South Seas beach renourishment project underway

By Ellen Mulligan

The South Seas Beach Improvement Project began full steam ahead last Wednesday.

On the July 1 target date, Merritt Dredging contractors from South Carolina promptly began pumping sand from a hydrolic cutterhead dredge through an 18" pipe onto South Seas' eroded beach. The barge is located approximately one-half mile offshore.

According to Dick Stevens, project manager for the privately funded $3.6 million South Seas Plantation renourishment project, "From now on they'll be pumping around the clock."

South Seas' plan of action involves pumping approximately 650,000 cubic yards of quality sand onto 10,000 feet of the northernmost tip of Captiva Island.

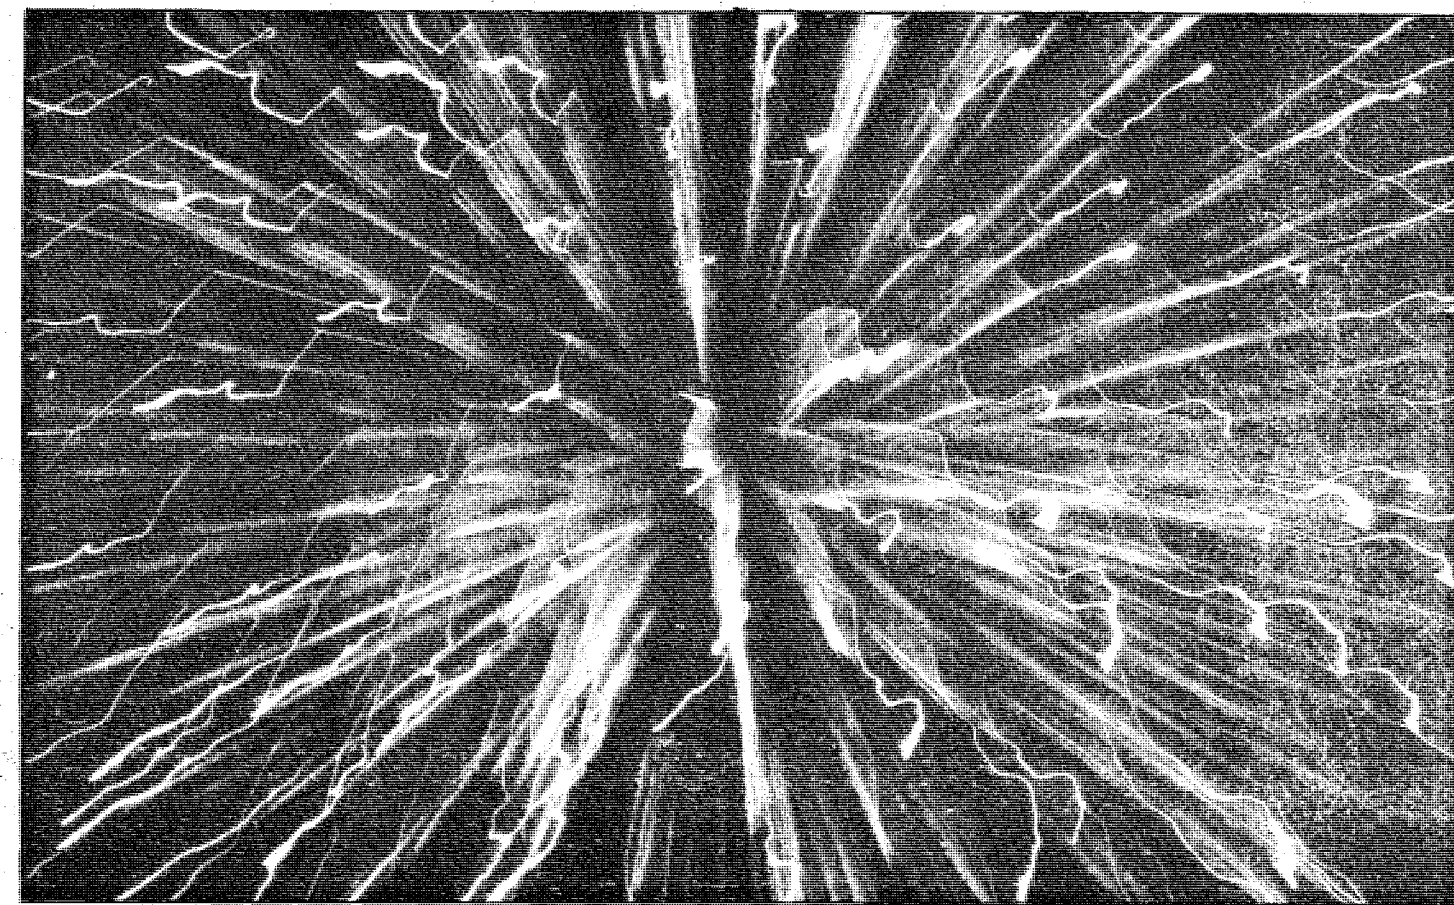

According to the renourishment report, the design beach is six feet above sea level and approximately four and a half feet above mean high tide. The elevation designs were selected on the basis of the existing dune height, the report stated.

As projected in South Seas' report, once all of the sand has been pumped on the beach, the new beach will be approximately 140 feet wide. Stevens estimated the pumping will take a minimum of 105 days.

Normal wave action will shape the beach to the project design of approximately 105 feet of dry beach and a more gently sloping submerged beach extending under water more than 100 feet, the report said.

South Seas Plantation battled against conservationists, fishermen and everyone else who feared the worst from the dredging of 70 acres of sand seven feet deep from the rich marine shoals seaward of Red Fish Pass.

As a result, the project is accompanied by one of the most extensive monitoring programs ever undertaken for a project of this kind. If the turbidity exceeds state standards, the project is required to come to an immediate halt.

To further assuage all worried opponents, the project must be completed by the end of October to insure that peak season activities are not disturbed by the dredging.

Since South Seas' project generated more controversy than support, the engineering was calculated under the watchful eye of federal, state, and local officials as well as individual opponents and proponents of the project.

Stevens said that each renourishment project, however, involves a different set of circumstances altogether.

The main concern in a renourishment project is to put back on the beach the same kind of sand that was lost, Stevens said.

"That's why we stressed the importance

Visitors learn about parking the hard way

By Barbara Brundage

Sanibel's controversial beach access parking restrictions that went into effect July 1 brought mixed reactions from visitors to the Island during the three-day Fourth of July weekend.

Ninety-eight motorists cited by Sanibel police for illegal parking through Sunday were less than pleased with the new regulations. At least two daytrippers told Chamber of Commerce personnel "we won't be back."

The fine for the violation is $50 but is reduced to $35 if paid within 12 hours. Police Chief John Butler said Monday no statistics were available yet on how many of the 98 people who were ticketed took advantage of the reduction.

Assistant City Manager Gary Price, who with Butler coordinated implementation of the parking strategy that bans parking on all public areas and rights-of-way on the Island except those especially designated, said the concept seems to be to be working.

"It is accomplishing the purpose of reducing traffic at beach accesses like Nerita Street, where parking is allowed only with a restricted permit," he said.

But Butler was less positive. "I consider a law to be effective only when there is 100 percent compliance," he said.

During the first five days the new regulations were in effect, 75 more parking permits were sold, he added.

Inquiries and complaints about the parking ban combined with other problems made last Friday the "worst day at the chamber" for Marliyn Deege in the five years she has been the chamber secretary.

"We really think the parking violators should have just been given a warning," Deege said.

Many day visitors who received an explanatory brochure at the toll gate were confused by the map, she said, and stopped at the chamber office to make sure where parking was allowed.

Others who received parking tickets stopped by to complain, she added.

Mayor Duane White said he fielded several complaints over the weekend from both Lee County residents and short-term visitors.

"There seems to be a lot of confusion and misunderstanding about the new regulations," he said. White said the confusion was "fostered by the media's not properly defining the situation."

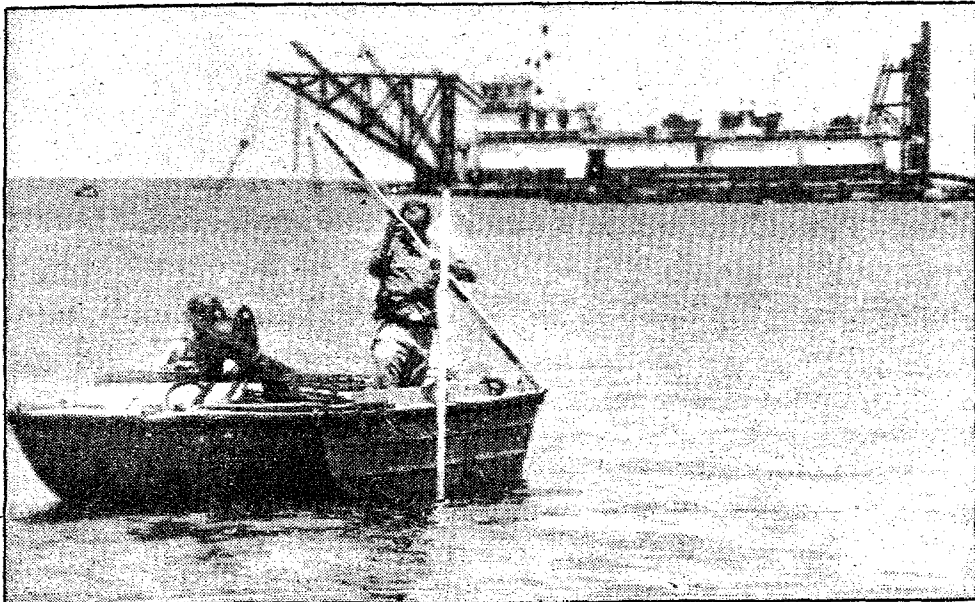

When it is understood that on a barrier island such as Sanibel private property rights must be protected as well as the environment we have been striving so hard to preserve, the furor will die down, White said.

This shake-down period has revealed the need for some adjustments, White said.

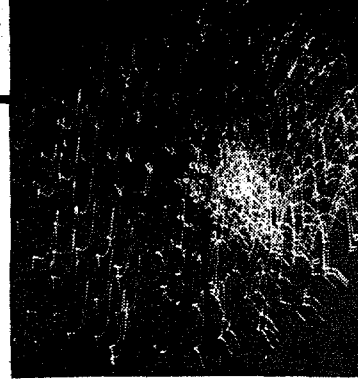

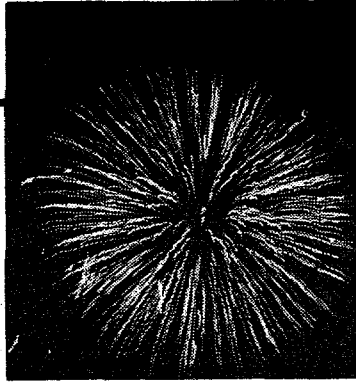

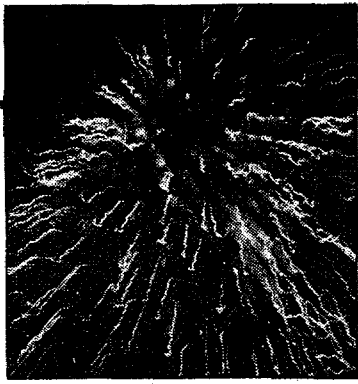

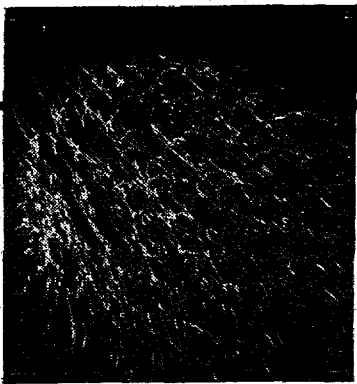

The free parking lot on Tarpon Bay Road must be more clearly marked and the area itself improved, he said.

"If it's left the way it is everyone will get stuck in the mud if we have a heavy rain," he said.

White also expressed disappointment with the brochure map. "It's hard to locate the parking areas on the map," he said.

Fourth of July activities

The daylong birthday celebration sponsored by the Sanibel-Captiva Lions Club provided food, fun and fireworks for the Island and a big surprise for raffle ticket holders.

Mayor Duane White rotated the drum of raffle tickets for a new car and pulled out the winning name — Maggy, an English Sheepdog!

Maggy, owned by Bob Dahlgren, is now the proud owner of a new Pontiac Phoenix. But she isn't completely happy. According to Dahlgren, "She likes to watch TV, and she wanted a TV set. But she got a car." Just the same, Dahlgren said, Maggy is "all enthused."

Col. C.H. Brooks is also pleased — he won the second prize color TV. The third prize in the raffle, one week's accommodation for four in Grand Banks, Bahamas, was won by Frank Deehan.

Michael Bradley, the low gross winner in the golf tournament, wasn't a surprise winner. But it probably hurt the more experienced golfers to be beaten by someone as young as Bradley.

Wyman Atkin was five strokes behind Bradley's 62 for second place. A 68 won Randy Wickham third place.

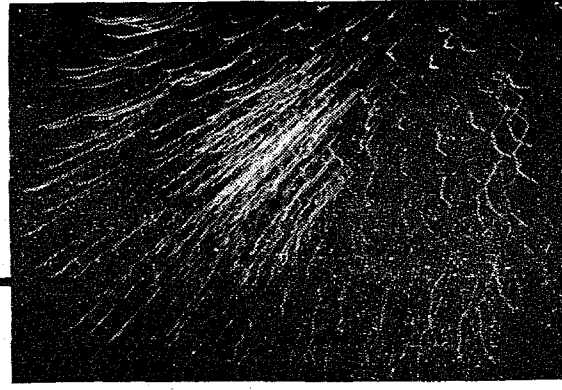

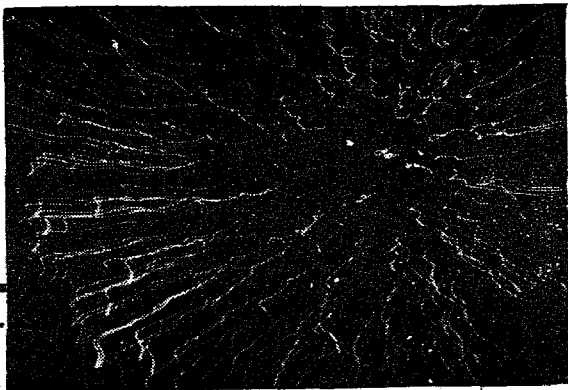

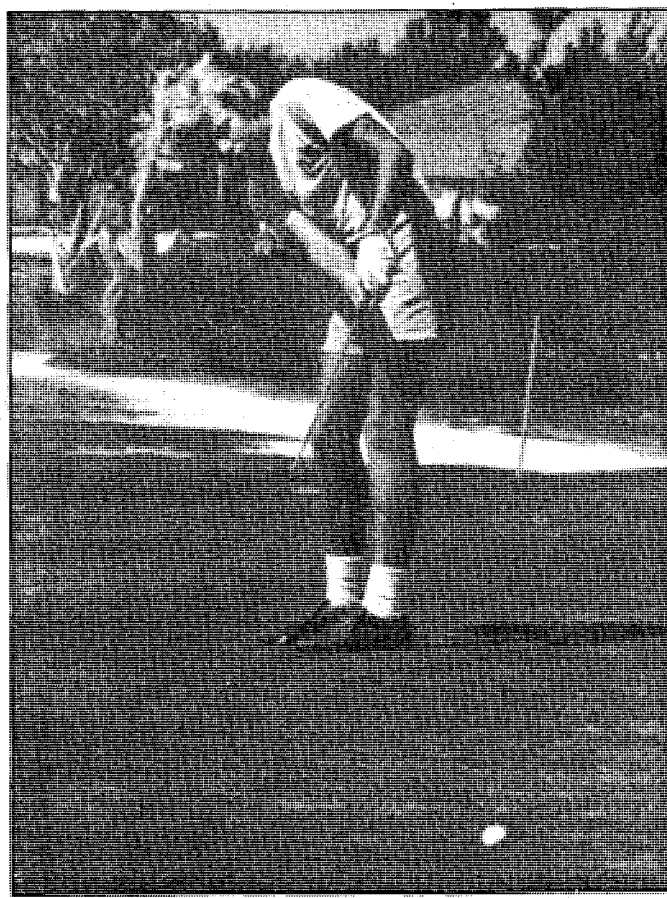

Low net winner Tom Kendrick came in with a 62. One stroke back was Hap Personette. A higher gross score placed Chuck Andrews and Dave Taylor in a tie for third with their net score of 63.

Jean Hartman was the women's low net golfer. She finished with a 68. Chuck Andrews' 280-yard drive was the longest of the day. Wyman Atkins came closest to the hole.

For the second year in a row, Francis Bailey won the Happy Hacker award, holding on to his distinction as the Island's worst golfer.

First place in the Road Rally race of 1981 went the team led by Rick Arin. Second place went to the Steve Reynolds team, third to the Bob Kornieck team, fourth to the Tom Uhler team and fifth place to the Hammett team.

Survey shows Island businesses healthy, profitable

By Cindy Chalmers

Sanibel's shops enjoy a "healthy profitability" that exceeds the national average for retail stores, commercial consultant Scott MacDonald told city officials last week.

But even though business on the Island is healthy for those who are already established, MacDonald added, a special survey of Sanibel businessmen supports his previous contention that the Island's retail demand cannot realistically support the acreage in the city that is currently zoned for commercial use.

"I think we all had a sense of that before the survey began," the consultant from the Illinois-based firm Barton-Aschman Associates said about the apparent excess of commercial property on the Island. "Now we can back that up."

While none of the survey respondents indicated definite plans to close up shop on the Island, the survey results showed nine businesses plan to move off Sanibel within the next five years.

Twenty businesses indicated plans to expand their facilities by an average of 860 square feet by the end of 1982, according to the survey summary.

The Island's current commercially zoned property totals approximately 500,000 square feet.

Nearly 75 percent of the respondents to the business survey reported the businesses are owned by Sanibel residents, and one-third of the respondents indicated their business was not their household's primary source of income.

MacDonald said the statistics about primary source of income were lower than would be expected in most commercial areas or cities. He added the results confirmed that at least some Sanibel businesses are maintained as hobbies rather than as vocations.

Owners and managers of retail businesses who responded to the four-page survey attributed the bulk of their sales to tourists and seasonal residents. The year-round population accounts for approximately 25 percent of total demand; day visitors approximately 8 percent; and employees for the rest, according to the survey.

Based on the survey, the largest amount of retail business takes place during February, March and April. March boasts the highest volume with 17 percent of the total annual volume. February and April account for 13 percent each.

The year's slowest months for retailers are September and October, with the summer months close behind. December and January each account for 9 to 10 percent of the total annual sales.

Approximately 56 percent of all retail businesses reported increases in both volume and profitability over the past year. Another 25 percent indicated an increase in volume with a decrease in profitability; 14 percent indicated both volume and profitability were down.

In general, the survey continued, the sales performance of Sanibel retail stores in 1980 was comparable to or better than median sales volumes across the country.

Sales in Island grocery, drug, home furnishings and gift stores exceeded median sales levels in the country by 50 percent or more. This suggests that some businesses in selected retail categories may be benefiting from limited competition, the survey concluded.

MacDonald stressed that the survey findings should be viewed in terms of qualitative judgements rather than statistically reliable facts because of the "disappointing" response rate to the survey.

Only 94 of the Islands more than 250 businesses completed the survey, he said. "It wasn't a very good response rate," he said, adding that a survey was mailed to every retail, office and miscellaneous commercial business on Sanibel.

City officials hear Periwinkle Way options

By Cindy Chalmers

Commercial development along Periwinkle Way held the attention of the Sanibel City Council and Planning Commission for more than four hours last week.

The council and commission met in a joint session last Tuesday with consultant Scott MacDonald, who is supervising a $33,000 study of the Island's future commercial needs by the Illinois-based firm Barton-Aschman Associates.

MacDonald began his presentation by asking the councilmen and commissioners to rank in order whether their concerns are mainly about the location, amount or appearance of the Island's commercial development.

After a lengthy debate, MacDonald concluded that Sanibel officials are more concerned with the location of commercial development and would rather see business concentrated in the Palm Ridge Road area than along Periwinkle Way.

He then outlined eight basic options the city officials have in their effort to control commercial development along Periwinkle Way:

1. Rezone what is now commercial property for low-density residential use;
2. Rely on the current Rate of Growth Ordinance to guide development;
3. Transfer development rights from Periwinkle Way properties to other locations on the Island;
4. Improve and create streets to provide higher density residential development immediately off Periwinkle Way;
5. Exclude retail stores from Periwinkle Way but allow offices and certain service businesses;
6. Increase setback requirements so development would be farther off the main thoroughfare;
7. Do nothing and allow the free market system to take care of itself;
8. Buy all the property along Periwinkle

Way (at an estimated price of $7-8 million).

MacDonald listed the specific options at the council's request after Councilman Fred Valtin objected to MacDonald's format for the meeting.

Valtin said the council "could have (ranked its concerns for location, amount or appearance of commercial development) ourselves."

"You are asking us for decisions which you are going to turn around and give back to us as your recommendations," Valtin said. "I would like to make our decisions based on options you have given us," he added. "You lead us through, then we decide."

MacDonald explained that he sought the city officials' basic policy opinions as a guide for the direction his presentation would take. After ascertaining that Palm Ridge Road is the preferred area for com-

Criticizing News-Press criticism

To the Editor
THE ISLANDER

Apparently there was no more slime to dig up about Bing Crosby; no more news about gun control and abolition, drug control and abolition; no more news about the support of President Reagan, or the lack of results from Tallahassee; no more news about lack of traffic control on 41; about the white elephant airport; about the unnecessary millions to be spent on Sunshine Skyway bridge (another white elephant) soon to be by-passed by I-75; about the disaster soon to happen on County Road 869; about the men at Edison College who stopped 869 for 10 years and who have not reported their financial status as legally required; etc., etc., etc.

So Fort Myers News-Press decided to take another pot-shot at Sanibel in their paper on June 26 when they have not even apologized for their lies about Sanibel water of a week or two ago.

I suggest Sanibel remove all News-Press paper stands as trash, public nuisances or traffic hazards. Perhaps if some of the Islanders cancelled their subscriptions and advertising —

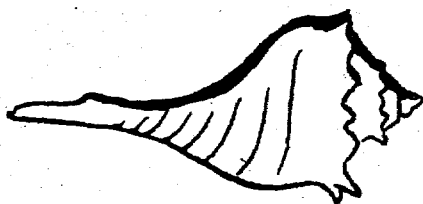

This type of yellow journalism went out many, many years ago.

I suggest we buy the causeway and raise the tolls or tear it down, and that owner Neuhardt fire those responsible for this unwarranted attack.

Maybe we should all go and picnic on Mr. Pyle's lawn. It sure is not Sanibel's fault that the beaches disappear. What, if anything is Lee County doing about all the development? Read their paper and see!

I suppose the editorials are par for the course — the paper seldom has anything good to say about anything in any of its columns anyway.

Urging opposition to proposed City Hall site

A copy of the following letter was given to The Islander for publication:

Mr. Urban Palmer
Mr. George Christensen
Dear Urban and George:

When you were offered a petition expressing concern with the proposed location of the City Hall Complex, you both refused to sign. I recognize that this was a personal decision, not that of the president and vice president of the Committee of Neighborhood Associations. However, your personal feelings will certainly be reflected in your actions of officers of CONA. Therefore, I urge that you reconsider.

The proposed City Hall site is a tract of land on which the permitted use is only single-family dwellings and duplexes. This means that the CLUP protection of our neighborhood integrity is being seriously violated.

A residential permitted use area is being changed to a use which certainly must be considered commercial. We all do business with City Hall. The CLUP identifies such facilities as banks, medical offices, dental offices and schools as commercial uses. It is certain that the business transacted at City Hall falls in that category.

This change in permitted use is a major threat to the CLUP because it subverts a major principle on which our entire land-use protection is based.

It will certainly open the door to many other requests for changes in permitted use. The next request for a change from residential to commercial will certainly be difficult to deny because if the city of Sanibel can make a change for its convenience, then every court in the country will rule that other changes are equally allowable.

I urged that you reconsider. If you do, I believe you will agree that the major principles of the CLUP must be defended at all costs. I hope you will appear at the Council meeting at 10:30 a.m. on July 7 to make your objections known. The next change from residential to commercial may be in the back yard of any one of us.

Meridian Drive-Periwinkle Place parking lot denied

Mariner Property Management Inc. went home empty handed again last week after the Planning Commission raised numerous objections to Mariner's attempt to gain approval to develop a parking lot within the Meridian Drive roadway easement to serve Periwinkle Place shopping center.

Mariner is also requesting relief from the commercial moratorium to permit the above-mentioned development.

The commission continued the hearings to a later date.

Opposition to Mariner's proposal included concerns over emergency service vehicle access, refuse area placement away from the 23 abutting homes and vegetation loss.

The fact that Mariner wants to put a parking lot in a non-exclusive right-of-way that serves as the only access point for the neighborhood behind Periwinkle Place also disturbed commissioners.

"We haven't allowed anybody else to put parking in the right-of-way," Commissioner Don Manchester told Mariner's spokesman Robert White. "There's plenty of property to the east of you," Manchester added.

"I don't think it's planning. It's use of land a very illegal fashion. Tell them to get their public parking out of the right-of-way," he continued.

"I'll vote against the motion for the simple reason that I feel the application has been in twice and they're trying to do something we should not encourage," Manchester said.

"I think it should be denied," he added. "And I think it's about time we started denying planning ideas that are based on something we really don't want."

Despite Manchester's adamant concerns, other commission members moved for a continuance "in light of improving the proposal."

Mariner was requested to obtain verification from the Sanibel Fire Department that there is sufficient room for emergency vehicles to get in and out of the easement. They were also asked to poll residents of the subdivision at the rear of Periwinkle Place to determine their feelings on the plan.

Other conditions required of Mariner before the commission would recommend approval include relocating the dumpsters, providing a vegetation buffer and maintaining the Periwinkle Partners subdivision easement roadway.

Specific amendment approved for home

The Planning Commission last week recommended the approval of a specific amendment permitting Floyd Benny to build a home in Sanibel Estates on a lot that Benny previously held in common ownership with an adjoining developed single-family lot.

The only problem commissioners faced with their decision was the fact that prior to April 21, 1981 Benny sold the developed lot where he had lived for several years.

"Otherwise he meets all of the requirements of the contiguous lot ordinance," Planning Director Bruce Rogers told the commission.

The sale of the lot and house before April 21 conflicts with the Comprehensive Land Use Plan general amendment requiring the same person to hold contiguous property from July 8, 1976 until April 21, 1981 before building on the second lot.

Benny filled the intent of the amendment, but extenuating circumstances forced him to sell the developed lot before the April 21, 1981 cut-off date while he retained ownership of the other lot, Rogers explained.

Rogers said Benny attended all of the hearings on the general amendment realizing that his lot may be in conflict. Benny's request parallels a request made by Robert Leonard and approved earlier by the commission.

The commission recommended that Benny be granted approval to build a home on the second lot. "It will enhance and preserve the present advantages and encourage appropriate use of the land," Commissioner Don Manchester concluded.

Elevation,
not vegetation,
determines eco zones

The key in determining ecological zone designations on the Island is elevation and not vegetation, the Planning Commission maintained last week.

Despite the upland wetlands vegetation covering a large portion of an undeveloped parcel in Woodring's Point, the commission tentatively agreed that the parcel should remain lowland wetlands.

A final decision on the reclassification request from Lois Klehm was continued to July 27.

Klehm's attorney, Robert Vartdal, appeared before the commission seeking a specific amendment to change the ecological zoning of his client's 31,000 square-foot parcel from lowland wetlands to upland wetlands to permit development of two homesites.

Vartdal insisted that the vegetation was upland wetlands vegetation and that a good portion of the property is three feet above sea level - the criterion for upland wetlands zoning.

Vartdal pleaded further that the commission previously approved a similar ecological zone designation change for Scott Hamilton without hesitation.

"I feel I'm being discriminated against" Vartdal told the commission.

The city's planning staff recommended denial of Vartdal's request, however, based on Comprehensive Land Use Plan guidelines for determining ecological zones.

CLUP criterion for an upland wetlands zone is based on elevation "independent from vegetation," planners argued.

While Vartdal was seeking a reclassification of Klehm's property, his other concern was whether two homesites could be built on the lot.

"There is no question that two units could be built on that parcel. You've met that objective," Planning Director Bruce Rogers told Vartdal.

Rogers added that the real question was what size homes would be permitted under the present classification as opposed to the size of the homes permitted if the land were rezoned.

Under the present lowland wetlands designation, 20 percent of the vegetation can be cleared and 10 percent of the parcel can be covered by an impermeable surface.

If the property were reclassified to upland wetlands, 30 percent of the vegetation could be cleared and 20 percent of the parcel covered with an impermeable surface.

"Our conclusion was that in fact a portion of the property is upland wetlands. But an equal portion of this particular lot is lowland wetlands. And then another third of the lot is the bay beach ecological zone," Rogers said.

"It has fine upland vegetation, I agree, probably the most mature on the Island," Planning Commission Chairman Ann Winterbotham said, jesting, "You couldn't get anybody to turn it into a botanical preserve, could you?"

Some commissioners who had previously viewed the site agreed that much of the vegetation was indicative of mature upland wetlands vegetation.

The Planning Commission, however, was not willing to recommend reclassification of the Woodring's Point parcel because more than 50 percent of the property is below three feet in elevation even though upland wetlands vegetation is prevalent. Also the commission did not know where the development plans would place the homes on the property.

The commission did agree, however, to continue the request until all commissioners could view the site and review the similarities, if any, to Hamilton's case.

Commissioners also agreed that Klehm should request relief from the environmental performance standard once the development plans are complete rather than try to have the ecological zone changed.

"It could be taken care of appropriately by the development process rather than by an amendment," Commissioner Arthur Wycoff said, adding that the development process is the "logical approach" for Klehm to take.

Comprehensive Land Use Plan five-year review continues

The five-year review of the Comprehensive Land Use Plan continued last week as the Planning Commission combed through several sections of the plan to add, delete and clarify areas they felt needed cleaning up.

A review subcommittee consisting of Don Manchester, Twink Underhill, Milena Eskew and Betty Robinson was assigned to the areas of community design, clustering of residential homes, residential yard requirements and storm drainage.

The subcommittee reported that it felt the community design section "should become a stronger part of our criteria in making some of our decisions in other sections of the land use plan where we get into the rules and regulations."

The subcommittee incorporated a bicycle path system heading under community design. Committee members basically said major arterial and collector roads should have bike paths at least six feet wide connecting residential areas to commercial section of the Island whenever possible.

They also clarified that the city should acquire sufficient right-of-way to permit a buffer of at least 10 feet below the edge of the road. Neighborhood roads shall be used for bike travel, and automobile speeds shall be regulated in all neighborhood areas to maintain safety.

The committee recommended changing the term "beach access path" to "beach access walkover," meaning elevated and built of wood to protect beach vegetation in accordance with state statutes.

The sign systems section remained virtually the same until the last paragraph. In order to avoid obstruction of evacuation routes, free standing signs must be set back from the right-of-way by a distance of two feet. The sign system previously stipulated this regulation by height.

Under the utilities section of the plan,

Three lots combine to make two

"I think it's an excellent idea and I wish more people would do it," Planning Commission Chairman Ann Winterbotham said last week about W.C. Reynolds' and John Purdy's request to combine three Gulf Pines subdivision lots into two lots in order to bring the lots into conformance with residential density requirements.

Within minutes the commission recommended approval of the applicants plans to cut "into two halves" a center lot adjoining both of their properties.

subcommittee stated that the design of the utility systems should consider ecological implications and minimize detrimental effects.

In an aim toward underground utilities, the subcommittee added that overhead poles can become a hazard in a hurricane prone area and are not to be employed without the city's approval.

Under street lighting, the subcommittee included that the power company expressed a willingness to innovative design and is to obtain city approval.

The committee added that as future development occurs which involves the subdivision of land, attention shall be given to the number of resident streets instead of the use of resident streets.

Vegetation buffers and the preservation of native vegetation in the right-of-way are essential, the committee concurred.

The street and roadway section was also amended to include Causeway Road, Palm Ridge Road, Tarpon Bay Road and Lindgren Boulevard in the city's major arterial roads.

Arterials consist of a two-lane highway, and 100 feet of right-of-way should be obtained along these major roads. The east-west connector, a secondary road, will connect East and Middle Gulf Drives and enhance the Island's arterial network.

A collector road is a secondary two-lane road that feeds into the arterial roads. Sixty feet of right-of-way should be obtained along them.

Secondary and minor roads distribute traffic in low density residential areas. Fifty feet of right of way should be obtained along these roads. These additions were added to obtain the rights-of-way.

Under the clustering of residential development section, a review subcommittee consisting of Garth Good, Earl Fisher, Betty Robinson and Don Manchester added that the project must be in harmony with the surrounding neighborhood whether single-family detached, zero-lot line duplex, or multi-family residential.

The storm drainage section received mostly verbiage and heading changes although Rolland McMurphy and Phil Johnson, subcommittee members, did add a new section on rights-of-way.

Under plans for storm drainage the following regulations were added: "Filling of existing swales will not be permitted unless the existing street or road is at least two feet above the adjacent land."

"Property owners as well as the city of Sanibel will periodically remove debris, sand, top soil, vegetation and any other materials from the bottom of the swales on their property to maintain proper depth and increase percolation."

"A city-appointed committee should participate and advise in the consideration of storm drainage management programs to keep our streets and roads open after heavy summer rains and the storms accompanying a hurricane."

Residents circulate petition opposing council choice for new City Hall complex

By Cindy Chalmers

Organized opposition to the city's Casa Ybel Road choice for the new City Hall complex surfaced last week in the form of a petition signed by 62 residents of the Sanibel Highlands subdivision adjacent to the site.

Councilman Porter Goss received the petition from the property owners and presented it to his fellow council members last Tuesday afternoon.

"They say there will be more signatures coming," Goss said. "There seems to be a very considerable amount of feeling on this in the community," he added. "I want the council to be aware of that."

The council agreed to schedule a public hearing on the site selection at today's regular council meeting immediately following City Manager Bernie Murphy's report on the site at 10 a.m.

Murphy is scheduled to request authorization to execute an agreement to purchase the parcel along Case Ybel Road for $125,000.

The 8-acre site was chosen from 11 properties scrutinized by the three-man City Hall Site Selection Committee as possible sites for the city's new government complex. The council unanimously endorsed the committee's choice on June 23.

The petition presented to the council last week states:

"We the undersigned vehemently object to the city council's proposal to erect city hall on Case Ybel Road adjacent to Sanibel Highlands. We feel that this decision is unilateral, arbitrary and does not reflect the majority of the community affected."

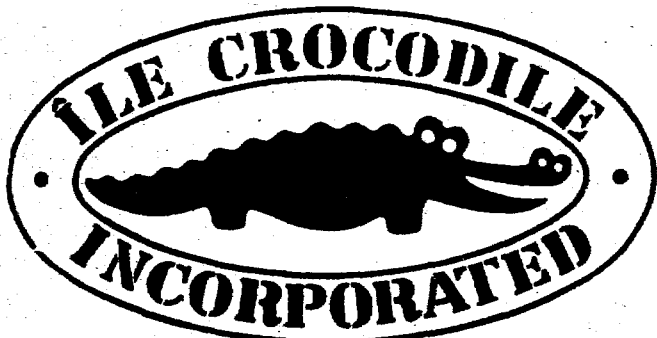

"If this decision is not rescinded, we are prepared to take legal action to prevent this infringement on our peace, quiet and privacy that we now enjoy."

Island entrepreneurs offer 'midnight special' ferry

By Cindy Chalmers

Last week's repairs on the drawbridge and Causeway inconvenienced many Islanders and tourists when the Causeway closed to all traffic from midnight to 6 a.m. Sunday through Wednesday.

But for Matt Asen and Larry Thompson, the victims of poor timing became customers Asen and Thompson aimed to please.

Following a tradition started last year under the same circumstances, the two enterprising Islanders operated a "Midnight-Moonlight Cruise" ferry service between the mainland and the Sanibel Marina.

Thompson, who by day is a real estate associate with Executive Services, Inc., served as captain and Asen, who manages The Timbers restaurant, was the crew on the 19-foot Bowrider that ferried as many as six people at a time.

More than 40 landlocked tourists took advantage of the ferry service on Sunday, June 28, the first night the Causeway closed.

That was also the night electricity on the Island was out for more than three hours, and Asen said many of the first night's customers were unsuspecting tourists who went off the Island for a hot meal served in air conditioned comfort.

Many of the tourists returned to the Island shortly after midnight only to find barricades and a firm "Sorry, folks," from country work crews.

Asen and Thompson saved the night, however, when they cruised ashore and announced the first run of the midnight special.

"There were 25 people waiting in line when we first got there," Asen said. "When it was all over, most of them said it was the best cruise they had ever had."

The midnight special didn't end at the marina, however. Thompson's wife, Beverly, Terry Bishop and Debbie Dutton waited in cars at the marina to drive ferry passengers to their final destinations.

The fee for the package deal was nominal - "Whatever they could give," Thompson explained, adding that donations ranged from $3 to $20. The entire kitty Thompson

Larry Thompson, left, and Matt Asen, right, made the best of an inconvenient situation last week when the Causeway was closed for repairs. (Photo by Scott Ray)

Osprey nest on power lines causes outage

By Cindy Chalmers

A nest of unfortunate ospreys lost their home last week at the same time Sanibel and Captiva Islands regained power.

The osprey nest took the blame for a power outage Sunday night, June 28, that left the Islands without electricity for nearly four hours.

Diane Christensen, community relations and communications manager for the Lee County Electric Cooperative, said the ospreys built their nest directly on a live power line over a canal in Cape Coral.

When the nest became too heavy, it caused the line to sag and come into contact with a neutral line. When that contact was made, Christensen explained, the power went out.

The 200-foot wide canal in Cape Coral parallels the co-op's major transmission line that serves Pine Island, Sanibel and Captiva Islands, Christensen said.

Because the nest was over the water on such a wide canal, co-op crews could only reach the nest by boat and even then could not save the nest, Christensen said.

"We had no choice other than to knock down the nest," she said, adding that a helicopter from the Lee County Sheriff Department hovered overhead with a search light while co-op crews looked for the culprit nest. "It was quite a production."

Osprey are infamous for nesting on power and telephone poles, and the co-op has taken steps to provide alternate nesting sites for the birds for the past four years.

The co-op provides old power poles on which platforms are placed for the heavy, wide nests characteristic of the birds.

On the water

By Captain Mike Fuery

Summer trout get all but ignored. Now is when the glamour fish get the attention, but if you aren't one of the glory fishermen, you might as well try for our speckled sea trout.

This week, I will share what I know about this type of fishing and, adding what you know, maybe we can come home with a string full.

Tarpon! Snook! Tarpon and more snook! That's the pattern I see day to day around the marinas. This is the best season of the year to hook into a great big silver tarpon or an equally silver snook.

There's nothing better when you get back to the dock than to have your picture taken next to a "sea monster."

But what about us little guys who don't want to wait an hour for a strike? There is always the sea trout. Well, not always, but often enough so he becomes a welcomed friend when he comes aboard.

I like trout fishing myself. There is something about these fish that is so beautiful in color that I often wonder why they are so well defined. Underwater, they must show up with those spots and silver-blue hues, and I am sure they are easy targets of dolphins, sharks and snook.

So, you want to know where to find them, what to use and anything else that will help you catch one, right?

I'm no artful fly caster, but if you are a fresh water fly fisherman, then you are in the right season to try some light tackle trout fishing.

Same goes if you are a light or ultra-light spin-fisherman or a caster of bait rigs. This is the time for trying some of those fishing techniques. There is one thing you might remember, however -- you will probably do best by wading for your fish.

This means fishing at dawn or sunset, whichever you would like. In the middle of a hot afternoon, you are going to be hard-pressed to find these fish. The reason, so I'm told, is that they are light sensitive and are reluctant to bite when the sun is right overhead.

So your best method is wading, and with the water temperatures in the 85 degree range, it doesn't matter much if you are in the water or not, it's still going to feel the same -- great!

One of the best spots? No doubt, the Causeway. There are several hundred yards of grass flats on either side of the Causeway, and I would suggest working each side until you make contact with Ole Mister Trout.

If these fish weren't so darn good eating, I probably wouldn't even mention them, but the meat is nearly clear and very mild.

There never should be any "fishy" taste to them. If there is, it's your fault for not icing them down or cleaning them fast enough.

If you don't have to show off the fish, clean them as you catch them and put the fillets on ice. Don't let the fillets touch the ice.

The prime bait is shrimp, but at this time of the year it's a difficult bait to find. I would guess your choice might be top water lures or jigs. Most any of our Island bait shops will direct you to what seems to be working the best at any given time.

Yes, I know bait shops could sell an unsuspecting tourist anything they could dream up, but you are going to find things aren't like that here yet. If they recommend a certain lure, you can bet they know what they are talking about.

Have fun on the water this week, and perhaps one day you will understand that being there is just as important as catching a mess of fish.

Subtract two minutes for every low tide. For Captiva Island Gulf side, subtract 30 minutes for each high tide, and subtract hour and 16 minutes for each low tide. Shelling Tips

By Captain Mike Fuery

We are well into our summer pattern of shelling, and the time of the year affects the way you want to look for shells as you walk the beaches of Sanibel and Captiva Islands.

There aren't really great differences in the types of shells you will find here during the winter months as compared with now, but there is a difference in where you are likely to find them.

Lots of visitors feel that winter shelling complete with huge waves, cold, strong winds and cloudy skies make for the best shelling conditions.

And it is certainly true that the right situation, such as a strong northeasterly wind at dawn and low tide, will allow a sheller to pick up good specimens in the winter. That's fine if you like shelling in a heavy coat with half-frozen feet and getting a sand-blasted face.

Not for me — I'll take a warm summer morning anytime. But you have to remember that you need to look in a different place now than you looked six months ago.

First, in summer shelling you aren't going to see the wave action of the winter months when cold fronts parade down the coast.

Summer rain squalls will stir things up for a few hours or perhaps longer, but there won't be the pounding breakers all white and cold like in January.

The first result of less wave action is that there won't be as many shells high on the beach. So if you've been walking the high water shell line, you probably aren't finding much because of the lack of wave action.

The next line of shells you will find is the middle set left by the receding high water during the normal cycle of tides. If you have a high tide at 2 a.m., then by dawn when you get to the beach you should see what the dropping tide has left for you.

The third line of shells will be just at that slight depression along the beach. On a day when the winds are calm and the waters clear, you will see this one-foot drop at the edge of the beach. Most likely, this is where the best summer shells will be.

Without wave action, the shells stay in the water along the beach, and the largest difference between winter and summer shelling is you have to get out there and wade. That's not so bad now that the water temperature is pushing 90 degrees.

So if you have been wandering the beaches and coming back with little to show for your time, better get out in the water and see what you come upon.

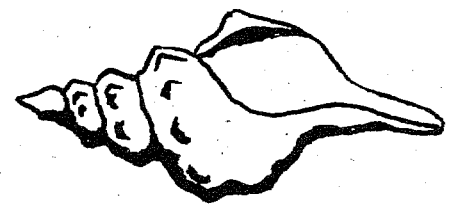

Walking the waters is slower and takes patience. Best to keep well covered with a shirt and sun blocking lotion and wear a pair of sun glasses to aid in your search. You've probably got all that anyway, but unless you want a bad burn, keep protected.

As for the shells to look for, I suggest keeping an eye out for lettered olives, small whelks, perhaps a nutmeg and even a sunray venus or two.

Shelling is like fishing, you never really know what's going to turn up until you get out and take your chances.

mercial development, he set forth the what-do-with-Periwinkle-Way options.

Some of the choices, particularly the proposal to purchase all the property along Periwinkle Way, are fair questions to put before Sanibel taxpayers in a referendum, Councilman Porter Goss said.

Councilman Francis Bailey, however, dismissed the purchase option as "out of the question."

The "do nothing" proposal was relatively unpopular among the city officials compared with the other options MacDonald set forth.

"My feeling is that we cannot just drop the discussion," Mayor Duane White said. "We have a (commercial) moratorium, and it is serious. Something must be done."

Although he did not object to further examination of any of the alternatives, Planning Commissioner Don Manchester said he was inclined to let the free marketplace take care of commercial development on the Island.

"I don't think we are in any serious position," Manchester said. "If we curtail the supply (of commercial property), then we will only drive up rents and prices even more than we already have."

MacDonald maintained that the city has already ruled out the free marketplace in the truest sense with its present regulations.

"If you really had a free marketplace on Sanibel, then you would see strip shopping centers with high visibility and neon signs everywhere," MacDonald said. "That is what the free market system delivers."

The councilmen and commissioners would rule out none of the eight options and agreed that each of the choices warrants further attention.

"I don't think any one approach stands out as the obvious way to proceed," Goss said. "I think it is obvious that, somehow, we need to provide incentives for commercial development in the Palm Ridge Road area and disincentives for more development along Periwinkle."

MacDonald will meet with the council and commission in another joint session July 23 at 9 a.m. to present the final report and recommendations from his study.

Pat Lovetro discovered, among many things, a healthy cabbage palm in the underbrush around the huge casuarina pine tree at last week's native plant dig.

Plant giveaway proves Islanders 'dig' native vegetation

By Ellen Mulligan

The mini-plant giveaway last Wednesday on Periwinkle Way at Ferry Road proved that the early bird catches the wild olive, gumbo limbo, seagrape, or joewood.

The plant dig was held where a huge pine tree will be removed in order to straighten the S curve. It started at 8 a.m. and was all but over by 9 a.m..

A crowd of green-thumbed Islanders armed with shovels and bags to sought their favorite native vegetation.

With the help of the Sanibel Vegetation Committee and city employees, it didn't take long for the area to be cleared.

The native vegetation quickly camouflaged the cars of their newly-adopted parents who took the trees home to safer ground.

At 9:15 a.m. Dr. William Webb, chairman of the Vegetation Committee, glanced at his watch, viewed the cleared site and exclaimed, "This has to be the most successful plant dig yet!"

HEART HEALTH

The human heart needs to do some hard work each day - at least during youth and the prime of life - to keep it strong and healthy. We must huff and puff occasionally for good health. However, don't risk heavy exercise if not used to it, without a doctor's examination. Avoid labor saving devices - walk instead of ride - climb stairs - get regular exercise. Your heart and health will be better for it.

Island softball

It is easy to think that the current summer softball league is the only softball that Island residents are involved with. But three Sanibel residents, Roger Tabor, Curtis Nave and Chuck Rider, and former Sanibel resident Andy Kern are playing on a top Fort Myers team sponsored by K&T Sports Merchants.

The K&T team finished in first place ahead of 11 other teams in Fort Myers' Commercial League. The team has also won a sub-district tournament involving teams from Lee, Charlotte, Collier and Hendy counties to qualify for the district championship tournament that includes teams from Naples to Lakeland.

WE ARE OPEN SEVEN DAYS A WEEK FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE

Casa Ybel tennis women place third in regionals, first in fun

By Maggie Greenberg

On the evening of June 24, a modest, two-car caravan slipped across the causeway with little pomp — but with considerable pride.

The two unheralded cars bore seven Sanibel women, our tennis racquets, assorted ice buckets and enough merchandise from Saint Armand's Square to give our respective husbands instant cardiac arrest.

Sanibel's "A" team had returned from several days of grueling competition in the U.S.T.A. Florida Regionals at the Longboat Key Club, where more than 100 amateur players contended for the right to advance to the Florida championships at Sawgrass in July.

Having won a series of play-off matches against other "A" teams in May, the Casa Ybel team represented District 13 at the regionals in Longboat Key. District 13 includes Lee, Collier, Charlotte, Glades and Hendry counties.

All the teams competing at the regionals had won similar play-offs and also represented large districts.

During the course of our first afternoon, we had a chance to size up our "4.5" opponents while we all practiced on the Longboat Key Club's clay courts and enjoyed liquid sponsorship of Michelob Light.

We never really knew what a 4.5 player was, but we soon suspected that we were not whatever a 4.5 player is. After all, on a scale of one to seven, Chris Evert Lloyd is a seven.

These women were awesome! Several teams came from large, metropolitan areas like Orlando, Saint Petersburg and Sarasota.

One club from Sarasota could field 60 pairs of women at the "A" level; in season, Casa Ybel can barely muster the four pairs of women required for league matches.

Apart from this intimidating plethora of intimidating talent, we learned that a number of these women were ranked, working on rankings, and veterans of sanction tournaments.

How did tiny Casa Ybel manage to place third in the regionals — behind Orlando, first, and Sarasota, second — and ahead of Saint Petersburg, which did not place at all?

Part of the explanation lies buried in the oral archives of the Casa Ybel team. But, since Monday morning verbal diarrhea is characteristic of our team, some hints may leak out.

There are perhaps two main reasons for the success of the Casa Ybel team. Certainly one was a determination to survive all the matches, no matter how ghastly the schedule was — and it never failed to be utterly ghastly, with matches scheduled at high noon, 2:30 and 4:30 p.m.

Survival in a tennis match often has surprisingly little to do with hitting an optic yellow ball over the net.

The varieties of psychological stress are infinite, and it was in this connection that the Island team really proved its tenacity — its will to survive.

Louanne Parker played a tough singles match against an authentic Amazon who would have graced the prow of any Viking ship.

While "High Pockets" emerged victorious from that encounter, Louanne must have worn her to a frazzle, for she lost to her next competitor — who must have had even higher pockets. But the victor over "High Pockets" may have decided she could not face Louanne's steady groundstrokes in that muggy, buggy heat, and she defaulted to Louanne.

Anne Costanzo, our other singles player, must also have been intimidating. One of her opponents constantly referred to her great age (never revealed), and actually refused to warm up with Anne prior to their match — fearing an incipient attack of arthritis?

Such antics gained Anne's sympathy and may have cost her that match. However, another of Anne's opponents just couldn't face her and defaulted.

Our three doubles teams were just as tenacious, although seemingly less intimidating than our singles players since no one defaulted to us.

Each of the doubles teams earned a particular distinction. Judy Meyers and Pat Thompson played against some exceedingly tough teams, but they always managed to complete their matches with dispatch and were thus able to watch the rest of us and cheer us on. Judy Meyers won the further distinction of outgrunting one of her opponents.

If Meyers-Thompson win a prize for brevity, then June Muench and Pam Pfahler certainly deserve one for longevity. These two invariably kept their opponents on the courts longer than anyone else, often forcing them into tiebreakers. At one point, the Club had to turn on the lights for night play so June and Pam could finish one of their marathon cliffhangers.

Maggie Greenberg and Marge Peck, known as "The Senility Sisters," (something to do with their age) managed to frustrate their opponents — probably by looking too old to pose any threat to such teams as the "Hefty Heifers" (Mack trucks with racquets).

Senescence notwithstanding, Maggie and Marge won more sets from their opponents than anyone else on the team.

As indicated earlier, there were two reasons for the success of the Casa Ybel team. One was the determination to survive. The other was an equally strong determination to have one whale of a good time — before as well as after the matches.

The shopkeepers at Saint Armand's must have been staggered by the sudden influx of eager customers; the waitresses at lunch must have groaned under the weight of endless platters for eight ravenous women. ("Let's all order a different quiche and we can all share!")

At night, the walls and ceilings of our hotel room must have trembled when, following three bottles of champagne and other libations, our senior teammate burst forth into a lusty rendition of "Walla Walla Bang Bang!" She was, one must add, accompanied by our most "Perfect" teammate, who banged on the ceiling.

The exhausted Orlando team, directly overhead, thought that some demented creature was working on the plumbing. Oh well, they won — but we certainly had more fun!

P.S. Notice to Casa Ybel husbands: Once I-75 is completed, the girls think day trips to Saint Armand's (you know, a little lunch and a bit of shopping) will be quite feasible.

Police Beat

All information in the following reports was taken directly from Sanibel Police Department records.

Sanibel Police issued a warrant last Wednesday for the arrest of a Chicago man charged with grand theft on Sanibel.

Police Sgt. Ray Rhodes said Johnnie Johnson, last known address Lindgren Boulevard, allegedly diverted more than $14,000 in checks from a Sanibel resident for Johnson's personal use.

The checks were payment for building supplies and permits for a house Johnson was helping the Island resident construct.

Johnson, who claimed to be a real estate developer from Chicago, was on the Island from January through May, Rhodes said.

A Ramada Inn employee reported the theft of her car from the motel parking lot Saturday morning, June 27.

Lou Ann Sherman of Fort Myers told police she found the car ¼ mile away from the motel on Donax Street shortly after 1 a.m.

Sherman told police the car had been ransacked and a beach bag, clothes and prescription glass valued at $100 taken from the car, which had been left unlocked with the keys in plain sight on the transmission hump.

A Miami resident staying at the Sundial resort reported his car was broken into sometime between dusk on Friday, June 26 and 9 a.m. Saturday, June 27.

Clyde Owens told police his car was locked and parked in the resort parking lot on Middle Gulf Drive when the break-in occurred. He said approximately $7 in change was missing from the car.

An Ohio visitor reported $160 in cassette tapes, purse and prescription glasses were stolen from his car in the Lighthouse Gulf side parking lot Saturday afternoon, June 27.

A Coral Gables resident staying at the Sundial resort reported the theft of cash from his unit Saturday night, June 27.

Stephan Sadel told police $107 was taken from a purse and a dresser between 2 and 4 p.m. when he was on the beach. He discovered the money was missing when he and his companion went to dinner Saturday evening.

Binoculars and bird books valued at $130 were taken from a car parked at the Sundial resort Saturday night, June 27.

Emilie McAlevy told police the theft occurred sometime between 9 p.m. Friday, June 26 and 9 a.m. Saturday, June 27. Police reported a sharp object was used to cut the molding around the car window to gain entry.

Sanibel Police contacted U.S. Coast Guard officials Sunday evening, June 28 after receiving reports of a boat in distress ½ mile off Turners Beach.

Coast Guard officials said they contacted a commercial service to tow the boat to Punta Rassa after the Lake Placid man on board the disabled boat would not cooperate with Coast Guard officials.

Causeway Manager Fred Lescher reported vandalism of a toll booth truck and causeway lights Monday, June 29. Lescher said the truck windshield and headlights and the yellow flashing lights on the Sanibel side of the Causeway were damaged by a pellet gun.

A Clinton, Tenn. man apparently fell asleep on a raft off Turners Beach last Tuesday, June 30 and was brought safely to shore by a private boater.

Officials from the Fort Myers Police Department told Sanibel Police an unknown man had reported the person adrift on the raft at 5:16 p.m.

Two Fort Myers residents reported a man exposed himself to them at the Tarpon Bay Road beach access area Wednesday, July 1.

The two women told police a very heavy set, white male with shoulder-length blond hair exposed himself Wednesday afternoon and drove away in a turquoise pick-up truck. Police were on the lookout for the truck, which is registered to a Crystal River, FL resident.

Police discovered bullet holes in windows of three Sanibel businesses Thursday morning, July 2.

Officers on regular patrol discovered the front window shot out at the Nimble Thimble, 2242 Periwinkle Way, at 2:27 a.m. Thursday. At 2:52 a.m. police found the front door glass shot out at Interval Travel Agency, Inc., 1618 Periwinkle Way.

Then at 3:07 a.m. police discovered a bullet hole in the front window of the Three Crafty Ladies shop on Periwinkle Way.

Are you getting full return from your rental property?

Do you know exactly what you're getting for your money when you let someone handle the rental of your Sanibel or Captiva vacation rental property? Or are hidden fees draining away the profit from your real estate investment?

At Priscilla Murphy Island Accommodations we believe owners should know, and get, exactly what they are paying for. That's why our rental agreements explain what services we provide without charge, what ones we bill the owner for, and how much our fees are.

For example, our $20 per month service fee includes marketing. We provide free inspection of units, we make no key service charges and we do not add on to subcontract maintenance work. This maintenance work is billed at a flat $12.50 per hour. Cleaning charges are $30 for a one bedroom unit, $35 for two bedrooms and $50 for three bedrooms.

Our owners are paid promptly every week for rentals. You won't have to wait until the end of the month for your check.

Normally we take a 20% commission on rentals. If you generate the rental yourself and we collect the rent, that figure is reduced to 10%. If you rent the unit directly and collect the rent we charge you no commission.

If you aren't satisfied with the return on your rental property, call, write, or visit Island Accommodations. Our experts can make you smile again.

Vandals cut CableVision connections to four amplifier boxes on Sanibel-Captiva Road at approximately 1 a.m. Thursday, July 2.

Police said the vandals used a hatchet or hammer-type instrument to cut the cables, all of which were in the area west of Gulf Pines to Bowman's Beach Road. Police said they did have a suspect in the case.

David Thompson, 1254 Anhinga Lane, reported the theft of his bicycle sometime between 7 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 1.

Thompson told police he had left the 10-speed bicycle valued at $216 padlocked to a tree at the intersection of Causeway Road and Periwinkle Way.

Lee Almas, 1595 Bunting Circle, reported his wallet was taken from his car in the Beachcomber Motel sometime between 12:30 and 2:30 p.m. Thursday, July 2.

Almas told police the wallet and $20 in cash had been left on the front seat of the unlocked car.

Owners of two separate units at the Sundial resort reported the theft of all the towels and bed linens in the units Thursday, July 2.

Only the linens were missing from both units, and police found no signs of forced entry to either unit. The clothes dryer in one unit had been moved from the closet to the kitchen.

Ver-r-r-y uninteresting!

If you're keeping your extra cash around the house, it's not attracting any interest. Your money is just loafing! Bank of the Islands has a variety of savings plans that will put that money to work, no matter how much or how little you may have.

With just $5 you can open a savings account that will earn 5 1/4 per cent interest...and when you've saved up to $1,000, you can buy certificates of deposit that will earn an even better interest. Before you know it, you'll be buying $10,000 money market certificates that will push those interest rates into the teens. And, finally you'll reach that $100,000 stage where interest rates and terms become negotiable.

Of course, with certificates of deposit, federal law requires substantial penalties for early withdrawal and prohibits compounding of interest, but it's still better than letting your savings sit there in the cookie jar. Why not call us today for this week's rates?

Father Gerard Beauregard

Age: 67

Height: 5'8½"

Roots: Roxton Falls, Quebec

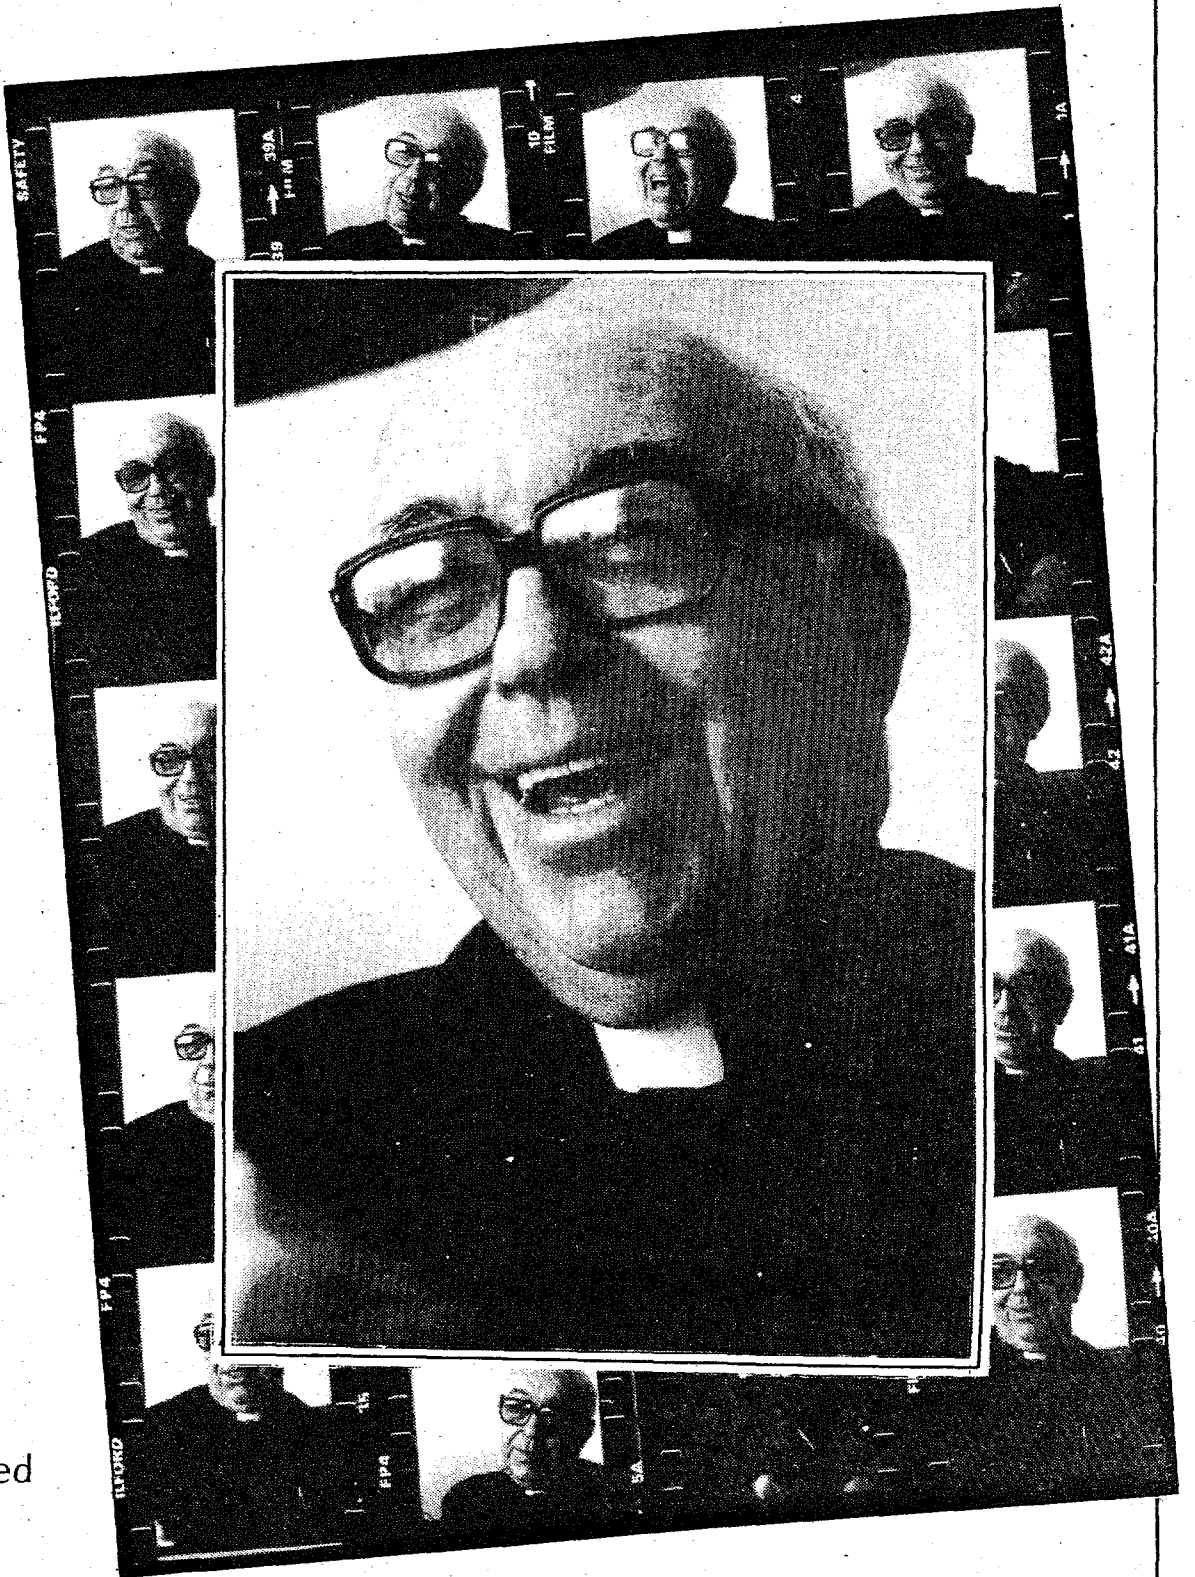

Pleasures: "When I was younger it was tennis -- I was delighted two years ago when the doctor told me I could play again after 15 years without touching my racquet."

Last Book Read: The Scripture according to St. Matthew

Mentor: "What better mentor could one have than Jesus Christ? He was both a man and He is God."

Wish: "I would prefer to hope than to wish. But if I must have a wish, it is that I can stay on Sanibel when I retire."

Words of Wisdom: "Each one of us has received a gift from God. It is our responsibility to be happy with our gifts and with what we are."

By Cindy Chalmers

The staid black and white clergyman's suit does not inhibit but rather complements Father Gerard Beauregard's delightful sense of humor as he relaxes in the parish house at Saint Isabel's Catholic Church.

"Think," he patiently explains to a Protestant reporter who has just asked if the Father's own father was a priest, too. "If my father were a Father, would I be here now?"

Beauregard sweeps his hands over his balding head, laughs lightly and graciously disregards the reporter's blunder. "I do have a brother in the priesthood," he says, perhaps in an effort to fade the reporter's blush.

Saint Isabel's has been the center of the French-Canadian priest's life on the Island since 1973, when the parish began in the small center section of the present church on Sanibel-Captiva Road.

"We only had folding chairs," Beauregard remembers fondly of the church's early days. "And I had to advise the parishioners to start their cars slowly when they left because otherwise they would be stuck in the sand."

Beauregard was more adept at maneuvering his car in heavy Canadian snow than in Florida sand.

Three serious heart attacks in 1965 forced Beauregard to retire from the priesthood and leave Montreal, where he had been ordained in 1940.

After the heart attacks, Beauregard spent two winters in Florida. In 1967 he moved to Fort Myers Beach and spent the next two years regaining his strength.

The disabling effects of the heart attacks discouraged Beauregard and made him realize the fragility of life. "I was so full of life one minute, then I lost so much in such a short time," he says. "And it took years to recuperate."

By 1969, however, the years of working 25 minutes and resting for the remainder of each day paid off, and Beauregard was able to conduct weekend Mass at the little Island church.

In addition to abandoning the restricted life of a convalescent in 1969, the Frenchman was forced to abandon his native language and teach himself English, the language of his new congregation.

Although a fine French accent still flavors Beauregard's conversation (i.e., SAN-ee-bel), he mastered the English language with little trouble.

"I had never had any occasion to deliver Mass in English or even speak very much English at all," he says. "I had no teacher other than myself."

"Even so," he adds almost apologetically, "I think it was perhaps more difficult for the others to understand me than it was for me to understand them."

The recent increase in foreign tourists to the Island affords Beauregard the opportunity to polish his French in between visits to his home in Quebec.

The church family that Beauregard had on the Island in 1969 was merely a mission of the Fort Myers Beach Ascension Church.

By 1973, however, the need for a parish on the Islands was recognized and Saint Isabel's was made. That year, Beauregard offered 14,200 communions to approximately 25 families.

This year, he says, he will offer more than 58,000 communions to more than 200 families at Saint Isabel's.

Beauregard says his return to spiritual work was a great consolation after the years during which his strength did not permit him to work. And watching Saint Isabel's grow, he adds, has been "an enormous satisfaction."

"I am responsible for the soul of this parish," he says. "It is a wonderful thing -- you have no idea what it was to get up every morning when I was ill and have to ask myself, 'What have I to do today?'"

Now, with much to do at Saint Isabel's every day, Beauregard rejoices in his situation.

"I don't wish for anything," he says. "If you wish too much and then miss your wish, it is cause for unhappiness."

"God has taken care of me as He will everyone," he says. "That is the way to be happy."

Help your pet beat the heat

By Ellen Mulligan

Hot weather is no fun for anyone, but at least we people can complain about it, take a cool shower or turn on our air conditioners.

But hot weather and pets are a different story.

There really is no way pets can communicate that they are unbearably hot, that their water dish is near boiling or that another flea will break their back.

But there are some easy measures that can keep your pet comfortably cool and healthy even during the dead heat of Florida summers.

Island veterinarian Dr. Phyllis Douglass and Marion Smith, Kenbre dog groomer, offered some helpful advice for the weather beaten pet.

One of the main concerns both Douglass and Marion have about the hot weather and pets is the danger of leaving pets in a parked car.

"If you have to take your pet in the car, it cannot be emphasized enough to leave the windows open to be sure he gets plenty of air," Marion stressed, adding that if you take your pet out in the heat of the day, find a shady spot for him.

Check back to the car frequently to make sure he hasn't overheated. "But it's best to leave him home," Marion added.

According to Douglass, pets are prone to heat stroke, overheating and dehydration when left in a hot car or outside without any shade. Overweight dogs, heavy-coated dogs and short-nosed breeds are more susceptible to these problems, she said.

"Dogs lower their body temperature through panting, and they have sweat glands between their toes and on their tongue. That's how they cool off," Douglass said.

But if they are left unattended in the blazing heat, they will pant to cool off and often become dehydrated. And if left alone too long, they can begin panting uncontrollably, have glaring eyes and feel hot to the touch or pass out altogether.

These are signs that your pet may have suffered a heat-stroke or excessive overheating. Heat stroke can cause severe damage to your pet's central nervous system. If your pet has passed out, take him to the veterinarian immediately.

But if he has been overheated, the first thing you'll want to do is lower your pet's body temperature as quickly as possible. Submerge him in a cool bath up to his neck and soothe his face with a cool rag (do not use ice water, it is too much of a shock).

Give him a little bit of cool water at a time. Dry him off and let him rest in a cool spot at home. He should cool down and pep up shortly. If he doesn't, then take him to the veterinarian.

Parasites are always a problem in this region, but the problem with fleas and ticks seems to exaggerate in the hot summer weather.

Douglass and Marion suggested several grooming techniques to keep your pet flea and tick free and cool at the same time.

Giving your dog a "summer cut" or "Sanibel cut" does not mean shaving your pet's coat and removing all of his natural insulation. Merely have the hot winter overcoat trimmed shorter to make bathing easier and to rid fleas.

To combat the fleas, which carry tapeworms, bathing, dipping and spraying should be done continuously throughout the summer. Bathe your pet at least two times a week. Flea collars are not effective, both Douglass and Marion agreed.

An internal medicine called proban kills fleas when they bite the animal. This is an effective method of flea control but should not be used in conjunction with dipping and spraying. "Use one or the other," Douglass stressed.

And if you have your pet dipped, have your own home fumigated at the same time. If you don't, the fleas that are camping out in your carpet will be ready and waiting for you nice clean pet when he comes home.

It is also important to keep your pet's vaccinations up to date. If he has allergies, don't neglect his medicine.

When you leave your pet at home alone either inside or outside, he should always have a shady, breezy. Be sure he has plenty of fresh water, too.

And if your pet is one who is particularly fond of the beach, he needs a shady spot there as well. Provide plenty of fresh water for him at the beach because he can't distinguish fresh water from salt water and the salt water may leave him dehydrated.

If he's a swimmer, hose him off when you get home because the salt water can irritate his skin.

The main things to remember to help your pet beat the heat include not taking him in the car unless absolutely necessary - even a quick trip for you may be a long one for him. Always provide plenty of fresh water and change it several times a day. Take good care of his coat and give him frequent baths.

But most of all, never stop loving him, and the care will follow right behind - just like he does.

Hank Groh

Gibson beats Groh!

By Mark Harmel

What began as a simple golf game between two R&B Liquor co-workers has magnified into a challenge match bigger than Dick Gibson's new 40-gallon hat.

Back in May, Hank Groh, a consistent Beachview Men's Association winner and a twice-a-week golfer, urged Dick Gibson, who hadn't played golf in seven years, out of retirement.

Gibson says he went out "just for the fun of it" — there was no thought of competition, Groh was expected to win.

But then, according to Gibson, "I played very well. I played way over my head." The impossible had happened. Under the point quota handicap system Gibson slayed the giant Groh.

An advertisement in this paper announced to the Islands: Notice - Gibson defeats Groh in golf! Groh demanded a rematch. The competition was on.

The rematch in early June was handed to Groh on a silver platter. Gibson dropped two $50 bills at the first hole and was so shook-up about the loss that he "played terrible."

There was a happy ending for Gibson though, after the match he and Groh searched the course in a golf cart and recovered the money.

The stage was set for the rubber match on Wednesday. There would be no false expectations this time, no missing $100. The ownership of the 40-gallon hat and free drinks were at stake.

Both players were primed for the match. As they walked onto the empty course Groh asked, "Where's the crowd? Where's the television camera?"

The match was tight all throughout the nine holes. Both hit beautiful opening tee shots, and the match went all the way down to the last putt.

Groh had to make a long putt on the ninth green to tie the match, but he missed. "He blew the putt," Gibson said. "It was a hard putt, but it was makeable."

Gibson doesn't take credit for his win. "The only reason I won is because Hank didn't play well," he said.

Groh gives another reason for his loss. He claims that Gibson overworked him before the match. "Dick worked me too hard...he worked me like a dog."

But Groh will not take the loss lying down. "I lost," he said, "But I am going to make a comeback — I'm not going to retire."

Area students participate in youth corps

By Mark Harmel

The final planks of a boardwalk on the Gasparilla Trail in the Ding Darling Wildlife Refuge were hammered in place by area high school students in the Youth Conservation Corps (YCC) last week.

The students will also work to clear the Commadore Perry Canoe Trail, as well as clearing brazilian pepper from the refuge.

Due to budget cuts in the federal YCC program, this could be the last year students will be able to work in Ding Darling Refuge. This year's program has been cut in half as compared with last year.

Ten students from Sanibel, Captiva, Pine Island and Fort Myers are participating in 10 hours of environmental instruction and 30 hours of work a week under the supervision of Mike Lubich and Laura Rider-Machnik.

and Asen collected over the four nights—almost $250—was turned over to the Sanibel Police Recreation Club for the city's recreation complex.

The Timbers restaurant picked up the tab for all expenses incurred, Asen said.

Why did Asen and Thompson want to stay up all night for four nights straight shuffling people they didn't even know from mainland to Island?

"It just shows what private enterprise can do with a little imagination," Asen said. "We had a good time."

Asen said he used to drive a taxi in New York City. "They told us to think of ourselves as ambassadors for the city," he remembered. "Larry and I were doing the same thing here."

"We gave a lot of people a good, fun first impression of Sanibel by making the best of what could have meant disaster for them," he explained.

And next year when the Causeway closes for routine repairs? "We'll do it again, maybe with an even bigger fleet," Thompson said enthusiastically.

The only thing the two would ask of the county Department of Transportation, however, is that they schedule the Causeway repairs during a full moon.

"It just makes the cruise that much nicer," Asen explained.

Book report from the Sanibel Library

By Harriet Howe

ALL THEIR KINGDOMS by Madeleine Pollard. Here is a novel you won't want to put down. It is the story of three generations of an Irish family during the mid-to-late 19th and early 20th centuries.

It is the story of wealthy Matt O'Connor and his wife, Celia, and their two sons, Owen and Emmet.

Matt dies suddenly of a fever during the potato famine and leaves everything he owns in Celia's hands as trustee.

Celia, expecting to live at least until Owen becomes of age but also looking to the future, turns over the trusteeship to her brother, a rascally lawyer. When Celia also dies suddenly, her brother betrays his trust, and the boys find themselves penniless.

The scene moves to America, where Owen hopes to find the means to recoup the family fortune and to find his childhood sweetheart, Antonia.

Antonia refuses to marry him and returns to Ireland, but Owen now has a good job with a wealthy American and stays on.

The years go by. Owen rebuilds the family fortune and finally marries Antonia, but it remains for Owen's son Matt to return to the neglected estate and fulfill his father's dream.

You have to see how Mariner does it!

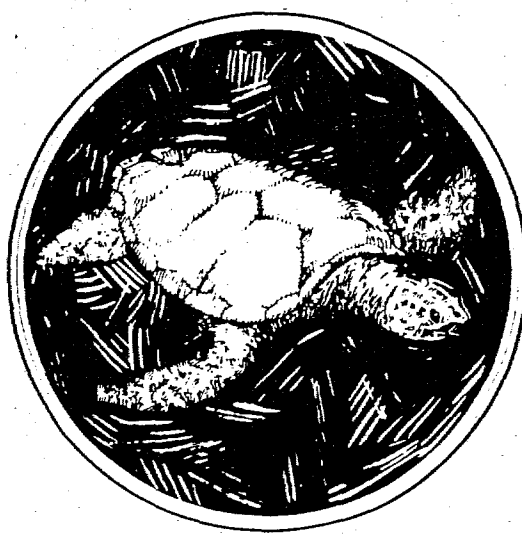

The Mariner Group didn't invent interval ownership but they have perfected it to a degree undreamed of a few years ago. Their latest is called Tortuga Beach Club and it exemplifies the Mariner approach to interval vacationing.

The site of Tortuga is magnificent — over 11 acres of Sanibel's most beautiful beachfront. The architecture is imaginative — a split-level, townhouse concept that gets away from that apartment look. The decor is pure elegance and the amenities offer every kind of fun and relaxation one could wish for.

In short, Tortuga Beach Club is the kind of vacation home you were sure you'd never be able to afford. Now, thanks to interval owning you can buy your vacations at Tortuga Beach Club forever at a surprisingly low price.

Stop by our display center today and let us show you Mariner's approach to interval ownership . . .

of the borrow sites all along," he explained. "In our project, we have a high quality of sand which is identical to that of the native beach."

Since the monitoring of the project is of such magnitude, even those opposed to the project feel comfortable with the plan and its many stipulations.

Under a contract with Caretta Research, South Seas' has agreed to frequent "beach sweeps" along the renourishment site in search of nesting loggerhead turtles.

As of last Wednesday - the first day of pumping - Charles LeBuff of Caretta Research had already found and successfully relocated four loggerhead nests.

John King, spokesman for the Organized Fishermen of Florida's Pine Island Chapter, agreed that the beach needed renourishing. "I hope this dredging project goes well to set a precedent for other projects," King said about the project.

Shopping

SHOPPING

Sanibel is a veritable shopper's paradise. Tasteful boutiques and casual island shops join forces to present visitors with everything - and anything - a vacation shopper could hope for.

At the Lighthouse (Eastern) end of the Island, Punta Ybel Plaza and The Sea Horse Shops are right across the street from each other, providing a variety of products that can cure your sweet tooth or tickle your shell finder's fancy. Need a good haircut or coiffure? You can get it in either of these shopping centers. Most businesses open at 10 a.m. and close at 5:30 p.m. This holds true for many island stores, although during the winter season, some are open evenings.

Tall Australian pines shade Periwinkle Way as the shopper travels west along this main thoroughfare. This stretch of road is truly a shopper's paradise! It's all here...the fast and not-so-fast eating spots, casual and elegant boutiques, hand-wrought jewelry, craft designs, shell shops and balms for health produce fanatics.

you drive or cycle along. Photographic supplies, bait and tackle, deli foods, fresh seafood and baked goods, knick-knacks and what-nots can all be found along the drive to the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road. Along the way, shopping centers such as the Heart of the Islands, Periwinkle Place and Tahitian Gardens offer a variety of island delights.

Palm Ridge Road, the Periwinkle Way turn-off to Captiva, offers several new shopping centers featuring everything from imports to gift shops for the discriminating shopper, plants and shells, a sandwich shop, ice cream parlour, pizza parlour, boutique shop and the Island Apothecary pharmacy.

At the Tarpon Bay-Periwinkle Way intersection, the Island Shopping Center features the Island's only supermarket, dry cleaners and movie house.

A left on Tarpon Bay Road takes the visitor past Sanibel's original schoolhouse, which now holds original island watercolors and woodcuts. Then on to West Gulf Drive and westward to an interesting little artisan's shop and gallery.

At the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road, you may choose instead to turn right and follow the signs to the Tarpon Bay Marina, where you will find a cluster of quaint shops overlooming the back bay...Some antiques, shells and shellcrafts, what-nots and clever clothes can be found here, as well as a great seafood sandwich and soft drinks.

The spectacular ride to Captiva, with its lush foliage and enchanting view of the Gulf, is well worth a day's outing. Talented artists display their works in one roadside shop, while others feature some nifty gifts for Grandma to take home to little hands as a pleasant hodge-podge of remembrances from these barrier islands.

Whether for shopping, or merely browsing, island shops offer a surprising variety - from one-of-a-kind collectibles for the discerning shopper to postcards for the simple souvenir hunter and of course, for all, shells, shell jewelry, shell lamps, just plain shells...the most beautiful shells in the world from the most beautiful shelling beaches in the world.

BEACH ACCESS

Sanibel has miles of public Gulf-front beaches, any one of which is only minutes from your lodging. Lighthouse Point is a stretch of Federal land on the Eastern tip of Sanibel Island, and from there, the Gulf beach is accessible again at the end of Donax Street, at Tarpon Bay Road, at Bowman's Beach Road (off Sanibel-Captiva Road) and Turner's Beach, which is located at Blind Pass, between Sanibel and Captiva Islands.

On Captiva Island, public beach access can be found at Turner Beach (which has public facilities) or further north, just past the entrance to South Seas Plantation.

NOTE: STATE LAW PROHIBITS NUDE SUN-BATHING ON ALL FLORIDA BEACHES. VIOLATORS WILL BE PROSECUTED.

CAMPING

Camping on the beach is prohibited and while everyone enjoys a beach fire, the Sanibel Fire Board has signed into law an ordinance prohibiting open beach fires. Prior to the ordinance, a permit was necessary for a beach bonfire, but as of July 18, 1980, it is now illegal. An exemption to the ordinance is a fire in an approved cooking container (not to exceed 48" X 24" X 12" deep with an extruded metal grill) for non-commercial food preparation. This type of container will be allowed on the beach without a permit. After you have had your beach party, it is recommended that you assume the responsibility for the cleanup of any debris or litter in your area.

GATORS

Feeding alligators anywhere within the Sanibel City limits is not only illegal (violators of the law are subject to a fine of up to $500, or up to 60 days in jail, or both), but can be extremely dangerous. Alligators can run 45 m.p.h., so if you're close enough to feed an alligator, he's close enough to feed on you. An alligator fed for fun loses his natural fear of humans and becomes a potential threat to children and pets.

WARNING! SAFEGUARD YOUR VALUABLES.

In order to protect your valuable possessions from theft, it is recommended that you TAKE THEM TO A BANK OR HOTEL VAULT FOR SAFEKEEPING. Do NOT leave them in your room or car.

SPEED LIMITS

There are varying speed limits (20-30 m.p.h.) as one comes across the causeway, and there is a very good reason for them...to preserve the bridge supports from strain and stress. This speed limit is strictly enforced with the use of radar on a 24-hour basis by both the Sanibel Police Department and the Lee County Sheriff's Department.

Driving or parking a motor vehicle or moped on the bike path is strictly prohibited. Violators will be ticketed.

DOGGY DO'S & DON'TS

If you're visiting Sanibel with the family Fido in tow, all the better. All family members can enjoy Southwest Florida sun and surf. The Chamber of Commerce can tell you what accommodations are available for families with pets. Remember: wherever you are, clean up after your pet! The friendly reminder... "Leave nothing on the beach but footprints"...applies to dogs, too. There's no leash law on Sanibel, but of course an excitable or unruly animal is better off when controlled with a leash.

FISHING

While no license is required for saltwater fishing, fishing in freshwater ponds or the Sanibel River requires a Florida fishing license - available at Bailey's General Store on Periwinkle Way. The fee is $6.50 for resident and $10.50 for non-resident.

MINIMUM LEGAL LENGTHS:

Blue Fish	10 inches
Flounder	11 inches
Grouper	12 inches
Mackerel	12 inches
Mullet	12 inches
Pompano	10 inches
Red Fish	12 inches
Snook	18 inches
Trout	12 inches

BICYCLE RULES

If you're not used to a lot of bicycle traffic, watch out for it on Sanibel. The extensive network of bike paths on the island is clearly marked along the edge of the road. Observe signs when driving near the bike paths. A State law and City Ordinance combine to PROHIBIT PARKING OR DRIVING ON THE BIKE PATH. MOPEDS ARE NOT PERMITTED ON THE BIKE PATHS.

Planning on spending some time on a bike to enjoy the island sun and sights? Make sure your vehicle is equipped with a bike flag, horn, good brakes and a light for night riding. Under Florida law, bicycle riders have the same rights and responsibilities as motor vehicle drivers.
