Ansel Adams exhibit opens Sunday

The Photographers' Gallery on Sanibel is pleased to announce that it will host an exhibit of photographs by Ansel Adams through the holiday season.

The public is invited to a preview party from 5 to 7 p.m. on Sunday, December 14, in the gallery at 1554 Periwinkle Way.

Running concurrently with this show will be an exhibit of wildlife photographs by William Damroth as a fundraising benefit for C.R.O.W. (Care and Rehabilitation of Wildlife). Both exhibits will run through January 9.

"At the age of 78, Ansel Adams holds the undisputed title of Mr. Photography," says American Photographer Magazine in a feature article in its December issue. "He has had more than 400 exhibitions from Moscow to Murfreesboro (Tennessee) and has taught, at last count, about 4,000 students. Some 32,000 of his fastidiously finished photographs (which he prints himself) hang in museums and homes across the country."

Photography has been good to Adams - an 11-by-14-inch print bearing his signature starts at $2,000 - and deservedly so. Since Alfred Stieglitz gave Adams his first New York one-man show in the 1930's, Adams has been encouraging the art of photography and helping others in the field. In 1940, he assisted Beaumont Newhall in founding the photography department in the Museum of Modern Art. Also, in that decade, he developed his famous "Zone System" of exposure, began his book series on photographic technique and initiated summer workshops in Yosemite. No serious photographer is without one or more of his 40-plus books, which have sold more than one million copies.

South Seas gave a hearing - but nobody came

By Pat Harmel

What would happen if South Seas Plantation held a hearing on its controversial proposed beach renourishment program and nobody came?

That's exactly what happened to startled South Seas' representatives last Friday when they met for an informal hearing at the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation (SCCF) to address issues raised by seven different petitioners against their project.

The City of Sanibel, represented by Planning Director Bruce Rogers, was present, as was the SCCF by Director B.G. Olson, even though the SCCF has not officially petitioned against the project. The Organized Fishermen of Florida, a group of Captiva property owners, Marie Kalman, George Campbell, the Lee County Conservation Association and the Audubon Society were, however, a no-show.

Renourishment project manager Dick Stevens, South Seas' attorney Ken Oertel, biological consultant Marty Roessler and project engineer Erik Olson of Tetra-Tech Inc. were all on hand to answer questions.

South Seas representatives called the meeting in hopes of avoiding the time consuming process of a formal Department of Environmental Regulation (DER) hearing. The seven petitioners had

The joy of cooking!

The Community Coures Committee has once again ventured into the realm of gourmet cooking. Each Thursday morning class members anxiously gather at the home of the "weekly" chef to indulge and engage in the art of international cuisine.

Last week, students gathered around Lynn Roger's sprawling kitchen counter to delve into Mexican and Texas-style cooking. Lynn had previously spent time in Mexico and brought back to Sanibel some of the natives' spicy secrets. Even Julia Child would be happy to cook in Lynn's A to Z efficient kitchen.

Recipes were passed around at the onset of the class so that members could follow along, ask questions and take notes while Lynn demonstrated the steps for preparation.

The class observed Lynn's techniques with literal mouth-watering anticipation.

While waiting for the main course to cook, and to tide over their increasing appetites, the ladies (and one man) nibbled on cream of zucchini soup, (or as the Mexicans would say, Crema de Calabacitas,) spicy corn bread and Mexican chocolate meringue kisses. Repeated choruses of 'Ooohs' and 'Aaahs' floated through the kitchen air in between spoonfuls.

The main course consisted of turkey with white stuffing, or pavo en relleno blanco. The white stuffing was actually pork stuffing or relleno puerco.

As a delightfully spicy side dish, Lynn prepared green corn tamale casserole or, tamal de elote cazuela. She also prepared two types of sauces; one a white sauce which went over the turkey and the other a tomato sauce to spice up the corn casserole.

As with any practiced chef, Lynn's main courses all finished up at the same time. Buffet style, the class members lunched on their class lesson which brought an even more emphatic chorus of "Umm, this is delicious!"

One would think that these student cooks would not be able to eat another bite after each class but, on the contrary, they go home and try the new recipes out on their families. And hopefully, for the sake of these anxious chefs, the next class they take won't have to be Weight Watchers.

The man who last year became the first photographer to make the cover of Time Magazine, continues to lead workshops, lecture and update technical texts; currently he is printing 100 "museum" portfolios, reportedly to be priced at $75,000 per volume. And, although the better part of each day still is spent in the darkroom, the artist rarely turns an aspiring photographer away from his door.

One of the highlights of the Sanibel show will be a 16-by-20-inch print of "Moonrise, Hernandez, New Mexico," undoubtedly the best known of his photographs. At the end of 1975, the deadline Adams set for himself to stop printing orders for his old photographs, the then $800 Moonrise began its ascent in the art and investments world. Between 1977 and 1978 the print's value soared to $8,000. Today it sells in a range of $15,000 to $20,000 "depending on how pressed people are to sell," says Harry Lunn, Adams' principal dealer. "And I'm not really that interested in selling," Lunn noted in an article about the photography boom in a recent issue of The Collector-Investor Magazine. (The Adams show comes to Sanibel through the courtesy of Lunn's Washington, D.C. gallery.) A mural-size version of the print recently sold at auction for $46,000, a record-setting auction price for a living photographer.

Though Moonrise is the most popular, an equally impressive 20-by-24-inch print, "Winter Sunrise, Sierra Nevada," will be included in the Sanibel show, along with some lesser known prints from his earlier landscape series. Several of these were included in Portfolio I, 1948, Portfolio II, 1950, Portfolio V, 1971 and Portfolio VI, 1974. From the latter, the print "Graduation Dress, Yosemite Valley, California," taken in 1948, demonstrates Adams' expertise beyond landscape photography, yet visually explains his feeling that "I actually don't think of people and rocks and trees as very different."

A second exhibit of wildlife photographs by Bill Damroth will be offered to benefit C.R.O.W., a non-profit organization operating on the Islands to care for sick and injured wildlife. Since its inception several years ago, C.R.O.W. has been operating out of temporary quarters, and is now in the process of building its own facility on Sanibel. All proceeds from the sale of Damroth's photographs will benefit the building fund.

Cape Coral resident Bill Damroth, formerly of Sanibel, probably is best known photographically on the Islands for a series of three wildlife posters he did in the mid-1970's to benefit the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation.

Bill retired as head of a successful investment counseling firm at the age of 48 to write and to pursue nature photography and his philanthropic interests in the field of conservation. In 1972, following a photographic trip around the world, he selected 80 of his favorite wildlife photographs for publication in a studio book "Passport to Nature." For one-and-a-half years he was a volunteer consultant with Nature Conservancy and assisted in a land recovery project, the American Land Trust. Locally he is a consultant to the Edison Community Endowment, and two years ago originated the Talent Bank on the campus of the Fort Myers college. Currently, Bill is working on two photographic books for children.

The Photographers' Gallery is a non-profit, educational organization. Hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday, at 1554 Periwinkle Way.

requested a hearing after DER issued a notice of intent to issue a permit for the renourishment project. The DER permit would, however, allow for only 85 percent of the proposed project and stipulated that dredging could only be done during the months of March and April and a 14 foot reduction in dredging depth must be made.

South Seas itself has also requested an administrative hearing due to what they term the "unreasonable" conditions of the DER permit.

The City of Sanibel filed an informal petition with DER requesting that monitoring of Sanibel's beaches and waters be conducted as part of the South Seas project should the project be permitted. City officials fear that the dredging of the Redfish Pass borrow site for the renourishment project could have an adverse affect on Sanibel's own erosion problems as well as adversely affecting the marine community.

Project Engineer Erik Olson assured Sanibel Planning Director Bruce Rogers that monitoring would be done on a six month basis for 18 months with aerial photography. When questioned by Rogers as to why the monitoring would only be conducted for 18 months, Olson responded that "practicality and cost" made further studies prohibitive. Olson estimated that the additional Sanibel monitoring would be a "$10,000 item" in a total $100,000 monitoring program.

Rogers agreed that the City would likely approve of the aerial monitoring program and questioned whether or not South Seas had any plans for biological testing of Sanibel waters. Olson's answer was in the negative, but he explained that reports containing biological, borrow site recovery rate, littoral drift, and turbidity data would be issued every six months based on the Captiva test sites, with a final engineering report issued at 21 months.

What will happen, queried Rogers, if at six months we find that Sanibel's beaches are being adversely affected by the project? Project attorney, Ken Oertel, responded, "as an applicant (for permitting) we are not required to respond to conjecture," but added, "you could have a possible (legal) remedy against anyone who participated" in the project.

"As an applicant (for environmental permitting) we are not required to respond to conjecture."

- Ken Oertel South Seas Attorney

When Rogers again questioned what might happen should Sanibel be adversely affected by the Captiva project, Oertel took the defensive. "We're talking about making a concession to do post project research that is not covered by law; a concession

Where there's smoke . . .

By Mark Harmel

The "fire man", Dale Wade, from the U.S. Department of Forestry Services, correctly predicted the reaction of spectators to the Conservation Foundation's proscribed burn conducted Thursday: "They will say 'It's lucky we burned it, because they will see what a wildfire looks like."

The spectacular planned brushfire was conducted to protect the SCCF's building and boardwalk from an unexpected fire during the dry season.

Fire expert Dale Wade controls the edge of the burn by watering the edge of the marsh.

After the boardwalk and building are watered down, the fire is precisely set in one corner of the marsh allowing it to burn slowly upwind. A fire set with a headwind would have consumed the area in a matter of minutes.

Even controlled fires get extremely hot. Here, two workers turn their heads from the heat as they run down a trail to get into position.

Dr. William Webb, SCCF board chairman, walking through the once dense marsh, surveys the effects of the burn.

Dear Ro:

For months Sanibel has been trying to get the restrooms on the Causeway in operation, but to no avail.

At our County Commissioners Candidates Night, at the Sanibel Community House, I spoke to you about the problem and your reply was "Urban, I'll take care of this," and you did. The day after election the truck was there repairing all damage and at this date the restrooms are painted and in spic and span condition, ready to open and, above all, you have promised security which is most important.

It is small wonder that you carried the Sanibel vote.

COTI elects boardmembers

Last Friday the Committee of the Islands (COTI) held their sixth annual open membership meeting. For the benefit of the audience, boardmembers and committee heads reviewed COTI's accomplishments during the last year and discussed issues that will be facing the community in the months to come.

Dave Davenport, COTI chairman, labeled 1980 a "very active year," and explained to members that three different speakers had been invited to speak to the board during the year on pertinent issues of community concern: City Manager Bernie Murphy, City Councilmember Zelda Butler and Committee of Neighborhood Associations President Urban Palmer.

The COTI Board of Directors has met 21 times over the past 12 months and have also managed to have at least one COTI representative present at almost every City Council and Planning Commission meeting held throughout the year.

Various committees were established to study pertinent issues and report back to the board, including committees designed to study commercial growth, the possible purchase of the causeway by the City of Sanibel, a recreational complex for the Islands, the formation of a code enforcement board, political candidates running for election, membership, zoning, rebuilding after a hurricane, the elimination of numbered City Council seats and the issue of beach parking.

At last week's meeting, the nominating committee presented a slate of seven candidates for the COTI Board of Directors, including Dave Davenport, Mary Lou Husler, George C. Houck, Fred Metcalfe, Allen Miller, Henry Shelton and Olaf Veal. With 206 proxies returned and several audience members voting in person, the nominating slate was unanimously accepted. New directors will serve for a term of two years.

Rate of Growth allocations accepted by City Council

The Sanibel City Council last week accepted the Planning Commission's Rate of Growth Ordinance (ROGO) allocations - the first ever doled out under the ROGO "point system."

Seven applicants had appealed the Commission's allocations to the Council, mandating that, under ROGO requirements, the Council hear arguments from petitioners to determine whether or not the ROGO regulations had been properly applied.

Attorney Dick Brodeur, representing Frank Joyce, told the Council that Joyce's Sea Loft Village had not even been rated by the Commissioners during the point allocation.

Joyce had asked for eight units in a clustering concept development, but said he would have settled for four with the remaining four continued to another allocation period. Under the land use plan definitions, however, Joyce's development was categorized as "single family with beneficial use," a low priority on the rate of growth scale. Joyce's proposal had not been categorized as multi-family (even though the design is for eight separate units) because the land use plan defines multi-family as a structure containing three or more units.

"The relief we seek," said Brodeur, "is to be graded." But the Council could not invalidate the Commission's action on the Joyce case unless proof was presented that the Commission had failed to apply City regulations. In Joyce's case, labeled a "Catch-22" by Councilman Valtin, the regulations had been followed.

Attorney John Wilcox, representing three single family and one multi-family applicant, addressed the Council next. "This ordinance," said Wilcox, "leaves a great deal to be desired." Wilcox claimed his clients had been denied access to the individual Planning Commissioners score sheets on their applications. Don Todd, builder for the applicants, said that he had requested the score sheets at City Hall but had been told by a secretary, "They're not available, we don't have anything like that."

City Manager Bernie Murphy, noting that such information was public record, said he would investigate the matter immediately.

Ray Pavelka and Bob Taylor of the Mariner Group addressed the Council next. Mariner had requested 15 units but, despite receiving the highest points of all the applicants, were only awarded 11. Taylor questioned the Commission's decision not to award the extra units from the available "surplus" allocations provided for in the ordinance.

Mayor Zee Butler pointed out that use of the surplus, which borrows against future allocations, was up to the Planning Commission's discretion. Commission Chairman Ann Winterbotham told Taylor that "The Planning Commission didn't think that this was the year to put 25 extra houses on the Island" due to the electric and water problems recently addressed by the Council.

"So, we wound up with one-and-a-half buildings," responded Taylor.

"We all knew it would be a real exercise in judgement," said Butler. "I personally think they made the right decision."

"We'll go head to head with anybody," responded Taylor, "but we want to know what the rules are."

Despite intimations from Brodeur that the City might be headed for a lawsuit on constitutional grounds, the Council voted unanimously to accept the Commission's allocations.

MUNICIPAL RECORDS

By Pat Harmel

The road to Sanibel

The City of Sanibel made some recommendations last week to the County Commission on the way they think the widening of McGregor Blvd., from Miner's Plaza to the toll booth, should be conducted.

Mike Carroll, County engineer, had addressed the Council late last month on the County's plans and asked for the City's input and recommendations. After reviewing those plans, Assistant City Manager Gary Price submitted a 17 point list of recommendations for Council perusal at last week's meeting.

Price's recommendations included; possibility of the Islands' only access route be maintained at all times; the roadway near the toll booth be elevated and an elevated bypass road be constructed around the toll booth to reduce flooding; reduction in the amount of vegetation clearing; replanting of vegetation in right-of-ways, medians and traffic islands; the County adopt a policy of notifying the City of all land use actions up for hearing affecting SR 869 and McGregor Blvd.; traffic lights' timing be correlated; driveways and cross streets be controlled and limited; speed limit on SR 869 be kept as high as possible; plans for a bike path be detailed for McGregor; a sign and graphics ordinance be adopted by the County governing SR 869; a merge lane be incorporated at the corner of 869 and McGregor.

To Price's suggestions Mayor Zee Butler added one of her own: the County adopt setbacks along McGregor Blvd. "As long as they're going to do this road," said the Mayor, "I think it's a good opportunity to do it right."

Councilman Fred Valtin asked that Price's recommendations be broken down into two documents; one commenting directly on the County's proposal and the other dealing with suggestions on zoning, setbacks, graphics, etc.

Councilman Duane White told the Council that he intended "to back this (recommendation) up with conversations with at least two Commissioners, underlining our concerns," and urged other Councilmen to do the same.

The 'disease' of Brazilian Pepper

Del Pierce, manager of the J.N. "Ding" Darling Wildlife Refuge, made an appearance before the City Council last week to address the issue of Brazilian pepper management within the refuge.

"Brazilian pepper," Pierce told the Council, "is destroying more native upland habitat than condominiums."

Pierce explained that there was little precedent for management of "the disease of Brazilian pepper," adding, "For a lot of years we had a lot of plans (at the refuge)...over the last few years we're actually in a position to do some management."

Bulldozing, uprooting and using chemicals is the plan of refuge attack on the pepper and, according to Pierce, limited manpower and equipment make it the only feasible plan of attack available.

"We realize that with a massive approach like this, other plants are going to be killed," he said, adding, "if a plant's in the way of Brazilian pepper it's doomed to die anyway."

Pierce explained that the bulldozer operator walked through the area first, checking for gopher tortoises and other wildlife habitat. In response to Council questioning, Pierce said that regrowth of the pepper from bulldozed seedlings was not a large problem if the plants were dozed before the seedlings were "viable."

Pierce also said that any native vegetation dozed over probably had a better chance of surviving if left there than if it had been transplanted out ahead of time in a "native plant dig."

"I agree wholeheartedly with what you're doing," noted Councilman Francis Bailey. "I do think you're selective...but unquestionably there's a few things that go down...Alligators eat ducks but we don't go out and kill all the alligators...it's a give and take situation."

Pierce said that in the future he would try to attend the morning session of Council meetings to respond to any concerns the Council might have and to help prevent further misunderstandings of what Fish and Wildlife is doing within the refuge.

Paulsen shopping center hearing continued - again

The continuation of a second reading on the controversial Paulsen shopping center proposed for Periwinkle Way was slated for Council action last week - only to be continued once again.

The Paulsen proposal, which has been going through the hearing process for nearly a year, calls for construction of a 53,800 square foot shopping center next to the Sanibel Community Church. Paulsen's representatives have consistently maintained that their client's proposal falls within the boundaries of the land use plan and they petitioned the Council for a specific amendment to the plan not because they believe they need one but as an attempt at administrative relief after being turned down by the Planning Commission for a development permit.

At last week's Council hearing, Paulsen's attorney, Jim Humphrey, was asked to continue the hearing once again. Fred Bosselman, (of Ross, Hardies, O'keefe et.al. of Chicago) special council to the City, sent a letter to City Attorney Neal Bowen requesting the Council not take action on the case until he had time to review the files on it. According to Bosselman, there were "surface similarities" between the Paulsen case and another in which the City is currently involved in litigation. Bosselman's request was based on the fact that he would like to further examine the possible similarities.

The case Bosselman referred to was the $1 million lawsuit brought against the City and individual Planning Commissioners by Outer Island Development after being denied approval of a project Outer Island maintained fell within the boundaries of the land use plan.

Councilman Fred Valtin questioned the timing of the Bosselman letter and asked why Bosselman had not gotten involved earlier. City Attorney Neal Bowen explained that Bosselman had been on the Island over the Thanksgiving holidays and spoke with him on the similarities between the two cases then and requested further time to review them.

The Council, with the approval of Humphrey, voted unanimously to continue the Paulsen hearing. Francis Bailey abstained.

Another Algiers proposal

Wes Brewer, from Chagrin Falls, Ohio, threw his hat in the 'What Will We Do With The Algiers Steamboat' ring last week with a proposal to move the ship to his own beachfront property for refurbishment.

Brewer, a part-owner of the High Tide Cottages, told City Councilmembers that he had refurbished a historical tavern and a stagecoach stop up north and was now interested in restoring the Algiers "to put in rooms, maybe apartments, maybe a little restaurant."

Brewer, who said he had made an unsuccessful attempt at saving and restoring the old Thistle Lodge, told the Council, "This (steamboat) might not be historical now, but in 50 years it will be.

"Think of us as a point of last resort," said Brewer, who claimed he was willing to move the steamboat to his property by either land or water.

The Council advised Brewer to put his proposal into writing and submit it to the City Manager.

Commissioners appointed

Last week Sanibel's City Council appointed four Planning Commissioners, one of which went to work yesterday as newly elected Councilman Fred Valtin's replacement on the Commission.

Dr. Louise Johnson was appointed to fill the Valtin vacancy and Commissioners Ann Winterbotham and Bill Hagerup were reappointed. Larry Simon was appointed to the slot that will be vacated by Judy Workman in January.

Kiwanis plan Christmas projects

December is a busy month for the Sanibel-Captiva Kiwanis Club. The public and visitors are reminded that the annual Christmas Tree Lighting and Carol Sing will be held at 8 p.m. on Sunday, December 14 across Periwinkle Way from the Sanibel Community Association Building. Come one, come all and join the fun.

On Thursday, December 18, the Kiwanis Club hopes to clobber the Lions Club in their annual softball match at 7 p.m. at the Elementary School playing field.

The joint Lions-Kiwanis Christmas Party will be held at 8 p.m. on Saturday, December 20.

On Tuesday, December 23, Kiwanis sponsors home visits by Santa Claus for the Island small fry. Bring your gift(s) to the Fire House by 4 p.m. on December 23. The gift should be wrapped and then put in a brown paper bag with names, ages, and simple directions on how to get to the home of the child. Santa will come between 6 and 8 p.m. Please have cameras ready beforehand. Santa will be very busy!

Other items of interest to local and visiting Kiwanians: Our speaker on December 10 will be Lee County Sheriff Frank Wanicka. The speaker for December 17 will be fellow Kiwanian and local Architect Jack Worth.

The Sanibel-Captiva Kiwanis meet every Wednesday at 7:30 a.m. at Scotty's Restaurant on Periwinkle Way.

On the water

By Captain Mike Fuery

The handful of settled days between cold fronts has let us get offshore for a try at some of the largest Spanish mackerel we've seen in some time. Let's talk about that and some other things this week.

Most of us who fish the shallow Gulf of Mexico waters don't risk venturing into the water unless there is relatively little weather, as far as high winds and waves are concerned. So consequently, we only fish for migratory fish, such as mackerel, blue fish and bonito, when the days are mild. The fish are out there, but it's nearly impossible to fish for them in a 22-foot boat. So when the seas subside, after the cold weather front moves past, that is when you will likely hear of runs of mackerel and other fish.

The only trouble with getting the information is that by the time you hear about it, in all probability, another front has moved into the area and ruined the fishing again for a day or two. So the secret is to get ready to move as soon as the weather breaks. It's easy to figure this. When the front of the cold weather comes down, it comes from the north or northeast. It might last two days or more. The fishing is difficult, but the shelling is super! Then the winds start to go "around the clock" or move to the east. That's your signal to get ready for offshore work. You might have one day of strong easterly winds, then they ease up and start from the southeast, south and southwest. This is when you should be back on the water. Look out, because when the wind shifts to the west you can expect that another norther will be coming down the state and that will end your Gulf fishing for a couple of days.

It's a fairly reliable pattern and once you know how to time it, then you can take advantage of these migrating fish and have a pleasant time of it too.

Perhaps you have read some of my other stories on how to find these fish by simply watching for bird activity over the baitfish.

That's still the most reliable way to get into the action. But this week we came upon a large school of mackerel with very few birds over them. There were perhaps a total of fifty birds working the school. Most times you can see a swarm of birds, numbering into the hundreds. When I came upon the mackerel, it was a sight worth remembering. There were so many fish - they were jumping out of the water after the tiny glass minnows they were feeding upon. The charter group I had out with me were astounded at the number of fish in the water that were feeding frantically, following the bait.

I was trolling a double jig rig of one white and one yellow half-ounce jig on one rod and a small spoon on the other. At one time we had fish on both outfits and landed three fish within seconds, so I can't say which works best. We had nine in the boat in perhaps five minutes and we sat back to say we were in for one whale of a fishing time. But, that was where we were wrong.

The winds started to die down and the water got nearly slick. That meant calm seas, of course, but the mackerel hated it. I think that with a slightly choppy sea, the noise of the boat is broken up. When it was smooth and calm, the schools of mackerel knew right where we were. We could hardly get near them. That ended the fishing for that day.

So you can see that you can't fish in rough seas, but slick seas aren't any better either. Look for those balmy days between those fronts and you can expect to pick up some fish offshore with little problems.

Good fishing this week and calm weather to you. Well, not too calm!

 For Captiva Island Gulf side, subtract 30 minutes for each high tide, and subtract hour and 16 minutes for each low tide.
 For Captiva Island, Pine Island Sound (Bay) side, add 1 hour and four minutes for each high tide and add 52 minutes for each low tide.

Three times each year, the American Contract Bridge League sponsors "Continent-wide Charity Games." Proceeds from these events go to the ACBL Charity Foundation and the Canadian Charitable Fund. Since 1964, they have distributed over $2.3 million. The Diabetes Association is the 1980 beneficiary of both groups.

At the Charity Games, all hands are predealt. Eighty-five hundred members at 190 clubs play identical deals. Shown here is a typical board from the November 1980 games.

On November 18, 8,500 had these hands. The results are almost as varied as the players. Take your favorite partner and see how you bid, defend or play the contract.

(East should start with one Spade, and his partner has just enough to respond two Hearts. Note that South, vulnerable, should not even think of overcalling, despite his three quick tricks.

East has extra values, so he should bid the Heart game.

North will start the queen of Diamonds, which West should win in hand. He can then pull trump and lead the ten of Spades. When South takes his ace, he can cash two Club tricks, but then the defense will have run out of steam.)

Erosion District - time to take control

By Ellen Mulligan

The Captiva Erosion Prevention District (CEPD) met last Monday, December 1, to discuss the latest developments within the District.

Project Manager Dick Stevens announced the arrival of Tetra Tech's documents concerning the off-shore sand search tests and their results. Stevens indicated that the test results had posed three possible sand borrow sites for the proposed beach renourishment project.

As a condition for possible funding, this report was also sent to the Army Corps of Engineers and the Department of Natural Resources (DNR), Stevens said. The Corps and DNR will send their conditions and requirements with regard to the proposed project back to the CEPD for their analysis. A copy of the report is available for public viewing at the CEPD Captiva office.

In an attempt to set the record straight concerning the controversy raised over the possible number of Captiva parking spaces, Stevens emphasized that the hypothetical allocation of 600 parking spaces was only "one of many possibilities."

Stevens noted that it was "not necessarily parking only," and that there were "other measures" which could be taken to obtain funding. Any work which would result in offsetting public benefit, such as a combination of County road improvement and property protection, are also possible measures to attain funding.

Stevens also suggested that the CEPD hold a workshop for Islanders to cover the aspects of parking, the County road, and other benefits in order "to inform the people of the project." This workshop will be scheduled sometime in January or February after the CEPD newsletter is sent to the community and will be advertised so that Islanders will know exactly when it is.

CEPD agent Dex Bender met with two lawyers from the attorney's office to discuss "the carrying on of County participation in the proposed beach renourishment project." Bender will meet with these lawyers to "brainstorm and draft" the project through the County processes. "We are still working on the document," Bender said, "and we should have it done this month."

Richard Butze, chairman of the CEPD, suggested that concerned Islanders familiarize themselves with the Lee County Comprehensive Land Use Plan and the Department of Natural Resources studies, relative to their power in obtaining environmentally sensitive land.

Butze noted that it is within the State's power to obtain this type of land and to convert it to any facilities they wish. Butze said that it is a possibility in the future for Captiva to be acquisitioned and turned into state facilities unless the community begins "doing and controlling things that we can."

Butze said that Captiva would be in a better position "if we can control to some degree rather than sitting back," and, he added, "Right now we do have some control."

Lions plan holiday activities

By D.E. Cooperrider

The Sanibel-Captiva Lions Club met at the Sanibel Community Association Building for the first time on December 3, with several out-of-state guests in attendance.

Lion Ken Meeker spoke on two programs that are supported by Lions Clubs: the large print books and the Talking Book Program. The large print books are available at the Sanibel Library and the Talking Book Program is part of the Library of Congress. Lion Meeker was one of those people who read the books which were placed on records while he resided in Louisville, Kentucky.

Lion Chambers thanked all Lions who assisted at the Turkey Shoot and gave special thanks to Lion Mainard who wore a lion costume for publicity at the shoot.

Lion Hay Foster reported that all plans for the Christmas Tree sale were "GO" and expected the trees to arrive on December 10 and the sale to begin on December 11.

Lion Bob Potts reported on the plans for the Joint Lions-Kiwanis Christmas Party to be held at 8 p.m. on Saturday, December 20 at the Sanibel Community Association Building. There will be entertainment and dancing for all.

Lions Hermes and Dormer reported on plans for the party on the same day which the Lions will sponsor and assist for the residents of Grant Cottage Sunland. This party is sponsored annually as part of the Lions on-going program for the handicapped. The newly formed Lions Auxiliary will also assist the club members in this endeavor.

The annual Lions-Kiwanis softball game will be held on Thursday, December 18 at 7 p.m. at the Elementary School.

The next meeting will be held at the Sanibel Community Association Building on December 17 at 6:30 p.m.

Attention Washingtonians

All former Washingtonians living in this area are invited to attend a no-host Christmas party to be held Friday, December 12 at the Sheraton Inn on Route 41, south of Fort Myers, between 4 and 6 p.m.

At the party, coordinator Elizabeth Evans will congratulate the former Washingtonians on their political savvy as demonstrated by a Presidential-poll taken at their spring party last April. At that time, with ten strong Presidential candidates in the race, the former Washingtonians picked Ronald Reagan as the candidate most likely to win and who "would make the best President in the four years ahead." Results of the poll were widely publicized, including a write-up in The Washington Post.

At the Christmas cocktail party, plans will be discussed for arrangements being made for the group to watch the Presidential inauguration on January 20 on wide-screen television in Fort Myers.

Guests attending the Christmas party are asked to bring a can or package of food to be donated to the Salvation Army for distribution to the needy.

For further information in Lee County, call Elizabeth Evans at 1-369-2882. In Collier County, call Florence Thomason at 774-7847. No reservations are necessary.

He also did special planning work at Carnegie-Mellon Institute, Pittsburg, Pa., has served 14 years as planner for the City of Pittsburg (ending as their chief planner) and served 10 years as director of advanced planning for the Department of Highways, State of Pennsylvania.

The Sanibel-Captiva Rotary meet every Friday at 12 p.m. at The Timbers Restaurant located on the corner of Sanibel-Captiva and Rabbit Roads. Visitors and guests are welcome.

Portrait

Ruth Hunter

Age: "Seventy-eight; I'm very proud that - I can't wait till I'm 80. I think it's exciting."

Height: 5 foot

Roots: "Chicago. The toughest part of the West Side. The farther west you go, the tougher it gets and I was in the last house."

Pleasures: "I like to write, read, go roller-skating in Central Park, square dancing, and I like to be with Philip on the deck of a ship watching the world go by."

Last Book Read: "You Don't Have To Be In Who's Who to Know What's What, by Sam Levinson. He writes about Brooklyn."

Mentor: "My religion, every inch of the way."

Wish: "I'd like to earn heaven and I wish I could do something about abortion."

Words of Wisdom: "For every evil under the sun there is a remedy. Find it."

Ruth Hunter, the lady behind Sanibel's Pirate Playhouse, has played upon theatre stages for the majority of her years on earth. But her personal life is also full of the dramatical and fantastical elements one usually only associates with the theatre.

Her dreams have come true and her prayers have been answered as Ruth explains today, "I have hit the jackpot of things that most mortals could want."

Her first "jackpot" began in a Chicago dramatic club when Ruth spotted a young man who was "tall, handsome and dark." She recalled all of the books she had read as a young girl in which all of the ladies found men who were "tall, handsome and dark."

Upon seeing Philip Hunter for the first time, Ruth said to herself, "Good heavens, he's for me! If I can't have Philip, I don't want anyone else." I thought I'd be a good actress only."

So Ruth put the "Indian sign" (a spell which is supposed to captivate) on Philip and fell in love with him "hook, line and sinker," she says today and, apparently, the feeling was mutual. According to Ruth, things have only gotten better during their 55 years of marriage.

"Ever since my father took me to the theatre when I was a little girl," Ruth remembers wanting to be amidst the theatre life. From that first moment, she became filled with the ambition and drive to become an actress. As Ruth explains, "I became incedded with this, it's a drive - the theatre, the theatre, the theatre."

"You learn by doing," Ruth explains of her inborn acting ability, for she never had the need for acting lessons. "You've got to have a feel for it. You're either good or you stink," she adds.

Ruth initially began her acting career as a comedian playing vaudeville acts out of Chicago. Fulfilling the dream of any young aspiring actress, Ruth's talent and drive drew her to Broadway where, at the age of 21, she was acclaimed as "the youngest leading lady on Broadway."

It was during her engagement to Philip that Ruth made her solo venture to New York. She recalls today the memory that drove her: "I don't want to get married and say I never tried." But try she did, and for Ruth it paid off, even though not as much financially as it did emotionally.

Starring on Broadway in 2,013 runs of "Tobacco Road," Ruth was the leading lady in the role of Ellie May. She also performed at the Empire Theatre in the play entitled "Fog," and her first Broadway play was named "Three Doors," and was a mystery.

Ruth played alongside such theatre greats as Spencer Tracy, Mae West, Pat O'Brien, and Burgess Meredith, to name but a few, and during the ensuing years she acquired a total of 12 Broadway shows to her acting credit.

Wanting to become a star, but never really becoming one the magnitude of a Kathryn Hepburn, Ruth believes that it was by the grace of God that she never really made it big. She believes that God gave her happiness and talent in exchange for her limited success.

Wanting to remain with the theatre, however, the Hunters turned next to their own rented playhouse, The Town Dock Theatre in Port Washington, New York, which signed various theatre companies and universities to perform summer theatre. While in New York, Ruth and Philip had their own radio talk show about places to go in and around New York. The broadcast was entitled "Let's go with the Hunters" and aired on WOR for 17 years.

They also had the opportunity to travel around the world - twice. Ruth and Philip performed in plays aboard their ship to entertain the passengers. Loving to travel, Ruth believes, "If all the world could travel and talk to one another, I don't think there would be any problems."

In between all of these adventures, Ruth found the time to raise two "wonderful" children and to write five books about theatre life. Her first book, "Come Back on Tuesday," is now among the permanent theatre collection at the Chicago Public Library.

Ruth is also proud of the fact that she had the opportunity to lunch with Mary Pickford and Buddy Rogers, two friends whom she greatly admires, and at one point, the Hunters purchased the dairy and dairy cottage of the famed financier, J. P. Morgan.

Ruth and Phillip began vacationing on Sanibel in 1953. "We love the place and its unusual place," she explains today. By 1964 their big chance for moving here came up, and it was too good to pass by.

When the former elementary school came up for sale, the Hunters promptly swept it off the market and converted it into the present-standing Pirate Playhouse. Bringing their theatrical talents to the Islands they opened up a cultural circuit, till then unknown to Island residents.

For 17 years now, the Hunters have provided an arena where Islanders can become involved with the intriguing field of theatrics, while also creating a cultural benefit for Islanders and visitors alike.

The Pirate Playhouse is also home for Ruth and Philip. The quaint homey schoolhouse is teeming with antiques that mark the Hunter's days spent in the theatre. Ruth even has her own "museum" full of memorabilia from days gone by.

A collection of antique dolls, parasols, canes, shawls, old shoes from almost every country she visited and costumes from the late 1800's deck her walls and shelves. A walk through Ruth's museum is an adventure in itself.

Ruth's life has always revolved around the theatre and, even to this day, she anticipates her new season at the Pirate Playhouse as eagerly as she anticipated her first Broadway appearance.

A firm believer in getting as much out of life as she puts into it, Ruth is one who can hardly wait for tomorrow to come, just to see what kind of excitement it will bring.

Piano Man

By Ellen Mulligan

"Music is a very difficult instrument," notes Islander John Vroman, owner and now entertainer at Cafe' Orleans.

"For most of my life, I have been a professional musician," he explains today, and it all started at the age of seven when his mother almost had to drag him to the piano bench to practice.

John explains that his musical influence came "strictly from mom and dad, they were in love with music," adding, "I didn't like it when I was young. I had little determination, but when you get the knack of it, you start liking it."

It didn't take John too long to get the "knack," however, for by the age of 10 he was already playing at the Concertgebouw Concert Hall in his native homeland, Holland.

Raised on classical music, John studied at the Conservatory in Amsterdam for eight years, believing that to become an accomplished musician, one must practice three to four hours a day, every day.

Since his childhood, John's memorized repertoire of songs has become volumes thick. "I know a heck of a lot of songs," he says today. "I know so many songs that go back to the 20's, plus a whole European repertoire." He has also delved "into contemporary stuff" as well.

Sitting before his keyboard in Cafe' Orleans, John seems to be, once again, in his element. It is apparent while listening to the instinctual rhapsody playing from his fingertips that the piano and John were made for each other.

John's musical talent has been his calling all of his life. At the age of 18, he formed his own dance band and then went with a bigger orchestra in the 1940's. He soon landed a short-lived radio contract in Holland for, as he explains today, "the war broke out and ruined the whole darn thing."

With the German occupation of Europe, John and his 15 piece orchestra were forced to play for the German troops. When Munich was bombed, the orchestra fled to Holland and, after the war had ended, John and his band were the first allied band to go into Germany in 1945.

For the following eight years, and "to make a sad story happy," John experienced the best time of his life with the American Special Services, entertaining at officer's clubs, G.I. clubs and the like while also performing for the American Forces Network which was broadcast all over Europe.

Meeting an American Red Cross girl overseas in 1954, John both wed and moved to the United States during that year. "I started in New York," John explains, "I played in high society hotels."

John and his group performed at the Waldorf Astoria, the Plaza Hotel and many other high society club dates while in New York. He also dabbled in composing and used to write background music for movies. He also wrote a song entitled "While We're Dancing," which became a big hit in New York.

"It was my main line until we came down here," John says, explaining that, as with many others, "the snow got too thick." Intending to retire once arriving on Sanibel, John quickly dispensed with the idea when he and his wife felt the need to be doing something.

John had initially planned on doing club dates around the area but soon discovered, as he explains, "there was not enough for a musician to do around here eight years ago." Consequently, the Vromans purchased the Lighthouse Restaurant which was managed by John's wife while he performed on the organ.

Since that time, however, John has purchased the present-standing Cafe' Orleans as well as the La Belle Gallery because he also has a love for art.

Cafe' Orleans, with its quaint candlelit setting, seems to be conducive to John's piano playing and he continues to add an element of musical charm for all to enjoy while dining.

Conserving energy with native plants

By Ellen Mulligan

Norma Jean Byrd, native plant nursery manager for the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation, was the featured speaker at last week's Tuesday at the Center program.

In starting off the second month of Tuesday at the Center presentations, and in keeping with the theme for the month of December as Island Landscaping Month, Norma discussed the many native plant landscaping possibilities as well as their energy conserving benefits.

While much of the home landscapes already existing on Sanibel and Captiva may appear to be native, they are actually exotic, Norma explained, and are also "energy intensive landscapes."

According to Norma, there are many present landscaping techniques which require extra maintenance and also waste energy. For example, gravel lots which are laid down to eliminate lawn mowing, may provide "maintenance free" landscape but they actually bake in the sun and become very "heat reflective." This can cost homeowners "exorbitant sums of money" to cool their homes during the summer months.

Exotic trees, which are not primarily shade trees and do not provide heat protection for homes, also increase one's air conditioning bills. These exotic plants, as opposed to native plants, require additional water and fertilizer during the drought seasons, Norma noted.

Along with a descriptive slide show, Norma offered some constructive tips for an alternate approach to exotic landscaping and energy consumptive landscaping. In order to obtain the maximum benefit with native plants, specific locations and specific plant selections are a necessity for providing shade for homes and to channel cool breezes, while also providing natural beauty to one's yard.

The best thing about native plants, as Norma explained, is that they have already adapted to this environment and are, for the most part, heat and drought resistant.

There are four primary zones of native vegetation, Norma said, including the beach zone, the ridge or hammock zone, (which are the most highly developed) the wetland zone and the mangrove zone. Each area has vegetation which thrives in those specific areas, so it is a good idea to plant the vegetation conducive to your area.

For maximum heat protection, Norma explained that it is wise to plant high shade trees along the sides of the home which receive the maximum sun exposures. Such native shade trees include the mastic tree, the sea grape tree, the Cherokee bean tree, gumbo limbo trees, and the Jamaican dogwood.

Another idea Norma suggested to provide beauty and shade without the higher cost of shade trees is to use a trellis and train native vines to cover it. Placing the trellis approximately 12" away from the sun exposed wall will provide a cool area between the home and the trellis. A good trellis vine is the railroad vine which grows quickly and also provides beautiful flowers.

According to Norma, the best energy conserving results are achieved when one combines shade trees with understory plants. These understory plants provide color, but are still native.

Some colorful native understory plants include white stopper, necklace pod, wild coffee, marlberry, wild olive, catclaw, myrsine, white indigo berry, and varnish leaf. While all of these may not produce big showy flowers they do produce colorful seed pods and some do produce beautiful native flowers, Norma said.

Beach zone areas have a variety of vegetation that propagates well in that area. They include sea oats, railroad vines, bay cedars, gray nickerbeans, and the seven year apple. Sea oats, working in conjunction with other beach zone plants, help retain sand and prevent erosion, Norma explained.

Some beneficial vegetation for the wetland and mangrove areas include red mangrove trees, bay bean vines, green buttonwood trees, the Christmas berry, spider lilies, and the coco plum.

There are some trees that are not native but have been introduced into this area because of their adaptability and outstanding characteristics, Norma explained. Among them are the royal palm trees, the pigeon plums, the satin leaf, the paradise tree, and the geiger tree.

When landscaping with native vegetation, the main thing to remember is the location, Norma said. Combining shade trees with understory plants in the right places protects homes from heat exposure, cools the area around the house, allows breezes to channel through the grounds and also keeps the home cool inside, Norma emphasized.

In a strong attempt to promote native plants and to protect the natural systems so vital to these Islands, the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation's native plant nursery stocks many of the plants heretofore mentioned and the Foundation staff will be more than willing to assist those who would like to design their homes with native plant landscapes.

This week's presentation of Tuesday at the Center will feature Milena Eskew speaking on the topic of landscaping for the terrace.

Nichols wins South Seas Traditional

By Mark Harmel

Bobby Nichols strung together two rounds of 68 to win the pro division, Sundial headwaiter, Frank Deehan, drives across a canal water hazard.

Bobby Nichols, the 1964 PGA champion, was the winning pro in Captiva's Second Annual South Seas Traditional Pro-Am Charity Golf Tournament.

Nichols shot an eight-under par 136, shooting 68 in both his opening round on Saturday and his second round on Sunday.

The winning amateur players, at a 26 under-par total of 118, was the team of Tony Lapi, Marvia Koontz, and DeWitt Jones.

The pro-am tournament gives local players a chance to play with touring pros; South Seas employee Chuck Andrews described playing with pro Dan Pohl as "orgasmic...like playing in the big time."

The proceeds from the tournament go to benefit the Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Lee County.

"Another find in Sanibel is The French Corner, one of America's best restaurants. A bit of Paris transplanted...I've rarely sampled better French food."--Gentlemen's Quarterly, 1980.

flexible, luxurious, and economical --interval ownership makes sense.

Yes, Our vacations are special — we like to travel, stay at top resorts, dine at fine restaurants, and enjoy a variety of activities.

We've been visiting the islands for several years and have thought seriously about buying a vacation home here. We looked around, and discovered the interval ownership program at South Seas Plantation offers our kind of vacations — very economically and allows us to vacation more frequently.

In fact, it made sense for us to purchase four vacation weeks — two for our vacations at South Seas Plantation, one for our children to come and visit, and another week to use with the exchange program. The exchange week we'll use to go to Hilton Head, Europe, Hawaii or wherever.

Let's face facts. Renting accommodations at first class resorts is expensive. The vacation villas at Plantation Beach Club are luxurious, the one-time purchase price is very reasonable, and we always have something to show for the money we've spent.

Membership at South Seas Plantation and our beachfront vacation villa — that's the kind of vacation we value.

Shopping

SHOPPING
 Sanibel is a veritable shopper's paradise. Tasteful boutiques and casual island shops join forces to present visitors with everything - and anything - a vacation shopper could hope for.

At the Lighthouse (Eastern) end of the island, Punta Ybel Plaza and The Sea Horse Shops are right across the street from each other, providing a variety of products that can cure your sweet tooth or tickle your shell finder's fancy. Need a good haircut or coiffure? You can get it in either of these shopping centers. Most businesses open at 10 a.m. and close at 5:30 p.m. This holds true for many island stores, although during the winter season, some are open evenings.

Tall Australian pines shade Periwinkle Way as the shopper travels west along this main thoroughfare. This stretch of road is truly a shopper's paradise! It's all here...the fast and not-so-fast eating spots, casual and elegant boutiques, hand-wrought jewelry, craft designs, shell shops and balms for health produce fanatics.

you drive or cycle along. Photographic supplies, bait and tackle, deli foods, fresh seafood and baked goods, knick-knacks and what-nots can all be found along the drive to the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road. Along the way, shopping centers such as the Heart of the Islands, Periwinkle Place and Tahitian Gardens offer a variety of island delights.

Palm Ridge Road, the Periwinkle Way turn-off to Captiva, offers several new shopping centers featuring everything from imports to gift shops for the discriminating shopper, plants and shells, a sandwich shop, ice cream parlour, pizza parlour, boutique shop and the Island Apothecary pharmacy.

At the Tarpon Bay-Periwinkle Way intersection, the Island Shopping Center features the island's only supermarket, dry cleaners and movie house.

A left on Tarpon Bay Road takes the visitor past Sanibel's original schoolhouse, which now holds original island watercolors and woodcuts. Then on to West Gulf Drive and westward to an interesting little artisan's shop and gallery. At the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road, you may choose instead to turn right and follow the signs to the Tarpon Bay Marina, where you will find a cluster of quaint shops overloping the back bay...Some antiques, shells and shellcrafts, what-nots and clever clothes can be found here, as well as a great seafood sandwich and soft drinks.

The spectacular ride to Captiva, with its lush foliage and enchanting view of the Gulf, is well worth a day's outing. Talented artists display their works in one roadside shop, while others feature some nifty gifts for Grandma to take home to little hands as a pleasant hodge-podge of remembrances from these barrier islands.

Whether for shopping, or merely browsing, island shops offer a surprising variety from one-of-a-kind collectibles for the discerning shopper to postcards for the simple souvenir hunter and of course, for all, shells, shell jewelry, shell lamps, just plain shells...the most beautiful shells in the world from the most beautiful shelling beaches in the world.

BEACH ACCESS

Sanibel has miles of public Gulf-front beaches, any one of which is only minutes from your lodging. Lighthouse Point is a stretch of Federal land on the Eastern tip of Sanibel Island, and from there, the Gulf beach is accessible again at the end of Donax Street, at Tarpon Bay Road, at Bowman's Beach Road (off Sanibel-Captiva Road) and Turner's Beach, which is located at Blind Pass, between Sanibel and Captiva Islands.

On Captiva Island, public beach access can be found at Turner Beach (which has public facilities) or further north, just past the entrance to South Seas Plantation.

NOTE: STATE LAW PROHIBITS NUDE SUNBATHING ON ALL FLORIDA BEACHES. VIOLATORS WILL BE PROSECUTED.

CAMPING

Camping on the beach is prohibited and while everyone enjoys a beach fire, the Sanibel Fire Board has signed into law an ordinance prohibiting open beach fires. Prior to the ordinance, a permit was necessary for a beach bonfire, but as of July 18, 1980, it is now illegal. An exemption to the ordinance is a fire in an approved cooking container (not to exceed 48" X 24" X 12" deep with an extruded metal grill) for non-commercial food preparation. This type of container will be allowed on the beach without a permit. After you have had your beach party, it is recommended that you assume the responsibility for the cleanup of any debris or litter in your area.

GATORS

Feeding alligators anywhere within the Sanibel City limits is not only illegal (violators of the law are subject to a fine of up to $500, or up to 60 days in jail, or both), but can be extremely dangerous. Alligators can run 45 m.p.h., so if you're close enough to feed an alligator, he's close enough to feed on you. An alligator fed for fun loses his natural fear of humans and becomes a potential threat to children and pets.

WARNING! SAFEGUARD YOUR VALUABLES.

In order to protect your valuable possessions from theft, it is recommended that you TAKE THEM TO A BANK OR HOTEL VAULT FOR SAFEKEEPING. Do NOT leave them in your room or car.

SPEED LIMITS

There are varying speed limits (20-30 m.p.h.) as one comes across the causeway, and there is a very good reason for them...to preserve the bridge supports from strain and stress. This speed limit is strictly enforced with the use of radar on a 24-hour basis by both the Sanibel Police Department and the Lee County Sheriff's Department. Driving or parking a motor vehicle or moped on the bike path is strictly prohibited. Violators will be ticketed.

SHELLING
The City of Sanibel Resolution limiting the taking of live shells to 2 live shells per person per species is one to be scrupulously obeyed. As a matter of fact, in order to preserve Sanibel's beautiful shelling beaches, most collectors refuse to take any live shells whatsoever.

DOGGY DO'S & DON'TS

If you're visiting Sanibel with the family Fido in tow, all the better. All family members can enjoy Southwest Florida sun and surf. The Chamber of Commerce can tell you what accommodations are available for families with pets. Remember: wherever you are, clean up after your pet! The friendly reminder... "Leave nothing on the beach but footprints"...applies to dogs, too. There's no leash law on Sanibel, but of course an excitable or unruly animal is better off when controlled with a leash.

BICYCLE RULES

If you're not used to a lot of bicycle traffic, watch out for it on Sanibel. The extensive network of bike paths on the island is clearly marked along the edge of the road. Observe caution when driving near the bike path. A State law and City Ordinance combine to PROHIBIT PARKING OR DRIVING ON THE BIKE PATH. MOPEDS ARE NOT PERMITTED ON THE BIKE PATHS.

Planning on spending some time on a bike to enjoy the island sun and sights? Make sure your vehicle is equipped with a bike flag, horn, good brakes and a light for night riding. Under Florida law, bicycle riders have the same rights and responsibilities as motor vehicle drivers.

that the law does not require us to make. There's no DER law providing for monitoring post project." Oertel then said that should the project go to court he would not argue for his client to be committed to the monitoring project.

When SCCF Director B.G. Olson queried whether or not South Seas would not like to do the monitoring in the spirit of community interest, Oertel agreed that, "If we can work this out we're always willing to do it, even if we can't be forced to do it."

Oertel told Rogers that South Seas had been willing to work out compromises with the various petitioners against the project, but added that the DER conditions themselves were the biggest problem facing the project. "They've given us a permit with one hand," said Oertel, "and then attached impossible conditions to it." Oertel said that DER officials had never mentioned a two-month time limit on the project when they had met earlier this year with South Seas representatives, and added that March and April were not ideal months to conduct the project.

Erik Olson, project engineer, explained that under optimal weather conditions it would take "80 to 90 days; 20 hours a day, to construct the project. Realistically," he added, "you're looking at three to four months project time."

Rogers suggested that perhaps South Seas could "separate the City of Sanibel's concerns from the DER permit and enter into an agreement with the City."

"That," responded Oertel, "in my opinion amounts to a tax deductible charitable contribution." Rogers reminded Oertel that the City had originally asked for biological as well as aerial monitoring but might be willing to forgo biological testing if "we could work out our concerns."

Project manager Dick Stevens told Rogers that he would "recommend to management" that the aerial photography of Sanibel be conducted as part of the project.

"It's really quite modest issues that are of concern to the City of Sanibel," pointed out Rogers, to which Oertel again responded, "They (South Seas) will probably agree to do it...but it is a contribution they're not required to do."

In response to queries from B.G. Olson, Erik Olson explained that the monitoring system will be used as an educational tool and monitoring reports will be available to scientific, educational and community groups. The Foundation, at the request of B.G. Olson, was also given approval to participate in the monitoring studies. Said Erik Olson, "We're contributing to the state of the art of knowledge of beach renourishment...as engineers and scientists we're interested in the effects of this."

Your bank has ~~$5,000,000~~ $5,000,000 to lend!

What have you got in mind?

Well, that didn't take long. In less than a month we spread a million dollars over these islands helping people buy their homes, finance their cars, improve their businesses and lots of other things.

But we've still got five million more where that came from and we're anxious to get it into circulation.

So if you're thinking about a new car or some home improvements or buying a new home or business...whatever you've got in mind, stop by and see us.

Let's put our money to work—for both of us.
