Mysterious manatee deaths continue

By Peggy Dailey

The gentle and threatened manatees are rapidly becoming more threatened. "They seem to be dying like flies," said an official of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in Gainesville late last week.

The sea mammals, which are estimated to number in total about 1,000, began dying mysteriously in early February. Since then more than 35 dead manatees have been found in Lee County alone.

Between Monday, March 28, and Friday, April 2, five were discovered dead and two were reported to be in severe respiratory distress, which usually precedes death. One washed up off Sanibel in Tarpon Bay last Monday, two were found dead in Cape Coral on Thursday, and two died in the Fort Myers area. In addition, there was an unconfirmed (according to the Marine Patrol in Fort Myers just before they closed Friday) report of another manatee death on Friday.

The aquatic mammals share characteristics with whales, porpoises and elephants, all of which are related to the manatee. The shy and retiring creatures are slow swimmers, and until very recently one of the main causes of their deaths was collisions with the propellers of pleasure boat motors. This appears to have diminished somewhat very recently with wide publicity advising boaters to be

The Rocks residents hear Neighborhood Watch program

By Barbara Brundage

More than 150 members of the Sanibel Rocks Civic Association turned out last Wednesday night to learn how to "beat the burglar" with the establishment of a Neighborhood Crime Watch.

Residents of the area along West Gulf Drive between the West Wind Inn and the Woodmere Preserve and along Rabbit Road south of the Sanibel River listened to a presentation by Sanibel Police Department Crime Prevention Officer Jack Primm.

It was the first general membership meeting of the Rocks Association in seven years, President Carter Leslie said. The 277-member civic group was founded in 1965 "to preserve the ambience" of the single-family area, he said.

Sponsored by the Police Department, Neighborhood Watch (Sanibel's version of Citizen's Crime Watch) is already working in other Island neighborhoods, Primm said. It is funded by the state's Help Stop Crime program.

A film on residential burglary pointed out ways to make homes more secure, and island locksmith Tom Holtz displayed both good and bad locks.

Deadbolt locks are best to secure homes, Holtz said. "But an unlocked door is no careful of the endangered animals.

A number of ecologically-oriented societies have become interested in saving the manatees, including the Audubon Society, and great amounts of money are being spent in an effort to discover the mysterious manatee killer, which at first was thought to be a type of pneumonia.

According to those who are working on the manatee mystery, including Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Center Manager Steve Phillips, Sgt. Ross Eismenger of the Marine Patrol in Fort Myers, and Cathy Beck, a biological technician with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in Gainesville who assisted with the necropsy of the manatee found on Sanibel last Monday, the mammals are fascinating and it will be a great loss to everyone if they become extinct.

The manatee's scientific names is trichechus manatus, and they are found only in the peninsula of Florida and southern Georgia. They are members of a little studied order called Sirenia, which originally contained four species of manatee and another sea mammal called a dugong.

One species of manatee, called Steller's sea cow, was discovered in 1741 in the Bering Sea in the Arctic but was efficiently exterminated by man within 25 years, apparently by sailors on fur-hunting expeditions.

Manatees are invariably described as "gentle."

"They are one of the few creatures who apparently have no natural enemies. No larger sea-creatures, such as whales or sharks, prey on them. They, in turn, prey on no one," Eismenger explained.

Manatee Hotline: 1-800-342-1821

"They eat vegetable matter -- a tremendous amount, perhaps 50 pounds a day," he added. "For this reason, they are helpful in keeping waterways from getting clogged by seaweeds."

Manatees eat six to eight times a day in feeding sessions that last up to two hours. However, they are not creatures of regular habits.

When it is cold, they can rest on the bottom of a river or spring for up to 10 hours. They are sub-tropical creatures, and the largest population of them in Florida (more than 300) is found in Lee County because here is some of the warmest water in the state.

During the winter months they stay around factory areas and electric plants, where the water is warmer than normal.

Manatees are "shy," and that is why until recently not much was known about them. They spend a lot of time alone but do get together and "play." During "courtship" several males may court the same estrous (fertile) manatee for more than a month. There is a strong bond between mother and calf.

When the animals play, they kiss (touch mouths -- they are very particular about keeping their mouths and teeth clean), nudge, nuzzle and embrace. In spite of their reputation for being shy, manatees have been known to get curious and "kiss" human divers.

The gestation period for the manatee is around five months, although the exact length of manatee pregnancy is not known. Life spans are believed to go up to 50 years, and there are captive manatees known to be in their late 20's.

They are exuberant at times and somewhat intelligent, as befits relatives of the porpoise. A famous manatee living near Miami was so tame it would roll over and have its thick, gray, rough and wrinkled belly scratched.

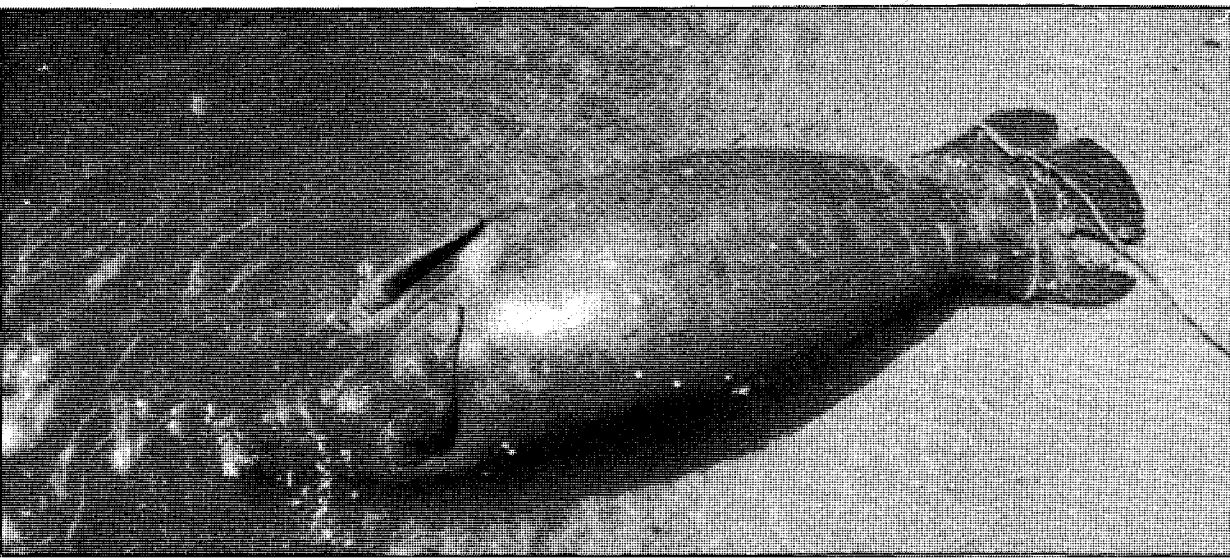

Manatee calves stay with their mothers for up to two years, during which time they are suckled. Then they enter an intermediate stage, sub-adult. According to Beck in Gainesville, who assisted at the necropsy of the male manatee found on Sanibel near Tarpon Bay Road last Monday, the manatee was an "adolescent" -- not a calf, but not sexually mature. Beck also said the animal was very fresh and had not been dead for more than a day.

The manatee was cut apart here after it was quickly frozen. Portions were flown to Gainesville. Samples of blood, tissue and body fluids were sent to various labs across the state, but no results were available as of Friday.

One suspect in the deaths, a tiny organism called the sea squirt, which the manatees eat and which may be contaminated by the red tide, has been found in the gastrointestinal tracts of "many of the dead manatees," Beck said.

"That it is the squirts that are doing this is only a working guess," said Eismenger.

In conclusion, the manatees are happy, shy but friendly and have no enemies. They are smart and in captivity can learn tricks and play games -- but they are not as smart

A crowd gathered at the Cape Coral Yacht Club last Thursday when this manatee washed up near the pier. Like more than 30 other manatees this year, the gentle sea cow was a victim of a plague that still has scientists and biologists baffled, although they do suspect a combination of sea squirts and the red tide in the rash of manatee deaths. Photos by David Meardon.

whales or porpoises.

Sexually, the males are always the aggressors, and the females appear mildly annoyed by such aggression. They breed all year long.

When excited, happy or sexually aroused, manatees may squeal, squeak and chirp. When they are frightened, they may scream. However, they do not appear to have a "language" such as dolphins do.

"People are concerned about this not because manatees have nice personalities or would make good pets or something," Eismenger said. "They are concerned because these are large mammals and it would definitely be bad ecologically if this important animal became extinct. It's not like a plant or an insect or something."

"It would be as if elephants were going to become extinct -- it is a blow to the system," he added. "It is a sign that something is wrong."

Only 75 years ago the air was "black" with passenger pigeons during migration seasons. There were so many no one was careful, and they were shot and shot and shot -- now they're all gone.

At the time of the death of the last passenger pigeon, in a zoo around 1935, a journalist wrote, "When a creature becomes extinct, heaven and earth must pass away and there must be a new universe before we ever see another one."

Anyone who sees a dead manatee or one that appears to be having difficulty breathing or is in distress for any reason should report the sighting as soon as possible by calling (toll-free) 1-800-342-1821.

Much of the raw statistical information in this story came from a book supplied by Steve Phillips. Ecology and Behavior of the Manatee in Florida by Dr. Daniel Hartman is available in the reference library of the Conservation Center for those who would like more information about the gentle, endangered manatee.

County Commission to hear renourishment request

By Cindy Chalmers

The Lee County Commission this Wednesday afternoon will consider a request from the Captiva Erosion Prevention District to approve the district's plans for renourishing 17,000 feet of Captiva's beach.

The district asked for the approval from the county at last week's regular commission meeting, but the County Commissioners said they would not endorse the project before it was discussed at a public hearing.

"You are asking us to say this (renourishment) is fine when we are not sure," Commissioner Mike Roeder, who represents Captiva and Sanibel on the county board, said. "It's putting the cart before the horse."

Roeder and his fellow commissioners said they would like to see more detailed results of the biological monitoring that is taking place at the borrow site of the South Seas Plantation renourishment project that was completed last fall. Sand for that renourishment was dredged from Redfish Pass, which is one of four sites proposed for the CEPD renourishment.

Interim reports indicate the Redfish Pass borrow site is recovering from the dredging, but the commissioners want more statistics from the state Department of Environmental Regulations and Department of Natural Resources.

Roeder did say, however, that he personally thinks renourishment of Captiva's beaches would be for the good of the public.

"There is a serious problem with erosion out there," he said. "If we don't renourish, then the whole Island will be rip-rapped.

Then we would go to seawalls, and we all know that won't work."

Even if the County Commission does endorse the renourishment proposal, Roeder said it would be up to the CEPD on the local level to determine how the project would be financed. The environmental significance of the project should be determined at the state level, he added.

At their regular meeting on Monday, the CEPD commissioners agreed that they would immediately begin negotiations with Roeder and County Administrator Lavon Wisher to secure more county funds for the renourishment project.

CEPD Commissioner Lloyd Wright, who heads the district's Finance Committee, called the county's offer of $70,000 a year for the renourishment "miserly."

CEPD Chairman Dick Butze was in Tallahassee last week and told the commissioners on Monday he had received assurance from the state Department of Natural Resources that $710,000 will be available if and when the project gets underway.

Butze also announced that Gov. Bob Graham has accepted Commissioner John Oster's resignation from the CEPD. He said Ed Manthei, a Captiva newcomer, intends to run for the governor-appointed position along with Captivan Peg Hofschneider.

The public hearing on the CEPD request will be heard sometime after 3:45 p.m. Wednesday at the regular County Commission meeting in the Lee County Courthouse in downtown Fort Myers.

deterrent to a burglar," Primm pointed out.

Be sure patio and garage doors are locked, he said, adding if the doors are electrically operated the devices should be unplugged when the house is not occupied.

Other tips Primm suggested for burglar proofing homes include: putting a peephole in solid wood doors to allow insiders to see who is outside without opening the door; lighting the outside of the house as well as the interior when away; trimming shrubbery that might conceal an intruder and planting yuccas or similar vegetation under windows or other entry ways.

Burglar alarm systems do help, Primm acknowledged, because the noise they make usually scares intruders away.

Lt. Ray Rhodes reminded the home owners that the Police Department offers a free vacation check service that insures an officer will check doors and windows of empty houses once a week.

Either Rhodes or Primm will, at a homeowner's request, visit a house, make a security check and suggest steps for maximum protection from break-ins.

Operation Identification is another important phase of Neighborhood Watch.

To help police identify stolen property, residents are urged to mark their valuables with their drivers license number using an electric etching tool available at the Sanibel Police Department. During a security check the officers will mark property for residents. Do not mark your valuables with your Social Security number, they cautioned.

Home owners are also encouraged to inventory and photograph their valuables and file the list with the Sanibel police.

But the best deterrent to home burglary is Neighborhood Watch, "with 8,000 pairs of eyes on the lookout for suspicious persons," Rhodes said.

Jim Fox is the coordinator for organizing the Rocks in blocks of 10 to 15 homes. Block leaders will establish lines of communications through a telephone network.

"We also hope to tie this into the Emergency Preparedness Evacuation Relief Team (EPERT) program and be able to alert the entire Island to an evacuation ordered during an emergency," Primm explained.

But the Police Department's primary need is for the help of citizens in preventing home burglaries by reporting any suspicious actions in their neighborhoods.

"We want you to call us and not feel dumb if it turns out to be a false alarm," Rhodes said. "It is worth nine false alarms to catch one crime in progress."

About 50 percent of the burglaries on Sanibel are in the daytime, Rhodes said.

Signs identifying a neighborhood as protected by Neighborhood Watch are available from the city. The first sign is free of charge; others will be installed for $48.50 each, Primm said.

Operation Identification stickers are also available to identify homes in which valuables have been marked.

Property stolen from Sanibel residents last year totalled $243,000, Rhodes said, adding that about 43 percent of the stolen goods were recovered.

Minnesota visitor applauds paper

To the Editor
The Islander

Have been on vacation but most of the time at St. Petersburg Beach. Already we have made arrangements to come down next year and will stay on Sanibel the whole time. We love it. This includes two sons, one is married, and my wife. Probably another son and his wife due in from France in May. Am a great reader of newspapers and buy several each day.

Have looked forward to The Islander more than any of the newspapers. The first time we bought it I told Alice to be sure and pick up tomorrow's copy and was disappointed when she said it was a weekly. So pleased to get the latest copy.

Then to my surprise an article on the first page of Section B about the Bean Tree in our front yard. Have been asking so many people about this tree and getting so little information. Will you tell George Campbell how much I enjoyed the article. Also tell Ann Winterbotham that was a good illustration.

Am taking the newspaper home with me to share with my friends, wishing that Duluth or Minneapolis put out such a paper.

Again, your well-edited newspaper made my visit very enjoyable.

See you next year.

Sincerely

Allan Kosak

Barn owl box owners encourage fellow box owners

An open letter

To all 49 barn owl box owners

Do not be discouraged! You too may soon have a barn owl in your box. You may also have two young ones peeking out in the opening!

If you look out this evening you may find a female and her young ones gravely observing you. That is what happened to us.

Last week our new neighbor, Jerry Capuano, said, "I think you have little barn owls in the box on your house."

We do not know Jerry very well since he is a new neighbor, but we have the impression he is an honest man. In spite of that we said, "Prove it." Jerry marched us up his steps onto his porch and pointed triumphantly. There we saw an adult owl and two downy chicks!!!!

So you should not give up hope. In fact you may already be the proud grandparents to an owl family.

The best time to look is in the afternoon after sunset. We would be delighted to hear from anyone else who is a proud host to an owl family.

Resident promotes two newspapers

To the Editor
The Islander

Everyone ought to subscribe to two newspapers in order to get what might be called well-balanced, stereophonic news. Two stories in the current issues of the local newspapers furnish a fine illustration.

Terry Osinski, in the Island Reporter, tells us that, "With average annual rents ranging between $500 and $700 per month and the minimum wage at $3.35 an hour, the island's labor force struggles to make ends meet."

And Peggy Dailey, in the Islander, informs us that, "When people have a lot of money they usually spend it, and waitresses who take home $50-$100 a night are no exception. 'I know lots of girls who go into Fort Myers and buy $200 worth of clothes in one day,' one said. 'Everybody shops all the time. You've got the cash in your hands.'"

I urge all Islanders who want a good perspective on local issues to subscribe to both papers.

HOWE NOW!

By Paul Howe

Economic Views of the State, established by the Southwest Florida Regional Planning Council, is published monthly and annually to keep our six-county region's public officials abreast of the key economic trends that affect their governmental operations.

The publication reports comparative trend data such as: unemployment, growth in the labor force, airport passenger volumes, telephone customers, building activity, retail and gasoline sales, new housing volumes and the consumer price index.

The current Annual Report reviews 1981 data and ventures an outlook for 1982 based on the behavior of those key economic indicators. It is possibly the most objective analysis available for those who contemplate migrating here or who are potential investors in our area's future. (Regrettable is the failure to report the number as well as the dollar value of new single- and multi-family dwelling units under permit.)

The general look-back at 1981 reveals mixed effects in the economic indicators. The year started off fairly optimistically, but by the end many indicators had declined as the national recession bit into them. The declines, however, were not as severe as those in many other areas of the state and nation.

On the bright side, several of the indicators showed general improvement during the year when compared to 1980. Regionally there were increases in housing starts, retail sales and telephone customers. In contrast, prices continued to rise, unemployment increased and gas tax collections and airport activity declined.

The reported changes from 1980 to 1981 in the 11 economic indicators were far from uniform. In some instances they varied geographically; in others, for instance, between types of telephone customers and housing permits. The ranges in the percentage changes of the 11 indicators are:

1. Airport passengers at the region's four fields were off from 1.9 percent at Fort Myers to 12.3 percent at Sarasota-Bradenton;
2. Telephone customers increased 6.1 percent in the residential sector and 13.7 percent in the commercial sector. Charlotte and Collier counties lead in the region;

3. Housing starts geographically declined from 46.6 percent in Charlotte County to 2.1 percent in Lee County and increased from 70.6 percent in Collier County to 7.3 percent in Glades County (single-family home starts regionally were off 17.6 percent, and multi-family starts were up 23.4 percent with the latter - accounting for two-thirds of the total residential market - excluding mobile homes - whereas three year ago it accounted for less than half);

4. Gross sales were regionally up 17.2 percent for the second year;

5. Taxable sales were regionally up 16.2 percent for the second year;

6. Gas tax collections were regionally off 0.1 percent for the second year;

7. Consumer price index was regionally up 8.9 percent;

8. Unemployment was regionally up 2.6 percent as compared with 2.3 percent for the state (geographically Sarasota was hit hardest with an increase of 13.7 percent while Lee and Hendry counties bottomed out with only 2.2 percent increases);

9. Labor force increased regionally 6 percent as compared with 4.2 percent for the state;

10. Employed sector of the labor force increased regionally 3.1 percent on par with the state; and

11. Unemployed sector of the labor force increased 65.7 percent as compared with only 50.9 percent for the state (the region's three most agriculturally-oriented counties added more substantially to the increase).

The Southwest Florida Regional Planning Council's forecast for 1982 is; "a continuation of the current recessionary pattern with a decline in some indicators and slow growth in others.

"Growth will continue to occur in general, but at a slower rate than the preceding years, which were exceptionally good."

The January 1982 data for building, however, indicates that building permits continued to decline to a regional total of 778 - the lowest since 1976 - with Lee, Glades and Hendry counties recording increases that may presage a development shift away from the coastal areas.

Harry Cottman

Harry T. Cottman, a former agricultural adviser to the state government, died Monday, March 15, 1982, at John Hopkins Hospital after a short illness.

Services for Cottman, who was 76 and had maintained homes in Pocomoke City, Md., and at 320 Palm Lake Drive, Sanibel, were held on March 20 at Cokesbury United Methodist Church in Pocomoke City, Md.

He was agricultural adviser to Maryland's Department of Budget and Fiscal Planning when he retired 11 years ago. This activity had extended over 25 years.

Earlier, he was employed by the Department of the Interior in Washington as assistant manager of the St. Elizabeth's Hospital farm. He was in charge of the dairy operations at the farm.

A native of Princess Anne, he was a graduate of Pocomoke City High School and the University of Maryland's agricultural school.

Cottman was a life member of the National Association of Institutional Farm-Food Managers. He was a member of the National Audubon Society and served in the society's Christmas bird count at Sanibel. He was also active in the Somerset County Historical Society.

While at the University of Maryland, he became a charter member of the local chapter of Alpha Gamma Rho, an agricultural fraternity.

He is survived by his wife, the former Dorothy Dryden; a brother, James Cottman, of Princess Anne; and several nieces and nephews.

Council, commission join in applauding employees

Sanibel city employees got a pat on the back last week when the City Council unanimously approved a resolution expressing the council's "appreciation for their service to the city of Sanibel and its residents and visitors."

Councilman Mike Klein, who introduced the resolution, said he was "personally impressed by the quality of the city's employees, their knowledgeability and dedication."

"The city's problems have become more complex as the city grows, and (city employees) are doing an excellent job in coping," Klein said.

Councilman Francis Bailey called the resolution only a minor recognition of what the employees deserve.

Members of the Planning Commission, who sat in on the special council workshop on ways to cut red tape, wanted to join in the tribute to the city's 66 employees.

In an unprecedented move the commissioners were permitted to add their signatures to those of the five councilmen who had approved the resolution by a unanimous vote.

At the suggestion of Planning Commission Chairman Ann Winterbotham the city's various department heads present were given a "standing ovation."

New agreement drafted for hurricane code

A new agreement drawn up by the state Department of Environmental Regulation calling for professional services of the city in developing a hurricane resistant construction code for the Island was approved unanimously by the City Council last Tuesday.

"There are no substantive changes" from an earlier agreement authored by the city and approved by the council on March 16, City Manager Bernie Murphy assured the council.

Sanibel's reimbursement by the state not to exceed $15,000 may include in-kind services, Murphy said.

Evelyn Maloney named new City Council secretary

Evelyn Maloney will begin her duties as secretary to the City Council on April 12. She replaces Carolyn Smith, who resigned last month after 5½ years in the post to go into private business.

Maloney moved to Sanibel with her husband, Robert, in 1979 from Hollis, N.H. While employed by Priscilla Murphy Realty she was licensed as a real estate associate. Last November she became rental director for Executive Services Inc. in its McGregor Boulevard office.

Maloney received her secretarial training at Palmer Business Institute in Philadelphia and has a degree in Human Growth and Development from Essex Community College in Newburyport, Mass.

The Maloneys moved last Christmas to a condominium in Iona just over the Sanibel Causeway.

Lighthouse talks continue between city, Coast Guard

City Manager Bernie Murphy will report to the City Council today on the progress of negotiations with the U.S. Coast Guard to set up a permanent agreement for the city's management of the Sanibel Lighthouse property.

Murphy, with City Attorney Neal Bowen, went to Miami last Wednesday for further discussion of the terms under which the city will continue to operate and maintain the recreational area at the Lighthouse. The area includes the public beach, nature trails, parking lot and fishing pier.

The Coast Guard originally set April 16 as the deadline for finalizing a 10-year lease, but at last Wednesday's session the Coast Guard and the city agreed to extend the date to May 1, Murphy said.

"It was a very cooperative meeting," he said. "I hope to be able to present the proposed license for the city's management of the property to the council at its April 20 meeting."

On March 5, the council approved an interim agreement with the Coast Guard to manage the property.

For several years the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service used the two buildings on the site as headquarters, but early last month the offices moved into the new Visitors Center at the J.N. "Ding" Darling Wildlife Refuge.

Under the temporary arrangement the city agreed to maintain public access to the recreational areas and provide reasonable security and prevent vandalism on the property. Two Sanibel police officers are currently residing in one of the houses.

The Lighthouse itself and the two other buildings on the site are listed in the National Register of Historic Sites.

One of the variables to be resolved before a long term lease is executed is the disposition of the public restroom.

The sewage disposal plant on the site is inadequate for the volume generated by 1,000 visitors each day, Murphy told the council.

Coast Guard Captain R. C. Nichols in initial discussions could not guarantee that "some other federal, state or county regulatory authority may not shut down the facility at any time for public health or other reasons."

The City Council members themselves were horrified at the primitive condition of the facility and agreed with Mayor Porter

Goss that the city "can't be a party to continuing such an obvious environmental horror."

Murphy said there are no funds currently available to replace the restroom. But the council urged that improvements to it and the treatment plant be made as quickly as possible.

Also to be settled is the current ownership of the fishing pier, which was constructed in 1972 by Lee County in a joint venture with the U.S. Department of Interior.

The Coast Guard at that time granted permission for the pier to be built on federally-owned property at the Lighthouse.

The Sanibel-Captiva Chamber of Commerce contributed $10,000 of the $27,000 of the cost on behalf of residents of the two Islands.

Valtin expresses pleasure after 'Rigamarole Workshop'

The City Council's "first annual" Rigamarole Workshop aimed at cutting red tape in local government has been called a rousing success by City Councilman Fred Valtin, who originated the idea.

"I feel very good about it," Valtin said after the council's four-hour session with the Planning Commission and city department heads last Tuesday.

"It was very productive," he added. "We identified five or six areas where, if we can come up with new ordinances, we can improve the situation."

The council agreed on several items that will eliminate "a very large body of citizens' annoyance at the length of time required and red tape that appears to work against them," Valtin said.

Mayor Porter Goss agreed that the meeting produced at least "two good things - a way to separate the minor performance standards from the major and a method to shorten the time it now takes to approve a specific amendment."

The council embraced City Attorney Neal Bowen's concept that would streamline the procedure for granting and denying the less significant amendments to the Comprehensive Land Use Plan.

The time could be cut in half, Bowen said, if the Planning Commission were delegated the authority to approve variances or deviations from CLUP's Article III regulations with the exception of residential density, permitted uses, federal flood regulations and the Coastal Construction Setback Line.

A route should be provided for appeal to the council by all aggrieved applicants, including those who have been denied development permits, he added.

Currently the Planning Commission only makes recommendations to the council, and final action on all specific amendments is taken by the council after two hearings of the request.

"That has been my major concern all along," Valtin said, "That we have applied the same time consuming process to both major and minor matters. By differentiating we can speed up the process for the minor items.

The council turned down the suggestion that the amendments could be approved after only one reading but did agree that the 14-day interval between the date the hearing is legally advertised and the first reading of the ordinance could be reduced to seven.

This would require a change in the charter, but Councilman Duane White said the Ad Hoc Charter Revision Committee, of which he is a member, has already made this one of its recommendations for revisions slated to be put to a referendum of the voters next November.

Goss said that by having only one hearing for specific amendments the council might be accused of "railroading" items through. Under the current procedure everyone is guaranteed "total knowledge and total say so," he said.

The council discussed suggestions by the city's staff on ways to improve the general efficiency of the departments and relationships with the public and how to streamline the conduct of council meetings.

The council looked favorably on City Treasurer Mildred Howze's suggestion of placing minor matters such as a call for bids, acceptance of easements, committee appointments and first readings of ordinances on a "Consent Agenda."

All such items could be adopted simultaneously without discussion, which would reduce the length of the meeting. But any one councilman at the time of the meeting could request any item be removed from the Consent Agenda if he felt the issue required more attention.

White pointed out that, "Frequently debate on an issue goes on and on, and that is the fault of the council."

"Two or three (councilmen) like to talk," he added, to which Councilman Mike Klein responded "Amen."

Goss, who as mayor chairs the meetings, pointed out that, "Traditionally there are no rules for the meetings. The format has always been very flexible."

"I have always felt strongly that to preserve the equality of all the councilman there should not be a strong chair," Goss said. "Any one councilman can shut off discussion."

Klein also complained that the schedule of "time certain" agenda items was not adhered to very well.

"It's unfair for residents who come for a specific item to have to sit through lengthy discussions and then have to leave before their item comes up," he explained. "A better attempt should be made to figure out the times."

City Manager Bernie Murphy said he has made up council agendas for 17 years and it is a very "imprecise process."

In the end the councilmen agreed to try a Consent Agenda on a trial basis. They also acceded to Valtin's request that public comments and inquiries be placed earlier on the agenda.

"Usually there is no public left at the end of a meeting that adjourns at 8:30 p.m.," Valtin said.

The council also decided to try scheduling a time for public input on subjects not on the agenda during the morning session before the city manager's report.

Building Officer George Blain informed the council that as a "time saver" for permit applicants the clerk in his department had been commissioned a notary public.

The council liked his suggestion to issue all permits needed for a construction job to the prime contractor and to establish a fee for utility permits. It was the consensus that those items are administrative matters and are not in the legislative purview.

"This is just the kind of thing I've been talking about," Valtin said. "The council should not be discussing executive or administrative matters."

But Goss was concerned about "how much latitude the city manager and staff should have in interpreting laws."

"That is the crux of this meeting," he said. "How much is enough and how much is too much."

Planning Director Bruce Rogers supported Bowen's concept and recommended that CLUP be amended to to make a distinction between major and minor amendment requests and to shorten the procedure for their adoption.

Performance standards for fences, which are becoming a problem, could be streamlined, he said, by exempting those that meet certain other standards from the front setback requirements.

Goss said fences are an inevitable consequence of growth as more and more people pursue privacy. He favored the suggested change.

Rogers said CLUP makes no distinction between a permanent (building) and a temporary structure (tent for a concert). Both need a development permit, he said.

He proposed that the council adopt an ordinance giving the city manager the authority to issue permits for one-time events.

Goss said it was absurd to try and apply land use standards to a concert and suggested the city manager expedite drawing up an ordinance but limit its application to non-profit, one-time events for community benefit.

Other measures Rogers suggested to streamline the permitting process include expanding the list of developments that can qualify for a short form permit, which eliminates a hearing before the Planning Commission; and requiring a single permit for installation of security lights, which currently requires both a development and electrical permit.

Code Inspector Richard Baker concurred that a single permit would be more desirable. The cost to the applicant could be reduced from $55 to $15 or $20.

Baker said the requirement for a development permit to remove Brazilian Peppers on small improvement projects causes a "great deal of controversy."

Planning Commissioner Louise Johnson, who also serves on the Vegetation Committee, told Baker a subcommittee has been appointed to study the problem and will make a recommendation to the council.

Goss advised Baker to "use reasonableness" in enforcing the requirement until some adjustment can be made.

ON THE WATER

By Captain Mike Fuery

The spotted sea trout is one of Florida's most popular game fish, but at this time of the year it starts to change some of its habits that might leave you wondering what happened when you go to your old reliable "trout hole."

There are endless stories I could tell you about these colorful fish that so many of us fish for, but for the newer anglers, the trout is great to eat, has two large front teeth and comes with green top of head, spots on the side and a yellow mouth. They range up to 30 inches, but must be 12 inches long to keep.

I have always suspected that the sea trout was named by early settlers after the northern fresh water speckled trout. They have the same spots on the sides.

There are actually two types of sea trout in our waters. The spotted, or speckled trout, is by far the most easily found, but there is the grey trout too. The greys have no spots and are nearly always found along the outside of the Islands in the Gulf of Mexico. Some people like the greys better for eating than the spotted, but I can't tell much difference -- both are very mild and good eating.

A funny thing might happen if you have just gotten into trout fishing here in the waters of Sanibel and Captiva Islands. When you reach your traditional trout fishing flats, those shallow waters where you usually find trout, you might not catch very many.

This is because it's spring and this time of the year, these colorful fish start to move off the waters of Pine Island Sound, and in the process, gang up to spawn.

Of course it's an annual thing, but we can never really predict when it will happen. We have had such a warm winter, over-all, that I would expect that all the fishing will be moved up including the annual trout spawning rites. So the trick is to find where the trout go to spawn and then present the right baits to take some good fish.

As I said earlier, the trout seem to leave the inside flats. They tend to end up on the outside, where sometimes hundreds of trout get into tight schools for spawning. Some of the guides call these trout "muds."

It doesn't happen very often, but being in the right place when one of these occur is a time you will never forget -- any and every cast brings back a fish. It's hard to believe that you can catch a fish on every cast, but all of us who have fished it have seen it. The trout become so hungry that they strike any lure or bait, be it alive or dead.

One time last spring I went 15 trout for 15 casts, lost a couple then went 14 straight again. Now, that's good fishing. I might add that we kept only a total of a dozen fish or so and turned the rest back unharmed.

Beach anglers will encounter this fishing more, of course. Just where the trout will perform this annual mating rite is always more chance than by plan. There were a couple of spots near Redfish Pass that we used to fish which were productive, but now the sands have shifted and that area is no more.

The trout will be out in the Gulf for the next few weeks, then eventually will move back into the inside waters and resume their normal feeding cycles during the summer, fall and winter.

Some trout will always be found over the flats, so don't be discouraged if you fish for three hours and only catch a half dozen or so.

Finding a trout "mud" is truly unbelievable. It's one of those "can't miss" situations, but please remember to take only what fish you can use and release the others.

SHELLING TIPS

By Captain Mike Fuery

Did you ever notice that some of the best and most interesting items in a shell display aren't even shells at all?

Recently we talked about the crucifix shell that came from the head of a catfish, but this week let's talk about the odd shaped things you might see on the beach that will enhance your collection.

The other day, up on North Captiva Island, I came upon a shell that fits into that category. I had not seen one in a long time, and since the seas were high and the winds over 20 miles per hours, I figured that this one had made a long trip from the gulf to the shore.

It was rectangular shaped but with odd curved-in "fingers" on each end of it. The color was black and when shaken, it rattled.

We examined it and way back, I recalled that it was some kind of unusual egg case. I called a couple of friends when I got home and we came to about the same conclusion -- it was an egg case from either a skate or a shark.

Either way, it was a very interesting gift from the sea and makes a very good addition to other shells you might be collecting.

Actually, this is the time of the year that many of our locally found shells start the reproductive process. Shells are unusual in that some are male-female in the same shell, and others mate in separate shells. It's spring, and in any language, even shell talk, the results are the same.

In addition to this strange casing from either a shark or skate, you might also come upon other egg cases and it's important that you know about these.

The first and more common that you will find is from the huge whelks that live in our waters. Each winter, the big females make their way into shallower waters and produce a string of eggs, which are encased in a protective structure which resembles an accordion. Only this one is a light brownish color and is joined by a "backbone" of tissue.

It is really ingenious to find that these primitive creatures take into account tides, winds, waves and currents, in addition to sunlight and salinity, to carefully lay these eggs in the right place so when the tiny whelks hatch they will be in an area where they can feed and get their start on the warm sandy bottom of the gulf or Pine Island Sound.

I am always amused to find that my charter groups are frightened by the harmless egg case. This is because wading the flats, the egg cases are found anchored in shallow water sands. When winds or tides move them, they look much like an underwater snake. You can imagine the situation!

One word of caution here -- please don't pull out or touch these live, growing egg cases. They are our future for shelling in the Islands and some of those tiny, tiny eggs inside each capsule will have the ability to grow into productive adults.

There is another egg case that you just might encounter while on the beaches or the flats, and it's hardly ever found in as shallow a type of waters as the whelk egg case. This one comes from the Florida horse conch, the largest of all shells that once was found nearly everywhere on the Islands.

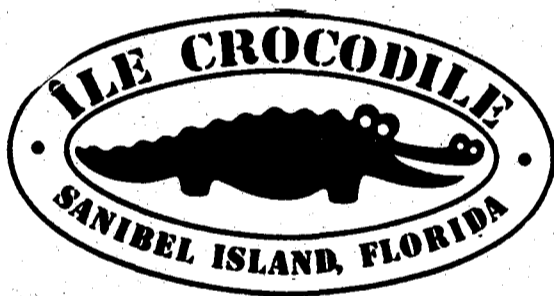

Over collection of the live horse conchs, which are a golden color in their younger years, has nearly resulted in the elimination of the species. It's a real pleasure to find a conch now, because I always take it from the beach and remove it to the deeper Gulf waters, out of harm and sheller's way, to try and let the conch catch up on its numbers.

The egg casing looks like a fancy clear ruffle and is often attached to pen shells. As with most egg cases, once they have been washed high upon the beach they are dead as far as further reproductive use goes. If you do find one dried out, take it for your collection.

Good shelling this week.

If the shoe fits... throw it!

"That shoe found a horse" was the frequent remark at the Fourth Annual Sanibel-Captiva Horseshoe Tournament Sunday at the American Legion.

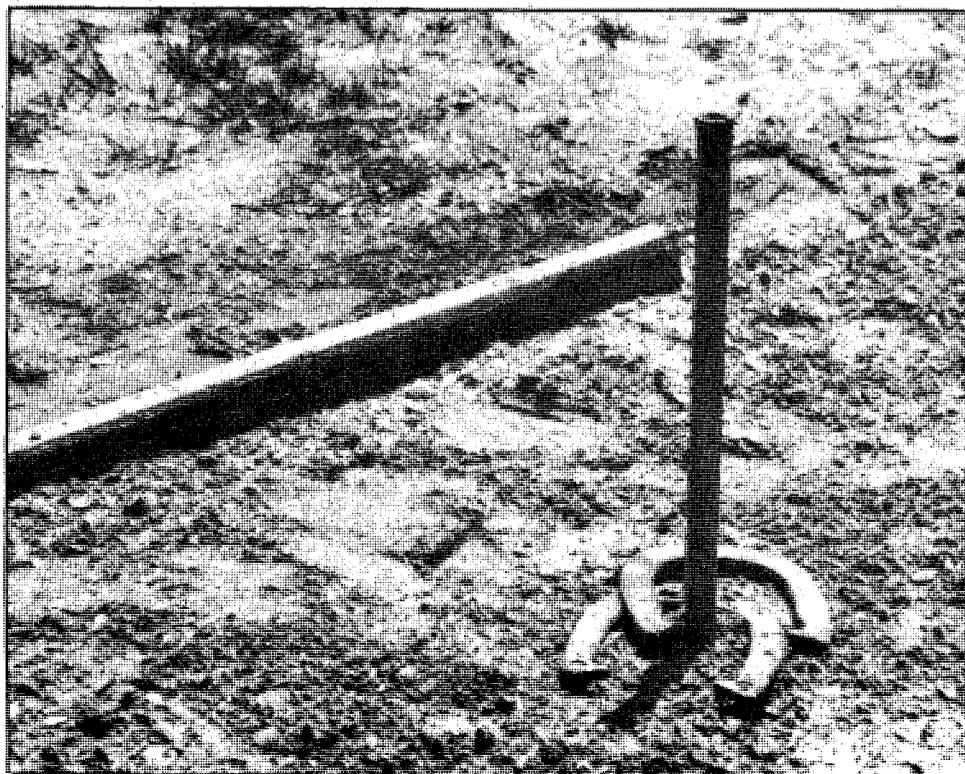

When all the ringers, leaners and closest to the stake shots were tallied, the team of Ray Walters and Randy McLeod emerged victorious over Charlie Miller and Chuck Cranford in the finals.

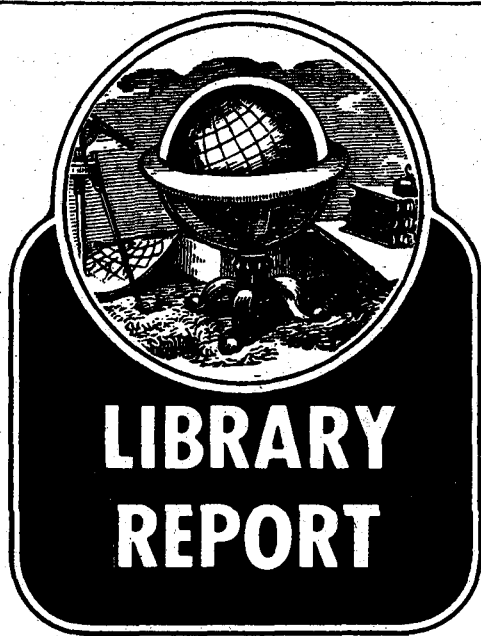

Walters and McLeod took the crown from last year's champions, Topper and Billy Holzapfel.

"It all worked out real well, and everybody had a good time," said organizer Jim Willis.

The Barforth Women by Brenda Jagger — First there are the women born Barforths — aggressive, ambitious Hannah, who married beneath her and spent her life pushing her husband and step-son toward better things; and Hannah's submissive younger sister, Elinor, married to a man old enough to be her father.

Then there are the women who married Barforths — Verity, who married Joel, Hannah's and Elinor's brother; and Elinor's daughter, Faith, who married Blaize, the younger of Joel's two sons.

The story told by Faith is set in a milltown in Yorkshire, where the Barforths and Faith's father are wealthy mill owners. It is a family saga of the mid-Victorian era when tradesmen are looked down upon by aristocracy but their money is welcome when hunting and gaming aristocracy is bankrupt. With characters exceptionally well-drawn and the customs of the day vividly set forth, it is a most absorbing story.

Putting The Record Straight by John Culshaw — This is a book for music lovers and record collectors. It is the autobiography of the man who was director of the Classical Music Division of Decca Recording Company and later head of music for the BBC's television.

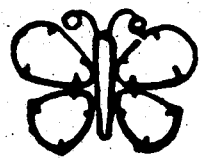

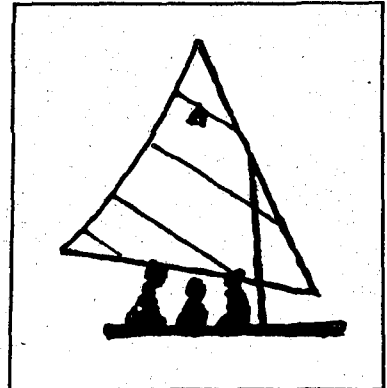

Always a music lover, he was himself a musician, but his enjoyment was more in listening than in performing. When one considers the amazing techniques developed during the 1950s and early 1960s, recording was still in its infancy at the close of WW II.

Culshaw traveled all over Europe and America arranging recording sessions. His book includes many anecdotes concerning the great singers, instrumentalists, conductors and orchestras that recorded for Decca. Told with humor and in layman's language, it is a fascinating account.

Last Quadrant by Meira Chand — Dr. Eva Kraig is the head of the mission orphanage in Kobe, Japan; Akiko is her adopted daughter whose mother, Kyo, has come after 20 years to reclaim her; Arthur Wilcox is a bachelor retiree, once Kyo's lover; Geraldine Cooper is a member of the English community married to Nate Cooper, an American; Sister Elaine is a troubled nun questioning her faith; and Daniel is Eva's nephew, a young man with a guilt complex, come to Kobe to recover from an auto accident in which two people were killed.

As the typhoon that has been threatening all day finally descends upon Kobe, these assorted people shelter at the orphanage and later at the supposedly disaster-proof home of the Coopers.

No one who had not lived through a typhoon could have described this phenomenon so vividly. It is a sensitively written, suspenseful and thoroughly engrossing story.

LEARN CPR

If you were to collapse in public with a heart attack, and someone quickly applied 'cardiopulmonary resuscitation' (CPR) while the ambulance was on its way, it would double your chance of surviving. Starting to give CPR within a second rather than minutes is really important. To be prepared as a Good Samaritan, many of us should learn to apply cardiopulmonary resuscitation in an emergency.

Architectural historian Richard Campen winters on Sanibel. His book about the area, published by West Summit Press in Ohio, is Sanibel and Captiva: Enchanting Islands, which has just gone into its third printing.

Campen grew up in Ohio and attended Dartmouth College in New Hampshire. He graduated in 1934 with a bachelor's degree in chemistry and zoology. He later did graduate work at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland.

He worked for Celanese Corporation and several companies of similar nature doing chemical research and developing different paints.

In April 1937 he married Helen Selden. The Campens have two sons, Richard and Selden, and five grandchildren.

In about 1967, Campen says, he reevaluated his life and decided to change the focus of his career to his main interests — architecture, photography and writing. "We had saved our money and invested it," he explains, "so fortunately I was free to make that kind of choice."

They had always traveled widely; Campen took his German cameras everywhere and made many color slides, mostly of buildings and some other works of art such as paintings and sculptures. He sold his photographs to many colleges, art schools and schools of architecture for about 15 years.

"I sold thousands and thousands of slides," he remembers, "but I have given up on that now."

One of his first books, most of which are about the architecture of Ohio, was about a man named George Brown, an early stone mason in Gates Mills, Ohio, ("Which is sort of a horsey town," he says. "Somewhat like Captiva, only a little more exclusive than it is now."), who had created some unusual dwellings there.

He has written several books about Ohio architecture, especially in the northern part of the state and the Cleveland area.

Campen joined the Decorative Arts Trust and belongs to the Society of Architectural Historians, which holds conventions in various architecturally interesting cities, such as New Orleans, which Campen attends faithfully.

He finds the Carolinas pleasant and scenic places to visit because of the large number of intact ante-bellum homes there.

The Campens also travel abroad, and recently went to Egypt. As is typical, they brought home many books about the treasures of the ancient kings of the Nile.

They collect art and have many works by local Island artists. Their collection includes tapestries and mobiles as well as paintings. Mrs. Campen makes wall hangings and does embroidery and needlepoint, not from kits, but from designs she draws herself.

One of Campen's more recent projects involved arranging for a series of art films at the Sundial. Topics included printmakers, Andrew Wyeth, Edward Degas, Matisse and the Louvre art gallery in Paris.

Campen is a staunch believer, even in today's economy, of a liberal arts education.

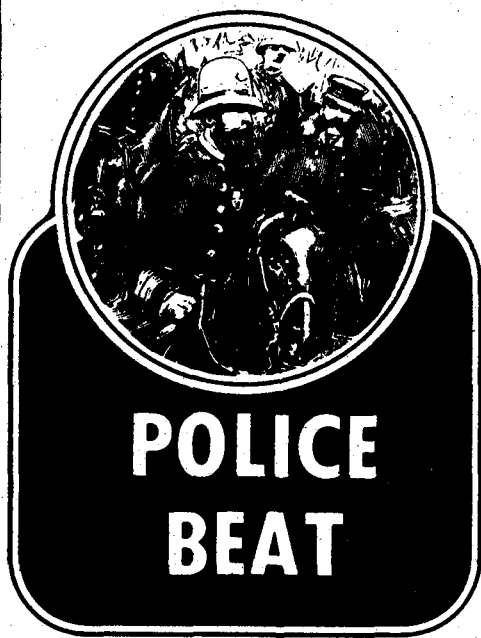

"Knowing about history and literature and architecture will help you no matter what you do and no matter what job you find yourself in," he says. "For some people a degree in business administration for that specific skill is fine," he adds. "For a lot of others, though, it might be totally wrong."

Campen occasionally teaches courses at Hiram College in Hiram, Ohio. The Campens are only on the Islands for a few months of the year; they will return home later this month after several stops, including one in Camden, S.C., ("Just a very old and beautiful city that is not too well known.").

Campen's book on Sanibel and Captiva has pictures and text; the text is written almost in the form of a personal diary, with more subjective impressions in it than in some Island histories. In it he mentions many of the old Islanders, such as Clarence Rutland, who recently died.

He is obviously proud of the book. "I really like the feeling people are reading what I write," he says. "It is thrilling — and the book has sold over 10,000 copies, so I know people must like it."

"I just wanted to tell everyone how beautiful Sanibel and Captiva are and share that knowledge with others."

All information in the following reports was taken directly from Sanibel Police Department records.

Forty $20 bills were reported missing from a unit at the Jolly Roger Motel on Monday morning, March 26.

The Overland Park, Kansas, visitor told police he had $2,600 in $20 bills in numerical order hidden in his shaving kit on the top shelf of the closet. The top 20 bills and the bottom 20 bills were missing from the stack, he told police.

The money was taken sometime between 6:15 p.m. March 25 and 9 a.m. March 26.

A Dayton, Ohio, man was arrested for indecent exposure on Monday morning, March 26, after police answered a complaint from a Sanibel Arms West resident. Police found the man exposing himself on a sun-deck. He was taken to the Sanibel Police Department and later released on bond.

A Fort Myers man was arrested for disorderly conduct after he allegedly initiated a fight at the 7-11 parking lot on Tuesday afternoon, March 30. Robert Brian Cole of Fort Myers posted $40 bond and was released from the Sanibel Police Department. His court appearance was set for April 12.

Clothes, a wallet and a purse valued at $135 were reported stolen from a car parked at the Lighthouse beach on Wednesday evening, March 31.

The items belonging to Eden Prairie, Minn., residents were taken between 5 and 5:10 p.m. The front passenger door was forced open.

A police aide reported people were feeding an alligator in the pond near Fulger Street and Middle Gulf Drive on Thursday afternoon, April 1. Police forwarded a request to City Hall for a sign warning of the dangers of feeding alligators to be posted at the pond.

A group of 30 students extinguished a beach fire and broke up their party at the Ramada Inn beach on Thursday night, April 1, after a Pelicans Roost resident complained of noise.

A Loggerhead Cay resident was awakened on Friday morning, April 2, when someone tried to pry open a bedroom window. The resident yelled, and the suspect ran from the scene.

A resident of Blind Pass condominiums reported a nude man was on Bowman's Beach on Friday evening, April 2.

A Sanibel woman was charged with disregarding a stop sign and operating a car with expired registration after a one-car accident on Casa Ybel Road early Thursday morning, March 18.

Julia Renee Bresser was driving north on Middle Gulf Drive when she skidded through the Casa Ybel Road intersection and went into the wooded area across the road. Police estimated there was $100 damage to Bresser's 1975 Monza.

No charges were filed following a three-wheeled bicycle collision with a car on Periwinkle Way near Saint Michael and All Angels Episcopal Church on Wednesday morning, March 24.

Three Shaker Heights, Ohio, students were riding the cycle east on Periwinkle when they attempted to turn left into the church parking lot. They ran into the side of a car that was traveling north on Periwinkle Way.

Police estimated there was $200 damage to the car, which was driven by a Fort Myers man.

A Sanibel motorcyclist escaped serious injury on Thursday evening, March 25, when he ran into the rear of a stopped car on Periwinkle Way near Main Street.

Michael Mallon Stone, 444 Lagoon Drive, was traveling east on Periwinkle when he struck the rear of a car driven by a Granville, Ohio, man who was stopped for a car making a left turn in front of him. Stone told police he turned his head to wave at a friend just before he struck the Ohio car.

Police estimated there was $75 damage to the car and $600 damage to Stone's motorcycle.

A Fort Myers woman was charged with driving with no drivers license in her possession after a two-car accident at the intersection of Tarpon Bay Road and Gumbo Street on Sunday afternoon, March 28.

Debra Setty of Fort Myers was driving north on Tarpon Bay Road when a Burlington, Ontario, woman pulled out of Gumbo Street and struck the right side of Setty's car. The Ontario woman told police her shoe was caught in the accelerator.

Police estimated there was $45 damage to the Setty car and $200 damage to the Ontario car. Setty was charged with having no license in her possession.

A large roll of decorative rope valued at $600 was reported missing from Sanibel Siesta condominiums on Tuesday morning, March 27. The rope was to have been used along with pilings for a fence.

Sundial employees extinguished a fire under the clubhouse on Tuesday afternoon, March 27. Wood, chicken wire and palm fronds were burned in the fire. There was no damage to the building.

A cigarette could have started the fire, according to fire officials.

Seven spotlights valued at $20 each at Sanibel Moorings were reported broken on Wednesday evening, March 28. The lights along the East Gulf Drive roadside were shattered by vandals sometime between 2 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

A tool box with tools valued at $174 was reported missing from a truck parked at the Coconut Grove on Thursday, March 29. The theft occurred around 5 p.m.

A brown leather briefcase valued at $200 was reported missing from a unit at the Surfrider resort on Thursday morning, March 29. The case and miscellaneous papers were taken from the dining room table sometime between 7 p.m. March 28 and 10 a.m. March 29.

Police announce vacation house checks for Islanders

Sanibel police announce the availability of Vacation House Checks for Island homes whose residents are out of town.

Crime Prevention Officer Jack Primm said the service is offered on a year-round basis but added that he wants residents to be aware of the program for the upcoming summer months.

Islanders who plans to leave their homes for any length of time can contact the Sanibel Police Department and arrange for an officer to check the doors and windows of the house once a week while they are away.

In addition to the dates the house should be checked, police will need to know who has a key to the house besides the owner, what lights will be left on and who in the neighborhood knows of the residents vacation plans.

"We can't guarantee the prevention of a burglary or vandalism or catch a burglar," Primm said. "But chances are we will find out about it a lot faster then and will be able to do something about it."

Persons interested in arranging for the Vacation House Check should call the Sanibel Police Department, 472-3111.

Three charged with burglary, possession of marijuana, criminal mischief

Three Pine Island men were charged with possession of marijuana, burglary of a vehicle and criminal mischief on Thursday, April 1.

The men were stopped at the Coconut Grove by Officer Rick Kennedy after their blue pick up truck was spotted by Police Aide Stan Ritter on San-Cap Road. Police were on the lookout for the men in connection with a complaint that they had been seen smoking marijuana at the Tarpon Bay Road beach access.

At the same time the men were stopped and searched at the Coconut Grove, a Ludlow, Vermont, man reported his van was broken into at Bowman's Beach. He told police a CB radio and cassette player were taken from his van and the seats were ripped with a sharp object.

Police found the CB and cassette player when they inventoried the pick-up truck. Also in the truck was a loaded shotgun. Charged with possession of marijuana, burglary of a vehicle and criminal mischief were Kevin Wadsworth of Bokeelia, Michael Jensen of New Port Richey, and Max Lilie of Bokeelia. Wadsworth was also charged with possession of a firearm.

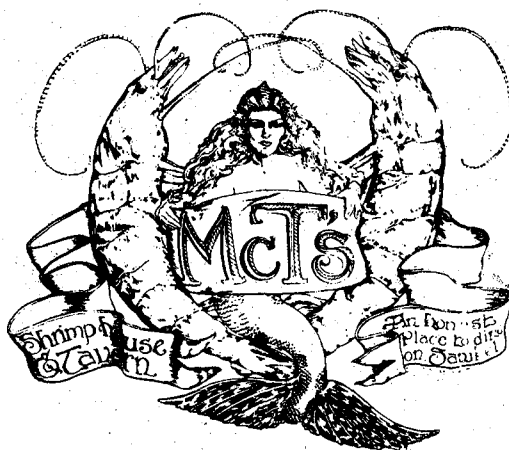

The men were taken to the Lee County Jail.

Lions-Kiwanis plan joint blood drive

To emphasize the importance of donating blood and to encourage Island residents and workers to "make deposits" in the blood bank, the Sanibel-Captiva Lions and Kiwanis clubs are sponsoring their first joint blood drive on Saturday, April 17.

The Edison Regional Blood Center Wheels for Life bloodmobile will be at Bailey's from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., during which time ERBC nurses will take donors at 15-minute intervals.

The Lions and Kiwanis scheduled the bloodmobile for a Saturday with hopes that more younger people who are Island workers would be able to take the time to donate blood.

Edison Regional Blood Center personnel say they need at least 50 donors to make the effort worthwhile. Donors can register for the bloodmobile by calling either Kiwanian Al Neumyster, 472-4982, or Lion John Cook, 472-2110. Preregistration is not required but would be helpful to bloodmobile workers.

First-time donors who have questions about their eligibility should call the ERBC, 939-1811. A nurse at the center will determine whether medication, recent travel to certain foreign countries or existing conditions would preclude one from donating blood during the April 17 blood drive on the Island.

Democrats hear Mann's administrative assistant

By Peggy Dailey

A group of about 20 Democrats, many of the women wearing green and white clothing and ERA buttons and carrying green and white ERA signs, turned out at the Community Association on Friday night to hear Don Moody, the administrative assistant to State Rep. Frank Mann.

Mann himself was originally scheduled to speak, but he was called to an important committee meeting in Tallahassee. Moody came in Mann's place, which didn't seem to affect the enthusiasm of the meeting that was chaired by local long-time activists Mary Lee and Emily Barefield.

The purpose of the meeting was to consider organizing a Democratic Club in possible conjunction with another Democratic group recently formed by Lynn and Penny Rogers. An informal "bull session" was held after Moody's speech, and it was decided to appoint a six-member steering committee with Lee as chairman to study the matter further.

Moody's informal and chatty talk covered several matters, rued Republicans, reapportionment, some panhandle Democrats, lack of concern for the environment being manifested by the Reagan administration and especially the Department of the Interior and its secretary, James Watt. Moody also talked about the not too bright prospects of the Equal Rights Amendment in Florida.

"I hate to say this, but it doesn't look like the chances are too good," he said. "A lot of money has been spent and NOW has an office in Tallahassee. I wonder if the women wouldn't have done better to spend that money hiring one or two lobbyists, such as Don Tucker, the former governor. Maybe it would have been passed by now."

Moody said the anti-ERA forces have been quiet lately. "I've received about six postcards and that's all," he said, adding that lobbyists for the amendment claimed to have "turned around" several anti-ERA senators. "But I'm not sure about that," he said.

In an interesting aside, Moody explained that even though Sen. Tom Lewis officially tells people who call and write his office that he is "neutral" or "undecided" on the women's rights bill, "He is being counted among the anti's" and is thought to be against the ERA.

"This matter is in the hands of two or three senators, and among them is Dempsey Barron," Moody said.

Barron, a conservative Democrat from Panama City in northwest Florida, wields a great deal of power in the Senate -- a lot of it because he is in charge of reapportionment and is drawing up new districts to make his friends' re-elections more sure as well as his enemies' defeats, Moody said.

"Of course," he added, "This could change if his reapportionment plans are successfully challenged in the state courts," which he said he thinks is indeed very possible.

The Democrats, even in spite of the dimming prospects of the ERA, seemed in a positive mood, citing Floridians' growing disgust with the Reagan administration as being helpful in this fall's election.

"And we heard the Republicans were organizing some activity, so we should too," Lee said.

Gov. Bob Graham will definitely request in his "call" to the Legislature that the body consider the ERA before the next special session ends, Moody said. There have been wide-spread rumors that the measure was not going to even be brought up.

"So we have to try," ERA activist Peggy Fuller said. "We're not giving up until the votes are counted. You have to do what you think is right, whether you win or lose."

The ERA failed to pass the Democratic-controlled Senate in 1979 by only two votes.

THE WAY WE WERE

By Bette Lithgow

Five Years Ago April 1977

Many visiting naturalists and birdwatchers waxed disconsolate last week upon encountering a "road closed" sign at the entrance to the Main Tract of the J.N. "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge here on Sanibel.

Refuge officials were forced to close the popular wildlife drive through the main tract of the refuge at about 4:30 p.m. last Tuesday. In recent weeks, growing numbers of cars have gotten stuck in loose sand along the scenic wildlife drive -- a result of the continuing and somewhat alarming drought conditions that have prevailed in Southwest Florida for much of the past few months.

Sanibel City Manager Bill Nungester reported last week that he has appointed city employee John Goode to the post of Director of the Engineering and Public Services Department for Sanibel's small but growing municipal bureaucracy.

A group of youngsters from the Children's Center of the Islands swept down over Sanibel's bay beach near their school to gather up cans, bottles, paper litter and other man-made debris that had accumulated along the shore through the carelessness of boaters and beachgoers on and around the Island. The young students from the Children's Center went about their work with high spirits and even managed to make a game of it.

Despite pressure from many Island residents concerned about the indiscriminate live-shell collecting that has been witnessed on Sanibel's beaches over the past winter, the Sanibel City Council decided to assign a relatively low priority to the pursuit of a proposal to ban the taking of live shells from city beaches and from the waters surrounding Sanibel.

Islander Paul Howe argued in behalf of the need for the council to enact tight controls on live shelling in the city to prevent any further abuses such as those which have been reported in recent months.

Ten Years Ago April 1972

A recent survey by United Press International indicates that long curly locks for males have just about seen their day. The fad came in with the Beatles and appears to be going out with them.

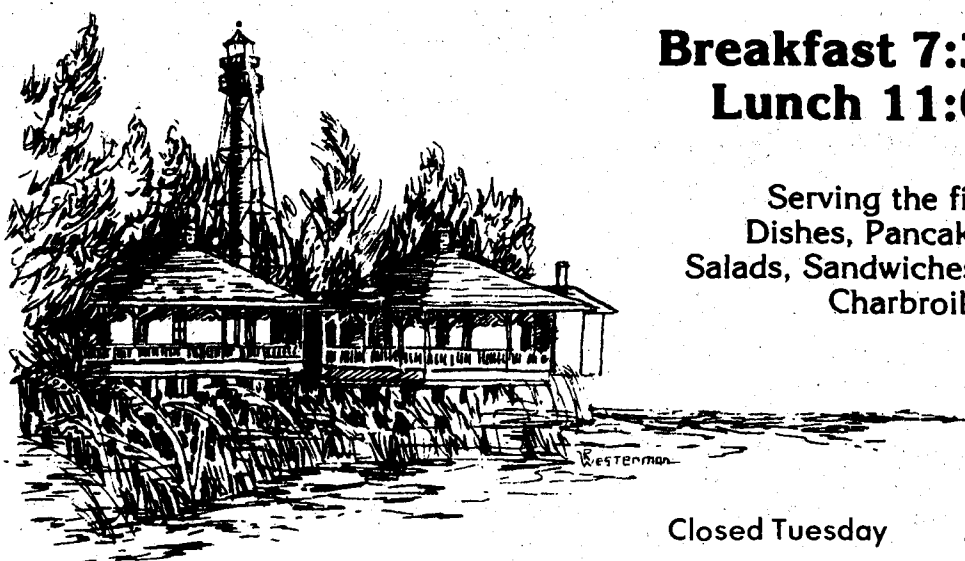

United Nations Secretary Gen. Kurt Waldheim and his family are spending a three-day vacation at The Colony on Sanibel. The Austrian family flew here from New York. "We love it here," said Mrs. Waldheim.

The apparent low bid for construction of the new Sanibel Island fishing pier was $27,000. Three county commissioners expressed surprise when they opened the bids last week that the offers were not lower.

The new pier is to be built 300 feet west of the old fishing pier near the Sanibel Lighthouse and will extend 162 feet into San Carlos Bay and has received approval from all required state and federal agencies.

The Way We Were continued

Fifteen Years Ago
April 1967

A beautiful 11x14 color photograph of approximately the southern half of the State of Florida is on display at the Sanibel-Captiva Real Estate office. This picture was taken from 250 miles out in space by one of the astronauts on the last Gemini flight. Sanibel and Captiva, as well as the other islands lying to the north, are clearly visible.

Surf casting with a 10-pound teat line off the Rocks -- not on the beach but from an offshore bar -- Carl Weiffenbach of Columbus, Ohio, had the great experience last week of catching an 18½-pound, 33-inch tarpon.

A petition requesting the elimination of telephone toll charges from the Islands to Fort Myers has been signed by approximately 90 percent of the Mohawk subscribers. It is believed it may be possible to get Inter-County Telephone and Telegraph to install extended area service and facilities to permit calls from the Mohawk and Greenleaf exchanges to other exchanges in the Greater Fort Myers area on a local charge basis.

Twenty Years Ago
April 1962

Captiva gave itself a party and the whole Island turned out to make the gala affair a sparkling and hilarious success. More than 250 crammed into the handsome new Community Center where they watched with glee a cleverly written and professionally produced "Spoof" on Island life.

Those responsible for the production and taking part in the show number more than 40 Captivans, most of them long-time residents. The idea for the fun night originated with Jack Van Bell.

James Pickens, student at Sam Houston State Teachers College, Texas, has been made official photographer for his college paper and also official photographer for the year book, according to his father, "Doc" Pickens.

The Rev. Dr. C.C. Jatho, who has served the past winter as minister of the Chapel-by-the-Sea on Captiva, has announced he will not return to the Island next year. He will be succeeded by the Rev. Albert Butzer, retiring minister after 30 years, of the Westminster Church of Buffalo, N.Y.

Uncle Clarence Rutland and Joe Donahue went on an exploring trip on the Island recently. They refused to divulge the area they went to but said the purpose of the trip was to find, if possible, flora and fauna so far unknown on the Island.

They went through cactus so high and thick that it seemed to reach out and grab them. The trip was not in vain, for they found native tree snails, a sausage tree in bloom and an orchid that Uncle Clarence said he had never seen before.

The two intend to return at a later date and gather seeds of these new found specimens for planting in the experimental section on Periwinkle Road.

South Seas nominated for award

South Seas Plantation has been nominated for the first National Association of Counties' Good Neighbor Award for its privately-funded beach improvement project. The nomination was submitted by Lee County Commissioner Harry Rodda.

South Seas Plantation property owners provided the project's entire funding, which made the project the first privately financed project of its type in the United States.

The $3.6 million project replenished sand lost to erosion over the past 50 years, offering protection of property during winter storms and hurricanes while enhancing recreational use of the beach.

A hydraulic pipeline that stretched approximately 2,000 feet offshore carried quality sand and shell dredged from the bottom of the Gulf of Mexico. Approximately 10,000 feet of shoreline was built up and widened along South Seas' two miles of beach.

In nominating South Seas Plantation for the award, Rodda commended the project's careful engineering and environmental consideration. He also cited the level of cooperation between South Seas and Lee County representatives.

Spearheaded by The Mariner Group, Inc., owners and operators of South Seas, the beach renourishment project has been praised by the Florida Shore and Beach Preservation Association. The group presented its Distinguished Citizen Award in 1980 to Richard Stevens, project director, for his pioneering the privately-funded project; and in 1981 to Allen Ten Broek, president of The Mariner Group, in recognition of his vision, determination and leadership in making the project a reality.

Poisonous cucumbers of Sanibel

By George Campbell

Illustrated by Ann Winterbotham

An intriguing little vine native to tropical Africa and Asia has escaped in our South and is doing quite well in disturbed areas of Sanibel Island.

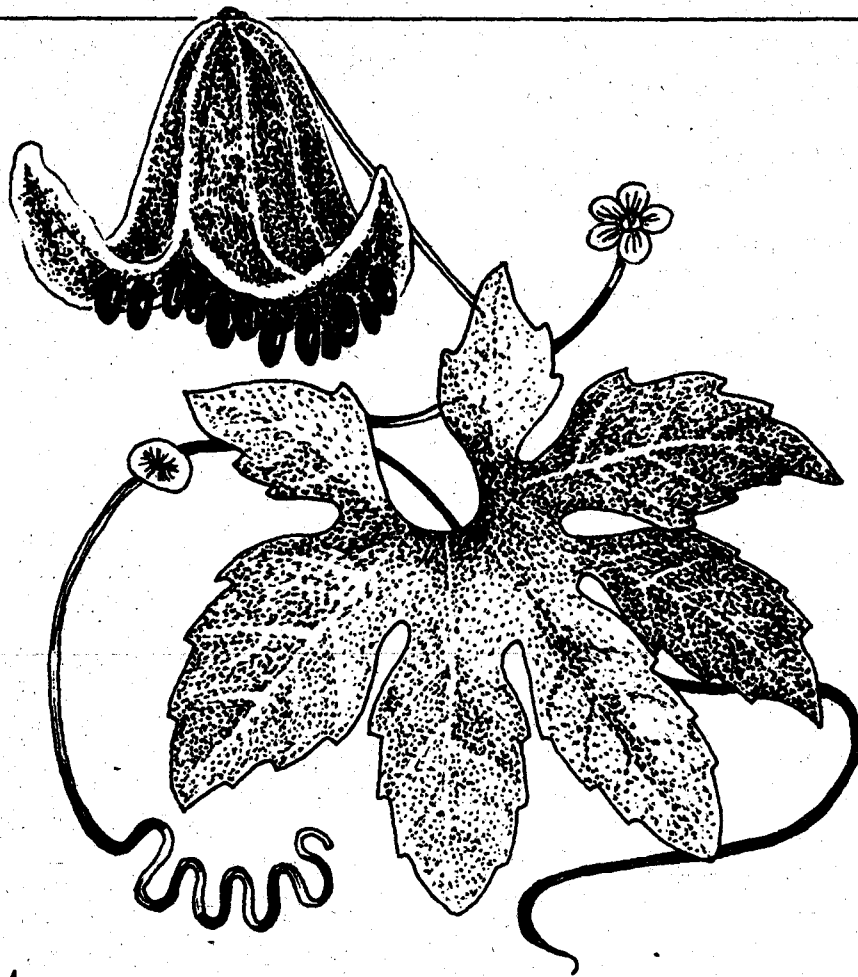

The Wild Balsam Apple is not an apple at all but is really a strange cucumber, being a member of that useful family Cucurbitaceae which includes squash, pumpkins and melons as well as the familiar pickle fruit.

Momordica charantia, however, commands caution. Don't just pop the delicious-looking bright orange fruit into your mouth, for it has poisonous parts. In fact, most of it is poisonous. The fruit may be one and one-half to two inches long and perhaps an inch in diameter, furrowed lengthwise and pointed at both ends, with lots of tubercles all over its surface.

When ripe, the fruit opens at the flower end and splits longitudinally into several parts. The outer bright orange "shell" or husk rolls backward, exposing the seeds, each of which is encased in a soft, bright scarlet material - the aril.

Right here and now let me emphasize that the seeds are poisonous. The orange husk is poisonous. The scarlet aril is tasty and edible. But one must use care in enjoying this wild food. It is all right to suck the seeds and consume the scarlet arils, but be sure not to swallow any seeds or orange husk or you will experience a very bitter taste and may become quite ill, with vomiting and diarrhea the principal symptoms.

This wild cucumber is a delicate vining plant with fine tendrils and palmately-lobed three-to-four inch simple leaves. Usually there are five lobes, but sometimes seven - often the lobes are edged with notches. The leaves are dull green and pubescent beneath. Vines may be six or eight feet long - often growing in such profusion as to completely cover small shrubs and low trees. The flowers are solitary and are a conspicuous yellow. In fact, either in bloom or in fruit, this plant is not hard to find.

Momordica charantia

Although wild on Sanibel, it is often grown in the tropics to cover a trellis or to shade a verandah. In China it is grown for food and medicine. Chinese are said to eat the unripe fruit which is prepared by boiling. (But I do not suggest experimentation!) The Chinese also eat the pulpy arils. Lakwa rind, as it is called in Cantonese, or Mu-pieh-tzu in Mandarin, is used in traditional medicine.

A Barefoot Doctor's Manual, the official Chinese paramedical manual, confirms the bitter taste of Momordica but states that it stimulates digestive function, detoxifies the G.I. tract (I can't see how!) and "promotes a good appetite to put on weight." It is used in China as an anthelmintic in little children and for enteritis and dysentery. Seeds are prepared for topical use in treating moles. The Chinese state that internal uses should be approached with caution.

Chinese traditional medicine is gaining respectability in the West. I have observed on my two recent visits to China that Western doctors are listening whereas in the past they merely scoffed.

I venture to suggest that A Barefoot Doctor's Manual deserves close study by our scientific health care community. Thousands of botanical and animal products are discussed. Without doubt, some of these merit consideration of possible uses in our country.

Another plant, sometimes assigned to Momordica is the explosive M. elaterium, whose oblong prickly fruit, when ripe, literally squirts out its seeds when touched or disturbed by the wind. Internal hydraulic pressure, suddenly triggered, throws the seeds for substantial distances.

Because of its behavior, some early botanists called this strange cucumber M. asininus. For generations, an abstract of this plant, Trituratio Elaterini, was listed in the British Pharmacopoeia as a powerful cathartic.

The next time you see a wide-open, ripe Balsam Apple, you may try its tasty scarlet arils, but do use care - avoid eating any of the rest of the poisonous beauty.

CROW celebrates opening of facility

By David Meardon

The new CROW facility on Sanibel-Captiva Road was open to the public Sunday so Islanders could catch a rare glimpse of the 10-acre tract, housing, and small but dedicated staff that cares for the Island's sick and injured birds and animals.

CROW staffers are still busy moving their headquarters from Captiva to Sanibel, and there is a long list of chores, tasks and projects that CROW head Holly Davies would like to see undertaken as soon as volunteers come forward to help out.

Some of the projects include building cages, clearing Brazilian peppers, researching and general cleaning.

"We'd like people to call if they're interested. The more volunteers we have, the more we can do," Davies said.

Some of the most urgently needed items on a CROW "Wish List" include lab caging, reed fencing, aluminum ladders, a gram scale, an incubator and any clinical equipment.

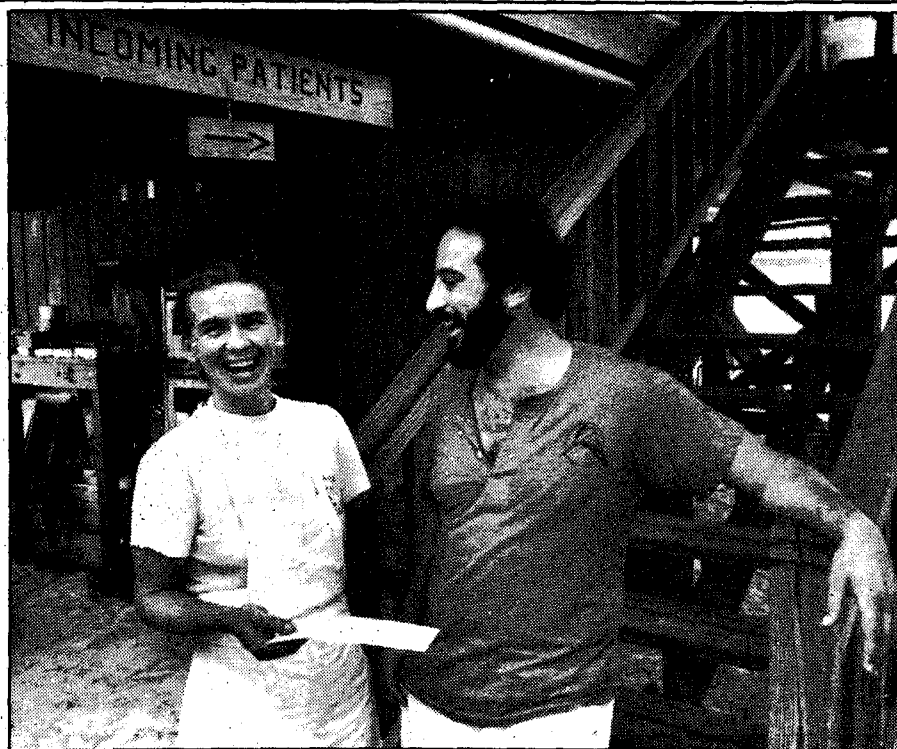

In addition, CROW hopes to start a college intern program in which staffers would work with students caring for injured wildlife and undertaking research projects.

Sunday also marked long-time CROW staffer Vicci Dwyer's last day with the organization. After nearly five years with CROW, Vicci is leaving for a farm in upstate New York.

"It's going to be tough without Vicci," said Davies, who, along with new staffer Heidi Heinrich, handles the work and patient load. Last year more than 500 sick and injured animals were treated at CROW. The facility currently has about 20 patients.

Anyone interested in volunteering for CROW should call 472-3644. Davies

SCCF programs end with water re-use talk

By Peggy Dailey

In the "last show of the season" at the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Center last Tuesday afternoon, water re-use, a matter of growing concern to the Southwest and eventually to all of America was discussed by an expert in the field.

Although there is still plenty of "potable" water — water you can drink with no ill effects to your system — water shortages for industrial use and also for such things such as watering lawns are growing more common, especially in states like Texas, New Mexico and Arizona, said Bill Cooper, who heads a research laboratory at Florida International University.

Cooper is studying for his doctorate in chemical oceanography at the University of Maine. He has bachelor's and master's degrees from Allegheny College and Penn State University. Sanibel resident Dr. Herbert Rhinesmith, a former professor of Cooper's from Allegheny College, introduced Cooper to the audience.

Cooper began his talk, which included a slide show, by saying that a 1980 study sponsored by the Carter administration showed the Southwest and parts of Wisconsin and Illinois would have critical water shortages by the year 2000.

He said after the talk that it is possible that by 2000 the government might put restrictions on water use, such as each home being allotted only so much non-potable water — "Perhaps a shower only every other day," he said.

However, families are not the real culprits in the water crisis, he said. Private water use averaging about 100 gallons a day per person (50 percent of that is from toilet flushing) makes up only about 23 percent of the 700 billion gallons of water used every day in this country. Industry and agriculture take care of most of the rest, he said.

By 2000 or so, usage per day in the United States will go up to about a trillion and half gallons — twice what is now, according to Cooper.

"We use and waste water like it is not a resource," he explained. "And it is certainly a bargain. What other resource can you have delivered to your door and costs you around $2.50 for 2½ tons?"

Area water rates are not as realistic as they should be, Cooper said. However, as Lake Okeechobee goes down, rates will go up and will perhaps induce a more sensible attitude toward water use, much as the gasoline crises of 1973 and 1979 did to the use of oil.

Cooper said the solution to water problems will eventually have to be the cheap desalinization of sea-water. The process can be done now, but only by the long and tedious process of evaporation and re-condensing.

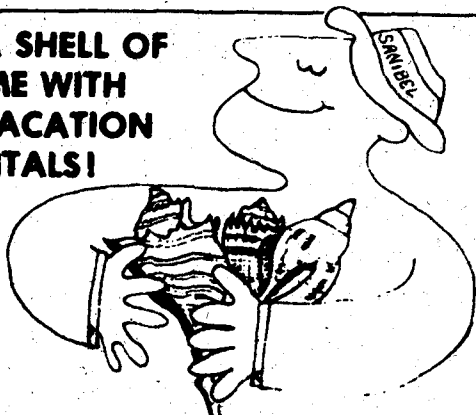

He said the laboratory he heads at Florida

International University is developing a process right now using sand filters, a standard method to get solid suspended particles out of sewage water, for example, so it can be used again to water your garden, and involving raising the temperature of the salt water by 10 degrees.

He did not completely explain the process; it is still a secret, and will be until July, when it is expected to be completely developed. However, he did say the process may revolutionize the water business to the point where there won't be any water shortages until, he said, "pretty far into the future, because there is a lot of ocean."

Conservation Center Manager Steve Phillips spoke to the group gathered for the final Tuesday at the Center program and urged everyone to return next November when the programs resume.

Dead alligator found, gunshots suspected

A 10-foot alligator was found dead in a Beachview Country Club pond on Thursday afternoon, March 31. The gator apparently died from two gunshot wounds, according to Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Center Manager Steve Phillips.

Although the cause of the alligator's death is not confirmed, Phillips said he strongly suspects the gator was shot. He said there were no marks on the animal other than two holes in his side.

"I don't know what else could have killed a gator this big," he said. "There have been a lot of people feeding alligators and a lot of poaching in that area," he added.

The alligator was buried and will be exhumed and examined after it has decomposed sufficiently to allow officials to find any bullets.

FISH begins full-fledged service to Islanders

By David Meardon

FISH, Friends in Service Here, is charting a path on the Islands as an organization dedicated to helping people.

In its first week of full fledged operation, FISH volunteers, ready to help 24 hours a day, provided such services as transportation for a caller's weekly therapy session at Shell Point Village and aid in solving a simple household crisis (a rodent problem).

"We have had a great variety of calls," said FISH president Marilyn Bradley, who stressed that FISH is prepared to respond to the needs of the community.

Some of the services the more than 40 volunteers provide include companionship and help for the sick or disabled; aid in household tasks; and transportation for shopping excursions. FISH volunteers lend an ear or a hand to those in need. The service is strictly confidential, Bradley stressed.

"We can do lots of things. The organization is really in good shape. We are more than happy to give help at no cost whatsoever," she said.

Bradley said the organization also helps to relieve the police of calls that may not merit police at the scene, but do, nevertheless, require response.

Since its organization 10 weeks ago, more than 40 people of all ages and many different walks of life have volunteered their services. A five-week training session followed FISH's first general meeting in February. Last week, the organization held its kickoff meeting and get-together.

"We are your friends and neighbors," said FISH vice-president Emily Barefield. "By calling FISH, you're just tying into a network of friendly neighbors."

FISH volunteers are presently distributing letters, flyers and signs throughout the Islands informing people of their service. Donations are greatly appreciated.

For more information or for help from a friendly neighbor, call FISH 24 hours a day at 472-0404, or write to P.O. Box 854, Sanibel, FL 33957.

Island artist recovering from accident

By David Meardon

Artist Gregory Pastorius, who suffered near-fatal injuries in a motorcycle accident on Feb. 24, is on the slow road to recovery. He is still hospitalized but has started physical therapy to give strength to his healing bones.

Pastorius has no medical coverage, and since the accident there has been an outpouring of support, both emotional and financial, from friends and relatives. A benefit concert in his home town of Fort Lauderdale raised over $2,000, drawing hundreds of people to hear the jazz sounds of many local musicians, including his brother, renowned bass player Jaco Pastorius.

On Sanibel, Wings Wildlife T-Shirt Shop is turning over profits from the sale of Greg's dolphin designs to help Pastorius with rent and expenses.

"We care very much about Greg. It gives us a good feeling to know we can help out," said Gail Boggs of Wings. Thus far, more than $200 has been raised from the sale of his designs.

The shop, which carries silkscreened wildlife t-shirts, is donating between three and five dollars per shirt for Pastorius' two dolphin designs, which are pictured here. The short sleeve sells for $9.50, and the long-sleeve is priced at $12.95.

Sales have been brisk, Boggs said, even though most customers are not aware of the situation.

Pastorius, who designed and silkscreened shirts for Wings at LeeCo Industries in South Fort Myers, also creates artwork in many mediums, including painting, free-standing clay sculpture, pencil drawings and film. He had been working on the organization for the recent CROW benefit when, coming home to complete the publicity artwork, his motorcycle crossed the road on Lindgren Boulevard, hit the wall of the canal and threw him to the other embankment.

Pastorius suffered serious injuries, including a punctured lung, broken ribs, wrist, and legs. Saved by the quick work of Sanibel's medics, he was in intensive care for 12 days at Lee Memorial Hospital, where he is now beginning therapy. He will continue therapy at Shell Point Village after his expected release and return to Sanibel in about three weeks.

"Greg is a good friend to all. It's very nice to be in a position to help out," Boggs said.

Wings is located next to the Apothecary Center, 2460 Palm Ridge Road, and is open weekdays from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and weekends from noon to 5 p.m.

Community Association annual meeting planned tonight

The Annual Membership Meeting of the Sanibel Community Association will be held tonight (Tuesday, April 6) at 8 p.m., following a covered dish dinner starting at 6:30 p.m.

Outgoing President Jerry Wierman will preside at the business meeting. Reports of officers will be received and new directors elected.

Nominated to fill positions on the board are Mike Klein, Urban Palmer, Joe Feeney, Art Ford and Bud Bernhard.

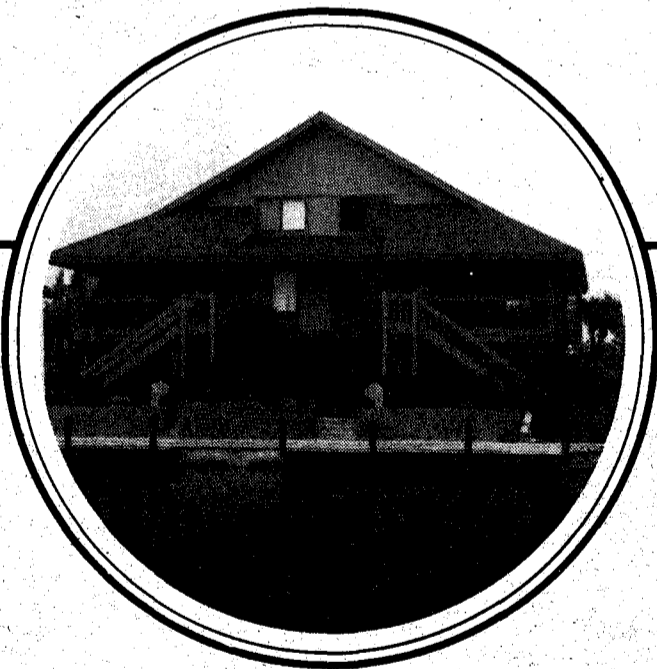

Chamber of Commerce annual meeting scheduled April 26

The Annual Meeting of the Sanibel-Captiva Chamber of Commerce is planned for Monday evening, April 26, at the Dunes Country Club.

Election of officers and election of members to the Board of Directors will take place at the meeting. The president, treasurer and committee heads will give their annual reports.

Nominations for the Board of Directors have been made and include Pat Slater, Fred Comlossy, Ralph Woodring and Ted Cole. Additional nominations can be made from the floor the night of the meeting.

This year's meeting will also feature the Sanibel Trolley Story, an audio-visual presentation in Al Milliken's inimitable style.

Annual Carmichael photography workshop, seminar scheduled

The Photographers' Gallery announces its third annual Pete Carmichael photography workshop and seminar to be held Saturday and Sunday, April 24 and 25.

Carmichael, a Sarasota photographer, leads his students on excursions into the Ding Darling Refuge for intensive lessons in both bird photography and close-up nature studies.

The two-day course titled Nature Photography begins early on Saturday, April 24, with a slide show at the gallery of Carmichael's macro lens nature studies. Coffee and doughnuts will be served.

Then Carmichael takes his students to the refuge, spending four or five hours in demonstrations of composition and technique. Sunday, April 25, begins with a slide show on the photographer's bird studies and culminates in another excursion into the refuge for lessons on better techniques in photographing birds both stationary and in flight.

Credentials for the course require a good working knowledge of the 35 millimeter camera, both in understanding photographic technology (such as the terms "depth of field") and a functioning 35 millimeter camera with, if possible, a long lens and a normal lens plus a macro lens or extension tubes (although not required).

Students are asked to bring their choice of either Kodachrome 64 slide film or Kodacolor 100 negative film.

The cost of the course is $35 per person. It is necessary to book the class in advance. The cut-off date for admissions will be April 9.

Please phone the gallery, 472-5777, for further information, or stop by at 1554 Periwinkle Way.

Photographers' Gallery presents Works From The North

The Photographers' Gallery presents a special two-man exhibition, Works From The North, by Vermont photographer Eleanor Briggs and Cincinnati photographer Thomas Schiff. The show opens this Sunday, April 11, with a reception at the gallery from 5 to 7 p.m.

Briggs will attend the opening and present a talk on her photographic methods beginning at 7 p.m.

Schiff is both a travel photographer and a documentarist. The 15 photographs he presents in this exhibition are black and white abstract studies of reflections and objects within storefront window displays. The photographs were taken in an area spanning Dayton, Ohio, to Detroit.

Schiff's years of experience in photographic art have resulted in a series of highly imaginative glimpses into everyday street scenes.

A former partner in Lustrum Press, a photographic book printing company, Briggs has had numerous group and solo exhibitions in the Vermont-New Hampshire area. Her 25 prints in Works From The North include five portraits and 20 prints from a series documenting her recollections of childhood summers on a lake in Wisconsin.

In her statement about the exhibition, Briggs says, "This place has been in my dreams all these years and when I saw the boathouse (by the lake) again, I knew that I knew what the sun-flooded upstairs room looked like inside wandering outside, the smell of phlox or the afternoon sun on the ferns would trip my memory and a blurred figure or shaded path would return to mind.

"I have gone back every summer for five years, drawn by the struggle to comprehend the workings of my own memory. These photographs are from my continuing notebook of this exploration. With them I attempt to mark points along the way and to express something of the strangeness of my remembering."

The public is invited to the opening at the gallery, 1554 Periwinkle Way. The exhibit continues through May 9. Admission is free.

The Photographers' Gallery is a non-profit, educational organization and is open from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

Weymouth donates prints to benefit Recreation Center

By David Meardon

Island naturalist George Weymouth has donated prints of his limited edition Pileateds at Nest to the Sanibel Recreation Complex. The print will be available to anyone who donates $35 to the complex, which is middle stages of development.

Weymouth's four-color prints will be on display at Bailey's on Thursday and Friday, April 8 and 9, from 10 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 3 p.m.

"It's a real plus to have someone like George Weymouth help out," said Dick Noon, a primary force in the development of the complex. The pool, which opened to the public last August, has seen a growing use, as nearly 3,000 people took the plunge during the month of March. "These numbers don't include the swim team, either," Noon said.

Also included in the complex is a workout weight room, a bathhouse, a pool heater and bleachers. Still in the design stages is the gymnasium, which will go out for construction bids as soon as the plans are finalized.

"We've got the gymnasium to build yet, and we hope to start on it in the very near future," Noon said.

Thus far, $112,000 dollars, matched by the city, has been raised for the complex. "Right now we need to raise about $40,000 more in matching funds for the complex," Noon said. Total cost of the complex is estimated at $325,000.

"People have just been fantastic," Noon said of the community response to the new complex.

Donations for the Weymouth print will be used to purchase a set of AMF free weights and possibly a Computrim exercycle, which measures a person's heart rate and body tolerance level.

The complex is open daily from 10 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 5 p.m., and weekends from 1 to 5 p.m. For further information call 472-0345.

Welcome to that special island known as Sanibel. To all of us it represents the best of what nature has to offer. To us it means keeping within the design of nature. At ferry landing we mean to lay man's mark very gently within the existing environment.

To be sure, ferry landing is intended only for those few who truly believe in Sanibel, in its special place in the sun and its extraordinary lifestyle. Simply, those who do not understand what our Island means will not be invited to live at ferry landing.

Created and overseen by Island architect Ray Fenton, the low density hamlet will be exactly that... low density. Less than a score of homes will be erected. It is designed in the style for which Mr. Fenton is noted.

Located on the Bay, within sight of the Lighthouse, ferry landing is being finalized now. And there will not be more than six buyers allowed, per year, to participate in this, the last of Sanibel's Bayfront residential enclaves.

Today would be a perfect day to lay your claim to this special involvement. Call for your appointment today. Tomorrow simply might be too late.

ferry landing is special.

Shopping

Sanibel is a veritable shopper's paradise. Tasteful boutiques and casual island shops join forces to present visitors with everything and anything a vacation shopper could hope for.

At the Lighthouse (Eastern) end of the island, Punta Ybel Plaza and the Sea Horse Shops are right across the street from one another, providing a variety of products that can cure your sweet tooth or tickle your shell finder's fancy. Need a good haircut or coiffure? You can get it in either of these shopping centers.

Most businesses open at 10 a.m. and close at 5:30 p.m. This holds true for many island stores, although some are open evenings during the winter season.

Tall Australian Pines shade Periwinkle Way and the shopper travels west along this main thoroughfare. This stretch of road is truly a shopper's paradise!! It's all here -- the fast and not-so-fast eating spots, casual and elegant boutiques, hand-wrought jewelry, craft designs, shell shops and balms for health product fanatics.

Limited Edition, American Craft Gallery, 30 Periwinkle Place, (472-6800). Open 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

Watch to your right and left as you drive or cycle along. Photographic supplies, bait and tackle, deli foods, fresh seafood and baked goods, knick-knacks and what-nots can all be found along the drive to the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road. Along the way, shopping centers such as the Heart of the Islands, Periwinkle Place and Tahitian Gardens offer a variety of island delights.

Palm Ridge Road, the Periwinkle Way turn-off to Captiva, offers several shopping centers featuring everything from imports to gift shops for the discriminating shopper, plants and shells, a sandwich shop, ice cream parlors, pizza parlor, boutique shop and the Island Apothecary pharmacy.

At the Tarpon Bay-Periwinkle Way intersection, the island

Shopping Center features the island's only supermarket and movie house.

A left on Tarpon Bay Road takes the visitor past Sanibel's original schoolhouse, which now holds original island watercolors and woodcuts.

Then on to West Gulf Drive and westward to an interesting little artisan shop and gallery.

At the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road, you may choose instead to turn right and follow the signs to the Tarpon Bay marina, where you will find a cluster of quaint shops overlooking the back bay. Some antiques, shells and shellcrafts, what-nots and clever clothes can be found here, as well as a great seafood sandwich and soft drinks.

The spectacular ride to Captiva, with its lush foliage and enchanting view of the Gulf, well worth a day's outing. Talented artists display their works in one roadside shop, while others feature some nifty gifts for Grandma to take home to little hands as a pleasant hodge-podge of remembrances from these barrier islands.

Whether for shopping or merely browsing, island shops offer a surprising variety from one-of-a-kind collectibles for the discerning shopper to postcards for the simple souvenir hunter. And of course, for all, shells -- shell jewelry, shell lamps, just plain shells -- the most beautiful shells in the world from the most beautiful shelling beaches in the world.

DISASTER ALERT

Radio Station WRCC, 103.9 FM, broadcasts details of any emergency such as hurricane alert or any other disastrous occurrence that might affect Sanibel or Captiva.

WARNING! SAFEGUARD YOUR VALUABLES

In order to protect your valuable possessions from theft, it is recommended that you take them to a bank or hotel vault for safekeeping. Do NOT leave them in your room or car.

FISHING

While no license is required for saltwater fishing, fishing in freshwater ponds or the Sanibel River requires a Florida fishing license.

Licenses are available at Bailey's General Store on Periwinkle Way. The fee is $6.50 residents and $10.50 for non-residents.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE
 VISITOR'S INFORMATION

 Saturday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.,

 and Captiva.

FISH

Neighborhood help for islanders in need of transportation, regular phone checks and assorted non-emergency neighborly services. Call 472-0404, 24 hours a day.

DOGGY DO'S AND DON'TS

If you are visiting Sanibel with the family Fido in tow, all the better. All family members can enjoy Southwest Florida sun and surf.

The Chamber of Commerce can tell you what accommodations are available for families with pets.

Remember: Wherever you are, clean up after your pet!
 "Leave nothing on the beach but footprints" applies to dogs, too.

There's no leash law on Sanibel, but of course an excitable or unruly animal is better off when controlled with a leash.

SHELLING

The city's resolution limiting the taking of live shells to two live shells per species per person is one to be scrupulously obeyed. As a matter of fact, in order to preserve Sanibel's beautiful shelling beaches, most collectors refuse to take any live shells whatsoever.

LIBRARIES

Sanibel Public Library
 At the intersection of Palm Ridge Road and Florence Streets.
 (472-2483)
 Open 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., daily except Sunday.

Captiva Memorial Library
 Chapin and Wiles, Captiva
 (472-2133)
 Open Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesdays from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

CAMPING, BEACH FIRES

Camping on the beach is prohibited, as are open beach fires.

An exemption to the beach fire ordinance is a fire in an approved cooking container (not to exceed 48" x 24" x 12" deep) with an extruded metal grill for non-commercial food preparation. This type of container will be allowed on the beach without a permit.

After you have had your beach party, it is recommended that you assume the responsibility for cleaning up any debris or litter in your area.

BICYCLING

If you aren't used to a lot of bicycle traffic, watch out on Sanibel. The extensive network of bike paths on the island is clearly marked along the edge of the road.

Observe caution when driving near the bike path. A state law and city ordinance combine to prohibit parking or driving on the bike path. Mopeds are not permitted on the bike paths.

Planning on spending some time on a bike to enjoy the island sun and sights? Make sure your vehicle is equipped with a bike flag, horn, good brakes and a light for night riding.

Under Florida law, bicycle riders have the same rights and responsibilities as motor vehicle drivers.

Drive safely!

SPEED LIMITS

There is very good reason for the varying speed limits (20-30 mph) along the Causeway. The slower speeds preserve the bridge supports from strain and stress.

This speed limit is strictly enforced with radar on a 24-hour basis by both the Sanibel Police Department and the Lee County Sheriff's Department.

GATORS

Feeding alligators anywhere within the Sanibel city limits is not only illegal, but can be extremely dangerous.

Alligators can run up to 45 mph, so if you are close enough to feed an alligator, he is close enough to feed on you. An alligator fed for fun loses his natural fear of humans and becomes a potential threat to children and pets.

For removal of a nuisance alligator, call the following representative of the Southwest Florida Alligator Association.
 They are licensed and have permits to legally handle gators:
 George Campbell, 472-2825;
 Steve Phillips, 472-2329; Mark
 Westall, 472-5128; or George Weymouth, 472-5128.

The Necklace with a Legend

While the Sand Dollar is one of the most widely known and popular of all shells, few people are aware of the pretty little legend attached to it.

Legend has it that these strange shells tell the story of Christ's suffering and his glory.

The five holes represent the five wounds of Christ. On the front the Easter Lily—its center, a five pointed star representing the Star of Bethlehem which led the shepherds from afar. On the back the outline of the Christmas Poinsettia reminds us of His birthday. When the shell is broken open, five Doves of Peace and Good Will appear.

Because of this religious legend, this fascinating creature of the sea is often referred to as the Holy Ghost shell.

Available in 14KT. Gold, Vermeil and Sterling Silver.

A beautiful way to wish someone special a Happy Easter.
