Lions Club meeting will be held at the Beachview Country Club on Wednesday, October 15 at 6:30 p.m.

A fearsome foursome led by Ira Hackman set a new Beachview Men's Association record last Tuesday morning.

With all four members finishing with positive scores, the team of Jeff Dean, Charlie Uhr, Roy Hull and Ira Hackman broke the existing team record with a score of plus 15.

Hackman's even par play also tied him with Clay Marsh at plus seven for the high individual score.

Saturday's play was back down to the normal level. Finishing at plus two were John Forster, Bill Estep, Ray Howland, and Clay Marsh. The high individual score of plus five was shot by Bob Gibson.

Telephone directory underway

The Sanibel Police Recreation Club is now soliciting advertisements for the 1980 Island telephone directory.

According to Chief John Butler, director of the Recreation Club project, proceeds from the directory will go towards the Islands' recreation complex and swimming pool.

The proposed complex, to be located at the Sanibel Elementary School, will be available to groups and individuals of all ages and has received tentative agreement for $150,000 in matching funds from the City of Sanibel.

Besides the Police Recreation Club, a group of concerned Islanders is also in the process of raising funds for the complex. Persons interested in making donations or volunteering their time should call 472-3111.

Emergency personnel take first responder course

Members of the Sanibel Police and Fire Departments will be the first participants in a course that will soon be required of all emergency department personnel.

The First Responder Course, sponsored by the State of Florida Dept. of Transportation, will be held one day a week for 11 weeks and will drill fire and police officers in necessary skills for being "the first person on the scene of an accident or emergency." First aid, auto extraction, drowning victim resuscitation, cardiopulmonary resuscitation and use of ambulance equipment are some of the subjects covered by the course.

Shopping

Sanibel is a veritable shopper's paradise. Tasteful boutiques and casual island shops join forces to present visitors with everything - and anything - a vacation shopper could hope for.

At the Lighthouse (Eastern) end of the Island, Punta Ybel Plaza and The Sea Horse Shops are right across the street from each other, providing a variety of products that can cure your sweet tooth or fickle your shell finder's fancy. Need a good haircut or coiffure? You can get it in either of these shopping centers. Most businesses open at 10 a.m. and close at 5:30 p.m. This holds true for many island stores, although during the winter season, some are open evenings.

Tall Australian pines shade Periwinkle Way as the shopper travels west along this main thoroughfare. This stretch of road is truly a shopper's paradise! It's all here...the fast and not-so-fast eating spots, casual and elegant boutiques, hand-wrought jewelry, craft designs, shell shops and balms for health produce fanatics.

Watch to your right and left as you drive or cycle along. Photographic supplies, bait and tackle, deli foods, fresh seafood and baked goods, knick-knacks and what-nots can all be found along the drive to the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road. Along the way, shopping centers such as the Heart of the Islands, Periwinkle Place and Tahitian Gardens offer a variety of island delights.

Palm Ridge Road, the Periwinkle Way turn-off to Captiva, offers several new shopping centers featuring everything from a gift shop for the discriminating shopper, plants and shells, to a sandwich shop, ice cream parlour, boutique shop and the Island Apothecary pharmacy.

At the Tarpon Bay-Periwinkle Way intersection, the Island Shopping Center features the island's only supermarket, dry cleaners and movie house.

A left on Tarpon Bay Road takes the visitor past Sanibel's original schoolhouse, which now holds original island watercolors and woodcuts. Then on to West Gulf Drive and westward to an interesting little artisan's shop and gallery.

At the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road, you may choose instead to turn right and follow the signs to the Tarpon Bay Marina, where you will find a cluster of quaint shops overlooming the back bay...Some antiques, shells and shellcrafts, what-nots and clever clothes can be found here, as well as a great seafood sandwich and soft drinks.

The spectacular ride to Captiva, with its lush foliage and enchanting view of the Gulf, is well worth a day's outing. Talented artists display their works in one roadside shop, while others feature some nifty gifts for Grandma to take home to little hands as a pleasant hodge-podge of remembrances from these barrier islands.

Whether for shopping, or merely browsing, island shops offer a surprising variety - from one-of-a-kind collectibles for the discerning shopper to postcards for the simple souvenir hunter and of course, for all shells, shell jewelry, shell lamps, just plain shells...the most beautiful shells in the world from the most beautiful shelling beaches in the world.

The Editor:

As many concerned Sanibelites are painfully aware, an anachronism in the City's Charter has recently created many dilemmas in getting only six candidates for Council membership vacancies. Those results are a sad comparison with the enthusiasm displayed by the sixteen candidates for the original 1974 vote.

The Charter's device, called "seats," was intended as a temporary bridge to reach the ultimate goal at which each vacancy would be filled for a four-year term on a staggered basis.

It seems that, after more than six years, the desired staggering has been achieved. Consequently, either the "seats" should be given a geographical significance - or they should be scrapped as a cumbersome and unnecessary tool.

The Charter's Section 3.01 requires the five Councilmembers to be: "elected by the electors of the City at large. Each Council seat shall be designated by number." As is done for the County Commissioners, I propose that our Council seats could be otherwise designated to represent districts of the City and continue to be elected "at large." Because of the insular nature of our small city, there seems little prospect that a heavy demand will be made for such geographical representation.

Accordingly, simple changes in Sections 3.01, 3.02, 5.03, and 5.05 of the Charter could both eliminate the requirement for a candidate running for a specific "seat" and still produce the desired staggering of the four-year term of office. Those amendments, in effect, would permit simple plurality ranking of candidates for filling vacancies. That would result in eliminating the expensive "run-off elections" now mentioned in Section 3.07.

The above-suggested Charter amendments can be initiated either by a prompt Council ordinance placing them before the voters, or by a tax-expensive Citizen Initiative Petition as provided in Section 7.01. The more desirable Council ordinance route seems the preferable one.

Sincerely,

improvements for 10 years.

Proposal number four increases homestead exemption from city and county taxes from the current $5,000-$15,000 for 1980 taxes, $20,000 for 1981 and $25,000 thereafter for five year Florida residents. Requires 100 percent assessment for a county to qualify for increased exemption.

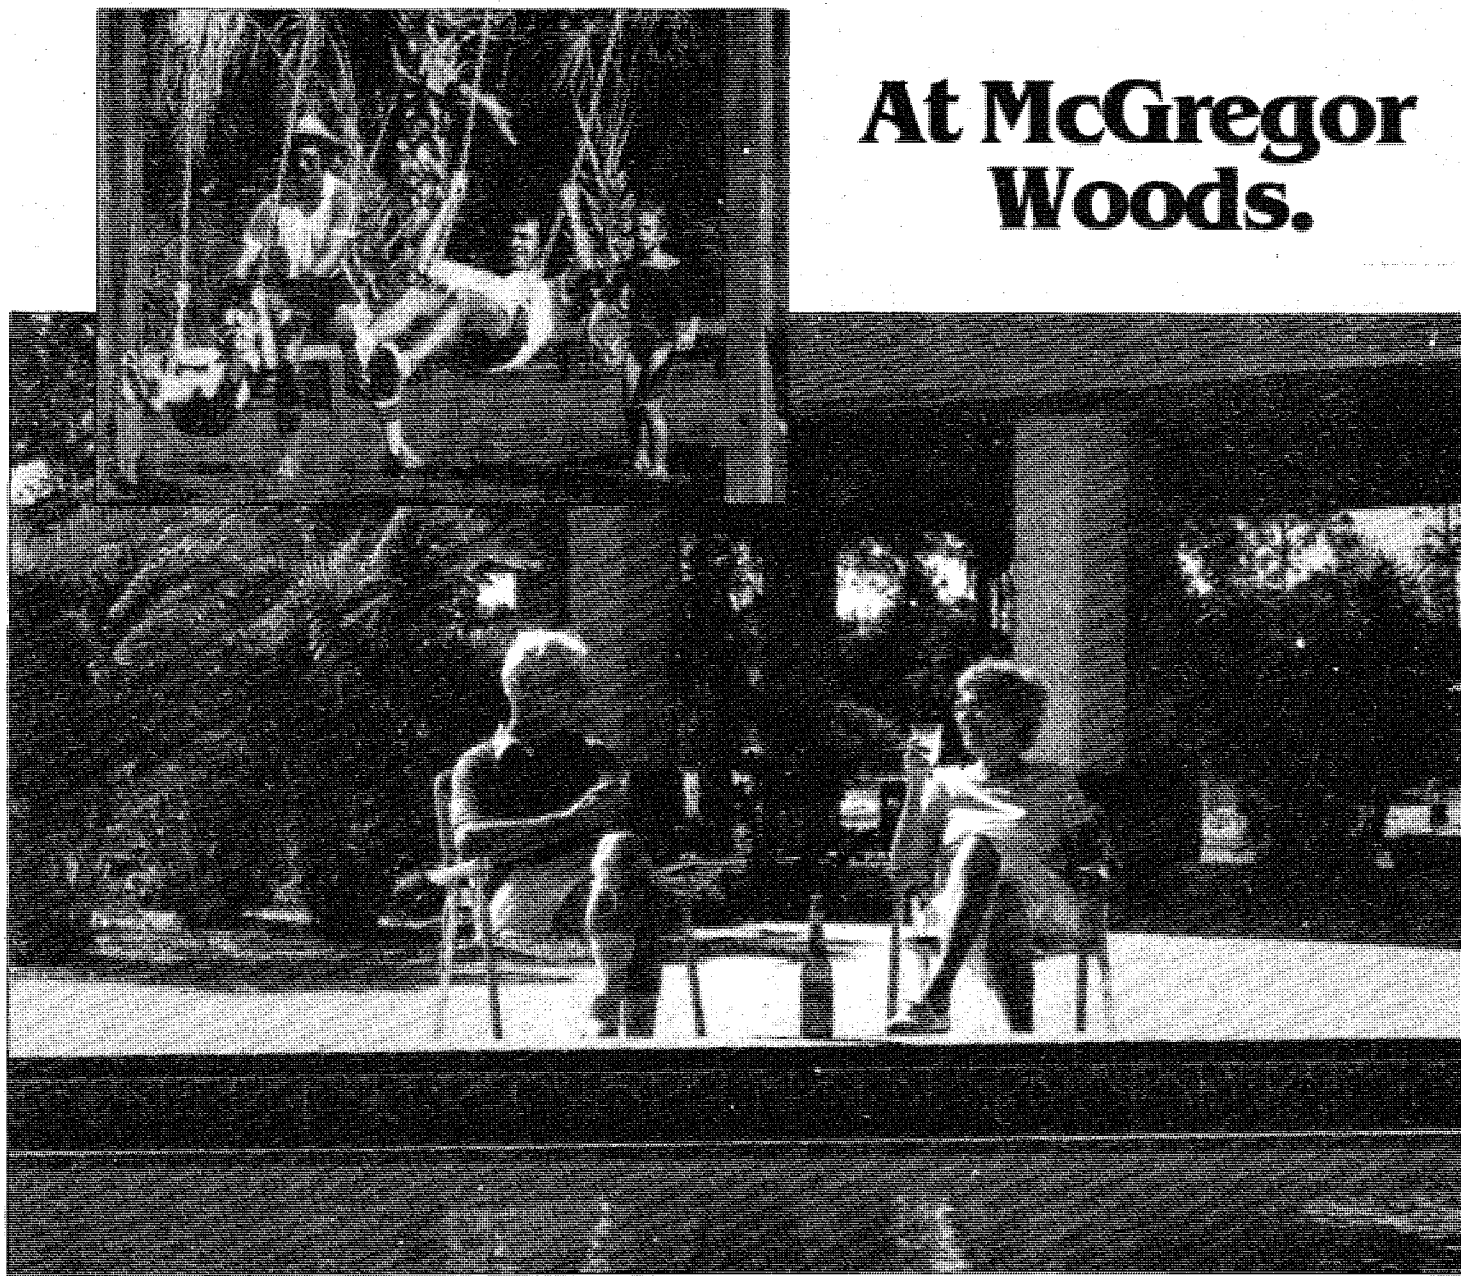

Proposal number five permits the legislature to abolish the tax levied on business inventories and livestock.

Exercise your Constitutional right and get out and vote! The polls on the Islands, located at both the Captiva and Sanibel Community Centers, are open from 7 a.m. till 7 p.m. today.

Life is a celebration at any age...

At McGregor Woods.

Celebration is the art of selecting the best that life has to offer.

When the Mariner Group decided to develop McGregor Woods it was with an eye to providing only the best - a country-style neighborhood in a convenient location at a reasonable price.

McGregor Woods offers a fully wooded community, from the Royal Poincianas and towering oaks that grace our entry way to the sabal palms, bamboo and seagrape that grow in abundance throughout the neighborhood. And since they know that outdoors is a lifestyle in Southwest Florida, the Mariner Group has built a beautiful recreation pavilion, complete with swimming pool, tennis courts and even a whirlpool spa. And there's a sparkling lake just right for a canoe or a small sailboat.

We know you'll agree there's more to celebrate when you live at McGregor Woods.
