Hurricane Alberto

A near miss for the Islands

High tides and waves spurred by Hurricane Alberto meant fun for Island surfers and shellers once the storm threat had safely passed last Friday. The Island atmosphere was different the night before, however, as city officials and residents braced themselves for Alberto's strike.

Although the most obvious feelings on Friday after Alberto waned were those of relief, city officials were pleased and confident that Sanibel's hurricane plan and Emergency Preparedness and Evacuation Relief Team had proved their effectiveness in the face of the real thing. More about the storm that almost was, on page 12A. Photos by David Meardon.

Here come those lazy, hazy, crazy days of summer

There was plenty to celebrate about at Sanibel Elementary School last week. It was, after all, the last week of classes — so close to summer vacation you could almost taste it.

Festivities abounded, starting with a Medieval Fair created by Major Work Area students in grades two through five. The youngsters not only reported on the lives of the Vikings, Byzantines, Moslems and European Christians — they lived them. Each student made costumes to fit a role, and the day's fare also consisted of fencing, jousting and bartering.

Later that day, students and teachers alike gathered in the ballfield, each armed with a helium balloon (courtesy of Muffet Hayes' Movement Arts) with a note asking the finder to contact the sender.

Then, in a rush of excitement, more than 150 balloons were released, and all watched and cheered as the Hurricane Alberto influenced winds whisked them away. A softball game followed the festivities.

Kids also got a chance to compete in Field Day complete with tire races, horseshoe tournaments and relay races.

CEPD subcommittee recommends hydraulic dredging to fight erosion

By Peggy Dailey

The Ad Hoc Committee on Methods established by the Captiva Erosion Prevention District in January of this year presented its report to the district on Monday.

In the report the committee supports the present hydraulic dredging program of the CEPD as the most effective method to combat erosion. At the same time, however, it recommends research into other methods of erosion control.

Methods Committee members are Don Starr, Charles Bruning, Bud Leonard, George Kalvin, Ed Manthei and John Burr.

The committee heard four speakers during its researching period this winter and spring; they were engineers John Benson Jr., of Bradenton; Michael Stephens of Naples; and Erik Olsen of Jacksonville; and contractor Richard Holmberg of Englewood.

All the men said they could renourish Captiva's eroding shoreline for less than the present $9 million estimate, but they said they could not do the work as rapidly as it can be accomplished by the hydraulic dredging method, according to the committee report.

The report lists several alternatives to hydraulic dredging for the expensive renourishment that has been proposed. One is that Captiva purchase a small dredge of its own to do the work. Another is that filtered sandbags to entrap the sand that moves from South Seas' north end of Blind Pass be installed at strategic points on the shore.

Another alternative would involve rebuilding or extending the groin at Blind Pass to retain sand before it leaves the system, and still another suggests constructing a sand bypass system for Red Fish Pass designed to move the sand that now moves naturally north across the pass and along Captiva's gulf shore.

In their report, committee members say they understand the extremely difficult nature of erosion and renourishment, which has caused feelings of "fear and mystery" for local citizens.

The report also outlines a brief history of erosion on Captiva since 1926 and of the history of the CEPD itself, which was established in 1958.

Because of the history of the erosion problem and based on reports from engineering firms and the fact that there is "an inadequate self-renewing source (of sand)," the hydraulic dredging appears to be the best available current solution, the report concludes.

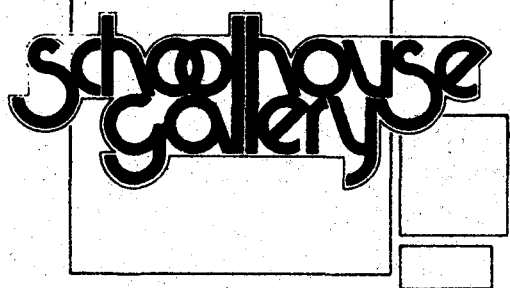

The group also recommends that a copy of the full report be sent to every Captiva property owner and voter.

The report has three appendixes. Appendix C deals with the cost and effectiveness of buying a small Captiva Island-owned dredge; Appendix B deals mainly with sandbagging; and Appendix A deals with a "time-phased" outline using rocks on top of groins, concrete-filled bags and lateral bags with artificial headlands every half mile.

The CEPD meets at 10 a.m. on the first Monday of every month at the Captiva Community Center.

Captivan laments Sanibel beach parking strategy

To the Editor
The Islander

"Parking by restricted permit only" is the name of the game in Sanibel. Signs announcing this regulation have been erected at the Sanibel side parking area of the county-owned Turner Beach. This parking area is now vacant, while the Captiva side parking area of Turner Beach is full at this slack time of the year.

Tourists, cut off from Sanibel's beautiful beaches due to parking restrictions, will crowd our beach and narrow streets. Already the visitors are overflowing to our fire lane accesses where there is inadequate or no parking at the center of the island.

We residents in downtown Captiva must brace ourselves for the shock of buying a new half-nourished beach with taxpayers' money to satisfy the developer-controlled Captiva Erosion Prevention District.

Are we to be faced with the heartaches of seeing our tiny, quiet island overwhelmed due to developer pressure? And people call this progress.

Very truly yours,
John H. Mount

Howe urges protection of Charlotte Harbor

A copy of the following letter to Gov. Bob Graham was given to The Islander for publication.

Dear Gov. Graham

The enclosed May 8 interview by Fort Myers News-Press reporter David Futch confirms my 10-year observations and conclusions on the rationale that has persistently governed the Lee County Commission's failure to recognize the need for protection of Charlotte Harbor and the rest of the county's fragile and booming coastal zone.

That governing body, in my opinion, is attitudinally incorrigible, incapable and unwilling to cope with the strong development pressures prevailing in its threatened coastal areas.

The two commission spokesmen interviewed, regrettably, were not on the local scene during the critical years of the past decade. That period witnessed the dreary and bumbling efforts to establish and staff a workable Planning Commission needed to develop the Comprehensive Plan mandated by Chapter 163, Florida Statutes. An ineffective one was finally adopted beyond the four-year deadline of the law. Sporadic and slow attempts continue to patch the plan.

It seems counterproductive at this juncture for the state to continue to grant time extensions to such a body to develop the coastal zone management and regulatory element that the law required to be included in the original plan. Such a protective measure appears foreign to the philosophy of the current development director. (You may recall that he was initially retained to ballyhoo the incompatible Port Boca Grande at the mouth of Charlotte Harbor.)

As Commissioner Mike Roeder confessed in the article, there is not even a remote chance that the state's July 15 deadline -- or any other one within two years -- can be met. This is indeed a cavalier way to treat the essential requirements of the splendid Charlotte Harbor Plan that was painstakingly prepared and endorsed by an overwhelming majority of the committee that you wisely appointed for the purpose.

The prudent course for the state, under the documented conditions, seems to be to recognize the publicly admitted inability of unwillingness of Lee County to comply. That warrants initiation of the required action to proclaim Charlotte Harbor an area of critical state concern. Only such a legal designation can halt to threatened destructive development of that key tourist attraction and irreplaceable natural resource of this area and all of Florida.

My greatest regret in urging state action on this matter -- and one shared by many other concerned taxpayers -- is that the past performance and prospective inaction of our Lee County Commission makes it imperative.

Sincerely,
Paul Howe

CONA head, Vegetation Committee chairman agree to cooperate for vegetation recycling program

Urban Palmer, president of the Committee of Neighborhood Associations, Inc. and Vegetation Committee Chairman Dr. Bill Webb have agreed to head a task force to investigate ways to privately implement a vegetation recycling program for Sanibel.

Public Works Director Gary Price, who supervised an experimental recycling project that was developed by a vegetation subcommittee and conducted last February in Gulf Pines subdivision, will work with Palmer and Webb.

At last Tuesday's City Council meeting Price acknowledged the experiment, which involved chipping vegetation on site in the neighborhood, was successful.

"But it's too expensive and impractical for the city to implement Island-wide," he told the council. He estimated the yearly cost to be $42,217 without taking into account supervision, unusual repairs, insurance, clerical cost or equipment replacement.

There would be logistical problems in attempting on-site chipping in subdivisions such as Shell Harbor, Water Shadows, Beachview and Tradewinds, where gravel lawns are commonplace, Price said.

Alternatives to a city-operated vegetation recycling program are franchising private operators to serve the entire Island or letting individual subdivisions manage their own programs.

Webb and the Vegetation Committee promote a continuation of the recycling program not only as a means of reducing illegal dumping but more importantly to retain plant nutrients on Sanibel to help maintain the limited fertility of the soil.

Webb suggested that neighborhood associations be encouraged to contract with private operators to provide the chipping service to their members on a year 'round basis.

Palmer, as president of the neighborhood coalition, agreed to head a committee to investigate how this can be handled through the private sector.

Webb volunteered to assist in the project.

Valtin criticizes 'embarrassing' topless ordinance, residents suggest solutions to parking woes

An ordinance prohibiting "the exposure of private parts and female breasts" in Sanibel establishments where alcoholic beverages are sold is an "open invitation to establishments that do not serve liquor to provide topless entertainment," Councilman Fred Valtin has charged.

Valtin, the only dissenter in the 3-1 vote approving the ordinance last week, maintained that Sanibel already has adequate control of the problem in its occupational license law that requires council approval even to allow a guitar strumming singer to perform in Island establishments.

Valtin said he found it "excruciatingly embarrassing politically" to even consider such an ordinance that borders on the pornographic.

"I'm not a prude," Valtin told his colleagues. "But I will not be a party to an action that talks about anal clefts and cleavages." Valtin's motion to deny the ordinance failed for lack of a second.

Mayor Porter Goss called the ordinance the city's only legal protection against people who are interested only in making money setting up strip joint type places on the Island.

"The ordinance clearly states our policy that we do not want topless entertainment on this Island," Goss said.

City Attorney Neal Bowen explained that the ordinance does not include non-liquor serving establishments because the city has little ability to control obscene behavior but does have "plenary power to regulate alcoholic serving establishments."

The language used tracks that of ordinances approved by the city of Fort Myers and Lee County that have been upheld in the Supreme Court, Bowen said.

Councilman Mike Klein pointed out that, "The time to take action is before the problem arises." His motion to approve the ordinance was passed by a 3-1 vote with Valtin dissenting and Councilman Duane White absent.

suggest solutions to parking woes

Two "part time" Sanibel residents, concerned that a lawsuit pending against the city might succeed in invalidating the beach access parking ordinance, have suggested solutions to the problem.

Attorney Richard Downes of Sparta, N.J., is certain the question of equity can be resolved by a simple change in the language of the ordinance.

By making $1 per year residential permits for beach access parking available to all "full time Sanibel taxpayers" rather than just to "full time Sanibel residents" will remove the distinction made in the ordinance between persons who make Sanibel their "domicile" and those who own property but live here only part of the year, Downes maintains.

Downes' opinion as an attorney is that J. DeValle Goldsmith's suit claiming Sanibel's parking ordinance discriminates against him because he is not a full time resident will be successful.

Downes agrees with Goldsmith's contention that the city is depriving Goldsmith of his constitutional right to equal protection by denying him a residential parking permit because he resides on Sanibel only three months of the year.

Grayson Harralson, who spends January, February and March each year at the West Wind Inn, suggests another alternative.

He proposes the city continue to sell to full time Sanibel residents for $1 a year residential parking permits that may be used at 14 designated residential parking areas and five restricted areas affording access to the gulf and bay beaches.

Parking permits with equal privileges should be available for everyone else (part time residents, non-resident property owners and the general public) on a weekly basis for a minimum fee of $7 or by the month for $25 or $30, Harralson suggests.

Currently part time residents and non-resident property owners may purchase for $1 a year restricted permits that allows them to park only in the five restricted areas.

Under his scheme, Harralson points out, parking at beach accesses would be available for $1 a day -- a reasonable fee.

Specific amendment requests crowd agendas

Hearings of requests for specific amendments to the Comprehensive Land Use Plan will dominate City Council agendas for the next month.

City Manager Bernie Murphy warned the council that 12 requests for variances are scheduled for the June 15 meeting, 14 for the July 6 meeting and nine for July 20.

At last Tuesday's meetings three specific amendments were given final approval. First readings were declared on five others.

The specific amendment process has been streamlined by the reduction in "red tape" involved in the procedure. Two weeks have been cut from the time by eliminating the staff administrative hearing, Murphy said.

With upcoming agendas crowded with these sometimes lengthy hearings, Murphy said, he has been forced to "put off" people who requested to appear before the council.

Mayor Porter Goss suggested that they could be allotted "a couple of minutes" during the Public Comments and Inquiries at the end of the council meetings.

Councilman Francis Bailey complained that this privilege is sometimes misused.

"Today for instance, one man who wasn't even on the agenda got up and talked for more than an hour. He kept repeating himself and added nothing new," Bailey said.

"It was a waste of time and it's got to stop so we can get on with the business," Bailey added.

Goss suggested that any councilman has the right to ask that a discussion be cut off.

Councilman Mike Klein, who had done just that earlier, agreed and added, "It takes the heat off the chairman, too."

Klein, as vice mayor, will preside at some council meetings this summer when Goss is off the Island.

Although he said he didn't expect to miss that many, Goss asked and received council permission to be absent from three meetings between June 15 and Labor Day.

Mosquito Control District revises plans

A turquoise storage shed will not be moved from Periwinkle Way to the Lee County Mosquito Control District's helicopter pad near Bowman's Beach, and three fuel storage tanks will be installed underground at the site, Mosquito Control District Director Wayne Miller told concerned Sanibelians in response to their demands of, "What's next for the site?"

Miller made the assurances at last Tuesday's City Council meeting, easing the concerns of residents of the neighboring Blind Pass Condominium and Gulf Ridge and Sanibel Bayous subdivisions. The residents have been upset by the visual pollution created by a "concentration camp" type chain link fence enclosing the heli-pad.

Miller promised that some form of native vegetation would be planted to cover the fence that is needed for security. He also said the "scalped" area surrounding the asphalt landing pad would be grassed over.

The storage building that is being moved from Periwinkle Way at the request of the city can be utilized on the mainland rather than at the Bowman's Beach site, he said, adding that the aging tanks on Periwinkle will be removed, too.

The council agreed to Miller's request to delay the relocation until winter, "after our busy season is over."

The council asked that the district's fuel tanks be installed above ground at the helipad site to make it easier to detect leaks, Miller said.

"It really doesn't matter to us," he said. "We have underground tanks at our Buckingham location that are no problem."

But Miller balked at Assistant Fire Chief Charles Frederick's request that the Mosquito Control District install a six-inch water line and a fire hydrant at the pad site.

"We've talked to IWA about it," Miller said. "And it's a major project requiring permits from the Department of Environmental Regulation, among others, that we're not willing to undertake."

As an alternative he proposed that, "The Fire Department do the paper work."

Review, changes suggested before next year's Student Government Day

In response to media criticism that this year's city-sponsored Student Government Day evolved into an "Island vaudeville comedy" with fifth grade student participants merely "puppets," Mayor Porter Goss has suggested the council review the format before the 1983 event.

In a memo to City Manager Bernie Murphy, Goss suggested the city start work on the project early in 1983 by scheduling a joint conference with the school and other interested parties.

More time should be allocated for preparation and orientation of the students with members of the council and city department heads meeting with their counterparts in advance of the "great day," Goss said.

"Fifth graders can't be expected to handle a 'mock' council meeting without some coaching," he added.

Goss also suggested that a parent or teacher be added to the judging team that selects the winning essays that are the basis for participating in Student Government Day. This year's judges were the editors of the two Island weekly newspapers and Sanibel librarian Harriet Howe.

Eighteen of the 26 essays submitted were declared "winners." The "losers" remained at school while their classmates enjoyed tours of City Hall, and the Fire and Police departments and were guests of honor at a luncheon at the Community Center.

To assure that no one is left out, Goss suggested, Student Government Day next year should be considered a fifth grade class project.

At last week's City Council meeting Councilman Francis Bailey expressed indignation at the public criticism of an event that "brings out the best in these young people."

"From a selfish standpoint I thoroughly enjoyed it and had a lot of fun," he said.

Councilman Fred Valtin agreed with Bailey.

But both Goss and Councilman Mike Klein acknowledged there might be room for improvement.

"We could better prepare them by spending more time with the children in advance of the event," Klein said.

Council searches for commission replacement

At its June 15 meeting the City Council will appoint a replacement for Planning Commissioner Albert Edwards, who resigned last month. The council is soliciting volunteers to fill the term that expires in December 1984.

Mayor Porter Goss said Gail Reynolds, chairman of Community Housing and Resources, Inc., a non-profit organization that is working to provide affordable housing for Sanibel workers, has already expressed her willingness to serve.

Reynolds, a former English teacher, is a licensed building contractor and an energy efficient design consultant.

New design plan drafted for convenience-grocery store

Arnold's Seahorse Shops will submit to the Planning Commission for approval a revised plan for adding a convenience-type grocery store to the complex at the eastern end of the Island.

The new design includes a "brand new drainage plan," one thorn of contention in earlier hearings of a specific amendment to permit the expansion, Mimi Palmer, representing owner David Arnold, told the council last Tuesday.

Mayor Porter Goss advised Palmer to check out the new design with the planning staff to make certain it complies with all of the city's new commercial regulations.

Arnold first proposed the project more than a year ago, and Planner Ken Pfalzer said other specific amendments could be needed now for the plans to meet the new requirements for commercial development.

To maintain the same level of intensity of use in the complex Arnold proposes to eliminate the antique shop and move the beauty shop into the building on the east side of the complex.

Pinocchio's Ice Cream shop would be combined with the convenience store in the westside shops. Twenty-five parking spaces and a new ramp will be added with seven other spaces provided in the 10-foot property line setback on Buttonwood Lane. Pfalzer called the revised plan a "major improvement."

The City Council has recognized the need for a convenience grocery at the east end of the Island but could not approve the original plan because of the lack of adequate parking and the increased intensity of use on the site that is already over-developed.

Action on Arnold's request was continued until the Planning Commission reviews the new proposal and makes a recommendation.

Ordinance extends police jurisdiction to control sales solicitation

An ordinance extending police jurisdiction to control off-site sales solicitation to all city-owned property was adopted by the City Council on second reading last week.

But City Attorney Neal Bowen said he "is not satisfied" that that measure will solve the problem that was created on Sanibel when time sharing resorts solicited prospective customers in shopping center parking lots and on the beach.

"It's really a gray area of law," Bowen said, adding that a similar law has been struck down in Hawaii.

"Extending the prohibition on solicitation to all city-owned property may make it too broad," Bowen acknowledged. He told the council that the attorney for Mort Rabkin, operator of the Caribe Beach resort, informed him that, "If and when the Caribe files a lawsuit against the city seeking recognition of its right to sell beach club memberships, the suit will also challenge the constitutionality of the city's ban on off-site solicitation."

City Manager Bernie Murphy said he welcomed the law that will stop sales solicitation in City Hall.

Code Enforcement Board to expand

Sanibel's Code Enforcement Board will be enlarged from six to seven members to comply with revisions in Florida law that go into effect July 1.

The City Council last Tuesday declared a first reading on an ordinance amending the ordinance that established the board last year.

The revised state law also limits reappointments to the board to one successive term, reduces the maximum fine for violations from $500 to $250 and stipulates that appeals of final administrative rulings by the board may be made only to the circuit court.

Mayor Porter Goss said he was unhappy with the change in the appeal procedure because, "Now there's no way the aggrieved party can get back to elected officials."

Final action on the ordinance is scheduled for the July 6 council meeting, which will permit appointment of the seventh member before the next Code Enforcement Board hearing, which is scheduled for July 15, City Attorney Neal Bowen said.

Council agrees to exchange .22 acres for .05-acre parcel near City Hall site

The City Council has agreed to exchange a .22 acre parcel of city-owned land for a .05-acre triangular parcel owned by Willie Compton that will provide a portion of the right-of-way needed for a Wooster Lane access to the new City Hall site.

In addition the city will initiate a zoning change from residential to primary office retail district for Compton's acquisition.

Councilman Fred Valtin inquired of Assistant City Manager Gary Price what the rationale was for the city's giving away three times as much land as it will acquire.

"The traffic pattern will be changed and Wooster Lane will no longer be a cul de sac," Price explained. "We have no use for the extra right-of-way, and 9,500 square feet of land will be back on the tax rolls."

Currently there is only one access from Dunlop Road to the former Hallward property that is the site of the new City Hall.

City Manager Bernie Murphy added that a second access road "means more to the city than the vacated property that adjoins land already owned by Compton on Wooster Lane."

Murphy was authorized to "go ahead with the deal" but was instructed to obtain a new survey of the properties involved before the Aug. 3 second hearing of an ordinance conveying the land to Compton. Murphy will also begin the process required for rezoning the property for Compton.

ON THE WATER

By Captain Mike Fuery

Ever wanted to try your hand at catching a shark? I don't mean a monster "jaws" type of shark, but one that you could handle on light tackle -- and then have the shark for dinner, rather than the other way around.

Sometimes I forget about going after sharks. I get so wrapped up in tarpon, trout or snook charters that the sharks are ignored. But this year will be different for a couple of reasons.

The first reason, and if you don't know by now, you should, is that the snook season has been closed for all of June and July. That means as of June 1 that you can't catch and keep snook, no matter what size they are.

This measure was passed as an emergency stop-gap in the state capitol a few weeks ago to give the snook time to reproduce without the heavy fishing pressures they have suffered through in past years.

By Aug. 1, so some of the leading state biologists say, the prime roe laying time for the snook will be over, and it will be okay to fish for the snook again. Either way, there won't be any snook fishing for the next two months.

Word is out, unofficially, that the Florida Marine Patrol will make a well publicized example of the first people they catch with illegal snook. Keep that in mind if you are tempted to kill one of these fish during the protected season.

No snook fishing, so what's wrong with tussling with a black tip shark or two? These jumpers leap from the water when hooked and are often called "spinners" because of it.

And these sharks aren't fussy about what they eat, like the snook and tarpon seem to be. Nope, the black tip in the 20-pound size will take the same exact bait (large pinfish) that tarpon gobble. So when fishing for tarpon your chances are very good of bagging a few sharks, too.

These black tips average from five to 15 pounds, with some smaller and other types of sharks in the sound and along the gulf coast too, like the lemon, the nurse, the hammerhead and the sand sharks. But the black tips are more plentiful and are good to eat.

The other day while tarpon fishing we gaffed five black tips and lost five more -- and that was during a rough water day in a rain storm. They aren't put off by dirty water or too much sun or too high tides.

Nearly any bait will do for shark. We cut a small frozen mangrove snapper into thirds for chum. One of the black tips that nudged the 15-pound size took a live pinfish fished under a cork and had our snapper in its stomach when it was filleted.

Black tips roam the shallow waters of Pine Island Sound this time of year, and a boat surely helps you to search more areas for them. If you are new to the area, I would suggest fishing on the western side of Chino Island in Pine Island Sound. You don't have to be in more than six feet of water. Put out a few floating rigs and sit back to wait. The fish often move in schools, and you are likely to catch more than one if you find them.

Other places to look are near the powerlines in the sound, and along the causeway island coming to Sanibel.

Be careful when bringing them into the boat or beach -- they are still sharks and will bite out of instinct, so let them die before you handle them. I take a knife and open up the underside to allow the insides to come out. Remember that sharks spoil rapidly. Gut and ice them within say 20 minutes of catching them to retain that good flavor in the meat.

Incidentally, at least one restaurant on Sanibel does a huge shark dinner business. People find it's good for the table and is an exciting fish to catch, too.

SHELLING TIPS

By Captain Mike Fuery

The family of tulip shells found on Sanibel and Captiva Islands are some of the most recognized by beginning shellers. In the shell world the tulips are mobile and interesting in their living habits.

Tulips are spiral shaped and have a wide range of colors and lengths. The two most commonly found in our shallow Island waters are the banded tulip and the true tulip.

There is one other, the horse conch. We'll do a full story on the horse conch a little later, but for you who feel this is a real conch, I'm afraid the experts can't agree.

It seems that the horse conch is a tulip -- and that can be confirmed by anyone who ever wanted to eat one and expected the pleasant taste of the queen conch to come forth.

By far, the tulip most often found is the delicately striped banded tulip. These shells are rarely found in sizes of over four inches; often they are much smaller.

During strong wave conditions, it's not unusual at all to pick up stranded live banded tulips along the gulf beaches. Their shell is of a lighter color than the other tulips, and sometimes tufts of grass that are easily removed grow on the shell. Tulips make a good addition to any collection.

True tulips are hardly ever found along the gulf shores, as are the banded tulips. Most true tulips green or brown. They don't have the distinctive bands, of course, but they are nearly always larger in the adult grown sizes.

The true tulips like to roam over the shallow, muddy bottom or sandy bars in Pine Island Sound as they look for tiny clams to eat. The banded tulip often joins its larger family member on the flats, but it's not so common to see the true tulip along the gulf beaches.

No matter which tulip or where they live, they have one thing in common. They are very active, lively shells. Pick up a large, live true tulip and it immediately swings its big, black muscled foot around in the air, trying to get a hold on something and return to its normal state.

I've watched tulips crawl up the slippery, smooth side of a five-gallon bucket and topple over the side to the dock. In a bait well in a boat, they get a suction grip on the side that takes a strong pull to dislodge.

Did you know it is fairly common for some people who have permanent bait tanks for shrimp and the like to have a "pet" tulip shell inside? The shell cleans the inside walls of the tank as it moves, dining on whatever is in the tank. You would be surprised at how these shells can keep a tank clean.

Tulips are active shells, but they often die in the shallow waters either by natural causes or by predators, and then their shells are taken over by hermit crabs.

The colorful, shy hermits love the tulip shells, particularly the banded shells. Most hermits aren't very large anyway, so they don't require the six- or seven-inch true tulip shell.

As for eating tulip shells, well, I mentioned before that those who mistake the tulips for something else are usually disappointed. Tulips are better collected for the display case rather than for the table. The exterior of the shells aren't naturally highly polished, but they can be oiled to enhance the colors.

Good shelling this week, and remember the two live shells per person per species rule, if you should come upon live ones.

Capt. Mike Fuery offers daily shelling trips to North Captiva and Cayo Costa Islands. Call 472-3459 for information.

Hurricane Alberto: The s

Storm threat forces hurricane plan 'dress rehearsal'

Hurricane Alberto teased Southwest Florida last Thursday and Friday with the threat of 80 mph winds and heavy rains.

Although the storm never materialized for the area, it forced officials, residents and visitors throughout Lee County through a hurricane evacuation "dress rehearsal" in which Sanibel officials didn't miss a cue.

City Manager Bernie Murphy echoed the thoughts of other city staff members, City Council members and private citizens on the Emergency Preparedness and Evacuation Relief Team late Friday afternoon when he called Alberto's threat "a good opportunity to see how it (the city's hurricane plan) would run."

"We had about as short a notice as we could have had about the storm," Murphy added. "And (the EPERT plan) worked."

The city was notified early Thursday afternoon that Alberto had been upgraded from its morning status as a tropical depression to a Class I hurricane that was aimed at Southwest Florida. That word from the Lee County Emergency Operations Center flung EPERT team leaders into action on Sanibel.

The EPERT core including Councilmen Francis Bailey, Mike Klein and Fred Valtin met for the first time at MacKenzie Hall at 3 p.m. Thursday for a briefing about the storm's position and predictions from weather officials about possible landfall.

The team met five more times before 12:30 a.m. Friday for updates and information exchanges about tides, traffic, shelters and Alberto's coordinates. City employees manned direct phone lines to the Lee County center throughout the night until Alberto was downgraded to a tropical storm at 6 a.m. Friday. It was downgraded again to a tropical depression Friday night.

Throughout the night on Thursday, Police Chief John Butler said, hurricane preparations proceeded according to the plan with only a few minor kinks. "It was good for us," he said after the threat had passed.

"We see room for improvements, but overall we all did what we were supposed to do," the chief added. "There are many people on this Island I would like to thank."

The most common complaint about the night's events regarded the county's issuance of a "voluntary evacuation order" around 9 p.m. Klein said the word "voluntary" confused residents and visitors as to the storm's severity.

"They didn't know whether 'voluntary' meant the storm wasn't serious enough to warrant mandatory evacuation or whether it meant they really should go," Klein said. "(The county) should have either called for an evacuation or not called for one. People were looking to us for advice, and we couldn't give it to them."

Assistant City Manager Gary Price agreed with Klein and called "voluntary evacuation" a "cop-out term."

"Are we going to fish or cut bait?" Price said. "What does 'voluntary evacuation' really mean?"

Many people on the Islands apparently heeded the voluntary evacuation notice, however, and left Sanibel and Captiva behind for higher ground on the mainland. At 10:30 p.m. Thursday, county officials reported there were 300 people, the majority of whom were from the Islands, at the Cypress Lake High School shelter in south Fort Myers.

Those who sought refuge in Island bars were sent home shortly after 10 p.m., when Lt. Ray Rhodes ordered all bars closed for the night. "We didn't want a bunch of drunk people on the road should things have gotten worse," Rhodes said. His suggestion should be included in EPERT's standard hurricane procedure, Butler said after the action was taken.

Even though Alberto stalled in the Gulf of Mexico hours away from Sanibel and Captiva, city officials agreed the threat spurred responsible action that "I think more people were relieved than put out by preparations we encouraged," Bailey said. "I haven't heard one person say he was sorry (for taking storm precautions). It sure wasn't a waste of our time."

Murphy said he thought exercise built credibility in the community for the city officials' ability and judgement.

"We never said Alberto was a life-threatening storm," Murphy said. "And we were right. I think people in the community now have some confidence in us and in our EPERT plan."

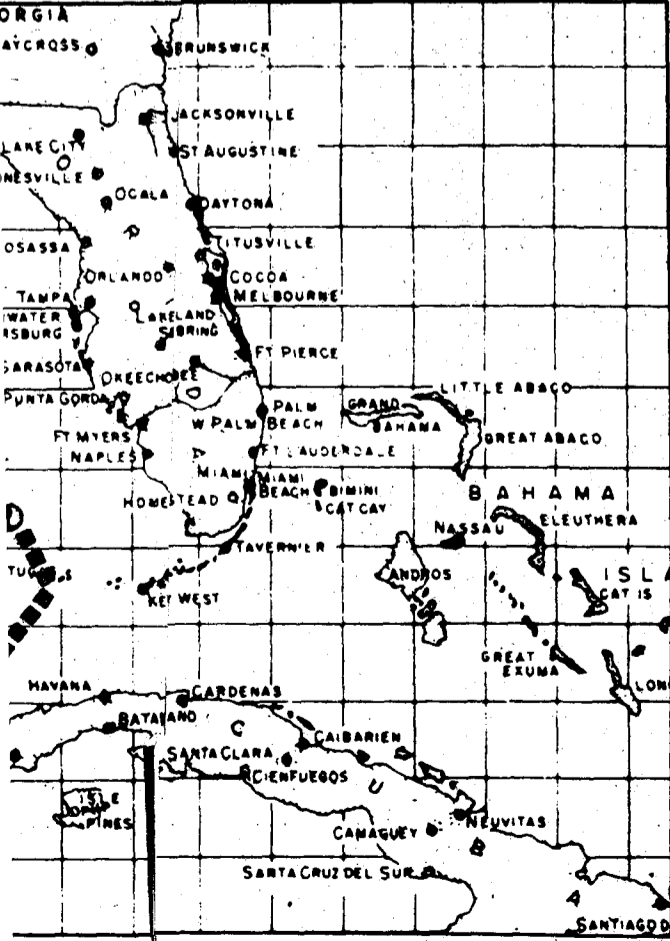

Klein said the Alberto scare left him with a feeling of confidence in the Sanibel plan and added that he thought many people on the Island would feel the same way.

"Nothing throughout the night indicated we didn't know what to do," he said. "I am impressed with the way the group worked together."

EPI will critique their own actions and the Lee County performance during the Alberto threat and present their recommendations for improvements and changes to Butler later this week.

After the threat had safely passed, shellers and surfers took advantage of the high seas and took to the beach, here at Blind Pass, for their favorite activities.

Councilman expresses concern over 'cry wolf syndrome'

Just because Alberto chose not to strike Southwest Florida with hurricane winds and rains, Islanders should not take chances with the next hurricane of the season, City Councilman Francis Bailey said last Friday.

Concerned that the "cry wolf syndrome" would flourish on the Islands after the near miss with Alberto, Bailey urged city officials and the media to keep in the forefront the idea that, "Hurricanes are killers."

"We have to counteract the apathy that comes with near misses," he said. "Nothing happened this time. We were lucky - we might not be the next time."

"Next time we might not be so lucky."

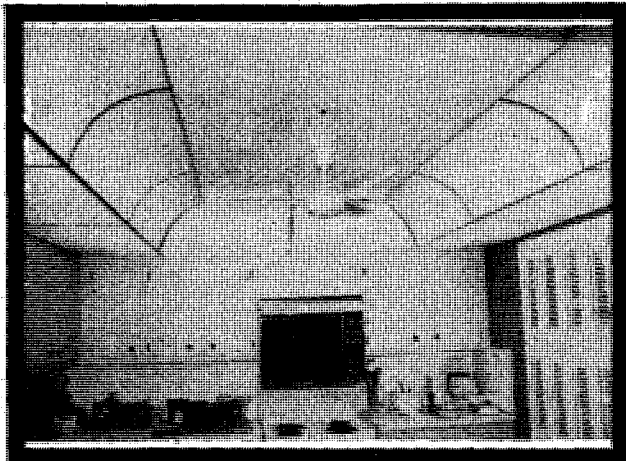

to Lee County Disaster Preparedness Director Gil Haas. But Alberto's appearance so early in the hurricane season, which runs from June 1 through Nov. 1, should remind residents that the deadly storms do not play by man's rules.

FEVER - A HELP?

It appears that fever increases our chances of overcoming the bacteria which cause illness, report: American Scientist. Fever evidently speeds mobilization of our white blood cells which then attack and engulf the invading microorganisms. Also, elevated temperatures restrict the ability of bacteria in the body to feed and reproduce themselves. It is suggested that we not try to reduce moderate fevers with aspirin etc. unless they reach life-threatening levels (106°F) in adults - less in children.

Long-time Captiva fishing guide and ex-New Yorker Bob Sabatino does, as young people said in the 60's, "have it together." His views on fishing, sea life and the sea itself and how man is disturbing it are clear and cogent.

Upon graduation in 1952 from Wingate High School in New York City, Sabatino joined the Coast Guard. He did not fish or sail as a child; he joined the Coast Guard to see what the sea was like.

And he remembers his "first catch" with a slight smile. "The first fish I caught before I knew what it was. It was a snook -- a very interesting fish and also a controversial one just now," he says.

"I was on duty in the night and we were anchored by MacArthur Causeway near Miami Beach," he adds. "I was to man the commander's cane pole and it had a bell on it. The bell rang, I jerked the pole, the fish flew over my shoulder and landed in the bushes behind the gate shack.

"My commander was absolutely delighted when he saw it," he adds. "He almost gave me a promotion on the spot."

Sabatino came to the Islands for the first time around 1957 and quickly decided to stay for good. Now he only returns to NYC for brief visits with family and friends.

1957, he says, "was like a different time. Captiva looked like Tahiti."

He quite obviously loves taking people on fishing trips, and it sounds as though he wishes there were slightly stricter laws regulating how to become a "licensed fishing guide."

He began taking people on fishing trips in the summer of 1959. His first trips were only on weekends. He was still a plumber, but was soon ready to forsake that trade and try to make his living from the sea and land.

"A lot of people did that then," he explains. "We were poor, but we ate rabbit and coon and even had turtle soup. I sold limes -- I squeezed the juice out and sold it by the gallon at restaurants."

Sabatino also sold clams to restaurants and remembers it took 75 to 80 clams to make a gallon. "And a gallon cost $6," he adds. "Those days are gone forever."

He says the days of earning a living off the land are also gone forever, even on Captiva. "You'd starve," he says. "I struggled for five years before I became successful as a guide, but the land helped."

When Sabatino began guiding, the only other guides on the Islands were Belton Johnson, Esperanza Woodring, Ralph Woodring, Jake Stokes and Charles Rosse, he says.

"Now it seems like anybody can be a guide," he says. "All you have to do is have a boat. That's what being a licensed fishing guide is -- it means you can operate a motorboat. You may not know anything about fishing or shelling or where the fish are, but if you have a boat and can operate it, you're a guide."

Years ago, he says, "You had to sign an affidavit that you had learned from and been on a boat for a year with a licensed captain."

Another thing that has changed over the years is the price of guided fishing trips. In 1959, the cost of a half-day fishing trip was $7.50, he remembers. A whole-day trip was $15.00. Now, a day-long trip is $120.

Sabatino remembers that his first passengers were wealthy and many were from Miami and "probably knew much more about fishing than I did during my first few years."

But the biggest difference between fishing guides then

Sanibel Realty welcomes Borgersen, Calin, Cloud as sales associates

Janet Calin has been in real estate for 10 years. She moved to Sanibel three years ago from New Haven, Conn., and has been the office manager for the Sundial Condominium Association, bookkeeper for Priscilla Murphy's rental division and property management director for Staffile and Haywood.

Peter Cloud has been a Florida resident for eight years. During that time he has been business manager for The Islander newspaper and worked for Mid-Island Real Estate. Cloud has been in real estate for two years and made the move to Florida from Glencoe, Ill.

Architect Burner relocates to Fort Myers

Daniel Burner, A.I.A., has relocated his main architectural practice from Captiva to the Whiskey Creek Office Center on Corporate Court in Fort Myers. He will maintain his Captiva and Useppa offices as field offices.

The firm has grown from one man to 11 in the past five years and has expanded from single-family island homes to include office buildings and large-scale multi-family projects, Burner said.

Burner is the architect for the entire island of Useppa and is noted for his numerous island residences on Boca Grande, Sanibel and Captiva Islands. The firm's latest endeavor is the cottages at South Seas Plantation.

and now is that now there are not as many fish.

One fish that is somewhat threatened is the popular and edible snook. "I remember when I started seriously fishing for snook in 1962," he remembers. "In the latter part of April, when there used to be schools of snook, you'd get one every time you threw the bait," he says.

"We used to beat them off," he adds. "During spawning in June and July, we'd see a large female and five or six small males circling her. We'd throw and always catch something."

But over the years there has been a slow decline in the numbers of small snook. "You see them -- now and then," he says. "But I know there are not enough. They are not replacing themselves, and eventually snook will die out."

"I haven't had to measure a snook in a long, long, time," he adds.

Sabatino does not think the June-July ban on keeping snook will do much good for the threatened fish. He says one of the causes of snook degeneration is mosquito spray.

"It is a proven fact that marine biologists say snook larvae float to the surface of the water," he says, adding, "Mosquito spray -- I don't know what the initials are now -- kills shrimp, too, unless they are in tanks with covers."

"The main thing I'm trying to point out is it is not the hook and line fishermen lined up around a lake who deplete it," he says about the snook population.

"One snook has millions of eggs," he adds. "I would much rather figure out a way to kill mosquitoes without killing snook, or else let us fish for them now and enjoy them while they last, and don't quit spraying."

But Sabatino has no quarrels with the Lee County Mosquito Control District or with its director, Wayne Miller. "People need it for their comfort," he says. "For everything you get, you give something."

Sabatino also worked on the construction of the Causeway in the early 60's. "Nobody knew then in 1962 just what the Causeway would bring. I don't think anybody expected what happened -- or we all would have been property owners."

When he isn't fishing ("Summer is my slack season, of course"), Sabatino reads quite a bit; he likes magazines and books about nature and wildlife. He watches little TV, except for shows about nature, and says he doesn't really care for novels or television comedies that are "just made-up ideas of situations."

About Captiva's erosion problem, Sabatino says, "It's the same old thing. No one is ever satisfied with what he has. The land that is eroding badly now was eroding in 1957 when I first saw Captiva. Who should pay for it? The public or the people who bought it when they knew it was eroding?"

"If you take away one thing, you get another," he reiterates. "That's always the way it is. I guess you should mainly try to enjoy what you have while you have it."

An Important Family by Dorothy Eden -- In this new novel of Eden's, the scene moves from London to New Zealand, where colonization is underway in the 1860's.

Kate O'Connor, a young Anglo-Irish woman, is employed by Sir John Decenish to accompany him and his family to new Zealand as companion to his querulous wife and enigmatic daughter, Celina.

On the long voyage out, Kate falls in love with a young officer, Capt. Oxford, who plans to homestead near the sheep ranch Sir John has purchased. But Capt. Oxford jilts Kate for Celina, who in turn jilts him for a young curate she has seduced.

Kate eventually finds she is in love with Sir John, and when Lady Devenish dies, supposedly from an overdose of laudanum, they plan to marry. But the secret that has been haunting them all finally comes to light. The plot is typically Eden and is good reading.

Guilded Splendour by Rosalind Laker -- Based on the life of Thomas Chippendale, this story is good romantic fiction. Young Thomas began very early to know and have a reverence for fine wood, and when he was old enough he was apprenticed to a skilled carpenter at Nostel Priory, the estate of the Winn family.

There he met and fell in love with Isabella Woodleigh, but their romance was not to be. Having moved to London and set himself up in business, he later came to love and marry Catherine Redshaw, a chemist's daughter and friend of Isabella.

Meanwhile Thomas was becoming known for his designs and fine furniture. His path and Isabella's crossed and re-crossed. Catherine became a cold and jealous wife.

In some respects the story seems to be more about Isabella, whom the author says is a fictitious character. But with so few facts known about Chippendale, invention was necessary to make a story. And it is a good one.

Lions report $10,000-plus profit from raffle

The regular meeting of the Sanibel-Captiva Lions Club was held at the Sanibel Community Building on June 2 with seven visitors in attendance.

Lion John Cook noted that the Bloodmobile will be at the Bank of The Islands on Tuesday, July 20.

Lion Larry Snell reported that 12 Lions traveled to the Lions Camp at Lake Wales on May 29 to deliver sports equipment, a tandem bicycle, several parking control cones and a check to be used for the purchase of new hymnals for the chapel that has just been completed.

Lion Bob Sagers reported that the drawing on Decoration Day successfully concluded the car raffle project. The car was won by Pat Katchulak from Michigan, and the 19" TV was won by Betty Barber of Connecticut. The project netted more than $10,000 profit for the club to donate to its charities.

Lion Mike Malone is to be the overall chairman of the Fourth of July Celebration. The Sanibel Police Recreation League will be responsible for the fireworks, and the Lions are assisting in getting donations to cover the cost.

Two new members, Joe Sloboda and Tom Humann, were inducted in a ceremony conducted by President Fred Comlossy.

Rookie police officers' alert patrol nabs suspects in Bait Box burglary

Sanibel police last week arrested one adult and two juveniles in connection with the May 24 burglary of The Bait Box fishing shop on Periwinkle Way.

Officers Tom Applegate and Scott Ashby, both rookies on the Island police force, were on routine patrol on Monday night, May 31, when they stopped a car that had no tail lights.

Their check led to the Sanibel Causeway, where the occupants of the car told police they had been fishing. At the Causeway, police found more than $2,000 in stolen fishing equipment that was part of the $2,300 cache from the Bait Box burglary.

Arrested in connection with the incident were Laurence Michael Kavanaugh, 18, of 6509 Duquesne Drive, Fort Myers, and two white male juveniles, also of Fort Myers. All three were charged with burglary and grand theft.

Sanibel Sgt. Lew Phillips commended Applegate and Ashby for their quick thinking and excellent patrol procedures. Applegate has been with the Sanibel Police Department since February. Ashby, who has been a dispatcher with the department for almost a year, graduated from the Southwest Florida Police Academy on the day of the arrests and is the newest sworn officer on the force.

Engagement announced

Sanibel Police Sgt. Lew Phillips and Sgt. Kathleen Elizabeth Kelley of North Port, Fla., have announced plans for a fall wedding.

Kelley is the daughter of Dr. John and Georgaline Kelley of Ithaca, N.Y. She is a graduate of Oswego State University in New York and has been a wildlife inspector with the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission for the past two years.

Phillips is the son of Lewis and Georgia Phillips of Danville, Ky. He has been with the Sanibel Police Department for seven years.

The couple will live in Fort Myers.

Lee County citizens form Coalition for Peace

Concerned about the escalation of the arms race and the threat of nuclear war, a group of Lee County citizens has formed the Lee County Coalition for Peace with the immediate aim of promoting the national campaign for a bilateral nuclear weapons freeze.

The first action at the coalition's organizational meeting May 20 was to unanimously support the nuclear freeze petitions and resolutions that are currently circulating throughout the nation. The petitions read:

"To improve national and international security, the United States and the Soviet Union should stop the nuclear arms race. Specifically, they should adopt a mutual freeze on the testing, production and deployment of nuclear weapons and of missiles and nuclear aircraft designed primarily to deliver nuclear weapons. This is an essential, verifiable first step toward lessening the risk of nuclear war and reducing the nuclear arsenals."

The local coalition will encourage area individuals, groups and churches to sign the petitions and send them to President Ronald Reagan and to the Congress.

The group also plans to support present local programs of peace education already in effect and to initiate new activities in cooperation with other civic groups.

Sanibel residents who are founding members of the group include: Brigid Bock, Helene Edmonds, Mary Emerson, Minnie Fleischl, Fran Levy, Vera Moretti, Helen Moe and Hilda Rush.

The coalition invites all persons who are concerned about nuclear war to join future meetings. The next scheduled meeting will be held on Thursday, June 10, at 7:30 p.m. at the Church of the Brethren, 1624 Cape Coral Parkway West (at Chiquita Boulevard).

Infrared photography workshop held in conjunction with exhibit

By David Meardon

To coincide with his exhibit of infrared photography that opened at the Photographers' Gallery last weekend, Miami photographer William Farnsworth offered a workshop on Saturday that explored the technical aspects of this unique form of photography.

Developed in 1910, infrared film was first used by the United States to monitor troop movements in World War I. Still used by the military, the film is also used for police investigative work, medical work and a small number of photographers like Farnsworth, who explore the film's artistic potential.

Infrared film, Farnsworth explained to a class of seven, is not only light sensitive. It also responds to heat. "Hot-spots" are recorded on film as a diffuse, almost mystical white. Sunlit foliage, therefore, which holds a great deal of heat, appears on the final print as a soft white.

Indeed, vegetation is the focus of the majority of the photographs in Farnsworth's exhibit, "Florida Silver Landscapes," which opened Sunday at the gallery. Palm fronds, sea grape leaves, Spanish moss, and grass are cast in an eerie whiteness, and many of the scenes look as if a freak ice storm has just enshrouded the Florida's flora.

With people as subjects, infrared photographs bring out the romantic ideal; blemishes disappear, and the person appears warm and glowing.

Farnsworth calls his photographs "environmental fantasies," and says his work in infrared is the result of quite a bit of experimentation.

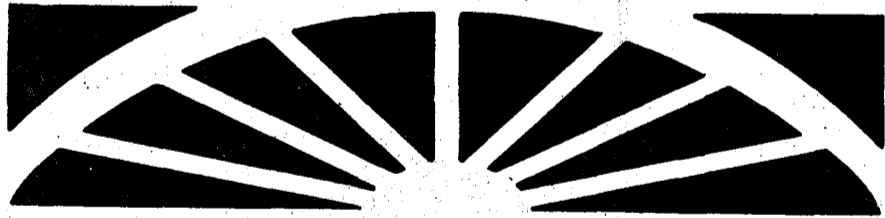

Coached on the quirks and characteristics of infrared film, students in Farnsworth's class then loaded their 35 mm cameras in total darkness (light fogs the film), placed a red filter over their lenses (which bolsters contrast) and set out to photograph Sanibel scenes.

After careful development of the film in standard Kodak chemistry, the results were as varied as the number of participants. Infrared beach scenes were hardly different from normal black and white photographs. The pool and fountain at Casa Ybel resort photographed as deep black, surrounded by chalk-white palms. Australian pine needles, which store less heat than other vegetation, photographed grayish-white.

Most were pleased with the results and were eager to continue exploring the possibilities of infrared photography.

Farnsworth's "Florida Silver Landscapes" is on display at the Photographers' Gallery, 1554 Periwinkle Way, until July 2.

Along with Alberto's high tides come summer's pesty mosquitoes

By Peggy Dailey

They began hatching by the billions as the rains started last week, and by Sunday morning the summer mosquito torment was in full swing for the first time this season.

After a few calls on Saturday, the dispatcher at the Sanibel Police started referring mosquito complaints to the Lee County Mosquito Control District on Sunday. "I've lived here all my life and I've never seen them as bad as this," the dispatcher said.

Relief is in sight this week, however, as familiar district planes, the old DC-3's of World War II vintage, started fogging or spraying (a different term is used depending on which insecticide is used) the southern end of Lee County on Monday.

"Of course it gets this way with the bad weather. We should be able to feel the difference toward the end of the week if they spray early in the week," Sanibel Police Capt. Bill Trefny said.

One motel owner told the police dispatcher he was losing all his guests to the pesty mosquitoes. Not because people were leaving, he explained, but because their blood was being sucked away and they were dying!

A clerk at Captiva's Island Store said Sunday that shop had been sold out of mosquito spray and anti-itch lotions since Saturday afternoon.

Island naturalist and author George Campbell, who does not love mosquitoes but wishes to find alternate methods of killing them other than insecticide fog, said, "They adulticided with Baytex, which only kills adult mosquitoes, at 6:30 and 7:30 a.m. on May 13.

"Now they'll take out the old planes and spray with 'abate,' which kills the larvae."

Of course, it could be, and has been, worse on the Islands.

Miss Charlotta Matthews, 90, an almost life-long resident of Sanibel, said from her home in Fort Myers, "Well, I can't remember when they were the very worst. They were always bad. They came up in swarms when I was a little girl - of course that was before there were even spray guns."

Islanders in those days used smudges to combat the mosquitoes. "You had a fire of wood chips in an iron pot and then you partially smothered it so it was smoky. The smoke helped keep them away when you went in and out the door. It was true in the morning you could not tell if the sun was shining because they were so thick on the screen."

When Miss Matthews was about 25 (1926), citronella oil and B-brand insect powder were developed.

Captiva fishing guide Bob Sabatino had another coping mechanism for the itchy mosquitoes. "I'm just sitting here scratching," he told The Islander. "You should have seen this place when I came here!

"When we went fishing we wore thick clothes, long-sleeved and hooded sweat-shirts, and the only thing that showed was hands and faces," he remembered.

Belton Johnson, fisherman about Sanibel and Captiva for more than 80 years, said, "Tell them this is mild.

"The worst I ever saw them was one summer night around 1915 or 1916 right after we had been fishing off Marco," Johnson said. "We had come back onto Marco - I guess it was the middle of the summer - and you couldn't talk. They were so bad that every time you opened your mouth to say one word, a little swarm of mosquitoes flew inside it."

Johnson concluded wryly, "These people now haven't even SEEN mosquitoes."

What to do? Several suggestions - bathe in Avon Skin-So-Soft, spray with "Off," use an oil-based preparation such as Cutters or Muskow, which are available at local drugstores.

Also popular in the fight against mosquitoes is a new preparation called Ben's 100, a dab-on formula in an orange bottle.

Rubbing alcohol, just the kind you can buy for a dollar, is one of the most common remedies for the itch after the bite.

Someone who is not even on the Islands now has the last word in the mosquito battle, which he spoke in early March. Mayor Porter Goss said, "Ten years ago, mosquitoes were just part of Island life and everybody accepted it."

Ecological Disaster

Is It Inevitable? Part II

Artist's conception of a satellite view (as though there were no cloud cover) of great sea water surges inundating Sanibel — instantaneous, major, permanent ecological disaster.

By George Campbell

Illustrated by Ann Winterbotham

Last week we spoke of creeping environmental destruction and how gradual and serious deterioration of the treasured freshwater wetlands is now taking place and how we have already lost valuable species and are likely to lose even more through the gradual environmental pressures described.

This week we will speak of major changes — total modification of the Sanibel environment. Changes that will probably be permanent. Changes that might spell the doom and extinction on Sanibel of perhaps three dozen major vertebrate species.

Such an ecological disaster might result from a hurricane-associated surge tide — a saltwater surge tide completely traversing and flooding our Island, inundating everything, filling the Sanibel River, filling the Rocks lakes and all the other lakes, filling the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation freshwater wetlands — with saltwater.

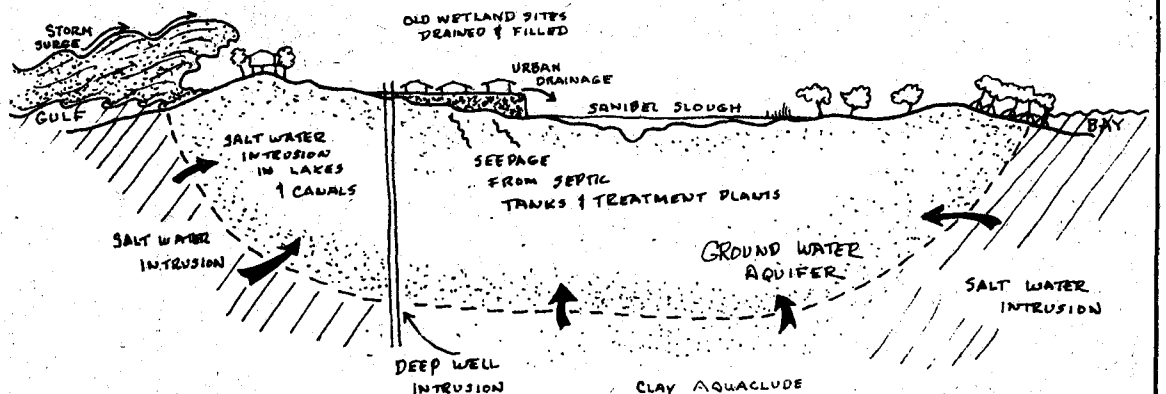

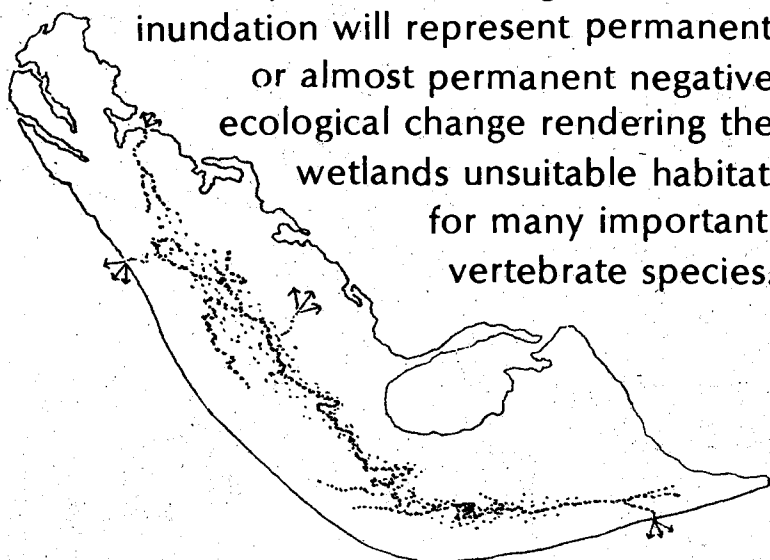

And saltwater, heavier than freshwater, will sink, after the surge tide subsides, to the bottoms of all of the artificially-deepened sloughs and the man-made waterways. And it will stay there — permanently, probably — or at least for an incalculably long time, for the artificially created deeps will prevent the natural flushing that took place historically whenever a surge inundated the Island.

A surge tide came in the 1920's and wiped out Sanibel's agriculture. But in those days, there were not so many "deeps," and eventually the flushing and leaching actions of the naturally-evolved Island drainage system eliminated sufficient salt to permit today's condition — fresh enough water for many freshwater animals and plants to live successfully — a condition that permits the biological diversity that makes Sanibel a one-of-a-kind treasured place today.

Surge tides must have inundated Sanibel many times in the four-to-six-thousand year history of our Island. But with

This map represents most of the deep artificial bodies of water in the wetlands that will be inundated by sea water surge tides. Such inundation will represent permanent or almost permanent negative ecological change rendering the wetlands unsuitable habitat for many important vertebrate species.

J.N. 'Ding' Darling Advisory Committee meets for second time

By Peggy Dailey

The Advisory Committee to the J.N. "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge met for the second time on Wednesday, May 26.

On the agenda was discussion of whether the refuge should be closed to fishing, the need for more control over the ubiquitous Brazilian pepper and specific plans for landscaping the new Visitors Center.

The committee also reviewed plans for summer activities at the center, the manatee program and new water control techniques.

According to Committee Chairman Dr. K.C. Emerson, refuge Manager Del Pierce talked about the landscaping policy. Simply stated, if a plant grows naturally in Southwest Florida, it can be accepted at the refuge, Emerson said.

Local naturalist and advisory committee member George Campbell inquired about the legality of fishing and curtailing fishing in the refuge.

Emerson said he believes that in the future, based on his conversations with officials in the state Bureau of Land Management, the refuge may be considered an aquatic preserve, and management plans will include controlled "fish harvests," i.e. controlled fishing.

The next regular meeting of the Advisory Committee will be at 9 a.m. on Wednesday, June 23, at the Visitors Center.

Wildlife film series begins at refuge

The Summer Wildlife Film Series sponsored by the J.N. "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge starts this week with Indivisibly One, the first film of the nine-week series.

Topics covered in the film include laws for a changing land, energy for living and people in transition. The film tells of the ties of man to his environment and how he lives in it.

This movie will be shown at 2 p.m. every day this week through Friday, June 11, in the Visitor Center auditorium. The center is at the entrance to the Wildlife Drive on Sanibel-Captiva Road. Admission is free.

naturally-eroded and naturally formed drainage patterns, good flushing occurred.

As recently as the first half of the last decade, the slough overflowed from rain at one of its aboriginal sites. But of course no salt was involved, and that flushing of excess rain really improved the whole interior habitat.

Hurricanes are peculiar monsters. Few present-day Floridians have ever seen one. An appreciation of the intensity and power of wind, rain and especially surge tide is lacking among most of our population.

Surge tides and wind can (and will) destroy many of the structures on this Island. Surge tides will destroy the freshwater environment. I feel it to be inevitable.

Of course Shell Harbor and like areas will not suffer the same habitat destruction. That has already taken place with the creation of the tidal finger canals. But the land in such places can and will recharge with fresh water and leach free of salt - the salt washing into the canals and out to sea with the tides.

But the Rocks lakes and the SCCF wetlands will become permanently - or almost permanently - SALTWATER HABITATS. In 10 minutes, all of the efforts of all the citizens to preserve a bit of remarkable nature will be wiped out - by the historic greed of developers who had to dig big artificial lakes and by those who dug the mosquito ditches and deepened the natural slough.

All of the freshwater creatures will die or move away. Sanibel will become a much less interesting place, and the destruction and devastation from salt intrusion will be a monument to the greed of developers.

Editor's note: Author and naturalist George Campbell wrote this article two weeks before last week's threat of Hurricane Alberto.

ISLANDER SPORTS

Coach's coach

By Allen Rainwater

Sanibel Water Attack Team (SWAT) coach Dick Noon asked his former college coach to come down to Florida and give any interested Greater Lee County Y (GLCY) swimmers the benefit of his 30 years of experience.

Coach Archie Harris took Noon up on his offer and held a two-day clinic over the weekend that drew between 50-75 area swimmers together for instruction from a true master of the sport.

Noon could not speak highly enough of his former swim coach at Illinois State University. Harris retired this year from that post, but his continued involvement in swimming is ensured by his countless other position and titles.

Besides serving on the executive board for the past seven years, Harris is also head referee for the National YMCA. In addition he establishes the qualifying times for the events at national meets.

"We asked Archie to come down and give us some new ideas as well as reinforce some of the old ones," Noon said. "He has had a tremendous input with both the swimmers and the families."

Harris, vice chairman of the College Coaches Forum, plans to return next year for a longer clinic, but in the meantime he returns to Illinois where he runs the Archie Harris Swim Camp.

"This man is one of the leading educators and innovators in the country," Noon quipped. "But he is still threatening to take my varsity letter away."

(See Rec Complex - 6B)

When close to 200 people called Dick Muench last Wednesday to find out if the 1982 Little League Awards Ceremony would be postponed due to bad weather, he was ecstatic—to say the least. "Ninety-eight percent of the league was an hand. And most of the parents," Dick said. To give you an indication, we served over 300 hot dogs!"

Trophies were awarded to all the teams, Boy's, Girl's and T-ball Divisions, and for the coaches a glove-trophy complete with a baseball autographed by respective team members.

Due to the rain, the large gathering assembled under the archways connecting the two main bodies of Sanibel Elementary School. But rain or not, the Boy's Division champions, Rangers, made good on coach Thom Traucht's promise that if they were champs they could shave his beard at season's end. (see photos - 5B)

Seven years ago a bunch of Island folk started hanging out at the ballfields. Picnics were made to order on those hot, lazy Island weekends. Beer, too. Folks had a good time.

And one thing for certain was softball. And then still more softball. And it wasn't long before this gathering grew, became organized.

Wearing only T-shirts, cutoff-jeans, sneakers and Cutters, this gathering braved heat, humidity and bloodsucking insects to carve tradition out of jungle.

As a matter of fact, you could say it was the birth of Island softball, this tradition, this Old Sports For Youth Sports Tournament.

Revolving around a pair of traveling trophies that have bounced around the league among various teams since day one, Old Sports For Youth Sports is classic Island softball at its best. Nothing flimsy here. Good teams playing good ball is what this tournament is about.

Unfortunately this is also what it has become. Gone is the key ingredient, the one word that should say it all. Gathering.

Eliminating the concept of a gathering place for Island families not only to play ball, but also to party, picnic and well, gather during these hot, lazy Island weekends is to disassociate the concept of people from the words event and tournament. Not to mention tradition.

TALKIN' SPORTS

By Allen Rainwater

And that's just what's happened.

What once served as a community bond is now little more than a preseason for league play. What was once shared by many is now shared by few. Tradition has been reduced to headlines and pictures, stories and standings in weekly sports sections.

Fortunately, there is a great emphasis on the part of those in charge this year to bring the word gathering back into the vocabulary of Island softball.

1982 Sanibel-Captiva Softball Association officials Dick Noon and Dick Muench are adamant in their desire to make this season "one for the families." They would like to begin now.

They figure the best way to get off to a good start in that direction is to encourage, no, enlist your support. You the community. Especially those ballplayers with families.

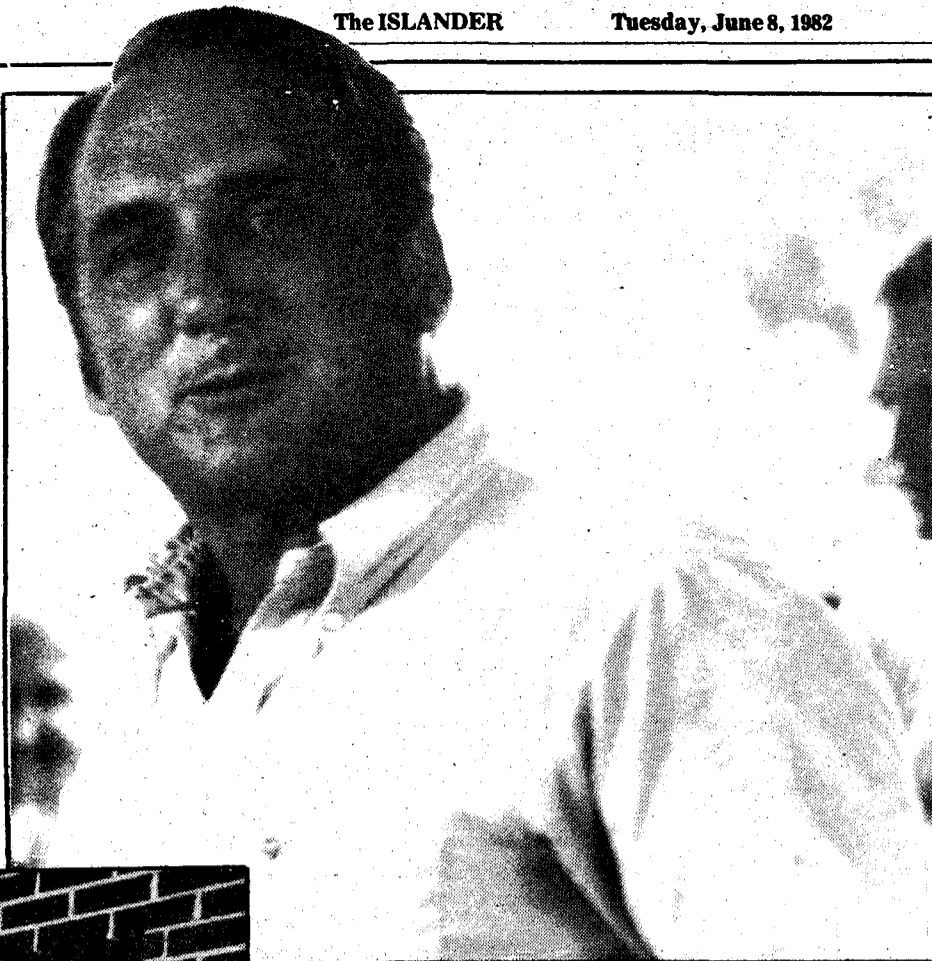

"Bring them to the games, have a picnic with teammates and friends," is the message they yearn to be heard.

Yes, 1982 softball is fast upon us.

The tournament begins this Saturday (see complete schedule on page 5B), and league action is set to begin June 22. The Kiwanis Club will host a concession stand complete with hamburgers, hot dogs and sodas during the games, so bring the family and enjoy the day. You can even go for a refreshing dip in the pool next door.

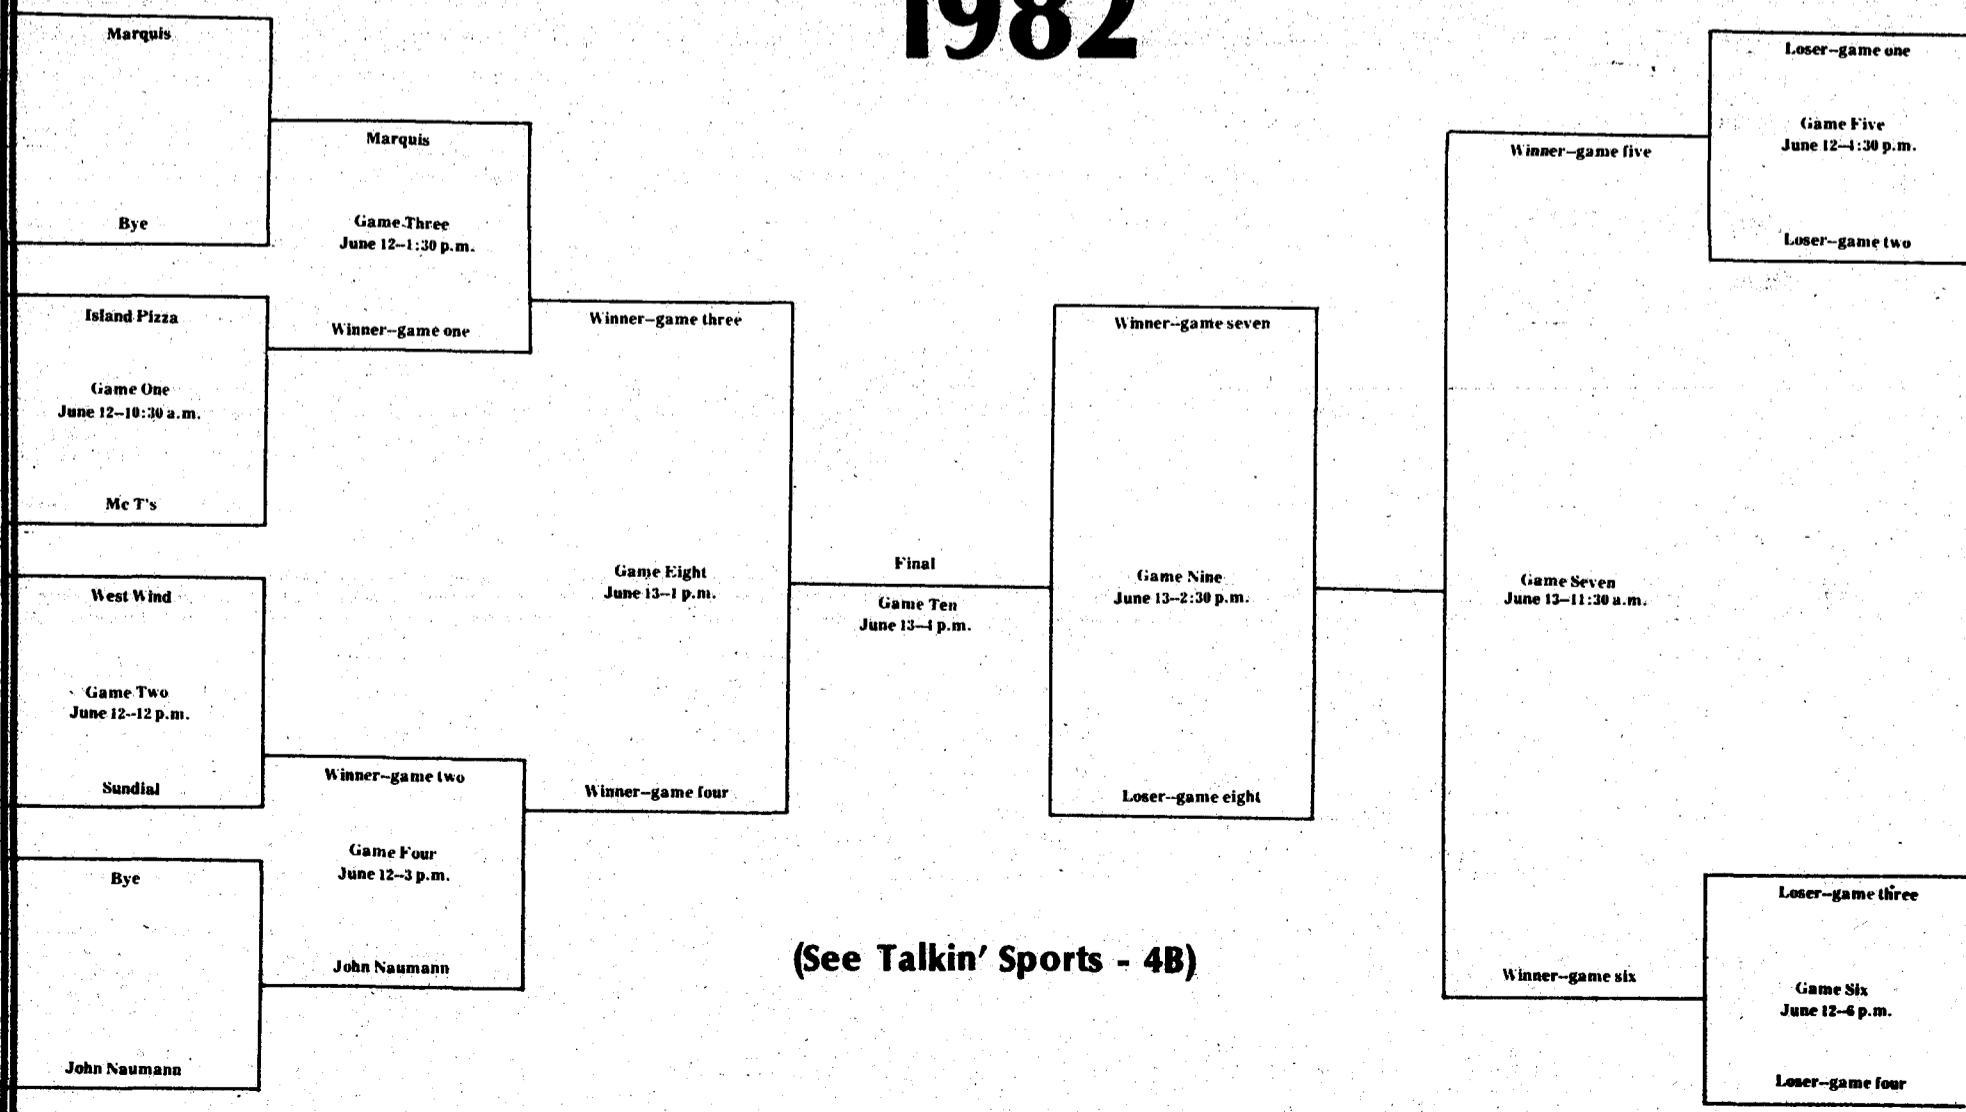

Old Sports For Youth Sports. A good place to hang out on a hot, lazy weekend and watch top notch softball. A good place to become part of the gathering.

Something for everyone

Islander sports quiz

All three of our big winners this week are apparently sports trivia masters.

Dick Traucht, Roger Tabor and Phil Verdung are all repeat winners. They correctly identified Eddie Accaro as the famous jockey who won the Triple Crown of racing twice.

Congratulations, masters!

Try this one on for size:

Where is the former home of Ted Turners' Atlanta Braves major league baseball team?

Call The Islander, 472-5185. If you answer correctly we'll print your name in next week's edition.

Good luck!

Beachview men

Two teams tied for first place with an even score during the June 1 Beachview Golf Club Men's Association tournament.

The team of Jeff Dean, Ira Hartman, Arnold Goodman and Bob Robertson matched the efforts of Bob Sagers, Bob Schneider and Ken Preston.

Sagers and Dean tied for high individual honors at plus two.

Saturday's tournament, which was followed by lunch and beer, found the team of Dean, Robertson, Bob Waterhouse and Jerry Muench in front with a plus 13. Robertson was the high individual at plus eight.

Photographers' Gallery presents free workshops for school-age children

The Photographers' Gallery is presenting a series of free summer photographic workshops to school-age children. All a child needs to enter the program is use of any type of camera and a willingness to learn.

ABWA sponsors film depicting sexual harrassment

The Workplace Hustle, a film on sexual harrassment of working women, will be shown on Thursday, June 10, at the Community Center.

Sponsored by the American Business Women's Association, the 33-minute film presents an "opportunity for both men and women to get a better understanding of the problem and its effect on business," said program chair Kate Aune.

The film, which is narrated by Ed Asner, depicts examples of sexual harrassment in universities, factories and offices. It has been used by several Fortune 500 companies, including IBM, General Electric and Bank of America, to educate employees on the issue.

Today, Aune said, women and men are increasingly aware of the problem of on-the-job sexual harrassment, but as more and more women enter the work force, the potential for abuse has also risen.

"I think it's an issue for both men and women. Both need to be educated. And both can be the victim of it," says ABWA member Catherine Battista.

The showing is open to the public, and both men and women are encouraged to attend. A discussion will follow the film, which is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. A $2 donation is requested.

For more information on sexual harrassment, the Federation of Organizations for Professional Women has developed a Sexual Harrassment Kit providing legal information, prevention measures and action checklists.

To order, send $2.50 and a self addressed mailing label to the federation at 2000 P St. NW, Washington, D.C. 20036. Checks should be made out to F.O.P.W.

Carolyn's Clones workshop rescheduled for June 17

Those attending the workshop will take home a soft sculpture doll the size of a six-month-old infant (like the adoptive dolls).

Registration and materials are $30.

The Cape Coral Arts Studio-Gallery, a non-profit facility of the Cape Coral Parks and Recreation Department, is sponsoring the workshop. Phone 542-7714 for more information.

Area craft teachers exhibit work at Lee County Alliance of the Arts quilts, wall hangings, pottery, baskets, stained glass and wood carvings.

 At the Lighthouse (Eastern end of the island, Punta Ybel Plaza and the Sea Horse Shops are right across the street from one another, providing a variety of products that can cure your sweet tooth or tickle your shell finder's fancy. Need a good haircut or coiffure? You can get it in either of these shopping centers.
 Most businesses open at 10 a.m. and close at 5:30 p.m. This holds true for many island stores, although some are open evenings during the winter season.
 Tall Australian Pines shade Periwinkle Way and the shopper travels west along this main thoroughfare. This stretch of road is truly a shopper's paradise!! It's all here -- the fast and not-so-fast eating spots, casual and elegant boutiques, hand-wrought jewelry, craft designs, shell shops and balms for health product fanatics.

Watch to your right and left as you drive or cycle along. Photographic supplies, bait and tackle, deli foods, fresh seafood and baked goods, knick-knacks and what-nots can all be found along the drive to the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road. Along the way, shopping centers such as the Heart of the Islands, Periwinkle Place and Tahitian Gardens offer a variety of island delights. Palm Ridge Road, the Periwinkle Way turn-off to Captiva, offers several shopping centers featuring everything from imports to gift shops for the discriminating shopper, plants and shells, a sandwich shop, ice cream parlors, pizza parlor, boutique shop and the Island Apothecary pharmacy.

 At the Tarpon Bay-Periwinkle Way intersection, the Island

Shopping Center features the island's only supermarket and movie house.
 A left on Tarpon Bay Road takes the visitor past Sanibel's original schoolhouse, which now holds original island watercolors and woodcuts.
 Then on to West Gulf Drive and westward to an interesting little artisan shop and gallery.
 At the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road, you may choose instead to turn right and follow the signs to the Tarpon Bay marina, where you will find a cluster of quaint shops overlooking the back bay. Some antiques, shells and shellcrafts, what-nots and clever clothes can be found here, as well as a great seafood sandwich and soft drinks.
 The spectacular ride to Captiva, with its lush and enchanting view of the Gulf, is well worth a day's outing. Talented artists display their works in one roadside shop, while others feature so many gifts for Grandma to take home to little hands as a pleasant hodge-podge of remembrances from these barrier islands.
 Whether for shopping or merely browsing, island shops offer a surprising variety from one-of-a-kind collectibles for the discerning shopper to postcards for the simple souvenir hunter. And of course, for all, shells -- shell jewelry, shell lamps, just plain shells -- the most beautiful shells in the world from the most beautiful shelling beaches in the world.

DOGGY DO'S AND DON'TS

If you are visiting Sanibel with the family Fido in tow, all the better. All family members can enjoy Southwest Florida sun and surf.

The Chamber of Commerce can tell you what accommodations are available for families with pets.

Remember: Wherever you are, clean up after your pet! "Leave nothing on the beach but footprints" applies to dogs, too.

There's no leash law on Sanibel, but of course an excitable or unruly animal is better off when controlled with a leash.

SHELLING

The city's resolution limiting the taking of live shells to two live shells per species per person is one to be scrupulously obeyed. As a matter of fact, in order to preserve Sanibel's beautiful shelling beaches, most collectors refuse to take any live shells whatsoever.

LIBRARIES

Sanibel Public Library
 At the intersection of Palm Ridge Road and Florence Streets.
 (472-2483)

 (472-2133)

CAMPING, BEACH FIRES

Camping on the beach is prohibited, as are open beach fires.

An exemption to the beach fire ordinance is a fire in an approved cooking container (not to exceed 48" x 24" x 12" deep) with an extruded metal grill for non-commercial food preparation. This type of container will be allowed on the beach without a permit.

After you have had your beach party, it is recommended that you assume the responsibility for cleaning up any debris or litter in your area.

BICYCLING

If you aren't used to a lot of bicycle traffic, watch out on Sanibel. The extensive network of bike paths on the island is clearly marked along the edge of the road.

Observe caution when driving near the bike path. A state law and city ordinance combine to prohibit parking or driving on the bike path. Mopeds are not permitted on the bike paths.

Planning on spending some time on a bike to enjoy the island sun and sights? Make sure your vehicle is equipped with a bike flag, horn, good brakes and a light for night riding.

Under Florida law, bicycle riders have the same rights and responsibilities as motor vehicle drivers.

Drive safely!

SPEED LIMITS

There is very good reason for the varying speed limits (20-30 mph) along the Causeway. The slower speeds preserve the bridge supports from strain and stress.

This speed limit is strictly enforced with radar on a 24-hour basis by both the Sanibel Police Department and the Lee County Sheriff's Department.

GATORS

Feeding alligators anywhere within the Sanibel city limits is not only illegal, but can be extremely dangerous.

Alligators can run up to 45 mph, so if you are close enough to feed an alligator, he is close enough to feed on you. An alligator fed for fun loses his natural fear of humans and becomes a potential threat to children and pets. For removal of a nuisance alligator, call the following representative of the Southwest Florida Alligator Association. They are licensed and have permits to legally handle gators: George Campbell, 472-2825; Steve Phillips, 472-2329; Mark Westall, 472-5128; or George Weymouth, 472-5128.

FISHING

While no license is required for saltwater fishing, fishing in freshwater ponds or the Sanibel River requires a Florida fishing license. Licenses are available at Bailey's General Store on Periwinkle Way. The fee is $6.50 for residents and $10.50 for non-residents.
