Murder-suicide suspected in home explosion

By Barbara Brundage

A man believed to be 45-year-old Sanibel building contractor Donald Hiers died and his wife, Judith, was critically burned in a gasoline explosion at the Hiers' home at 947 Lindgren Boulevard Sunday night.

Results of an autopsy by District Medical Examiner Wallace Graves to positively identify the body, which was burned beyond recognition, were not available at press time Monday.

Judith Hiers was listed in critical condition Monday morning at Lee Memorial Hospital with second and third degree burns on her body from the waist down. She was scheduled to be transferred to a burn unit at Tampa General Hospital, Sanibel Police Lt. Ray Rhodes said.

After police received a call about 8 p.m. Sunday that "a distraught man was threatening to blow up his home with

City cracks down on time-share solicitors

By Barbara Brundage

The city of Sanibel has launched a two-pronged attack aimed at stopping "hard sell" techniques being used by some "time share" salesmen to promote their Island resorts and to check the selling of resort amenities disguised as beach club memberships.

City officials in recent weeks have received many complaints from both visitors and residents of "harrassment" by solicitors in shopping center parking lots and on the beaches. The solicitors hand out gift certificates as inducements to tour "time share" resorts.

The Sanibel-Captiva Chamber of Commerce, concerned about "this kind of huckstering that gives us all a bad name," has begun a campaign of "friendly persuasion" urging the businesses involved to modify their approach, according to a letter to Mayor Porter Goss from Chamber President Bill Frey.

Frey has pointed out that the State Real Estate Code requires that, "In any soliciting such as this the solicitor must be a registered real estate salesperson."

Last Tuesday the City Council introduced an ordinance that, if adopted on April 6, will prohibit "off-site solicitation" on Sanibel's beaches and streets, including rights-of-way. The city cannot stop solicitation on private property, City Attorney Neal Bowen emphasized.

"By law commercial premises offer the implied invitation for all to come in and do business. To obviate the problem we have to leave it up to individual businessmen to post 'no soliciting' or 'no peddlers' signs on their properties," Bowen explained.

"This is where the chamber can apply public peer pressure to help solve the problem," Goss said.

A second ordinance that amends Sanibel's time sharing law to track a new state law was adopted on second reading last Tuesday. The council hopes the new law will give the city a handle to control the sale of beach club memberships by "time share" resorts that give non-owners use of their beach, swimming pools, tennis courts and other amenities on an annual basis.

Clarification

Captivan Peg Hofschneider, who recently announced her desire to replace John Oster on the governor-appointed Captiva Erosion Prevention District board of commissioners last week, is not a strong opponent of beach renourishment as was reported in last week's Islander.

Hofschneider said late last week she has not yet taken a stand for or against renourishment but wants to keep an open mind about the alternative methods to protect Captiva's beachfront property.

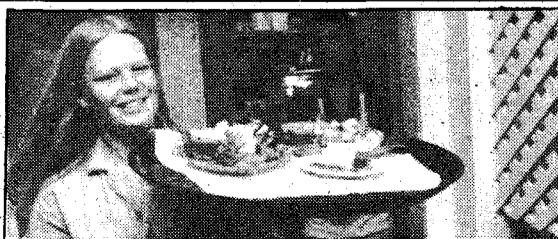

"I would have to have an open mind (about renourishment)," she said. "If it's what the people want and can afford, then yes. If not, then let's find another means."

Hofschneider serves on the CEPD Finance Committee.

Waitresses, waiters serve satisfaction in Island eateries

Waiting on tables and raking in the bucks by night while bronzing in the tropic zone by day is a favorite fantasy of many northern college students, male and female, as they sit in geology labs while winter rages outside.

When students and other young adults do decide to leave winter weather in search of good money serving in restaurants and bars, Sanibel and Captiva are popular destinations.

Several waiters and waitresses, bartenders and hostesses recently talked with The Islander about their lives in "restaurant heaven." Here they serve relatively affluent vacationers who are disposed to generosity in restaurants and bars.

Among those interviewed were Patty Peck of McT's; Gilda Smith of Tween Waters; Randy Wickham of King's Crown, South Seas; Irene Preston of Island Inn; and Eric Vartdal of The Timbers.

Vartdal started in the restaurant business as a busboy and said the biggest tip he has made as a waiter was $50. "I like it," he said about his job at The Timbers. "I do think waiters make more than waitresses - I think people trust waiters more."

Smith, who has waited tables at Tween Waters for nearly a year, said her job here is "just for now." The Binghamton, N.Y. native plans to return to her home state.

"The money here is good," she said. "But the best tip I ever made was at the Holiday Inn (in New York). They ordered a lot of wine and I gave them a lot of attention. They left me $140. I was floating on air the rest of the evening. I gave my busboy $20 of it."

Wickham, an upstate New Yorker, now works as a bartender but has also waited tables. He said he makes about $15 a night from "bar tips," i.e., change people leave even though they know he is on a regular salary.

Peck, daytime hostess at McT's, used to work at Chadwick's. She estimated the people she supervises at McT's probably make from $40 to $100 a shift, depending on their efficiency, friendliness and whether they work lunch or dinner.

All the waitresses and waiters The Islander interviewed are currently single; most are childless. Gilda Smith has two sons, and Irene Preston, a widow, has five children. Preston's husband, Roosevelt, worked for the Island Inn many years.

"Some are married, some aren't," Peck said about her contemporaries who share her profession. "It would be hard to support a family and live a regular family life with a life like this."

Most of the waitresses and waiters on the Islands are relatively young; with the exception of Preston, all The Islander interviewed were under 35.

Smith, 34, who is leaving Tween Waters for her old job in New York in September, does not plan to make waitressing her profession. "I don't want to be 45 and pushing tables when I'm tired and my legs hurt and I don't feel like it anymore," she said.

Peck agreed that "professional" waiters and waitresses are the exception to the rule and said bartenders are more apt to spend years at their jobs. "Some of the men have been bartending for 12 or 15 years," she said. "It's, 'Good evening, sir and how are you?' and they fix the napkin under the glass just so and are proud of it - it's their profession."

Most of the women said they had been cocktail waitresses at some point. They said the tips made serving drinks are better than those made serving only food - but the job is difficult "because you have to be able to take the remarks the men make to you."

One of the waitresses said, "In a vacation spot a lot of men are alone. You wouldn't believe how many couples must take separate vacations."

"They get a few belts in them and they want to grab your hand and they look for your wedding ring. They want to pat your rear. They say 'What are you doing later?' or 'Why are you working in a place like this?'"

Another waitress said she thinks women in her profession have a bad image.

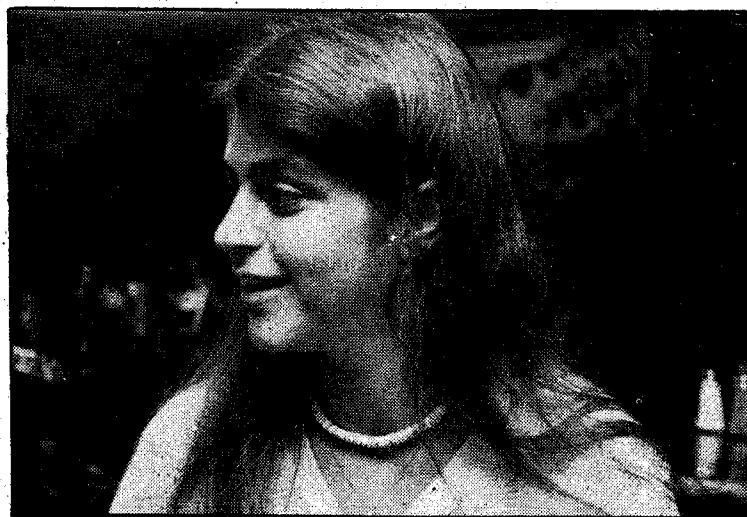

"People think you must have no brains or morals or why else would you be a waitress?" she said. "They just don't realize how much brains it does take to wait on eight tables at once and remember who wants the extra sour cream or more ice in their tea."

Another said simply, "Everyone who has been a waitress knows you get asked out all the time. You get asked out more if you're a cocktail waitress because people act differently when they drink. You can't take it personally or it'd drive you crazy - you have to be tough."

Even though she sometimes has to be "tough," one waitress said her life is "a party sort of life. When you work from 4 or 5 in the evening and you get off at midnight, you're really up and you're sort of

'Mrs. Lighthouse' Manager looks for honesty when hiring

Diane Traucht, the Lighthouse

Diane Traucht, a.k.a. "Mrs. Lighthouse," manages the dining room at The Lighthouse Restaurant.

A waitress herself for 11 years, Traucht's responsibilities as dining room manager include hiring waitresses for the restaurant, and her philosophy about new taking on new employees is somewhat different.

"I'd really prefer someone with no experience," she says. "Then I can train her the way I want." But, she adds, the most important qualification for a hopeful waitress is that she be honest.

"I have three little kids, and I really can look in someone's eye and tell if she is lying," Traucht says. "If a woman comes in and says she has 11 years experience and she begins to train, I can tell right away how much she's worked."

For instance, she continued, if a waitress spill coffee in a saucer, an experienced one would immediately bring a napkin to wipe it up, while a new one might just let her customer sit with a wet saucer.

"Another thing," she says, "I don't know what people's mothers teach them, but you'd be surprised how many people come for interviews in dirty, raggedy clothes.

"I don't mind jeans," she says. "I do mind ragged edges on jeans, dirty t-shirts, flip-flop sandals and unbrushed teeth. You have to smile if you're going to be a waitress and your teeth have to be brushed!"

She also frowns on those who dub themselves "professional waitresses."

"You may have waitressed all your working life, but there is no school or college for waitresses, so there really isn't, in my opinion, such a thing as a 'professional waitress,'" she explains.

Most of the applicants for waitressing positions at The Lighthouse are women between 16 and 48 years old, she said. State law requires all servers to be at least 19 because beer and wine are served at the restaurant.

"A real waitress will know how to carry at least three cups of coffee the first day, too," she smiles.

A man's home is his castle

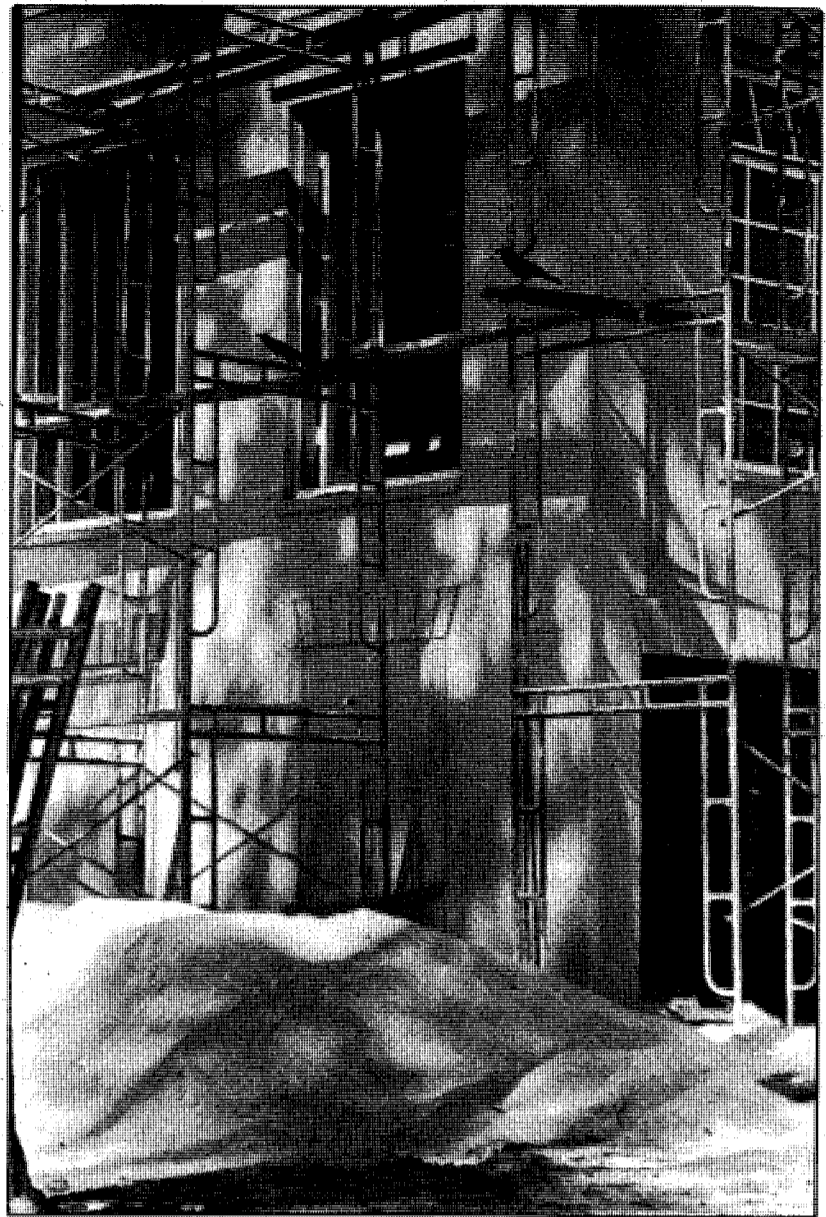

By Peggy Dailey

A pink "castle" is rapidly taking shape across from Turner Beach on Captiva.

The 18th century style house was designed by Tampa architect Harry McEwen for Sanibel (formerly of Miami) contractor Ron Markham. The three bedroom, three-fireplace house will have six or seven rooms, all painted white, many windows of several shapes, a spectacular view, antique furniture (already purchased) and an elevator that will accommodate three people.

Markham, who began work in the construction business in England in 1937 for about $1 a week (in today's money), says he feels joy in building his fortress on Captiva. "Not all projects go well," he says. "But this one sure is. I look forward to moving in by July or August."

Opposing proposed Paulsen Center

To The Editor
The Islander

In regard to the proposed (Paulsen) shopping center:

In the first place, for a small community we already have too many.

Must we forever tremble when some individual persuing his personal interest yells sue? Don't we have insurance to cover this sort of thing? Must the voice of the developer be heard louder than the citizens?

In a recent court case which I attended a sensible judge ruled that the planning board in denying a development permit was only doing its duty as representatives of the citizens.

The days are over when a person can do as he pleases with his property. The wishes of the community it affects must be considered.

If I asked to have a pig farm at this specific location I would be turned down. But the smell of this proposed project will invade our whole land use plan, our commercial study and our future standing as a community as a whole. This will cost us more in the long run than a court case.

If this is allowed to be built I am asking everyone who signed the petition to boycott it.

Questioning council approval of development

To the Editor:

"Promise them anything, but give them Arpege," ran the sales pitch of a popular perfume manufacturer a few years ago. It was a great success.

That slogan seems to have been now adopted by a Sarasota developer to sell The Southwest Regional Planning Council (SWFRPC) and Lee County Commissioner Harry Rodda on his project. They have just approved his 10,000 people luxury housing development at the Miner's Corner bottleneck on McGregor Boulevard.

The approval was apparently motivated by the developer's promise to four-lane 2.7 miles of McGregor Boulevard from Gladiolus Drive north to Cypress Lake Drive. Other vaguely described road improvements in the general area were "also agreed to."

It seems unbelievably naive to believe that anyone a party to the ultimate surrender to this rampant development would be unaware of the recent Circuit Court ruling on the impropriety of such "agreements." That court opined that it is an unconstitutional act of contract zoning for Lee County to pin a similar condition to its approval of a project.

It is hoped that our Lee County Commissioners will not expose themselves twice in one year to being taken in by such blandishments. They might better heed the red flag of warning raised by Sanibel's Councilman Duane White at the SWFRPC meeting.

Sincerely,
Paul Howe

Complimenting developer Paulsen for fine Minnesota centers

To the Editor:

Jerry Paulsen has been a friend of mine for at least 35 years and is one of the true entrepreneurs in the grocery business today. He owns some of the finest shopping center operations in Minnesota, and that is saying a great deal in an area in which the shopping center are considered to be the finest in the world.

I would be willing to bet that the people whose signatures appeared on the petition against Jerry Paulsen's shopping center will be sneaking in the back door once he is in operation.

I have been coming to Sanibel since 1952, and I am currently an interval owner on the Island. I welcome a real show of class that Jerry will provide.

Kindest regards

Thanks to all who helped make the live shell exhibits so interesting at the Shell Show.

Remember the energetic hermit crab? Remember the beautiful sea anemone adorning her pear whelk? Sunday morning she moved into a Kings Crown fossil and proceeded to transfer each of the three anemone flowers to her new white house!

She is now attending science classes in the Fort Myers Middle School. I hope they give her a bigger shell soon and watch her redecorate.

P.S. Would a male crab be concerned about exterior decorations?

commission, but guided by their selected experts formed into an authority with advisory powers only.

You will recall that my letter of last Sept. 11 pointed out that Florida's Constitutional grant of local Home Rule powers was adequately implemented by the state's Airport Law of 1945 so as to permit the action that you now propose.

There seems more likelihood of such a locally formed and controlled authority being attuned to the aspirations of ALL your constituents as well as those who use the facility for commercial purposes.

Additionally, the money-market that is to supply the jetport's capital funding would be happier with the moral backup for any bond issue that is inherent in the county's broad taxing powers. The alternate state-created authority relying solely on the project's revenue could not offer such security to bond purchasers.

In my opinion, however, the most significant aspect of your proposal is its reflection of a desire to nurture the county's vested governmental powers rather than erode them. The latter process is induced by continuously running to Tallahassee to needlessly reaffirm the Constitution's 1968 grant of Home Rule. That idle practice merely gives the courts encouragement and excuses to employ the discredited "Dillon Rule" for curtailing the county's power to solve its own problems.

In conclusion, you have my best wishes for success in getting the Board to adopt your proposal.

Resident challenges decision on property vacation

By Barbara Brundage

Sanibel resident Paulette Burton has charged the city's vacation of 300 feet of Bay Drive (Old Bayshore Road) and a bridge to a private property owner will deny the public the right to use 1,600 feet of Bay beach.

The council unanimously adopted an ordinance at the March 16 meeting that gives Larry and Sheila Snell ownership of the narrow road and the wooden bridge that leads to the Snell's property.

Burton said Friday she intends to invoke her rights as a citizen and ask the council to reconsider its action.

"If the council refuses to rescind the ordinance, then I will go the petition route provided in the City Charter and put the ordinance to a referendum of the voters," Burton said.

"I don't intend to give up on this," she added.

Under terms of the vacation Snell will assume the responsibility of repairing and maintaining the bridge and roadway and the city agrees to expedite any permits required for the work.

The city will retain an easement for drainage maintenance purposes.

Public Works Director Gary Price, who initiated the transfer of ownership, said it was not fair for Sanibel taxpayers to bear the burden of maintaining the road and bridge that serves only one property owner (Snell).

"In addition there is a tremendous liability in keeping the bridge open to the public and the possibility that the state at some future date would require the bridge brought up to Department of Transportation standards, which could cost as much as $30,000," Price said.

Burton countered that the bridge is used by many residents in the neighborhood to gain access to the "last remaining strip of bay beach where ospreys live in peace and the shelling is good."

Price pointed out that there is a public access to the beach at the county park nearby. "In order to get to the portion of the beach she's talking about, west of the bridge, involves trespassing on Snell's property," he added.

The city sought ownership of Old Bayshore Road (now called Bay Drive) from Bradley and Alice Buell to serve as a northern evacuation route shortly after Sanibel was incorporated. But the city lost when the Buells went to court to settle the ownership dispute.

"In a dumb decision (the judge) gave the city only a 10-foot wide strip of the road from the county park to five feet west of the bridge," Price said.

"The city does not own nor ever has owned the land on either side of the road. It's the property of Snell and another abutting property owner," Price added.

Burton insisted the city could provide an access to the bay beach from the five feet of roadway west of the bridge that is still public if it retained ownership of the bridge.

But Price said the same situation exists there as east of the bridge. "The five foot of public roadway is only the width of a car, and the land on the bayside is Snell's property," he said.

"It might be possible to jump over it to the mean high tide line, but it would take a big leap," Price acknowledged.

The city will spend about $700 to repair the bridge before ownership is turned over to the Snells on March 26, the date the ordinance becomes effective, Price said.

To initiate a referendum on the ordinance a petition signed by 25 per cent of the voters registered at the last election must be presented to the city within 60 days of the ordinance's adoption.

At last Tuesday's meeting the city declared a first reading on a second road vacation ordinance that will relinquish the city's rights to Sanderling Circle and a portion of Sand Castle Road in The Dunes subdivision.

The purpose for acquiring Sanderling Circle, Ray Pavelka, Mariner Properties director of development, explained, is provide a loop road through the Dune including the new Phase III development.

Sand Castle Road will be realigned to the clubhouse.

All roads in Phase III will be paved to city standards and then dedicated to the city, Pavelka said.

City to help develop storm code for state

The city of Sanibel will become partners with the Florida Department of Environmental Regulations in developing a hurricane resistant construction code for the Island. The code will serve as a model for other storm-prone areas in the state.

The City Council last Tuesday unanimously approved a nine-page agreement under which the city will perform consultant and professional services for the DER.

In a cost sharing agreement, the DER will reimburse the city for 80 percent of its authorized expenditures not to exceed $15,000. The project is budgeted for $18,750.

Mayor Porter Goss said the city was "invited by the DER to apply for the grant money because of our interest in the subject."

Some of the work on the code has already been done, Planning Director Bruce Rogers said.

"After our visit to Dauphin Island to view the hurricane destruction, Building Officer George Blain began working on a cost-effective, hurricane-resistant construction code for Sanibel, which is the groundwork for this project," Rogers explained.

Blain explained that the goal is to devise a building code that will "give homes on Sanibel a better chance to survive a storm and at the same time not be prohibitively expensive to conform to."

Sanibel building contractor Bob Horak was concerned that the cost would be "reasonable."

"For some people $100 for hurricane proofing would not be cost effective," Horak said.

Goss said the code will not go far afield but will address only the needs of Sanibel.

Input from the public will be welcome, and since the code would have to be adopted as a general amendment to the land use plan public hearings will be scheduled, he added.

City Councilman Mike Klein said he hoped the new code would provide procedures for upgrading existing older homes to make them more hurricane resistant.

DER has set Sept. 29 as the deadline for the city to complete its work. Blain will be project manager for the city.

'Goof' causes code violation

A "goof" by a member of the Planning Department staff permitted the construction of a swimming pool and deck at the Tigua Cay duplex complex on East Gulf Drive. The pool and deck violate one of the conditions of a specific amendment that allowed the project to encroach 28 feet forward of the Coastal Construction Setback Line.

The City Council last week ordered developers Doug Smith and Rick McCormick to remove all of the concrete pool deck except the area required by Health Department regulations.

The specific amendment granted in 1979 prohibited the construction of "any impermeable surface other than support pilings in the 28-foot CSSL zone."

A swimming pool was not included on the original site plan, and in July 1981 plans for the pool were approved by the Building Department after a review by Planner Ken Pflazer, a new employee.

Pflazer acknowledged he was at fault when he assumed the specific amendment had been granted "without conditions" and approved plans for the pool forward of the CSSL.

Pflazer realized his mistake after a building inspector observed during a certificate of occupancy inspection that the pool decking was not built in compliance with the approved plans.

City Councilman Fred Valtin suggested that the concrete decking could be replaced by woven decking that would be permeable.

Smith and McCormick appeared at last week's council meeting seeking clarification of the original specific amendment.

Another Island developer was also at the meeting seeking enlightenment.

Building contractor Mark Comer questioned the interpretation of an ordinance that requires "proof of a commitment for a water connection with the Island Water Association before a building permit will be issued for any new development or expansion of an existing development that would increase the regular use of water."

"Who determines when the regular use of water would be increased?" Comer asked the council.

The question arose when an "expensive IWA water connection" was required for remodeling a home that had been adequately served by a well for many years.

"This is one of our few well-written ordinances," Mayor Porter Goss observed tongue in cheek. "There is no question that a swimming pool is an expansion of water use," he said. "But staff decides if adding another room is an expanded use for a home, taking into consideration off-site impacts."

It is city policy to preserve and protect our shallow aquifer," he added. "Several wells on West Gulf Drive have gone bad because of over stress, and we generally are not approving any new wells."

But any expansion because of the possibility of increased use requires an IWA hookup, City Manager Bernie Murphy said.

But the council found a loophole in the ordinance. "It does not require that a water hookup be made, only proof of a commitment," Valtin pointed out.

Council, McNew near agreement

The City Council and the attorney representing Quinton McNew are only "three or four words" away from agreement on an amendment clarifying the final judgment in the court settlement of McNew's lawsuit that will permit construction of 49 single-family homes in the Little Lake Murex subdivision off West Gulf Drive.

Last January McNew's attorney, Steve Helgemo, presented the council a draft of an amendment to Circuit Court Judge Jack Schoonover's judgment to make it perfectly clear.

At that time the council acknowledged that the judgment entitles the development to one building permit for each of the 49 lots and conceded that the homes would be exempt from the Rate of Growth process.

But the council deleted the provision that extended the exemption from "any other ordinance that would delay the issuance of a building permit beyond the period of time necessary for the processing of the application of a permit once that application is submitted to the city of Sanibel."

The consensus of council was that the language was "too all-encompassing."

"My concern is that once the lots are out of McNew's hands the new owners might use this as an excuse not to abide by regulations," City Councilman Duane White said.

But McNew was not happy with the deletion, Helgemo told the council last week. He offered a third version that reinstated the "any other ordinance" clause and added a statement that recognizes the necessity of a temporary suspension of the issuance of building permits by the city in the wake of a natural disaster.

"This states it more precisely and has not created any ambiguity," Helgemo said.

City Attorney Neal Bowen said the "judgment is overly broad, and this language clarifies and strengthens it."

"This would exempt one project from all future laws for all time," Mayor Porter Goss said. "And that's not acceptable to me."

But Goss and the rest of the council was finally persuaded when Helgemo agreed that exemption from other ordinances would be limited to those that would cause an "unreasonable delay."

Bowen was instructed to work with Helgemo to come up with new language.

McNew sued the city after adoption of the Comprehensive Land Use Plan decreased the density for the Little Lake Murex development to 29 dwelling units. Under Lee County zoning 49 units were permitted on the 51-acre tract.

The 1980 court ruling "estopped the city from denying the developer's right to complete the subdivision and market the lots in accordance with the original plat."

Council agrees county should pay 'lion's share' of paving costs

The City Council has agreed that if Bowman's Beach Road is paved, Lee County should pay the "lion's share" of the estimated $150,000 cost.

"Without its use as a county park there would be no need for paving," Mayor Porter Goss pointed out.

City Councilman Duane White, who was serving as Mayor Pro Tem when 60 residents of the Blind Pass condominiums complained of the "intolerable condition" of the road and asked the city to do something about it, said Lee County Mosquito Control agreed to participate in the cost of improving the road that it uses for access to a helicopter pad near the beach.

City Manager Bernie Murphy was authorized by the council last week to reopen a discussion on county participation in the road improvement with County Administrator Lavon Wisner. The discussion was begun last spring.

At that time Wisner was favorable to the suggestion that the county foot half the bill for paving the road, Murphy said.

Maintenance of the road should be part of the county's overall cost of operating a regional park at Bowman's Beach, Goss said.

Leases renewed for city offices

The City Council has approved the renewal of leases to rent space to house city offices, the Police Department and the council meeting room through Sept. 30, 1983, when it is expected the new City Hall will be ready for occupancy.

Current agreements with Periwinkle Partners for office space at the Periwinkle Place Shopping Center and with James Robson, owner of the Three Star on Palm Ridge Road where MacKenzie Hall and the Police Department are located, expire Sept.

30 this year.

Under the new leases the rates will be $1.50 per square foot more at Periwinkle Place and $1 per square foot higher at Three Star, City Manager Bernie Murphy said.

Cost of renting space for the final year will be $64,100, which is $9,100 more than under the current leases, Murphy said.

"That's a lot of money. Thank God, we're getting a new City Hall," Councilman Duane White commented.

Hearing continues on Chakmak's request

At the request of attorney James Humphrey, the City Council last Tuesday continued a public hearing and second reading of Albert Chakmak's request for a specific amendment that would allow him to build a home forward of the Coastal Construction Setback Line on the gulf beach near Blind Pass.

Humphrey said he wanted a continuance to give him time to complete a memorandum to the council that should be ready in about two weeks.

The council voted unanimously to postpone the hearing to a "mutually convenient date."

No reviews requested for ROGO allocations

There were no requests for a review of the Planning Commission's March allocation of 73 dwelling units under the Rate of Growth procedure.

The City Council agreed unanimously that no call up would be required for the first ROGO period in 1982.

Though planning staff research confirmed developer Frank Cassavell's initial contention that he was entitled to at least one multi-family unit, Cassavell did not seek a review by the council.

Planner Jean Nichol confirmed that one of two allocations granted Cassavell retroactively in July 1981 should have been credited to his 1980 quota, leaving him with three allocations in 1981.

Cassavell had pointed out to the Planning Commission after 11 multi-family units were divided among three high-scoring projects on March 8 that under terms of the ROGO ordinance he should have received an additional allocation last November before two other projects were allocated more than four units.

Lickel appointed to revision committee

Civic activist Conrad Lickel was appointed by the City Council last Tuesday to fill the vacancy on the Ad Hoc Charter Revision Committee created by the death of James Irwin.

Councilman Duane White nominated Lickel, whom he said is well qualified by virtue of experience in state government before his retirement to Sanibel.

Lickel, who lives on Ferry Road, most recently served as a member of the Ad Hoc Electric Distribution Negotiating Committee.

The council has named Councilman Francis Bailey to represent the city at the annual meeting of the Lee County Electric Cooperative Saturday, March 27, at the Lee County Civic Center in North Fort Myers.

City Councilman Mike Klein agreed to attend the annual meeting of the Island Water Association scheduled for Monday, April 12, at the Sanibel Community Association's new auditorium.

"It's traditional for the vice mayor to represent the city at that meeting," City Councilman Duane White said.

Committee of the Islands chairman Bo Veal was pleased at the council's action. The advent of beach club memberships will have the utmost serious adverse impact on the Island, he predicted.

Veal said the Caribe Resort on West Gulf Drive, which sells advance reservations for its motel units for 30 years, is now selling beach club memberships.

The newly approved ordinance will require a development permit for a motel owner to convert units of high impact to the "time share" concept.

Approval by the Planning Commission will be necessary to sell "the right to use accommodations or facilities, or both, for a specific period of time of a full year or less during any given year, but not necessarily consecutive years, and which, as pertains to accommodations, extends for a period of more than three years."

Bowen said this language permits people to make advance reservations but prohibits the sale of rights to beach access and the use of resort facilities as beach club memberships.

Veal said the Caribe had never asked the city's permission to sell the use of its facilities as beach club memberships. He urged the council to insist that Caribe owners appear and explain why the existing "social memberships" should not be voided. City Councilman Duane White said that the Caribe and other resorts selling social memberships would be in violation of the Permitted Uses section of the Comprehensive Land Use Plan.

City Manager Bernie Murphy said the principals of the Caribe Resort and the owners of the Jolly Roger Motel, who are in the process of selling advance reservations for that resort's 47 rooms, had requested to appear before the council at its April 6 meeting to discuss their operations.

The cases of both the Caribe and the Jolly Roger are open and shut cases of drastic change in land use, Veal contended.

John Darcy, who lives at the Kings Crown condominium next door to the Caribe, told the council he had noted a "dramatic change" in the population on the beach front since the Caribe began its social membership phase.

"Last Saturday their parking lot was packed, and the use of the beach extended in both directions," Darcy said, adding, "The Caribe's membership program is a violation of the spirit of the Comprehensive Land Use Plan."

Ray Pavelka, director of development for Mariner Properties, said a plan to sell year-round social memberships to interval owners at Casa Ybel Resort has been abandoned.

In January Casa Ybel offered a membership plan to owners living in Lee and Collier counties and the Greater Miami area permitting their use of the resort's facilities anytime during the year.

"But we had no overwhelming response, probably due to the price, and some concern from owners that this use might cause overcrowding and infringe on their rights," Pavelka said.

"We are not selling any outside memberships," he emphasized.

Goss suggested two actions the city can take to get a handle on the solicitation problem. "We can use the Occupational License code, which may have some language that restricts the operation of a business to the licensed location, or we can pursue the Permitted Uses route," he said.

But he said he would like to see how the chamber's "friendly persuasion" technique works before adding penalties to the ordinance.

Police Chief John Butler said he was concerned at how the solicitation ordinance can be enforced. "In order to make an arrest we have to see the violation," he said.

Another of Butler's concerns was, "What constitutes the beach?"

Inclusion of both "dry sand and wet sand" in the definition of beach in the ordinance should clarify the definition, Bowen said.

Further discussion of ways and means to control solicitation Islanders label a "nuisance" will take place on April 6, when the amended ordinance is scheduled for a final reading.

The house was dark and the two officers left to answer another complaint of a "domestic quarrel with a man trying to kill his wife." The complainant called from the Sanibel Standard Station.

The complainant was a tourist and unfamiliar with Sanibel, Rhodes said, but from his description Weir and Case identified the scene of the quarrel as the Hiers residence.

As the officers pulled up in front of the house, Weir said, "We heard two 'woof woof'

ON THE WATER

By Captain Mike Fuery

I wonder how many hundreds of years anglers have wished for a magical super bait that would bring fish right to their hooks.

Well get ready for this -- a researcher at the University of Florida appears to have perfected an artificial bait that might be what we've been looking for.

It's called Gatorbait and it's been on the market for a year or so. Just like you, I was skeptical, but the folks down at the Bait Box on Sanibel gave me a container of Gatorbait to try. No, they didn't guarantee a filled fish box -- they just wanted to get some reactions.

Before I relate my two "fish" stories about my first day of using Gatorbait, let me give you the background on this stuff. First of all, it's a relatively odorless (to us humans) substance that is coated on what looks like cheese cloth backing. Each strip of this bait looks a lot like a stick of chewing gum. You can use the whole strip or, as I did while casting jigs, cut it into quarters.

According to the information that comes with the bait, "Researchers at the University of Florida have for years been attempting to identify chemical substances that simulate feeding behaviour in various marine animals. The process by which animals detect chemical substances in food is called chemoreception."

So the secret is to get Gatorbait to where fish can smell it in the water as well as see the artificial carrier, such as a jig or other lure. It could be used by itself, but I found that small fish like pinfish gobbled it up so fast, I was soon out of Gatorbait.

It works best on bottom feeders, and the makers, Scientific Baits, Inc. of St. Augustine, say it is most effective offshore over reefs and rocky outcroppings.

Frankly, I was skeptical, but willing to give the bait a try. The morning after getting the Gatorbait from the Bait Box, I tied on a small white jig, cut a strip of the bait and walked on down to the bayou behind the house. Two neighbors were fishing there and as we talked, I looked down along the mangroves and here comes a large fish wake. I was sure it was a big snook. I'd seen them cruise like that before but never got one to strike. You can guess what's about to happen.

I flipped out the Gatorbait with jig and the snook turned and took it. There wasn't a movement for about three seconds, then it took off, jumping and making such a splash that the two fellas next to me about had fits. The fish started for the shallows and my reel didn't keep up. He had me about 100 feet out over a foot of water when the line was cut.

I had made a little practice cast just before sighting the snook, so technically it was my second cast. Hey, this Gatorbait is okay, I thought. Then I got to thinking, well this stuff could be lethal! We could wipe out every fish in the water if it works like this.

Later in the day I went looking for redfish and sure enough I lucked into a large one. But before I could react it had me into the mangrove roots. But it definitely took the jig with bait.

That was a couple of months ago, and I've tried Gatorbait under a variety of fishing situations since then. One thing I have found is that the bait works much better on bottom feeders than mid-water or surface feeding fish in saltwater. I caught a few trout, but I suspect only because they were near the bottom chasing the jig. I tried catching trout with a popping cork and Gatorbait and didn't do much at all.

Grouper seem to like Gatorbait, and I've got them around the mangroves and also in Captiva Pass with the product.

And frankly, I've struck out several times on Gatorbait. Now, this could be from natural circumstances -- if the fish aren't there, no super bait is going to make them hit.

Gatorbait might be worth trying. It's more convenient than using shrimp in some situations. Artificial bait casters will love it. But you might try it yourself and let me know.

There are a few other distributors of Gatorbait besides the Bait Box, and I'm starting to see it advertised in catalogues from stores country-wide. Perhaps it's a fad or an idea that works under specific conditions. But if the fish are there, I've found Gatorbait does bring strikes. Good fishing this week.

SHELLING TIPS

By Captain Mike Fuery

When we moved to Sanibel Island in the early 70's, we noticed the rather strange street names. But it was a good month or so of living here before we started to realize how nuts this place was about sea shells.

My wife and I lived in the small apartment over the Once Upon A Time antique shop on Periwinkle Way. The shop and apartment were owned by the LeRoux, who had landscaped the front yard with many periwinkle flowers.

When we looked up and down the street that quiet summer, there were lots of flowering periwinkles. When visitors came down we told them the street was called Periwinkle Way because of the flowers.

We were a bit put back trying to explain Donax. Must have been named after some early settler family named Donax. Then there was Coquina Drive near where I used to fish for snook in the morning. I thought Coquina was some kind of rock.

As I said, with all the moving and getting used to the Island life, it took some time, but eventually I opened up a shell book. It started to dawn on me.

Periwinkles? They aren't just flowers; they are shells, too. And donax? Well, they have another name -- coquinas. And Coquina Drive was named after the same shell? Hey, the whole darn Island is named after shells!

I got a map of the Island the other day at the Chamber of Commerce near the entrance to the Causeway and was surprised to find that so many of our roads and even subdivisions are named after shells, trees and other natural things.

For a few weeks some years ago, we lived in the Gulf Pines Subdivision, but it was later that I began to put together all the names of the streets in that lovely housing area. I lived on Strangler Fig, but there was Pepper Tree Place, Cabbage Palm, Spanish Laurel Lane and Old Banyon Way to name just a few.

Not to be outdone in the nature naming division, the little pocket of houses next door to Gulf Pines (this is called the Tahiti Shores section) got into Island birds. They live on Blue Heron Way and White Ibis Drive and perhaps Fish Crow Drive.

But by far, it's the shells that have lent their names to our streets and roads. Down near the Lighthouse end of the Island there is a section between East Gulf Drive and Periwinkle Way that went crazy with shell names such as Angel Wing, Murex, Whelk Drive, Sand Dollar Drive, Penshell, Oyster, Conch and King's Crown Drive. There is no way you can live there and not be a sheller.

Yes, someone has named a street Junonia Way, and there are a few other shell related names I didn't mention, but you get the idea. This whole Island is crazy about shelling and nature.

For the first-time visitor to Sanibel and Captiva Islands, a few days stay doesn't let you get to know us or the Island very well. But as you spend a few vacations here and get to know your way around, you will see how Islanders have made such strides to make Sanibel and Captiva different from other resorts and keep the distinctive flavor that brought most of us here in the first place.

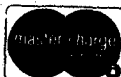

As for me, well I still like to ride along Periwinkle Way on a warm summer morning and look at the flowers. Now the road might not be named after the periwinkle flowers, but on the other hand, I'm yet to find my first periwinkle shell on the beach. Who knows, maybe the road was named after the flower and not the shell.

Capt. Mike Fuery offers daily shelling trips to North Captiva and Cayo Costa Islands. Call 472-3459 for information.

sounds that could have been gun fire and the house burst into flames."

Case ran to the rear and saw Judith Hiers running from the screened porch, her clothes blazing. He dragged her to the front of the house where Officer Weir performed artificial respiration.

Judith Hiers told police she and her husband, Donald, were the only persons in the house at the time.

At least one five-gallon gasoline container was found in the backyard about 50 feet from the house, Rhodes said.

It was evident that gasoline had been poured inside the house, but whether it was set afire deliberately or went off spontaneously has not been determined, Rhodes said.

Sanibel Fire Chief Charles Frederick said Monday the state fire marshal had been asked to investigate the blaze that caused "considerable smoke damage but left the walls of the concrete block home intact."

Hiers built the home for himself about nine years ago.

A long-time Sanibel resident, he was one of the first contractors to build custom homes on the Island and was still actively engaged in single-family home construction.

His late father, who founded the construction company, in the 50's built one of the Island's earliest gulf front resorts, Hiers Cottages-By-the-Sea. The pink cottage colony on West Gulf Drive was recently razed and will be replaced by modern condominiums.

Hiers had a troubled life, his friends say. "He was a tormented soul," City Councilman Fred Valtin, a neighbor, said sadly.

In November 1976, Hiers held Sanibel Police Chief John Butler and Case at gunpoint for more than an hour. Hiers said he was despondent over family problems.

His first wife, Helga, had left home and their 16-year-old son, John was living elsewhere on the Island, he told police at the time.

Hiers had gone to the home where John was staying, fired a gun inside and then took the boy home with him. Butler and Case went to Hiers home to talk to him, removing their weapons before entering.

After an hour, with Hiers threatening them with a gun, the two officers were able to overpower him and release the son.

Hiers was charged with four counts of aggravated assault in the incident and was sent to G. Pierce Wood Mental Hospital in Arcadia for 30 days for observation.

"My Dad is real sick," John Hiers told police after the confrontation, "He's been having problems."

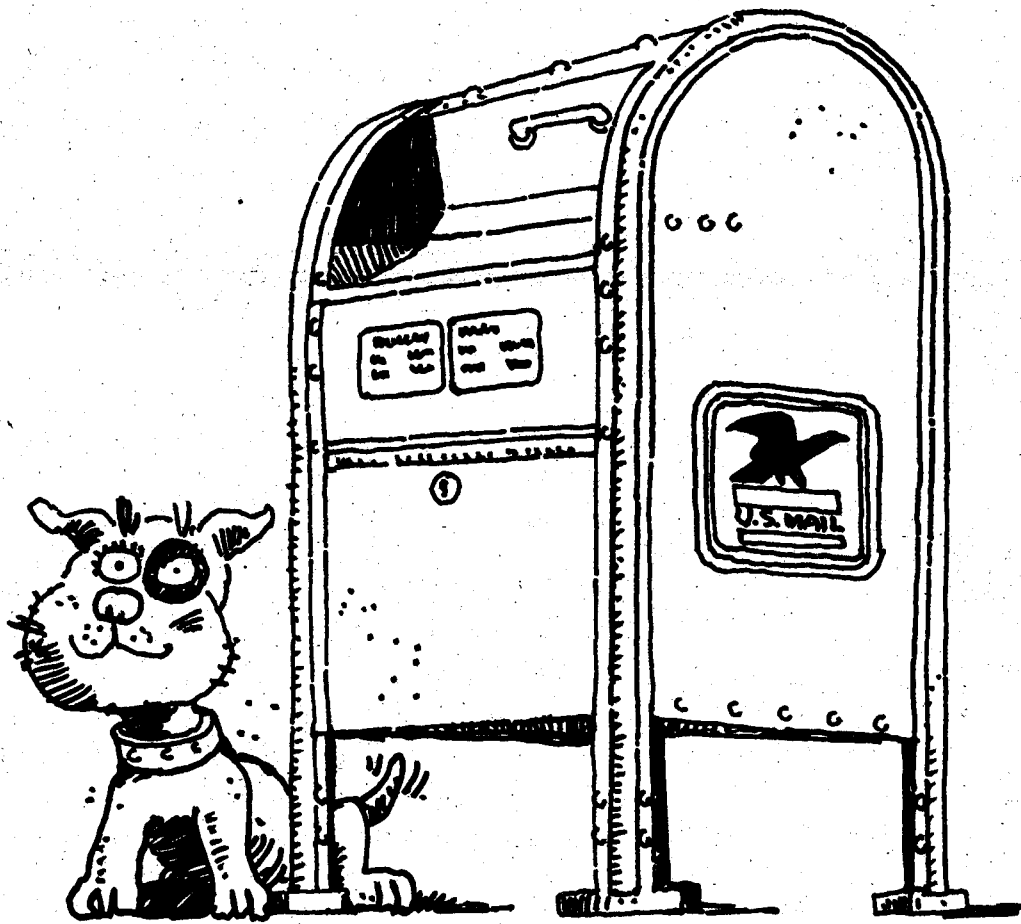

A year later, when he was 17, John was killed in a boating accident near Cayo Costa. He was Hiers' only child.

In addition to his wife, Judith, Hiers survived by a sister, Marietta Hiers Holly of Texas, and two half brothers, Allan Nave of Sanibel and John Nave of Bradenton.

Hiers' first wife, Helga, from whom he was divorced, lives in California, police said.

Arrangements for funeral services for Hiers were incomplete at press time.

LEG CRAMPS

A simple exercise to stretch the hamstring muscles may prevent leg cramps at night. Simply stand at arms length from a wall and place palms of hands against the wall. Keep the back straight and heels on the floor. Lean forward until the forehead touches the wall; hold position for 5 seconds; then stand upright for 5 seconds. Repeat this 5 times. This procedure followed 3 times a day, should succeed in stretching the hamstring muscles.

Nancy Olds

Age: "Over 25."

Height: 5'6"

Roots: Middlefield, Mass.

Pleasures: Shelling and reading.

Last Book Read: Wagons West by Dana Ross.

Mentor: parents

Words of Wisdom: "Those of you that tend to forget don't have much to remember."

Wish: "To get my book out without anymore acts of God preventing it."

By Peggy Dailey

Nancy Olds, owner of the Island Book Nook, the used paperback exchange, has accomplished many things in her independent life -- she's been a Marine, a newspaper delivery girl, a postmistress, a schoolteacher, a night auditor and an antique shop owner.

And in addition to being a bookstore entrepreneur, Olds is now an author.

"I guess I learned very young to be independent," she says. "My father had a general store for 50 years in Middlefield, and my mother was the postmistress. The post office was in the same building.

"I was the youngest child of five -- I had an oldest brother and three sisters. I always knew if I wanted something I'd have to work for it. My parents never treated my sisters or me differently from my brother."

After graduating from Chester High School, Olds entered the Marine Corps and was trained at Camp LeJeune, N.C. She left with the rank of corporal and returned to Massachusetts, where she earned a bachelor's degree in business education from Springfield College.

She taught, first in a junior high and then in Huntington Regional High School, from 1962 to 1972. Then she went to work for the U.S. Post Office, but "drove a friend to Florida one winter, and that started it."

Olds enjoys shelling, about which she's recently written a book with Maggie Greenberg. Because of her interest in shelling, she settled in Sanibel. She opened the Book Nook on Feb. 2, 1981.

The reading tastes of Book Nook clients are about what one would think, Olds says. She sells a lot of recreational reading -- espionage and intrigue are favorites of the men; women buy romances, both "historical" and Harlequins, she says.

The three current best-sellers are James Michener's Covenant, Fr. Andrew M. Greeley's The Cardinal Sins and "anything by Danielle Steel," she says.

Steel, one of the most popular of the romantic authors, is one of the few romance writers Olds stocks in new copies because old ones don't stay on the shelves or meet the demand.

Also popular are thrillers by Robert Ludlum and Ken Follett and John Jakes' historical series.

"We have a lot of intellectuals on the Island," she says. "So non-fiction is popular, too. I like autobiographies and biographies myself."

She settled here partly because, "I never saw the ocean till I was 18. I have never found a junonia, although I've walked miles and miles of beach and do it almost every day. I'd love to find one. I have some pretty valuable shells, though."

Olds likes flea markets and yard sales and says, "It's remarkable what you can find. I used to own an antique shop in Massachusetts, but I was also teaching and it was hard to do two things at once. I learned a lot about antiques, though, through owning the shop."

As for her independence, she explains, "I've been liberated since the day I was born. I was the youngest of five -- you have to learn to make your own way when you're in that position.

"I started working at about that age, sorting pop bottles on the floor of my parents' store. I knew nothing would be given to me, and if I ever wanted anything I would have to earn it myself. I knew that from the very beginning. That attitude, more than anything special my parents said or did, made me independent."

There was only one thing that ever got in her way. "If there were the same equal opportunities for women in the Marine Corps when I was in it in the middle 1950's that there are today, I would have become a career Marine and would be retiring right about now with a rank and a large pension," she says.

She doesn't seem to miss having a family of her own, explaining simply, "It's nice to be independent and live as you please."

She is optimistic about the future and looks forward, especially, to her book's publication. Future plans include travel. "After I retire, I'm going everywhere -- Greece, Japan, England, Europe -- you name it," she says. More immediate plans include the possibility of keeping The Book Nook open on Sundays if there is sufficient interest to make it profitable.

"The economy being the way it is does nothing but help," she explains. "And paperback prices are going through the ceiling."

Romantic novels (about 95 cents or $1.25 in 1972) are now selling for $3.50 and $3.95. The new Michener is $6.

"I just want to live here and be my own boss," she smiles. "So I do and I am."

area. The raccoon had fallen through the screened roof into the pool area.

A resident of Lighthouse condominiums called police to scare away a raccoon that sat in front of the condominium door for 20 minutes early Monday morning, March 15. The raccoon finally walked down the stairs and left the area.

Two hubcaps valued at $60 were reported missing from a car parked at the Quarterdeck restaurant on Monday morning, March 15. The hubcaps were taken sometime between 8-8:20 a.m.

Police netted a wild cat and removed it from a Royal Poinciana home on Monday evening, March 15. The residents told police they had been unable to get the cat out of the house all day. The cat escaped from the net once outside.

portrayal of Rockefeller. The man was dynamic and he drove his aides as he drove himself.

"Nelson Rockefeller consumed people, their energies, their loyalty, occasionally their judgment." The book is well written and extremely interesting.

Blood Royal by Arden Winch - In this suspenseful tale, young Prince Rupert of Balmoral is kidnapped from his school by a motley group of terrorists, masterminded by Irene Kohl and including Drew, a mercenary; Danny, a member of the IRA; and Vivian, a wealthy English socialite.

Chief Superintendent Meadows and Captain Percival of the SIS seem to be in conflict over approaches to a solution of the problem and vie with each other as to who has the authority. At times one wonders if Percival may not be a "plant."

The action shifts back and forth from police procedure to the terrorists in their hiding place. The author is a veteran British TV writer and has produced an exciting and perhaps not impossible story.

The Garden of Persephone by Cesar Rotondi - This is a historical novel of Sicily in the 12th century during the reign of Roger II. The story is of Julien Fitz Nigel, a young English monk, one of a group of advisors sent to Sicily.

Julien is taken from the Abbey in Durham where he has not quite come to taking his vows. This unworldly background hardly prepared him for the culture and customs of Sicily where Jewish and Moslem influences made an interesting and exciting society.

He falls in love with Claire, of noble birth, who seems to be unapproachable. Julien is sent on many missions for Roger, who is caught up in the wars that result from the Reign of the Two Popes. There is much history here, religious and political, but there is also romance and, of course, Julien wins Claire.

By Harriet Howe

The Imperial Rockefeller by Joseph Persice - Not the usual biography of a man from birth to death. While Persice mentions briefly Rockefeller's early years, his main story is of Rockefeller the politician.

As Nelson Rockefeller's chief speech writer for 11 years, the author was in a position to know his boss quite well. The fact that there is no bibliography leads one to assume that the book is entirely the product of the author's personal experiences and those of his colleagues.

The book is replete with instances in which Persico and others associated with Rockefeller were involved. Persico is gifted in that he can, in simple language, produce a very exact (and sometimes unflattering) to change, reduce or dismiss the charges or file the case as submitted by the Sanibel Police Department, Sanibel Police Sgt. Lew Phillips said last week.

Albert Hunter, 2133 Periwinkle Way, is charged with the sexual battery of a 15-year-old Sanibel girl. Hunter is alleged to have forced the girl into the woods off Southwinds Drive as she rode her bicycle along Casa Ybel Road.

Police saw the bicycle by the side of the road and investigated the incident. Hunter and the girl came from the woods, where, the girl told police, Hunter had forced the girl to submit to certain sexual acts.

'wired.' So you go out and party or something," she said.

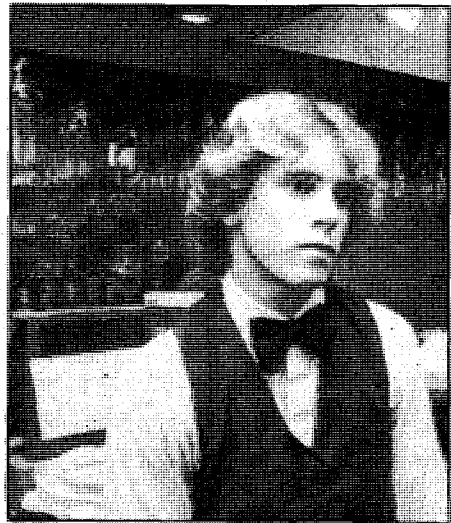

When people have a lot of money they usually spend it, and waitresses who take home $50-$100 a night are no exception. "I know lots of girls who go into Fort Myers and buy $200 worth of clothes in one day," one said. "Everybody shops all the time. You've got the cash in your hands."

"Partying" after a long night on the floor means sleeping until noon and then going to the beach for many Island waiters and waitresses.

Since most are originally from the north, they mentioned the added attraction of the weather on Sanibel and Captiva. Some also said they watch a lot of television. "I just find it relaxing to look at it and not think," Peck said.

Everyone stressed over and over the importance of smiling in the Pat Nixon tradition, who once told then reporter Gloria Steinem, "I might be dying but I certainly would never tell anyone about it." Next to previous experience, Peck, who helps with hiring the day workers at McT's, said she looks for personality in that restaurant's potential personnel.

Eric Vartdal, Timbers

"You have to be 'up' or at least act 'up,'" she said. "These people (customers) are most likely to be vacationing and they want to have a good time. They are paying a lot of money and they don't want to be reminded of anything sad, at least while they're eating."

None of the workers interviewed said they held restaurant ownership as a goal, although some, like Wickham, have education in business and restaurant management.

"Owning a restaurant makes you a 24-hour-a-day slave," one said. "It is extremely confining and very difficult."

As for what local waiters and waitresses serve, fish seems to be the order of the day.

Without exception, all said grouper, shrimp, oysters and shark are more popular than steak or even trout, probably because you can't get them in Akron. Key lime pie is a popular dessert; ice cream is not very sought after.

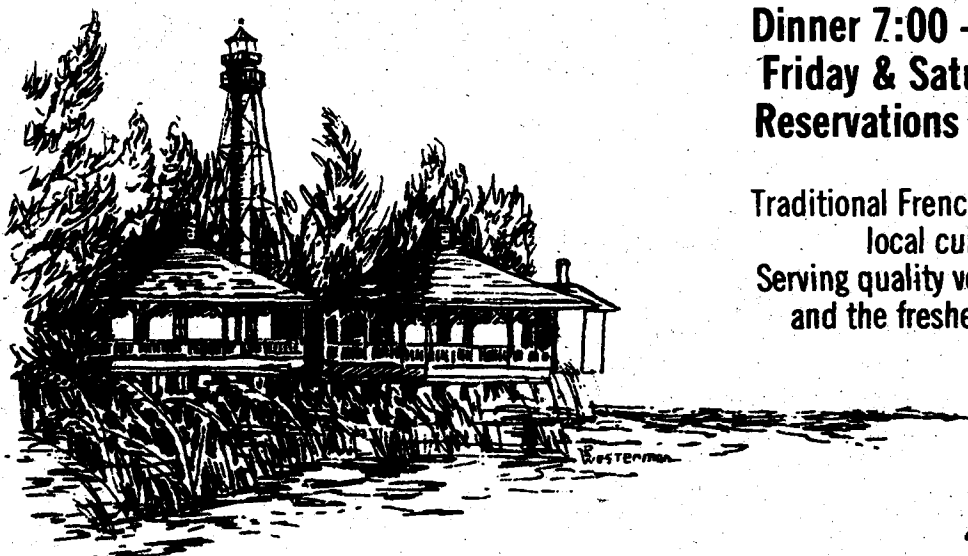

Wickham said sweet tropical drinks such as Pina Coladas and Planters' Punch are popular choices at King's Crown. He also said he serves a lot of White Russians, which contain vodka, kahlua and milk and taste, he said, "something like a chocolate milkshake." Daquiris and old-fashioned are popular with women, he added.

There is considerable variety in the backgrounds of the people who wait tables on Sanibel and Captiva. Randy Wickham is 30. Patty Peck, in her early 20's, is a practical nurse with two years of social sciences in college.

Eric Vartdal, 20, a Minnesota native, attends Edison Community College. Gilda Smith, 34, has studied nutritional science on the college level and worked in a holistic health center for a dentist - the job she is returning to in September. Irene Preston, 50, grew up on a farm in Thomasville, Ga. She is black and has a somewhat different perspective than some of the younger waitresses.

"If I were young now," Preston said, "I know I would want to do something different because of rising costs. This was different years ago. We had our housing provided." (The Island Inn and Tween Waters still provide employee housing).

"We worked all day and at night, too," she smiled. "We were like a family. We had our own dining room and we ate breakfast and supper together. If something needed to be done, we did it. We knew the guests for years and grieved when we heard any had died over the summer."

"I don't think this particular way of life will last," she added. "The young people who come here now will say, 'I'm being paid for doing this and this and that's what I'm going to do.' We just pitched in and did whatever needed doing. I don't think I'd like my daughters to be waitresses all their lives."

"One thing that my husband and I were determined to do was send all our children through high school and college if they wanted to go so they could make more money and have more choices."

"But the people who were our guests were wonderful and Miss (Charlotta) Matthews was a wonderful woman to work for. Her mother (Hallie Matthews, who died at 94 in 1950) had died just a few months before I came here. My husband came and worked here every summer from 1937 or 1938, so he knew her mother well, and loved her. We were just like a big family. There was nobody Miss Matthews trusted like she trusted Roosevelt."

"He was the one who found her the morning she had fallen and broke her hip. Times are different now, but I am not sorry that I have spent my life working here."

Most of the others interviewed, however, said they did not want to spend their lives in their present jobs.

"For me this is a means to an end," Smith said. "I think a lot of people feel the same way. When you get older, this would be a hard life, just physically, being on your feet and running and running."

"What you are doing," she continued though, "and what they often tell you in training sessions, is selling yourself. I know that sounds like the connotation of prostitution, but you are being nice to people in hopes that they will like you and leave you more money."

"There's probably no where else in the U.S. except Sanibel and Captiva where you could have a working vacation like this. But waitressing is a job, not a life."

"When you waitress, you may have a certain lifestyle. But when I go to my apartment" (she lives in an apartment with her two sons, Stephen and Brian) "that is my life, with my sons."

So, waiting on tables on the Islands is as different as the people who do it, although in some ways, it is all the same for everyone.

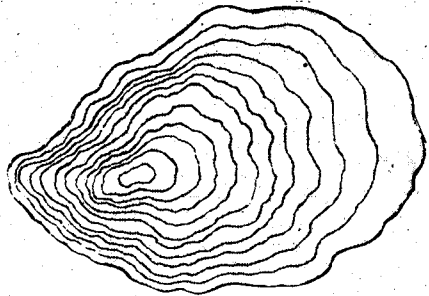

Many are northerners; almost all are young; almost all have some or quite a bit of formal education. All have worked at several restaurants (in nearby Charlotte County, for instance, restaurant turnover is an astounding 1500 percent a year -- meaning on the average, each job is held by 15 different people in a year.)

Waitresses are offended by the obscene remarks of customers, but they try to ignore it. Several mentioned that cooks tend to be very temperamental, and more than one said angry cooks have thrown things at them. All agree you have to be "cool" under pressure and smile no matter what. Everyone gets to be a bit of a "cashaholic."

Probably the one who liked her financial situation best was Smith, who gets a weekly check with a straight 15 percent of all the checks of the tables she served. However, Smith said she also makes from $8 to $15 a day from people who know and like her and leave a little extra.

All the interviewees like waiting on locals, year-around Islanders who get to know them on a personal basis and sometimes get to be quite good friends and may ask specifically for them.

Everyone questioned about it said that many in their profession don't report all their tips for tax purposes. "Cash is cash," said one. "They just waste it in Washington anyway."

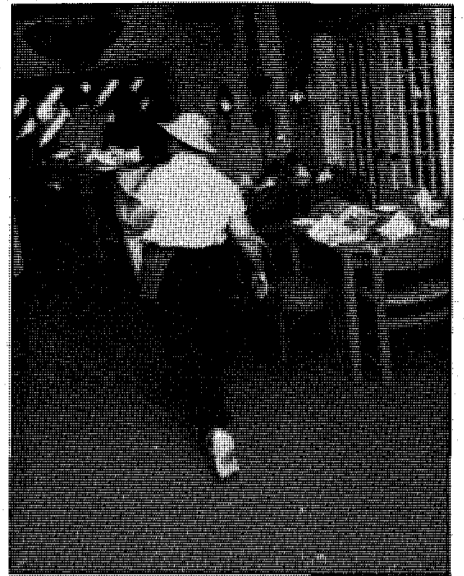

Hourly pay before tips ranges from about $1 an hour to minimum wage ($3.35 an hour).

Some wear uniforms; some wear their own clothes. Most uniforms are not white but consist of skirts and blouses of contrasting colors instead of the "nurse" look. Uniforms are more casual and colorful here, as are the clothes of the customers, said the servitors, because of the weather and resort atmosphere.

Perhaps one local waitress summed it up in a statement that all waitresses, waiters, busboys and salad girls, present and former, can appreciate.

"I'm not just an arm handing you your key lime pie," she stated simply. "I'm a person, too. I hope everyone who reads the story remembers that the next time they go out to dinner."

What in the world... can you do on an island?

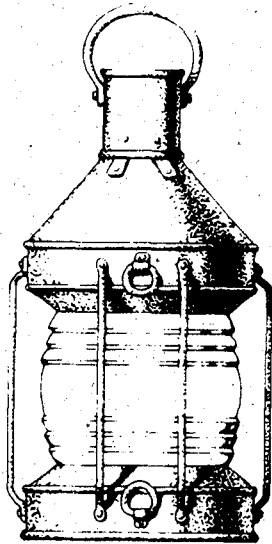

SAFETY HARBOR CLUB

First, you relax — relax as you have never been able to before. Just lay back and enjoy the seclusion that only an out-island can give you.

Then when you do want to do something, deciding may be the hardest part. Swim in the warm Gulf waters, take a sail, look for shells, fish for snook. Just do as you please. Nobody minds. You're on an island.

Safety Harbor Club offers waterfront homesites on the out-island of North Captiva in a setting that is still untrampled by tourists and almost untouched by the outside world.

For boaters, docking facilities will be available and there's easy access to the Gulf of Mexico and the Intercoastal Waterway. Jaunt off to nearby Cabbage Key for dinner if you like. Embarkation points for North Captiva are Captiva Island, Boca Grande or Pine Island.

Safety Harbor Club residents will also enjoy a swimming pool, tennis courts and clubhouse to make the selection of things to do even more varied. Whether you want to be lazy or lively, the decision is yours at Safety Harbor Club.

The 'Ding' Darling Visitors Center Dedication or elegy?

By George Campbell

Illustrated by Ann Winterbotham

If "Ding" Darling were here to see the monstrous "development" at the Wildlife Refuge that bears his name, he would probably be appalled!

On March 2, 1982, the Visitors Center was dedicated. The best that can be said for the ceremony is that it was mercifully brief. Layer upon layer of bureaucracy was present: Don Hankla, area manager from Jacksonville; Jim Pulliam, regional director (Atlanta, I think); Robert Jantzen, Fish and Wildlife Service director, Washington; Ray Arnett, assistant Secretary of the Interior.

Both Pulliam and Jantzen showed up twice on the program. Hankla and Arnett along with Sherry Fisher (representing the J.N. "Ding" Darling Foundation) each appeared once, as did Sanibel's Mayor Porter Goss (who really missed a golden opportunity to urge forward one of his favorite subjects: read on).

There were a few political types, too. Dick Nelson represented his boss Skip Bafalis, our congressman, who, one supposes, was busy in Washington. Nelson spoke of "cherishing the environment," and of "respecting Mother Nature." He said, "Ding Darling would be proud!" The Rev. Bruce Milligan was in charge of the invocation, and his prayer spoke of land "held in trust," of "creative action" and "good stewards."

Jantzen introduced Assistant Secretary Arnett, who was described as being a petroleum geologist, a hunter, a fisherman - and, oh yes, finally, a bird watcher. I suppose you have to watch them in order to take aim and shoot them. Sounds like a great type to be in charge of our National Parks and Wildlife Refuges. Watt qualifications!

He told us that the center "cannot save land." That's certainly true. A lot of land was DESTROYED in order to build the Center. Even the most money-hungry Sanibel developers follow more conservation-oriented land use standards than did the Department of the Interior, which arrogantly ignored Sanibel's high standards as set forth in the Land Use Plan.

I can name a dozen real estate developers within five miles of the Visitor Center that carefully preserved valuable trees and other native vegetation as well as wildlife. At the Visitor Center (and the Equipment Maintenance Center, too) the ground was skinned bare, for the most part, and much valuable vegetation was destroyed.

And the Fish and Wildlife Service people are supposed to be protective of habitat, vegetation and wildlife - that is their supposed dedication.

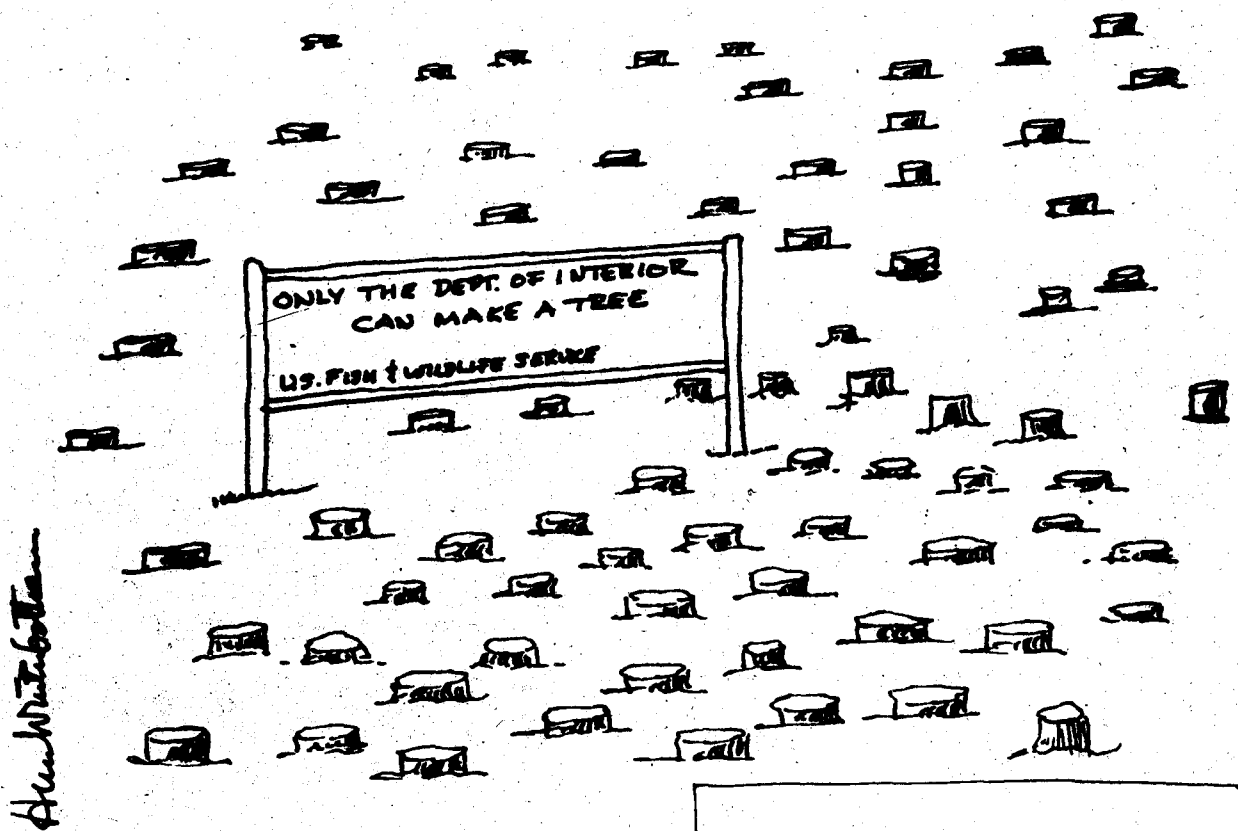

It's ironic that real estate developers who, on the other hand, are dedicated to making lots of money, do a far better preservation job! The Interior Department has a poor performance record on Sanibel. Watt a shame!

Two people were very conspicuous by their absence from the ceremonial proceedings. Refuge Manager Del Pierce was not on the program. Certainly he might have been, for when many of the plans for the Darling Refuge "improvement" were being formulated, some of those speech-making bureaucrats weren't even around, but Del Pierce was. He should rightfully have been present to receive such kudos or criticisms as might be merited. However, he did not "plan" the horrors that have taken place in recent years. Much of that "development" was planned long before he left his beloved mountain country for exile in this alien (to him) tidewater country. Watt was the logic of his omission?

The second omission from the program is really inexcusable: Charles LeBuff. LeBuff has earned the respect and love of all Sanibel citizens and visitors who are concerned with wildlife preservation. In three areas he has excelled:

(1) He was one of the original Sanibel City Council members and was instrumental in writing and getting enacted preservation ordinances that are, in large measure, responsible for the favorable comparison that can be made between conditions on Sanibel Island and the rest of Lee County where many natural values must now be described

First you cut down the forest; then you landscape the bare places?
Watts the idea??

in the past tense.

(2) LeBuff founded Caretta Research and has been, for many years, its guiding light. This fine organization seeks to study and preserve threatened and endangered sea turtles.

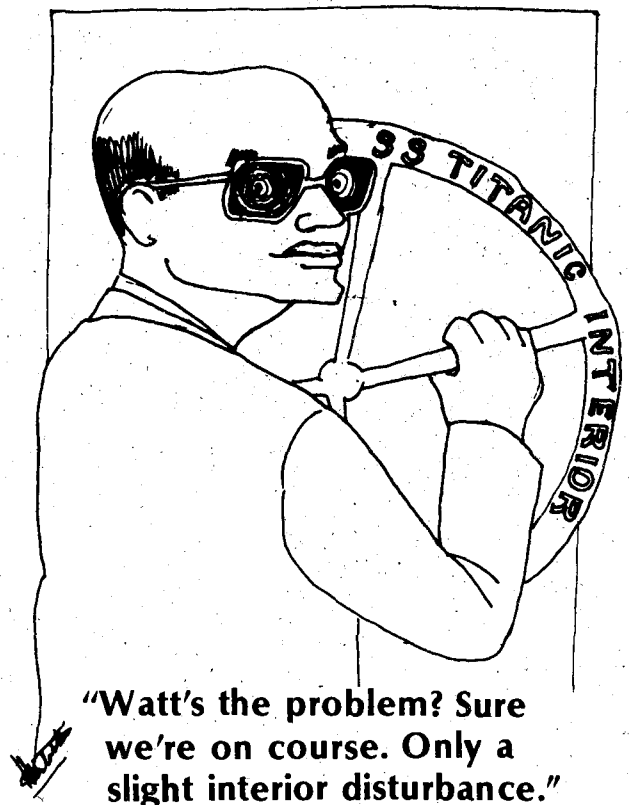

(3) For more than two decades, LeBuff has lent his skills to the Darling Refuge. His knowledge of local flora and fauna and his sense of history and continuity have been of inestimable value to those managers and others who come and go and are soon forgotten. LeBuff should be recognized for the quality of expertise that he has demonstrated - all for the benefit of Sanibel and the Refuge - throughout his long history here. Also, he was one of that tiny minority at the ceremony - the personal friends of "Ding" Darling.

I could speak of other management problems in detail: butchery of mangroves (even Lee County does better in this area!); careless destruction of specimen trees; haphazard scraping and widening of roads; sloppy Brazilian Pepper control in which non-target trees are killed while adjacent Brazilian Pepper is left to grow; bulldozing of Gopher Tortoises and historic Indian sites; bulldozing Pepper when in full seed production, a procedure that guarantees immediate re-seeding; introduction of new alien weeds to the Darling Memorial Drive; native plant destruction in Gasparilla Trail due to the inability of some workers to distinguish between, for example, Gumbo Limbo and Pepper. I could go on and on - the list is endless.

But this started out to be a critique of the poorly-designed, almost exhibitless, energy-inefficient Visitor Center which one architect described as being an example of "Penitentiary Modern." Another called it "Factory Functional."

The ugly building is almost windowless and will be excessively costly to operate in an era when most smart planners are trying to reduce energy needs. This mini-fortress is completely out of place on Sanibel. Far too massively built, on gigantic poured concrete footings, it could appropriately serve only one useful purpose: it could be a hurricane refuge, for it is unlikely to be destroyed by wind or wave.

Mayor Goss overlooked a golden opportunity, during his part of the ceremony, to request that it be declared available for that purpose. When was there likely to be a better opportunity to request that the over-built dinosaur be so designated than when all the bureaucrats and the public were present?

The whole ugly aspect is regrettable. All around the "Penitentiary Modern" structure, there is bare sand. In back is a bare, artificial water hole - as lifeless as a settling pond at Love Canal. Sanibel doesn't need this kind of skeleton in its Attica.

When Sherry Fisher presented 17 original "Ding" Darling etchings to be hung in the Visitor Center, Paul Howe said it all: "Displaying those beautiful pictures in that awful building is like hanging a picture of Christ in a house of ill repute."

As one of Sanibel's civic leaders put it, "This wasn't a dedication, it was an Elegy in a Country Swamp-land."

The second annual Woodmere Preserve tour

Close to 200 people turned out Friday for the second annual memorial botany tour of the Woodmere preserve.

Now owned by Mary Wegmuller and her sister, the land at the end of West Gulf Drive was purchased by their father, Willis Combs, in 1953. Combs died in 1979 and was an ardent environmentalist who worked to preserve the land and its beauty as he first found it.

"We're continuing in dad's tradition of opening it to the public once a year," Wegmuller said.

The tour was held in the memory of Combs and in honor of his wife, Opal, who is presently in a Beacon Manor Nursing Home in Fort Myers.

"They felt their mission was to try to educate the people on the use of native plants," Wegmuller said. "My father's slogan was 'Let it be,'" she added.

About 20 volunteers from the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation were stationed along the trail to identify the more than 100 species of native and exotic plants, some of which are rare and endangered species.

The Woodmere property is a private preserve registered with the Florida Audubon Society.

CROW initiates Island-wide fund drive

By Catherine Battista

One day a great blue heron was found tangled helplessly in some mangrove, both legs ensnared by fishing lines.

The bird was hanging upside down with its head almost submerged by the incoming tide. The bird was exhausted and would have died by drowning and fright.

Fortunately, CROW was called to the rescue. The Care and Rehabilitation of Wildlife, Inc. has one of the most outstanding programs in the country, and the stories like the one above are duplicated every day.

If you are not already a friend of CROW, now is your chance. In the weeks ahead, hundreds of letters carrying the familiar graphic by Molly Ekler, with the lovable raccoon, will make its way into the homes of Sanibel residents.

The first series of letters were sent to existing CROW members and contributors, thanking them for their support during the past year of success.

The second letter will be sent to all Sanibel residents. Some people may in fact receive two letters, but there was no way for the volunteers of CROW to avoid this duplication. Maxene Michl, vice president and spokesperson for CROW, is coordinating the fundraising drive. She apologized for the duplication but it was impossible to prevent.

CROW is supported entirely through donations. It has a small but dedicated staff who often work seven days a week.

You can become an individual member by paying $10 or an associate with a donation of $25 up to the higher brackets such as sponsor for $1,000.

The next time you see the sun coming over the Caloosahatchee River and you see or hear your favorite bird or catch a glimpse of your favorite small animal in its natural habitat, you can take satisfaction in knowing that you may have helped them be there.

Checks should be made payable to CROW, P.O. Box 150, Sanibel 33957, or contact Michl, 472-4562. All dues and contributions are tax deductible.

REFUGE REPORT

By Charles LeBuff Jr.
Biological Technician
Ding Darling Wildlife Refuge

Once again it is time for an upsurge in the number of dead sea turtles that float in on the beaches of Sanibel and Captiva and other coastal areas.

Warming water temperatures signal a return of migrant turtles. These wide-ranging animals arrive in our area as transients simply passing through as regular summer residents or breeding adults that remain for about 90 days before they move on.

As the local loggerhead turtle population starts this seasonal increase, individuals are imperiled because of interaction with the commercial fishing industry — more specifically the shrimping fleet. Slow-moving loggerheads that are asleep on the bottom or feeding in advance of an approaching trawl net are caught up in the apparatus.

Should their accidental capture occur early in a drag, which can last three hours, the turtles are hauled to the vessel's deck comatose. Unless action is taken by the seamen to resuscitate the turtles before dumping them overboard, they drown.

Mouth-to-mouth resuscitation is not called for, but the Endangered Species Act and Florida Statutes require that a CPR technique be employed in an attempt to revive sea turtles. The turtles may be turned upside down and have their plastron (lower shell) pumped by foot pressure or angled upside down (rear of shell high) to allow water to drain. Both methods often prove successful and the turtles are returned to the water alive.

When no revival attempt is made, the unconscious turtles are thrown overboard and do not recover. Many of those that die end up as stranded carcasses on our beaches.

We can expect dead turtles to start appearing by mid-month and continue infrequently until summer.

Anyone finding a dead sea turtle on the beach is asked to immediately report the observation to the J.N. "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge, 472-1100, or the Sanibel Police Department if after hours or on weekends.

People are cautioned that the Endangered Species Act provides penalties for any collecting of sea turtle parts such as shells or skulls. The dead animals may only be handled or removed by persons authorized to do so.

The loss to the marine turtle population is critical to their survival. In 1980, 1,800 dead turtles washed upon beaches along the Southeastern U.S. coast; in 1981, about 900 specimens shared the same fate. When we consider that only about 30,000 mature female loggerhead turtles occur in the Western Atlantic, the statistics are frightening to those of us concerned with the survival of this species.

To counter the demise of so many sea turtles, the National Marine Fisheries Service has developed a Turtle Exclude Device that fits inside the mouth of the shrimp trawl. It is constructed of a bar-like angled partition that has a trap door at its base. When sufficient predetermined pressure (weight of a turtle or other heavy organisms) is forced against the door, it opens and the object is ejected from the net. Tests have shown that the device is practical.

In the not too distant future, federal regulations will be developed that will require use of the device in shrimping operations and will shorten the time length that nets can be submerged.

"It's going to be a very good year for ospreys," said Mark "Bird" Westall, who monitors the nesting activities of this great bird. Of the 45 occupied nests on Sanibel and Captiva, 33 are presently active with young either hatched or on the way.

Chamber sponsors sunset tour of refuge by trolley

The Sanibel-Captiva Chamber of Commerce will sponsor the first Sunset Tour of the J.N. "Ding" Darling Wildlife Refuge via a Sanibel trolley this Friday evening, March 26.

Island wildlife artist and tour guide George Weymouth will guide the tour and introduce participants to the roseate spoonbills and other residents of the sanctuary as they prepare to roost for the night.

The tour trolley will leave at 4 p.m. from the chamber office on Causeway Road. Tickets are $5 per person.

Refuge needs volunteers to man desk

The J.N. "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge is looking for a few volunteers to assist at the information desk in the new visitor center.

As of March 23, the refuge is losing its YACC program and with it the staff that has answered questions for the close to 600 visitors to the center each day.

Anyone who is interested in helping the refuge in this way should call the refuge, 472-1100, or stop by the center on the Wildlife Drive between 7:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Lions Club news

By D.E. Cooperrider

The Sanibel-Captiva Lions Club held its regular meeting on March 17 at the Sanibel Community Building with a large number of visitors including those from three mainland clubs and one international visitor from Krakery Norway.

The visitor from Norway was Odd Vegard, who brought with him as a gift from the Lions Club of Krakery to the Sanibel Club a spirit lamp that is called "The Lamp of Life" in Norway. This was greatly appreciated by Sanibel-Captiva Lions.

The mainland visitors were from clubs in Fort Myers Beach, Cape Coral and South Fort Myers.

Club representatives discussed the present status of regional and state projects and goals that are to be met in fund-raising and service within each community.

There was also discussion of the issues that are to be voted upon at the State Convention at Clearwater. This convention will be held May 6-8, and several Island Lions will attend with their wives. The incoming president of the Sanibel-Captiva Club will attend a president's school, which is an annual event of this organization.

The next meeting of the Sanibel-Captiva Lions Club will be held at 6:30 p.m. March 24 at the Sanibel Community Association. This meeting will be a make-up meeting for the meeting that was not held because of conflict with the Sanibel Shell Fair.

Beef donated to camp

The Lion's Club packed up 700 lbs. of beef last Friday and delivered it to its Camp for the Visually Handicapped in Lake Wales.

Donated by Lion Francis Bailey, who purchased the 1,180-pound Southwest Florida Grand Champion steer for $7,300, the prized bull will be served to youngsters at the year-round camp.

"It's a heck of a good deal for the kids at the camp for the visually handicapped," said camp committee member Lynn Rogers. Rogers and Lions Bob Dormer and Bob Morris transported the beef to the camp in Norwood Melcher's van, borrowed for the occasion.

ABWA raffle winners named, helpers thanked Jerri Magg, coordinator for the ABWA-SCC raffle that was held at the Dunes Country Club on March 11, offers her congratulations to the winners and a note of thanks to all who helped make the raffle a success.

Magg said $1,400 was raised by the raffle and will be donated to the Sanibel Elementary School to go toward the purchase of a much needed copy machine.

"I want to offer my special thanks to the Island businesses that allowed tickets to be sold in their shops," Magg said. These include Tuesday's Child, The Beehive and the Song of the Sea Motel.

"Special thanks must go to Barbara Toomey and other members of the PTO who gave us a great deal of assistance," she added.

Francis Bailey and Mariel Goss were among the raffle winners. Other winners included Mary Wegemuller, Michael Halvern, Jess Locicero, Evelyn Guenthen and Marjorie Fleischer.

A special note of thanks to Bailey's for allowing us to set up a table to sell tickets in their parking lot.

Community Association annual membership meeting planned

The 1982 Board of Directors of the Sanibel Community Association will be elected at the association's annual membership meeting on Friday, April 16.

Nominees for this year's board are Mike Klein, Urban Palmer, Bud Bernhard, Joe Feeney and Art Ford. Klein and Palmer have been nominated as new members of the board. Bernhard, Feeney and Ford have been serving on the board as appointees filling unexpired terms and have been nominated for full terms.

Nominations can also be made from the floor at the membership meeting.

Police Recreation Club presents check to graduate

The Sanibel Police Recreation Club recently presented a check for $100 to the outstanding graduate of the Southwest Florida Police Academy.

This year's recipient was Michael Dolan of the Collier County Sheriff's Department. Dolan graduated from the academy last Wednesday night, March 17. He was voted his class' most outstanding student by his instructors and his fellow students.

Sanibel Police Officer Jack Primm is a past recipient of the distinction. Sgt. Ray Rhodes is an instructor in the academy program.

Play ball!

Little League season underway

Island Little League baseball is under way once again this year, and eager youngsters have turned out to play ball under the direction of Dick Muench and a coaching staff of volunteer parents.

"Yeah, it's fun," said Astro Tommy Powell as his team played for its first victory against the Angels on Saturday morning.

"I like it," Astro third baseman Eric Tishler said about his position at the hot corner. "You get to talk to the other players and distract them," he said. "I've been hit three times," he added, proud of his beanings.

Little League baseball continues this week with play on Tuesday evening and Saturday morning at the field at the Sanibel Elementary School.

Captran selects beach motel for race headquarters

Gearing up for what has been described by Captran President Keith Trowbridge as "a major international sporting event," Captran has selected the Lani Kai Island Resort on Fort Myers Beach as the Race Control Headquarters for its International Offshore Powerboat Regatta set for May 22. The Gulf-front resort will serve as the start and finish line for the race, which will run ¼ mile offshore to Bonita Beach, then to Blind Pass on Sanibel and along Sanibel's beach back to the Lani Kai.

More than 60 boats in four classes are expected to compete for the $50,000 in prize money. Class I boats will make three laps past the resort; smaller class boats will make two passes.

The race is sponsored by Captran and sanctioned by the American Power Boat Association Offshore Racing Commission as one of the 10 annual approved races throughout the nation.

The two weeks preceding the race will be filled with several other sports tournaments, social events, parades, a beauty pageant and other special events, Trowbridge said. Up to 250,000 boaters and racing enthusiasts are expected in the area for the event, he added.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

BIG Arts annual show scheduled for April 3

The eyes of Showkit (that's Show Business and Kitchen Business) will be on Sanibel next Saturday night, April 3, when at 5:30 p.m. the doors open, the cash bar opens and the trumpets herald the beginning of the Barrier Island Group for the Artists Third Annual Saturday Super Supper Show.

Many of your favorites will be back plus a whole new crop of stars. Fran Levy, show director, feels this year will be the best yet. The show on stage is only part of the evening since a condition of admission is that you bring a dish to serve six. If last year was any indication of gourmet cooks, this year should produce a banquet for everyone.

Remember, bar opens at 5:30; dinner at 6:30; show at 8 p.m. Admission is by a dish to serve six plus $5 for non-BIG Arts members.

BIG Arts will supply plates, flatware, tables, chairs, prizes and coffee.

Guests supply a dish for six, a serving utensil and money.

See you at TASSSS-82.

Talent director Levy seeking performers for TASSSS-82

BIG Arts Third Annual Super Supper Show talent search director Fran Levy is still accepting calls from Island talent to appear on stage in person at the Sanibel Community Association. Participants will appear under the bright lights to enjoy the roar of the crowd and the smell of the greasepaint on the night of nights when all Sanibel plus a few more gather to feast on their own gourmet creations and cheer their own top local talent.

Call Fran now, 472-3526, any evening after 5 p.m. to make the March 31 rehearsal date. Hurry, time is running out. This may be the big break you have been waiting for.

Be a part of TASSSS-82. It will be a great night.

Community Church plans yard, bake sale

A Yard and Bake Sale will be held at the Sanibel Community Church this Saturday, March 27, from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Good used clothing, books, "white elephants" including a variety of household items, and baked goods of various kinds will be offered for sale by the guild of the church.

An invitation is extended to all Island residents and visitors to stop by the church on Saturday during the hours of the sale.

Horseshoe tournament set for Sunday

The Fourth Annual Horseshoe Tournament at the Sanibel-Captiva American Legion Post 123 is planned for next Sunday, April 4, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the legion on San-Cap Road.

Twenty-four teams will compete in the double elimination play. Registration is $10. Sign up at the legion. There will be cash prizes, food and drink.

For more information call the legion, 472-9979.

ABWA sponsors flea market

Antique shoppers, bargain hunters and treasure seekers will have an opportunity to get their adrenalin glands pumping when the Sanibel-Captiva chapter of the American Business Woman's Association sponsors its Fourth Annual Oldy But Goody Flea Market.

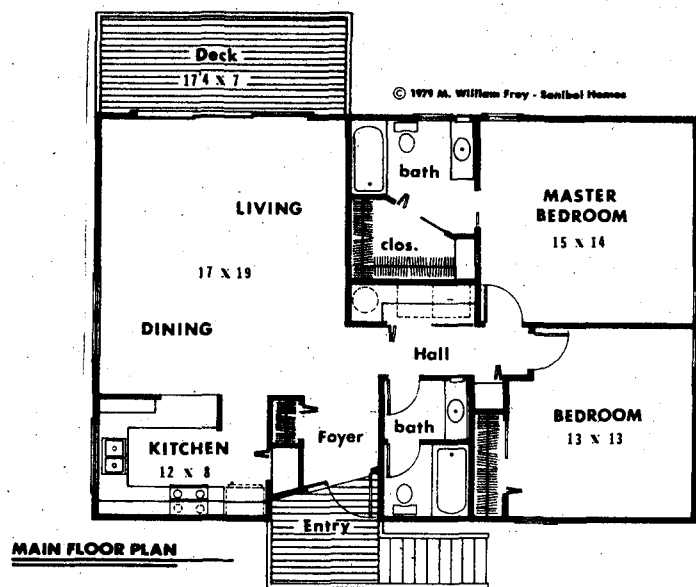

The indoor event will take place at the Sanibel Community Association from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, March 28. Baked goods, miscellaneous bric-a-brac, household items and goods from several Island businesses will be for sale.

Pat Slater, ABWA Ways and Means chairman and coordinator for the event, said this year's flea market will be even better than the last. Some of the Island businesses that have reserved tables include Tiffany Parlor, the Book Nook and Betty's Bounty.

"We are still taking reservations for tables," Slater said. "I am sure there will be many others." Last year's participants included Idle Hours, Art Fac, Dugger's Ceramics, Shirt Factory, Tennis Anyone, Thetan Crafts, CROW and the Black Pearl.

A 2x8 table can be rented for $35, which will go toward the ABWA Scholarship Program. Any organization, individual or business wishing to mix business with pleasure should call Slater, 472-2220, for further information.

"The common denominator for people who attend this flea market is the probability that they will find a real treasure. Who knows," she said. "Anything is possible."

Consider this compact 2 bedroom, 2 bath, elevated home for your island needs. The basic Dorchester, with an enclosed lower level, is $60,200 on your lot. Numerous custom options are available. As part of its Friday night cultural series, The Photographers' Gallery presents the On the Waterfront at the gallery, 1554 Periwinkle Way, at 7 p.m. this Friday, March 26.

The 1954 classic stars Marlon Brando as a confused dock worker on the New York City waterfront who is torn apart by his inability to reconcile the emotional traumas of love and hate and death. The film is a masterful telling of the union strife among the dockside workers.

Co-stars include Karl Malden, Rod Steiger and Lee J. Cobb, with music by Leonard Bernstein.

that special island known as Sanibel. To all of us it represents the best of what nature has to offer. To us it means keeping within the design of nature. At ferry landing we mean to lay man's mark very gently within the existing environment.

To be sure, ferry landing is intended only for those few who truly believe in Sanibel, in its special place in the sun and its extraordinary lifestyle. Simply, those who do not understand what our Island means will not be invited to live at ferry landing.

Created and overseen by Island architect Ray Fenton, the low density hamlet will be exactly that... low density. Less than a score of homes will be erected. It is designed in the style for which Mr. Fenton is noted.

Located on the Bay, within sight of the Lighthouse, ferry landing is being finalized now. And there will not be more than six buyers allowed, per year, to participate in this, the last of Sanibel's Bayfront residential enclaves.

Today would be a perfect day to lay your claim to this special involvement. Call for your appointment today.

Tomorrow simply might be too late.

Shopping

Sanibel is a veritable shopper's paradise. Tasteful boutiques and casual Island shops join forces to present visitors with everything and anything a vacation shopper could hope for.

At the Lighthouse (Eastern) end of the Island, Punta Ybel Plaza and the Sea Horse Shops are right across the street from one another, providing a variety of products that can cure your sweet tooth or tickle your shell finder's fancy. Need a good haircut or coiffure? You can get it in either of these shopping centers.

Most businesses open at 10 a.m. and close at 5:30 p.m. This holds true for many Island stores, although some are open evenings during the winter season.

Tall Australian Pines shade Periwinkle Way and the shopper travels west along this main thoroughfare. This stretch of road is truly a shopper's paradise!! It's all here -- the fast and not-so-fast eating spots, casual and elegant boutiques, hand-wrought jewelry, craft designs, shell shops and balms for health product fanatics.

Watch to your right and left as you drive or cycle along. Photographic supplies, bait and tackle, deli foods, fresh seafood and baked goods, knick-knacks and what-nots can all be found along the drive to the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road. Along the way, shopping centers such as the Heart of the Islands, Periwinkle Place and Tahitian Gardens offer a variety of Island delights. Palm Ridge Road, the Periwinkle Way turn-off to Captiva, offers several shopping centers featuring everything from imports to gift shops for the discriminating shopper, plants and shells, a sandwich shop, ice cream parlors, pizza parlor, boutique shop and the Island Apothecary pharmacy. At the Tarpon Bay-Periwinkle Way intersection, the Island

Shopping Center features the Island's only supermarket and movie house.

A left on Tarpon Bay Road takes the visitor past Sanibel's original schoolhouse, which now holds original Island water-colors and woodcuts.

Then on to West Gulf Drive and westward to an interesting little artisan shop and gallery.

At the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road, you may choose instead to turn right and follow the signs to the Tarpon Bay marina, where you will find a cluster of quaint shops overlooking the back bay. Some antiques, shells and shellcrafts, what-nots and clever clothes can be found here, as well as a great seafood sandwich and soft drinks.

The spectacular ride Captiva, with its lush foliage, enchanting view of the Gulf, well worth a day's outing. Talented artists display their works in one roadside shop, while others feature some nifty gifts for Grandma to take home to little hands as a pleasant hodge-podge of remembrances from these barrier islands.

Whether for shopping or merely browsing, Island shops offer a surprising variety from one-of-a-kind collectibles for the discerning shopper to postcards for the simple souvenir hunter. And of course, for all, shells -- shell jewelry, shell lamps, just plain shells -- the most beautiful shells in the world from the most beautiful shelling beaches in the world.

CAMPING, BEACH FIRES

Camping on the beach is prohibited, as are open beach fires.

An exemption to the beach fire ordinance is a fire in an approved cooking container (not to exceed 48" x 24" x 12" deep) with an extruded metal grill for non-commercial food preparation. This type of container will be allowed on the beach without a permit.

After you have had your beach party, it is recommended that you assume the responsibility for cleaning up any debris or litter in your area.

BICYCLING

If you aren't used to a lot of bicycle traffic, watch out on Sanibel. The extensive network of bike paths on the island is clearly marked along the edge of the road.

Observe caution when driving near the bike path. A state law and city ordinance combine to prohibit parking or driving on the bike path. Mopeds are not permitted on the bike paths.

Planning on spending some time on a bike to enjoy the island sun and sights! Make sure your vehicle is equipped with a bike flag, horn, good brakes and a light for night riding.

Under Florida law, bicycle riders have the same rights and responsibilities as motor vehicle drivers.

Drive safely!

DOGGY DO'S AND DON'TS

If you are visiting Sanibel with the family Fido in tow, all the better. All family members can enjoy Southwest Florida sun and surf.

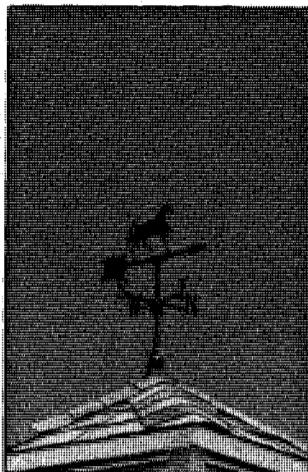

The Chamber of Commerce can tell you what accommodations are available for families with pets.

Remember: Wherever you are, clean up after your pet! "Leave nothing on the beach but footprints" applies to dogs, too.

There's no leash law on Sanibel, but of course an excitable or unruly animal is better off when controlled with a leash.

SHELLING

The city's resolution limiting the taking of live shells to two live shells per species per person is one to be scrupulously obeyed. As a matter of fact, in order to preserve Sanibel's beautiful shelling beaches, most collectors refuse to take any live shells whatsoever.

FISHING

While no license is required for saltwater fishing, fishing in freshwater ponds or the Sanibel River requires a Florida fishing license.

Licenses are available at P-iley's General Store on Winkle Way. The fee is $6.50 residents and $10.50 for non-residents.

	Minimum Legal Lengths
Blue Fish	10 inches
Flounder	11 inches
Grouper	12 inches
Mackerel	12 inches
Mullet	12 inches
Pompano	10 inches
Red Fish	12 inches
Snook	18 inches
Trout	12 inches

SPEED LIMITS

There is very good reason for the varying speed limits (20-30 mph) along the Causeway. The slower speeds preserve the bridge supports from strain and stress.

This speed limit is strictly enforced with radar on a 24-hour basis by both the Sanibel Police Department and the Lee County Sheriff's Department.

GATORS

Feeding alligators anywhere within the Sanibel city limits is not only illegal, but can be extremely dangerous.

Alligators can run up to 45 mph, so if you are close enough to feed an alligator, he is close enough to feed on you. An alligator fed for fun loses his natural fear of humans and becomes a potential threat to children and pets.

For removal of a nuisance alligator, call the following representative of the Southwest Florida Alligator Association. They are licensed and have permits to legally handle gators: George Campbell, 472-2825; Steve Phillips, 472-2329; Mark Westall, 472-5128; or George Weymouth, 472-5128.
