

Conservation Foundation owls have barren year

By Pat Harmel

The budding family at the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation has had a bit of a setback. Not a single one of the three barn owl eggs that have been incubating in the SCCF's owl box hatched.

According to Dr. William Webb, SCCF Board Chairman, the eggs were opened after the incubation period passed without a single one hatching. Two of the eggs had one or two week old embryos and one was infertile. A fourth egg was found crushed in the box.

The normal incubation period for barn owls is 28 to 32 days.

"It did prove one thing without a shadow of a doubt," said Dr. Webb, "we knew we had two barn owls, now we know we have a male and a female."

Dr. Webb theorized that the eggs' failure to incubate was due to their being laid at the end of the season. "The laying of four eggs (one-half the regular 'clutch' size)," he explained, "suggests that they were the last eggs of the season. Maybe during the summer the owl laid six to eight eggs but, for whatever reason, they were destroyed. That would have put the owl back into the estrus (fertility) cycle; she might have found the new box at that time and laid the second clutch. But for some reason, possibly the weather, she failed to incubate them."

According to Dr. Webb, the barn owl's parenting behavior is totally instinctual. The length of the days have a strong influence on the owl's estrus level and when the level is high the instinct is to build a nest. Once the nest is built it serves as a stimulus for copulation and fertilizing the eggs. The presence of eggs, in turn, serves as a stimulus for incubation, which serves as a stimulus for feeding the immature owls.

"Birds are not in love with their eggs," explained Dr. Webb. "If the cycle is broken at any point along the way it's over."

The SCCF barn owls are the first to have set up housekeeping in an owl box that is part of an Island wide program designed to determine whether or not the lack of appropriate housing has caused the dwindling of the Island owl population.

Frank Mann honored by SCCF

State Representative Frank Mann will be honored at the 14th annual meeting of the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation to be held at the Conservation Center on Sanibel starting at 5:30 p.m. on Tuesday, December 9.

The SCCF board of directors voted unanimously to make Mann an honorary life member for his support of conservation measures. A citation will be presented to him at the meeting by Chairman William L. Webb.

In addition, new directors will be elected to replace those whose three-year terms are ending. Those proposed by the nominating committee are former board member Malcolm Beattie; former Sanibel Mayor and City Councilman Porter Goss; Arthur Johnson, currently serving an interim term; Rose Rogers who heads the Foundation's all important volunteer program; and Jane Stegeman of Captiva, a volunteer nature trail guide.

The business program will also include a report on the past year's activities by Chairman Webb and a discussion of plans for the future by Executive Director B.G. Olson.

Members and interested guests are urged to attend. Parking will be at St. Isabel's Catholic Church, about a mile west of the Conservation Center.

'Native Landscaping' Tuesday at the Center topic

This week the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation begins its second month of "Tuesday at the Center" presentations. This month's theme is "Island Landscaping" and today's presentation features the Foundation's own Norma Jean Byrd speaking on native landscaping.

"Tuesday at the Center" is held at 2 p.m. every Tuesday at the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation Center on San-Cap Rd. The public is invited to attend.

Watching as intently as opening night, Laurel McAleer prompts her students on their moves.

At some point in almost every little girl's childhood (and some little boys', too), in their minds and in their hearts, they become prima ballerinas.

The day of their weekly ballet class soon becomes their favorite day of the week; having such fun as they plie and frappe in imitation of their graceful teacher.

Laurel McAleer, has become, for many Island children, "my teacher," as she undertakes the task of teaching her students the essence of grace and discipline through the art of ballet.

"They're doing it because they love it," Laurel says her students' motives and desire to dance, adding, "they work hard and the time actually flies by."

Two of Laurel's ballet classes are for beginners, ages four and five, and intermediates, ages seven through ten. Although, for most of the girls, Laurel says, "it is their first experience with ballet."

To familiarize her students with the rudimentary elements of the dance, Laurel begins her classes with a half-hour of "barre" exercises. While on the barre the children practice the "positions," learning first, second, fourth and fifth. These positions are the starting movements to begin the more complex dance steps.

After the warm-up routine, the children begin another half-hour of dance routines. This allows them to incorporate the positions they have learned into a dance.

For the younger children, Laurel's main concern is motor control. Just getting them to coordinate their legs and arms to bend and kick without falling down is a feat in itself. But Laurel's "babies" love it just the same.

Laurel teaches the most common ballet style, the "French" attitude, as opposed to the Italian style which is somewhat "sloppy" and the Russian style which is highly disciplined. The legs and arms are held differently and some of the attitudes are also different.

Sometimes in the spring, Laurel hopes to present a recital for her ballet classes. By then, the children should be ready for transformation into butterflies, flowers and bunny ballerinas of the stage.

Although the classes are underway, there is still room in Laurel's classes for any potential ballerina.

Sponsored by the Sanibel-Captiva Gymnastics, Inc. the dance class schedule is as follows: Intermediate ballet (seven years and up) Wednesday from 3:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. and beginning ballet (four to six years) Wednesday from 4:30 to 5:30 at the Sanibel Community Association building. Other classes are also offered in jazz, gymnastics, adult ballet and bellydancing. For further information contact Laurel McAleer at 334-8528.

Workouts on the barre are an important part of learning the basic ballet positions.

Tuesday at the Center

By Ellen Mulligan

Last week the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation's "Tuesday at the Center" program presented Porter Goss, former Sanibel Mayor and Councilmember, who spoke to Islanders on the issue of hazard mitigation.

Before presenting his slide show, Goss outlined the essential issues surrounding hazard mitigation for vulnerable coastal zones.

Goss noted that hazard mitigation is an age-old concern, beginning with Noah and the Ark. Noah, foreseeing the dreaded flood, identified the hazard and built an ark, therefore mitigating the problem, Goss explained.

"Hazard mitigation is an essential part of coastal zone management," Goss said, adding that the two major concerns for any coastal area are "to protect the good quality of life at an affordable price and to preserve the natural resources."

According to Goss, we are in a fast growth area. The construction of the regional airport, the completion of I-75, the expansion of U.S. 41 to four lanes will...

Hazard mitigation an Island necessity

Goss warned.

Therefore, he said, the solution is in "planning and intelligent land use management." Goss identified the three pillars of comprehensive land use management as being environmental constraints, economic feasibility, and community service deliveries. Goss also suggested that a fourth pillar, hazard mitigation, ("a look at not wasting dollars"), be added to the list.

Goss often stressed the point of, "How much private property do we want to put at risk?" He questioned whether a barrier island is a good place to invest in, to build on, and to turn into a self-contained community at the risk of losing it all to the throes of one devastating hurricane or tornado.

Then, turning to the slide show, the audience was given some constructive advice and approachable alternatives for hazard mitigation in flood prone areas. The three counties; Montgomery County, Texas; Baltimore County, Baltimore; and Lee County, Sanibel Island, were selected because of...

proaches to their flooding problems, they did not just side step them, according to Goss. Both Montgomery and Baltimore counties, having already experienced the rage of a hurricane and the inherent disaster which follows, took firm steps toward finding solutions.

They found that structural controlling devices were not the answers, but rather the answer was in a non-structural approach. Instead of keeping the water away from the people, they began keeping the people away from the water. These communities literally relocated the house structures out of the watershed areas onto safer land areas.

This solution has been proven to be far more successful than that of wasting emergency disaster funds to rebuild homes on the same flood prone land, only to be knocked down again when the next disaster strikes.

It has also caused the communities to take a hard look at the economics of hazard mitigation, enabling them to find local funds to supply the money necessary to cover costs. The funds were found simply by reassessing their priorities and by reallocating funds from within the community itself.

Sanibel Island was also sited in the slide show presentation for its approach to hazard mitigation - a fact of which Goss is proud of, noting that Sanibel had done something right and has been noticed for it.

Incorporation was Sanibel's first step to hazard mitigation, according to Goss. By doing so, it has enabled the community to impose their own land use plan and to implement it as law.

Sanibel now has "stringent standards" for the type and location of development. Building code regulations require development to be on pilings with the ability to withstand hurricane force winds.

These standards have also instituted mangrove and dunes preservation, a future limit on population and commercial growth, established setback lines from the beach and limits on the clearing of native vegetation - all steps to reduce the risk of potential loss we could incur from a hurricane or tornado.

According to Goss, these communities, including Sanibel, have found "creative approaches to flood hazard planning, and have labored progress to best fit their needs."

Roland Roberts, Chairman of the Board
Lee County Commission
2115 Second Street
Fort Myers, Florida 33901

Dear Ro:

Congratulations to you and Commissioner Averill upon being selected to lead the Commission in this challenging period of change in our national and local views on the conduct of governmental affairs.

It was most gratifying to note in the press that the policy of the new Board will be to focus on implementing the County's Comprehensive Land Use Plan so as to be more responsive to the needs and aspirations of local homeowners and businessmen.

We, at the Committee of Neighborhoods Association (CONA), look forward eagerly to the end of the period when the Commission can be misguided by cliques of intransigent and self-serving staff and hired consultants. It was refreshing to read that the Board expects to: "be much more conservative in granting zoning variances." Sanibel's neighborhood residents are still resentful of the repeated callous Commission-rejection of our City Council's pleas to synchronize development along southern McGregor Boulevard with its improving capacity to serve as our barrier islands' sole evacuation route.

Contrary to press reports, however, we were heartened by Mike Carroll's presentation of the improvement plans for southern McGregor Boulevard and particularly the imminent completion of its by-passing SR 869. We trust that the Commission will favorably consider Sanibel's suggestion to Engineer Carroll that the stretch of the Boulevard and Tollgate area be adequately elevated out of flooding dangers of the hurricane seasons.

We also happily anticipate that an accelerated effort will be made by the Commission to eliminate the galling Dual Taxation problem that for so long has been divisive of the normal community of interests between the County and its three autonomous cities.

Be assured that CONA stands ready at all times to support the Commission in the implementation of its CLUP and coordinating it with Sanibel's.

Best Wishes,

(s) Urban D. Palmer, President
Committee of Neighborhoods Association, Inc.

National Audubon Society
950 Third Avenue
New York, New York 10022

Gentlemen:

The National Audubon Society's grant of drilling rights in Corkscrew Swamp Wildlife Sanctuary to a Texas oil firm is like a mother leasing a favorite daughter to a white-slaver. The Sanibel-Captiva chapter of Audubon, by unanimous vote of its directors, wants to register its strongest possible protest.

Small wonder Governor Bob Graham and his cabinet agreed to the surreptitiously arrived at agreement. If the National Audubon Society not only accepts, but secretly connives at the rape of a natural treasure entrusted to its protection, why should public officials object?

National Audubon's action is crass betrayal of the tens of thousands of nature lovers and conservationists throughout our land who helped to buy Corkscrew Swamp to preserve its integrity and protect its teeming wildlife.

Almost as startling as the National Audubon Society's action itself is the bland reaction of state and local conservation officials, presumably chosen to defend our nature sanctuaries. Bernie Yokel, research director for the Collier County Conservancy, is quoted as saying: "One test well isn't so bad, but if they were to find something, that opens up...a Pandora's Box." Just what is the objective of "one test well?"

Similarly, Supervisor Jerry Cutlip of the Corkscrew Sanctuary, told reporters that if a major oil field were discovered, the Audubon Society would have to examine what it wants to do. The suggestion here that the entire sanctuary is in peril has frightening overtones coming from a nature conservator.

Is the problem now really a question of new energy sources or simply of further bloated oil profits at the expense of our environment? Why can't Florida - the Sunshine State - lift its sights from the sawgrass to the sun and save our irreplaceable nature?

Sincerely,

(s) Mark A. Westall

To the Editor:

Lee County Electric Cooperative (LECO) promptly responded to my recent suggestion at the (Sanibel City Council)

public hearings that it add the experimental storage battery concept to its load management program for Sanibel.

LECO's chief, James Sherfey, was most encouraging in his letter to me that detailed their program for implementing their planned load management for the Islands. He also outlined his personal past experience with the Electric Power Research Institute (EPRI) which is composed of investor-owned, municipally-owned, and rural electric cooperative utilities seeking solutions to technical problems of the power industry.

His letter also reported that next year LECO will install meterings and recording devices to give it instant identification of their systems' load profile. The load management reliability throughout its service area will be improved so that at any time around the clock an individual circuit breaker can be closed from a remote location. To a layman such as I, this seems like a giant step towards a reasonably automated control of emergencies that have annoyed us consumers in the past.

LECO's letter also advised that the recent "Sanibel Experience" has made its management staff fully aware of the desirability of keeping us better informed of their operations on the Islands. The CO-OP expects to beef-up its local information services.

Since the thrust of my criticism of LECO at the recent public hearings on Sanibel was to eliminate arms-length dealings between consumer and CO-OP representatives, I believe that a more constructive partnership has been created by the public hearings. Let's promote that arrangement.

Sincerely,
(s) Paul A. Howe

Rep. Mann pushing for Lovers Key

State Rep. Frank Mann said last Tuesday that he will personally push to have Lovers Key ranked high on the 1981 Endangered Lands Priority List, but added that other funding sources should be pursued vigorously because of uncertainty over the availability of state dollars for such purchases in the future.

"The Department of Natural Resources will be asking the 1981 state legislature to approve the placement of a $150 million referendum on the ballot for the continued purchases of environmentally sensitive lands," Mann said, "and that is something that I am personally very supportive of and will work actively to support."

If the voters approve the referendum, Mann says, that will increase the chances that a purchase of Lovers Key could be funded by the state, but that funding could still be more than a year away. "Our first priority will still have to be to complete acquisitions on Cayo Costa and other South Florida projects before we undertake any new ones," he added.

Mann provided the County with the application forms to nominate Lovers Key for a state acquisition, and he said that the County has apparently completed the nomination application for submission to Tallahassee. "We will do everything in our power to push for a high ranking of this on the next state priority list," Mann said.

He warned, however, that efforts to acquire the land through local or federal funds should not be abandoned. "We need to pursue every possible purchase option to acquire this land for public use, because there are no guarantees that state dollars will be available," he added.

Mann said that he had supported the local referendum to acquire Lovers Key, in spite of legitimate public concern over the lack of a realistic price from which to begin negotiations with Lovers Key Corporation, "because if we had those local funding options open to us, it would have provided a better avenue to seek some state or federal dollars on some sort of matching basis if needed."

In a letter to Lovers Key Corporation attorney Howard Rhoads, Mann said that the island property "isn't worth a plugged nickel" unless the developers had a realistic chance of developing that property.

"So far, almost all government action that has been taken on this issue appears to be pointing in the direction that development is possible on these islands and they have not been taking a hard line to protect public interest in preserving these sensitive islands," Mann said.

"If the developers know up front that there are severe problems to be overcome before development is feasible on these islands, then we might be able to talk more realistically about a fair price for public acquisition," he added. "But right now, government action has only inflated the price of this property."

Mann told Rhoads that he would support public acquisition of the Lovers Key Corporation holdings when a "more realistic" price was arrived at, and added that he would oppose the issuance of permits by the U.S. Coast Guard for the construction of a bridge to Lovers Key.

In a separate letter to Coast Guard officials, Mann went on record as opposing the bridge permits, and requested that the Coast Guard require a full-scale Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) for the project before arriving at a decision on the permit application.

Mann said that such an assessment would assure that a number of important environmental concerns are properly addressed before the Coast Guard takes any action to approve this bridge. Mann also requested the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) to notify Lovers Key Corporation that the bridge and planned development may require a variance from the state's Coastal Construction Setback Line and that such variances should be acted upon prior to any bridge permit decision from the Coast Guard.

Mann asked DNR to require a determination on the need for variance before any bridge permit decision to avoid placing DNR under additional pressures to grant a permit should the bridge be allowed. "There can be no doubt that even if the bridge does not violate the setback line, that most planned development probably would," Mann said, "and if we allowed the bridge to be constructed, that sure puts the pressure on DNR to be 'reasonable' and grant a variance for some coastal construction."

"I think essentially the state needs to let the developer know that construction of the bridge does not guarantee that a variance will be allowed for island development," Mann added.

Art under the BIG top

Island residents and visitors alike pecked the grounds of the Sanibel Community Association building last weekend to get a glimpse of the many goodies offered at the First Annual BIG Arts Arts and Crafts Festival.

The Festival, co-sponsored by the Barrier Island Group for the Arts and the Bank of the Islands, kicked off the Island holiday season in style, with the crispy 60-degree temperatures lending an air of authenticity to the Christmas shopping that went on for a better part of a day.

More than 20 of the Islands' finest craftsmen set up shop under a huge tent offering their wares as musicians provided background music and literally hundreds of visitors browsed. Authors, potters, weaver painters, sculptors were just a few of the artists on hand to make the first annual BIG Arts event a total and unforgettable success.

Banker speaks to area Lions

By D.E. Cooperrider

The regular meeting of the Sanibel-Captiva Lions Club was held at the Beachview Country Club with several winter guests having returned. Final arrangements were made for the movement to a new meeting place. After December 1, the Lions will meet at the Sanibel Community Association building.

The Lions accepted the challenge of the Kiwanis Club to a softball game and also accepted the invitation to jointly celebrate Christmas at a party at the Community Association building on Saturday, December 20.

The wives of members of the Lions Club have met to form an Auxiliary and their first meeting was held at Beachview Country Club on November 20.

Central Florida Banker John Beck, of the Winter Park Bank, spoke to the club members on the general state of the economy. He did not forecast any problems for Lee County as it is a growth area and is different from the other large cities in the U.S. He said the usual four-year business cycles do not apply to Lee County either. In the coming year he expects the unexpected due to the change in political leaders and the investment potential. He estimates there will be a more favorable atmosphere for investors in the future. He feels that the high interest rates will shut down some areas but not this locality. He said that it is generally true that potential borrowers turned down at one bank will also be turned down at other banks. He feels that the smaller holding companies will be phased out by reason of purchase or consolidation, especially on the Island. He finished with the statement that we all need the awareness of the local applications of a local bank.

The next meeting of the Lions Club will be on Friday, December 9 at 6:30 p.m. at the Sanibel Community Association building.

On the water

By Captain Mike Fuery

We are headed into the prime of our winter sea trout fishing and it pays to know something about how trout feed on different tides in order to take advantage of their schooling activity when you fish.

It is relatively common to stop the boat, or wander down to a pier or along a beach, make a single cast, and get a trout on the first time out. At that point, there is no way of knowing if you are in for the best fishing area of your life or if you've found a lone fish. Chances are very good that you have come upon a single fish, working its way along. You will know on the second cast, one way or another.

Two things can happen next. You can go down the water a hundred yards and really get into them, or get another single fish. It's not always this way, of course, but the pattern seems to emerge over extended fishing trips.

The trick is to find where the trout like to school, and there could be 10 or 1,000 trout in that school. If you don't locate a pocket of these fish, then be prepared to move often and be doomed to catching perhaps one fish per stop.

One way to locate good trout areas is to get hold of an up to date nautical chart of the area. Even if you aren't a boater, you should be able to get some use from these charts. If you do have a boat, and your chances are best when you have one, then it's time to start circling some of the "fishing" looking spots for future exploration.

Most of the better trout fishing areas are in Pine Island

Sound, that large shallow body of water between Sanibel and Captiva Islands with Pine Island to the east. I think I would be amazed at the total number of trout that I taken from those waters each year, both by commercial and sportfishing interests alike. On a good morning or afternoon I've seen 30 or more trout per boat landed, but the usual one to two dozen.

Knowing how many are caught won't do you much good what you want to know is where you can find them. Read the charts. Look over the notations that mark shallow water. If it says one foot of water at low tide, that little bit has possibilities if it has deeper channels of clear water bordered by grass flats on either side.

One thing that I look for are points of grass fingers. Even though the water may only be a foot deep, I raise the end and glide right on top of it, anchor there nearly high and cast into the deeper waters bordering the shallow

Trout like to patrol along the edges of this shallow white staying in water from three, to say, 10 feet deep. Ideally, you should be able to cast into two sections of water for fish, but sometimes you have to perch on the edge large grass flat and cast in only one direction.

Either way, I would suggest working free-lined shrimp imitation lures, tipped with shrimp for the results. If you do find the trout schooled, you may get or 10 before the action slows. Wait for a few minutes, to break and give the trout time to move back into the. Sometimes the action never stops. But usually, there comes a time when that rest of the school decides to move your fishing hole will be empty for a time.

These shallow grass beds have caused many a boater fisherman to curse when they have run a boat hard on! But, used correctly, they can point the way to some excellent trout fishing.

Keep in mind that all trout have to be over 12 inch length in order to keep them. There is really no point taking undersized fish anyway. Good luck out there this week, and look for the edges of those grass beds.

Why can't I ever find any good shells when I come to Sanibel?

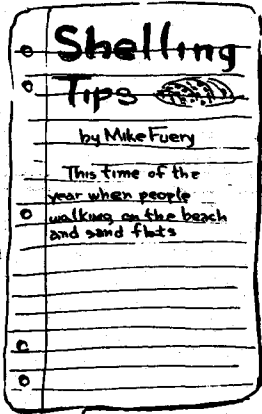

Sound familiar? I've heard it a thousand times and I'm sure you have too. There might just be some truth to the disappointed sheller's complaint and this week let's look at some possible solutions.

Why aren't there any big shells on the beach? There are. I always try to explain it like this: shelling and fishing are much the same. The beginners all want big, bright shells. The bigger the better. The odds of catching and landing a really big fish when you are a rookie angler are very small. However, the odds of finding a large, prized shell as a novice are fairly good. The two pastimes have one thing in common: luck. If you are on the right beach at the right time and a big shell washes up, then you indeed have a prize. But think about this for a moment; do the people who have good collections on Sanibel and Captiva Island (and there are hundreds) find big shells every time they go out? Hardly ever, so the look, just like you do but finding a big shell is by accident, not on purpose.

There is not one beach where you can just go and pick up all the big shells you want. Keep looking, no one ever said this was an easy hobby, we said it was entertaining, that's all.

There seem to be less shells on the beach. Am I right? Nope. But, let me give you a little background on this. Offshore, disregarding what minor pollution problems we have, it is assumed that there are about as many shells being produced today as five years ago. Well, why aren't there more on the beach then, right? In the past five years there are probably twice as many shellers as there used to be. They used to pick up collector shells, which still wash ashore, but now, everyone is a collector and any shell is prized. It gets pocketed and taken from the beach. Someone said there are more shellers than shells on some beaches. That's true if you go out on the weekends or major holidays. Sanibel's famous shells might be the Island's own downfall one day.

When is the best time to get shells, then? I would say, if you are working the beaches, get out early. After nine in the morning, unless there is a big storm in progress bringing in hundreds of shells, you are going to be hard pressed to find much.

Pick a low tide if you wade the flats, looking for shells. Get a tide chart, have someone in the shop explain how to read it and use it religiously. It is getting cold in the water now with the temperature down into the high 70's, but you can still snorkle if you have the health and equipment. And that's one way you can pick up some good shells before they ever reach the beaches. Only trouble is that you have to pick a very calm day when the waters are somewhat clear.

How come I don't find any of the shells like I see in the shops? That's probably because they come from God knows where, but not from here. I have always felt it was a bit cruel for people to wander through these many shell shops on the Islands, then expect to walk to the beach at dawn the next morning and find the same. It hardly ever happens. Those shells come from all over the world, including Sanibel, of course, but the majority are never found on our Islands and never will be, I'm sorry to say.

There are lots of questions that I would love to answer, but for now, let's wish you a good holiday season and hope that the shelling is good when you get to the beaches this year.

The word "game" implies a recreational contest, usually governed by set rules. In the game of Bridge, the average player sometimes allows rules, which should serve only as a guide in bidding, to thwart the mental exercise of conceptualizing a hand and evaluating the best fit in a partnership.

In the hand shown here, played in a recent Friday duplicate game, it is interesting to observe that every team predictably followed the "correct" sequence of bidding. In every case but one, East-West settled for a less than game bid in Clubs. One team went down one in a five Club contract. A mostly "pat" board.

North's strategic two Heart overcall restrained the East player from entertaining the prospect of a No Trump fit.

Apparently the hard and fast rule that every suit must be stopped before one can venture into the No Trump arena prevented ALL East-West teams from finding and making that No Trump game that is there.

If only one ingenious East player had been willing to take the calculated risk that his partner held one of the three top hon in Hearts, his team would have won board easily.

Although there are many bid systems in use today, experts still enjoy the time-honored technique called "sy" and walk away with top boards.

Why you're cold

If the temperature remained constantly at approximately 85 degrees Fahrenheit, our bodies would remain comfortable at rest or unclad. Fortunately, we have built-in mechanisms for coping with lower temperatures.

Basically, we achieve cold-weather comfort, in part, by generating more heat in our internal furnaces, and, in part, by conserving that heat. The muscles are the most important source of internal heat, using about 70 percent of the food energy they consume at work or at play, in heat generation. Under normal conditions, body muscles produce enough heat to boil a quart of freezing cold water every hour. When you wave your arms or stomp your feet while waiting in the cold, you are stoking your muscle furnaces to a still higher level of heat production.

The doctors of Florida want you to realize your muscles also use up more food energy in winter, so it is only natural to eat more. This increase in appetite is nothing to be alarmed about. Tests have shown that soldiers in the tropics will spontaneously consume a diet totaling about 3,000 calories daily; in the Arctic or Antarctic at 25 degrees below zero, their caloric intake rises to nearly 5,000 per day.

Less familiar are your automatic blood and skin changes. Normally, blood and skin act as a cooling system. Hot blood emerging from the internal organs is cooled by flowing through the skin at a rate of 80 to 75 gallons an hour. When you are chilled, many blood vessels in your skin close up, reducing the rate of flow to one-fifth of normal, so that your body "turns pale with cold." The net effect is to convert your skin from a radiator for dissipating heat into a blanket for conserving it.

The important thing to remember is to assist your body with the proper amount of clothing - don't put your internal heating and cooling system under a strain.

This is a medical message from the Florida Medical Association on behalf of the doctors of Florida and as a public service feature of this newspaper.

Quote

A copy of the following letter was given to the Islander for publication:

The Honorable Mayor and Councilmembers

The Chairman and the members of the Planning Commission of the City of Sanibel

One of the great attributes of this great country of ours, the United States of America, under the Constitution is the right of free speech. We, under the Constitution, are guaranteed this right, but we must understand and realize that this right also carries with it responsibilities, that ensures the perpetuity of this right.

This great united country was first conceived in responsibilities, and prospered with the exercise of the rights that were engendered through the acceptance of responsibilities. This is exemplified in the early days as evidenced by the town hall meetings, resulting in the most part, of government by acclamation. This could not have been all bad inasmuch as the country grew and became united, and became a world power under the Democratic form of government.

Here in Sanibel, we have an open Planning Commission meeting, and an open City Council meeting. This emulates in essence the town hall meeting where all citizens exercised the right to be heard.

It is unfortunate though, that most persons, with an excellent point or two cannot adequately make these points under the duress of standing before a group, plus the governing body. Emotionally they become upset, nervous, confused and often inarticulate.

The governing bodies simply sit quietly out of courtesy and respect, appear to be listening, but hoping that they can get along with the business at hand.

Instead of this restlessness, the governing bodies might be more compassionate, and try to understand the emotional problem of their constituents under the circumstances, and elicit by polite and judicious questioning the essence of the speaker's point.

Instead, business proceeds, with no further attention or thought to the speaker's point and the question is asked and voted as if the die had already been cast.

The citizens of Sanibel, the freeholders in particular, have a right, along with the responsibilities, to be heard, loud and clear, when for example some entrepreneur comes along with money, and says that he has rights too. But what about his responsibilities? Does his rights, just because he has a vested interest, and apparently no other interest except profit, preclude all others' rights? Just what responsibilities does this entrepreneur have in or on Sanibel except to dilute rights of others, which is contrary to the rights guaranteed under our Constitution.

So, good people, inasmuch as I am one of those that cannot adequately express myself extemporaneously, I take this means to convey my message to you. I sincerely ask that you take a more compassionate attitude with those citizens that appear before you, and that their rights and mine are vested in other than money, such as a wholesome environment, a moral neighborhood, the right to live in peace and contentment without interference by those whose only right appears to be profit without responsibilities, the preservation of wonderful Sanibel as we would like, a may God look over us.

Respectfully,
(s) Mildred C. Gold

Sanibel residents form 'The Company'

Sanibel residents Fran Levy, John Anspacher and Charlotte Heimann have formed a poetry reading group entitled "The Company." The former theatre and media trio have combined their talents to present the poetry tribute, "An American Sketch Book." This program will feature readings from selected poems in honor of the immortal poet, Emily Dickinson, and in celebration of her anniversary.

"An American Sketch Book" will be presented free to the public on Wednesday, December 10, at the Edison Community College Auditorium. The program will also consist of readings from the works of James Thurber, Edna St. Vincent Millay and Carl Sandburg. "The Company" presentation will begin at 8 p.m. and there will be an intermission with punch served.

"The Company" has been rehearsing poems for several months in preparation for their special programs and have recently delighted an audience at the Lee County Arts Center with their selection from Sandburg. Take a break from the ordinary Wednesday night and come to the Edison Auditorium to hear what three talented Islanders are up to.

Island S

Ouchless mosquitos!

Islanders have either been bitten or smitten by hand-made Sanibel mosquitos from Ile Crocodile. Whichever the case, these bigger-than-life mosquitos are selling faster than bug spray in summertime.

The mosquitos are handmade by the Garner family from Minnesota, who also craft silk flamingos and stuffed moose and teddy bear heads.

One newlywed couple visited the shop to buy a stuffed bird for a bird cage they had received as a wedding gift, but once spotting the mosquito, decided it would make a very original pet and off they went, not giving the stuffed birds a second glance!

According to Phil Johnson, owner of Ile Crocodile, these mosquitos have raised the question of when a shipment of noseemus will arrive. Well, Phil keeps telling everyone that the noseemus have arrived - but he can't find them anywhere.

The snowbirds cometh

The Sanibel-Captiva Chamber of Commerce is all keyed up for what seems to be "the best season to date," according to Walter Klie, executive director of the Sanibel-Captiva Chamber of Commerce. "From Thanksgiving on, we're well booked," Klie explains, adding, "and we're just about on schedule as far as Thanksgiving goes."

The Chamber of Commerce is expecting the best tourist season ever on both Islands, with 90 percent occupancies expected during the months of January, February and March. At the height of the season, Klie estimates that 13-15,000 people will be on the Islands, and he attributes part of the increase to interval ownership. So, if you need anything from the stores, you had better start stocking up now while you can still move on Periwinkle Way. Islanders may find themselves in for a long season, in fact, it will be "the best ever on Sanibel."

A Major exhibit

Sanibel photographer Linn Major will be the featured artist at the Art Fac Gallery through this Thursday.

Ms. Major, who offers her work through Art Fac on a regular basis, has been a Sanibel winter resident since 1973.

A graduate of the University of Cincinnati,

Ms. Major was highly honored at the 1976 City of Sanibel Bicentennial Island Landmarks Exhibition and Competition, walking away with first, second and third place in the graphic arts competition - the only artist in any category to accomplish such a feat.

Wish: "I never have to leave this paradise."

Words of Wisdom: "Love thy neighbor."

"An artist is the transmitter and the audience is the receiver. What good is a transmitter without a receiver?" questions Art Gore, successful still-life photographer, in his not-quite faded Carolina drawl.

"I've got the best job," Art emphatically explains. "All I've got to do is create beauty. I wouldn't change my life with anyone, except of course, Andrew Wyeth," he quips.

"I work 20 minutes a day - ten minutes at sunrise and ten minutes at sunset," explains Art of his free-spirited career, adding, "I'll usually have a place staked out. I peek out the window and see what the sunrise'll be like. If it's nice I'll get in my speedboat and rush out to the spot."

It may all seem pretty glamorous now, but Art vividly recalls the days when, as he puts it, "I sure did sweat my back off." It often wasn't easy, but Art, like other dedicated photographers, was driven by the inner satisfaction of his work.

"How glorious the feeling is when you know you've got it," he says of his lifetime love for photography.

At the "ripe" age of 18, "having completed only his first semester in college, Art was "yanked" to Okinawa, Japan, where he served in the Seventh Infantry during World War II. He then stayed on in the Reserves and went through jump school, only to be recalled for duty in the Korean War with the famed 82nd Airborne Division.

Thanks to General MacArthur, his initial plan for the 82nd Division to parachute into Korea in order to reorganize American troops was canceled, and, as far as Art is concerned, "He saved my life."

Returning to Wake Forest College during the interim between World War II and the Korean War, Art never managed to complete his English major, becoming involved with "other things" which side-tracked his interest instead.

It was Denver, in fact, that Art was side-tracked to. He "migrated" to Colorado "cold turkey," after hearing it was the "cultural center of the West." Landing a job with a little newspaper named the Barnum News, Art explains, "I was to be paid $25 a week for writing and 25 percent of all advertising I sold."

The only problem, however, was that the paper was rapidly becoming "defunct," and no one would buy advertising. Able to tolerate that situation for only three months, Art moved on to the Littleton Independence newspaper, becoming both reporter and photographer.

Art worked for the Littleton Independence for three years, "combining news reporting with photography." But after that time, Art explains, he realized that, "I could starve as well on my own as on the newspaper." So with one extra roll of film and $50 in his pocket, Art went into business for himself.

"I did portraits and weddings and literally everything I could get," Art explains of his solo beginnings. Soon after, however, he became involved in commercial photography and started making better money. "I've been eating well off photography ever since," he says with a smile.

Art's real claim to fame in photography, however, is his lifetime collection of still-life photographs: a collection that reflects his sensitivity to nature and the "good" days," and echoes the unpressured lifestyle inherent in a childhood spent in a small southern town.

Art has incorporated some of his best works into two books over the past few years. His first book is about the images of yesterday. But, "possibly my finest hour," Art says today, was the publication of his second book, "Spee Softly to the Echoes," a collection of photographs accompanied by short vignettes reminiscing "first love schoolboy fantasies, and gracious and rustic country living."

Having photographed everything from A to Z during his long career, Art has developed a different philosophy since moving to Captiva last February. "From now on, all you're going to see from my camera is seascapes and skies," he says.

Always having had a love for the sea, his move to Captiva finally fulfilled his dream. He now lives on a 37-foot Eg Harbor, where he says he has become the "laughing stock of the marina" because he is always having one thing or another go wrong with one of his three boats.

Life on Captiva fits Art well. After photographing during the early morning hours, Art will "wander down to Timmy Nook to have a bite to eat, putter around the boat, and laundry, and then come back to wait for the sunset."

The more Art works, the more he gets turned on by his work. He is now in the process of writing a "how to" book on still-life photography, and he may be commissioned to do book about the islands. In his spare time, Art builds sea-crafted chess sets. "It keeps me out of the bars," he jokes.

Labeling himself a "babe of the south," Art has an intrinsic love for the easy pace of southern living, and says today, "can't do my best work unless I'm a free spirit. Life was made for living and I intend to work and play - that's the doctor away."

The Cystic Fibrosis Bike-A-Thon

Nearly 70 bicyclists riding for the benefit of Cystic Fibrosis managed to raise almost $5,000 in pledges last Sunday in an afternoon bike-a-thon sponsored by the Sanibel-Captiva Rotary Club.

Although the official winners - those raising the most amount of pledge money for their ride - won't be announced until all the money is turned in to the Bank of the Islands in two weeks, it is known that Mike Cooper cycled the longest distance - 40 miles at 18 miles an hour. Shane Cowper ranked second with 54 miles and Jose Ramirez, long-distance runner, chalked up 22 course miles - after running to Sanibel from Captiva!

Duffy Traucht was listed as the youngest participant and Lloyd Killo as the oldest.

One-hundred percent of the money pledged will go to Cystic Fibrosis. A number of businesses volunteered prizes for the top money winners and the Rotary Club and Sanibel Police Department volunteered man-hours to supervise the four-and-a-half mile course.

According to Rotary Vice-President Mark Webb, Bike-A-Thon chairman, participants have two weeks to collect their pledges and turn them in to the Bank of the Islands to qualify for prizes. All participants raising over $25 will receive a Bike-A-Thon T-shirt. Checks may be made payable to the Cystic Fibrosis Bike-A-Thon. Last year the Islands came in second in the entire state for Cystic Fibrosis fundraising.

The reception will be held on Friday, December 5, from 6 to 7:30 p.m. with the ECC Chorale singing at 7 p.m. The Lee County Alliance of the Arts and the Arts Studio co-sponsors jointly the presentation of the Edison Community College Chorale. open house reception takes place on Friday, December 5, from 4 to 9 p.m., with many of the artists in attendance.

"Deep Currents" celebrates not only the creative magic of these gifted artists, but the creative spirit alive in all of us. Original paintings, sculpture, jewelry and color photography are featured.

The exhibition continues through December 20, and may be viewed from 11:30 a.m. to 10 p.m., Tuesdays through Sundays.

Every item in the show has been created and produced by a juried member of the Craft Guild, and represents the finest workmanship in pottery, weaving, jewelry, carving, lapidary, stained glass, silver, wood and other materials. Some are decorative, some are useful, and all are absolutely unique for Christmas giving. Prices are reasonable for these fine handcrafted articles.

The first sculpture exhibition in the Edison Community College Gallery of Fine Art opens Saturday, December 6, with "An Exhibition of Sculpture and Drawings by Gaston Lachaise." The public is invited to attend a reception that evening from 7 to 10 p.m.

Included in the exhibition are 38 bronzes, ranging from a few inches in height to several feet. The focal point of the show is "Standing Woman (Elevation)," loaned by the Ringling Museum of Art in Sarasota. The exhibition also includes 20 drawings by Lachaise.

The exhibition was organized by the Lachaise Foundation in Boston and loaned by the Landau-Alexander Exhibition Service in Los Angeles. The work and related programs have been assisted by grants from the Lachaise Foundation, the Fine Arts Council of Florida and Mr. and Mrs. W. Don Kovacs.

Born in Paris in 1882, Lachaise was trained at the Beaux-Arts. He came to Boston in 1906 following his lady-love who was the inspiration for his famous female nudes. Lachaise is recognized as a pioneer in modernism and his work is prized by collectors and sought by museums. Gaston Lachaise died of leukemia in 1935 at the age of 53, just as he was beginning to achieve recognition.

The exhibition will continue through December 31 and the gallery will maintain regular hours during the Christmas holidays. The gallery is open Tuesdays - Fridays from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m., Thursdays from 5 to 9 p.m. and Sundays from 2 to 5 p.m.

THE SHRIMP LESSON

Contrary to popular belief, shrimp do not grow into small, medium and large sizes. After they are caught they are graded by weight. The largest shrimp available are called 4's (under 10). That means that 10 shrimp equal 1 lb. The grading continues upwards in size increments of 5; 10-15's (about 12 shrimp will equal 1 lb.); 16-20's; 21-25 and up to 120-130's (those are tiny shrimp). The more shrimp per pound, the less they cost, that is because you are buying more shell and tail which is not usually eaten. At THE TIMBERS, we buy only 10-15 size shrimp from Ft. Myers Beach, to use in our entrees. This means you get more shrimp in our baked stuffed shrimp and shrimp scampi. They cost us a little more, but they taste a whole lot better.

Christmas Cheer Service

The Salvation Army will be taking applications for its Christmas Cheer Service from November 12 until December 10, at its special Christmas Headquarters, 1948 Sation Street, Fort Myers, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Volunteers will assist applicants for the Christmas Cheer gifts of food baskets and toys in preparing the applications.

Based upon last year's figures, The Army expects the number of applicants to exceed 1,900.

Gift contributions to this program are greatly needed and may be delivered to The Salvation Army headquarters at 2400 Edison Avenue, while donations may be mailed to P.O. Box 1949, Fort Myers, Florida 33902. The Army says, "We will strive to see that no family or child shall go without Christmas."

The Army suggests that applicants submit their requests as quickly as possible so as to avoid delays in application processing. Those applying after December 10 will be required to submit a note from clergyman, employer or caseworker as to need.

The Salvation Army requests that those individuals who "adopt a family" or otherwise give aid directly, notify The Salvation Army at 334-3745 in order to avoid duplication of gifts, enabling others to benefit from the Christmas Cheer program.

ECC offers adult classes

The Division of Continuing Education at Edson Community College will offer three classes beginning in December. These classes are non-credit and are offered at a minimal cost for all area residents.

C. Michael Turner will present the course which will stress assertive communication. Turner received his Master's degree in Counseling Psychology from Georgia State University. The course fee is $8 and participation is limited to 36 reservations. For further information call 481-2121, extension 325 or 236.

A three week class called "A Financial Planning Primer" will be conducted through the Human Resource and Development Activities at ECC. Michael D. Billy, account executive with Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc., will conduct the course December 4 through December 16. The class will meet Tuesdays from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. and the cost is $10. Topics for discussion will include individualized financial planning, fundamental vs. technical analysis, recognizing long-term investment opportunities, tax advantage investments, the stock market and how to minimize taxes through financial planning. Call 481-8428 for further information. Also offered in December is the Real Estate Post-License Course for Re-Certification. This 14-hour course will be held December 2, 4 and 6 at a cost of $12. To register, call 481-4434 at Edson Community College.

Among the features of the Sixteenth Century feast will be the traditional Bors d'Heuf, Peacock, Flaming Plumme Pudding and Wassail. The combination of fine entertainment and food, along with festive Christmas decorations and carols, have made this event a popular one each year with area residents.

A holiday tradition

The national road company of the new musical adaptation of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" will be in Fort Myers on Thursday, December 11. This live musical extravaganza, adapted for the stage by Charles Jones of the Omaha Community Playhouse, will be presented at Fort Myers Exhibition Hall. "We're very excited about bringing "A Christmas Carol" to Fort Myers. I think it should prove to be a highlight for many families during the Christmas season," says Sue Gouffrey of the Fort Myers Exhibition Hall.

Complete with a full company of 35, the show features set designs and special stage effects created by noted designer James O'Huse. The set and special effects were designed with meticulous detail to recreate the world of Dickens' England of the 1800's. Among the special effects included in the show will be a 16-foot human puppet as the ghost of Christmas Future and a bed which has been rigged to mysteriously move about Scrooge's bedroom.

Tickets for "A Christmas Carol" are available by phoning 334-4968.

We got our money's worth —and then some.

This is great! We're playing tennis and golf, taking it easy on the beach, doing a little sailing, dancing at night and we're not spending a bundle.

Brad and I have our own place here on the beach at South Seas Plantation for two weeks every year. Plantation Beach Club sells interval ownership and we were able to buy just what we could use and afford. We've fixed the cost of our vacations and didn't let ourselves get tied down.

You see, there's this exchange program that lets us trade our vacation time at South Seas Plantation and go to other resorts around the world. So, not only can we travel, but we're not tied down to taking our vacation the same time every year.

Our friends Rob and JoAnn are also owners here, and we've planned to spend one week here next spring and then all go to Acapulco together. We really look forward to the vacations we can now afford to take.

We figure we'll get our money's worth in a couple of years — and then no matter what inflation does — we'll still be taking first class vacations every year.

Shopping

SHOPPING Sanibel is a veritable shopper's paradise. Tasteful boutiques and casual island shops join forces to present visitors with everything - and anything - a vacation shopper could hope for.

At the Lighthouse (Eastern) end of the island, Puma Ybel Plaza and The Horse Shops are right across the street from each other, providing a variety of products that can cure a sweet tooth or tickle your shell flogger's fancy. Next a good haircut or oilure? You can get it in either of these shopping centers. Most businesses open at 10 a.m. and close at 5:30 p.m. This holds true for many island stores, although during the winter season, some are open evenings.

Tall Australian pine shade Periwinkle Way as the shopper travels along this main thoroughfare. This stretch of road is truly a shopper's paradise! It's all here, the fast and not-so-fast eating spots, casual and elegant boutiques, hand-wrought jewelry, craft designs, shell shops and balms for health products fanatics. Watch to your right and left as you drive or cycle along. Photographic supplies, bait and tackle, doll stores, fresh seafood and baked goods, knock-knocks and what-nots can all be found along the drive to the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road. Along the way, shopping centers such as the Heart of the Islands, Periwinkle Plaza and Tahitian Gardens offer a variety of island delights.

Palm Ridge Road, the Periwinkle Way turn-off to Captiva, offers several new shopping centers featuring everything from imports to gift shops for the discriminating shopper, plants and shells, a sandwich shop, ice cream parlour, pizza parlour, boutique shop and the Island Apothecary pharmacy.

At the Tarpon Bay-Periwinkle Way intersection, the Island Shopping Center features the island's only supermarket, dry cleaners and movie house. As a let on Tarpon Bay Road takes the visitor past Sanibel's original schoolhouse, which now holds original island watercolors and woodcuts. Then on to West Gulf Drive and westward to an interesting little artisan's shop and gallery. At the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road, you may choose instead to turn right and follow the signs to the Tarpon Bay Marina, where you will find a cluster of quaint shops overlooking the bay. Some antiques, shells and shellcrafts, what-nots and clever clothes can be found here, as well as a great seafood sandwich and soft drink.

The spectacular ride to Captiva, with its lush foliage and enchanting view of the Gulf, is well worth a day's outing. Talented artists display their works in one roadside shop, while others feature some nifty gifts for Grandma to take home to little hands as a pleasant hedge-people of remembrances from these barrier islands.

Whether for shopping, or merely browsing, island shops offer a surprising variety from one-of-a-kind collectibles for the discerning shopper to postcards for the simple souvenir hunter and courses for all shells, shell jewelry, shell lamps, just shells, to the most beautiful shells in the world from the most beautiful shelling beaches in the

Sanibel has miles of public full-front beaches, any one of which is only minutes from your lodging. Lighthouse Point is a stretch of Federal land on the eastern tip of Sanibel Island, not from there, the Gulf beach is accessible again at the end of Jovak Street, at Tarpon Bay Road, at Bowman's Beach Road off Sanibel-Capria Road and Turner's Beach, which is located at Blind Pass, between Sanibel and Capria Islands.

On Capria Island, public beach access can be found at Turner Beach (which has public facilities) or further north, just off the entrance to South Seas Plantation.

NOTE: STATE LAW "ROBOTS" MADE SUN-BATHING ON ALL FLORIDA BEACHES. VIOLATORS WILL BE PROSECUTED.

CAMPING

Camping on the beach is prohibited and while everyone enjoys a beach fire, the Sanibel Fire Board has signed into law an ordinance prohibiting open beach fires. Prior to the ordinance, a permit was necessary for a beach bonfire, as of July 18, 1988, it is now illegal. An exemption to the ordinance is a fire roved cooking container (not to exceed 48" x 24" x 12" deep with an enclosed metal grill) for commercial food preparation. This type of container will be allowed on the beach without a permit. After you have had your camp party, it is recommended that you assume the responsibility for the cleanup of any debris or litter in your area.

ATORS

Feeding alligators anywhere within the Sanibel City limits is at only illegal (violators of the law are subject to a fine up to $500, or up to 60 days in jail, or both), but can be extremely dangerous. Alligators run 43 m.p.h., so if you're close enough to feed an alligator, he's going to feed on you. An alligator fed for fun loses his natural fear of humans and becomes a potential threat to humans and pets.

EARNING! SAFEGUARD OUR VALUABLES.

In order to protect your valuable possessions from theft, it is recommended that you take THEM TO A BANK OR O.T.E.L. VAULT FOR SAFEKEEPING. DO NOT leave them in your room or car.

SPEED LIMITS

There are varying speed limits (20-30 m.p.h.) as one comes across the causeway, and there is a very good reason for this. To preserve the bridge supports from strain and stress. This speed limit is strictly enforced with the use of radar on a 24-hour basis by both the Sanibel Police Department and the Lee County Sheriff's Department. Driving or parking a motor vehicle or moped on the bike path is strictly prohibited. Violators will be ticketed.

DOGGY DO'S & DON'TS

If you're visiting Sanibel with the family, stick to the leash and the better. All family members can enjoy Southwest Florida's sun and sand. The Chamber of Commerce can tell you what accommodations are available for families with pets. Remember: wherever you are, clean up after your pet! The friendly reminder: "Leave nothing on the beach but footprints" applies to dogs, too. There's no leash law on Sanibel, but of course an excitable or unruly animal is better off when controlled with a leash.

Two acre bayfront estate with old world charm

This truly unusual Captiva home has great charm and a character all its own. Four bedrooms, three baths with ceramic tile floors, small office, hobby or storage room, large kitchen, unusual carved entry door, many closets: these are just a few of the features that set this home aside from the ordinary.

Add to these a truly estate size living room with a fireplace framed in antique tiles, a firewood storage area next to the fireplace that is filled from outdoors, and two storage areas off the living room. Bedroom doors are double thickness for sound-proofing, an unusual window treatment permits planting between windows and screens: All are part of the charm of this rare offering.

Wooden dock on the bay, enclosed garage and Gulf beach easement help make this the home you have been seeking. Unfurnished, $325,000.
