Council endorses Palm Ridge commercial hub

By Barbara Brundage

By 1990 the triangle bounded by Palm Ridge and Tarpon Bay roads and Periwinkle Way should be the hub of beautiful downtown Sanibel, the City Council agreed last week.

The trend for commercial development along Palm Ridge Road has already begun, and with a little help from the city future growth of the area can be controlled to reflect both the activity and diversity of the Island while maintaining its casual lifestyle quality.

This conclusion was reached after a three-hour discussion of strategies to develop the Palm Ridge area as a Town Center proposed by consultant Jim Edwards of Stewart Corporation Architects, who is conducting a study for the city.

The city's initial involvement would be confined to "internalizing" the road system by extending Gumbo Limbo Road through undeveloped property from Florence Way to Periwinkle Way.

This will reduce the need for these properties to develop fronting on Palm Ridge and Tarpon Bay roads and will alleviate the traffic problems on the main arteries.

The city's role, Mayor Porter Goss suggested, should also include improvement of drainage and sewage disposal in the area with the costs shared by private enterprise.

Officers commended for crime investigation

By Cindy Chalmers

More than 160 long, hard working hours for the Sanibel Police ended in the arrest of two men in connection with an Island burglary and official commendations for the two arresting officers from Police Chief John Butler last week.

Officer Dick Church and Sgt. Lew Phillips received praise from Butler for their persistence and dedication that lead to the arrest of Willie Oliver Jr. and James Kevin Munn in connection with the burglary of a West Gulf Drive home.

The story started on Sept. 16, when Church answered a complaint that a $2,000 watch and other jewelry was

The Pirate Playhouse

Hunters request zoning change to protect theater

By Barbara Brundage

Philip and Ruth Hunter have presided over Sanibel's community theater, the Pirate Playhouse, for 18 years and have no intention of retiring yet.

But when they do lay down their greasepaint, the Hunters want to be sure the tradition of the theater as a community service they have nurtured through the years is carried on.

and artistic growth in the community.

The plan proposes construction of a new 130-seat theater building, conversion of the existing Pirate Playhouse as an historic theater museum and construction of three retail studios to provide areas for instructions in art and the performing arts such a dance, voice, acting, music and public speaking.

In addition Fenton suggested that three project would be successful?

"I find this all very disturbing," Commissioner Emily Barefield said. "Though not supporting the Hunters is like being against apple pie, I'm afraid I must agree with the staff report and go for a denial."

Commissioner Louise Johnson said she appreciated the Hunters' contribution to the community but was concerned about the expansion of commercial use through a Special Use District.

Chairman Ann Winterbotham told the Hunters that, "Our concern is that if you were doing this there would be no problem, but it's a different matter with somebody else."

She reminded the commissioners that the issue before them was "not a development permit but a specific amendment to change the zoning to Special Use District."

Barefield's motion to deny the request died for lack of a second.

But a subsequent motion to recommend council denial of the establishment of a special use district as proposed tempered by the suggestion that the Hunters and the city continue to explore opportunities for continued operation of the community theater was approved by a 5-0 vote.

Winterbotham said one option might be to divide the property to include only the area of the theater in the Special Use District and leave the rest of the property zoned residential.

Hunter said after the commission's action he was optimistic that something could be worked out.

He said that he and his wife, who turned 80 this year, hope to be active through 1985 to complete 20 years at the playhouse.

"Our main concern is that what we have started will be continued," Hunter said. "We have seen many changes since our first performance of The Reluctant Debutante on March 20, 1965," he reminisced. "At that time there were 164 registered voters on Sanibel. The theater has grown as the Island has grown, but our objective has always been to be of service to the community."

Through the years 400 Sanibelians have participated in productions at the Pirate Playhouse, Hunter he said with pride.

"We've done it as a labor of love without material gain...Our a main concern is that what we have started will be continued."

Philip Hunter
The Pirate Playhouse

The Pirate Playhouse, originally the school for white children on the Island, is recognized in Sanibel's Comprehensive Land Use Plan as "historically significant."

The theater-in-the-round is in what was the original classroom and has only 90 seats.

The Hunters' living quarters are in the same 2,000-square-foot building that is designated in CLUP as a lawfully existing commercial use in the residential zoned property.

But its use as a theater is threatened by the city's new commercial regulations that prohibit expansion of all lawfully existing commercial use properties and stipulates that after Jan. 1, 1990, the properties could not be rebuilt if they are more than 50 percent destroyed.

The current development intensity of 2.2 units per acre permits up to six dwelling units, either single-family or duplex, on the 2.7-acre site. No additional commercial uses are permitted.

As a first step in their attempt to assure continued operation of the community theater in perpetuity, the Hunters last week requested that their property be removed from the lawfully existing use category and rezoned Special Use District.

At a hearing before the Planning Commission, Architect Ray Fenton unveiled a plan for future development on the site for additional uses designed to promote cultural single-family homes be built at the rear of the property adjacent to the Sanibel Lake Estates subdivision.

Fenton said the intensity of use of the project would be 50 percent less than the 10 percent Floor Area Ratio permitted if the property were assigned to General Office and Retail category.

Its environmental impact would be similar to that generated if the property were developed all residential, he pointed out.

Fenton added that the playhouse land is not suited for a residential project because it is bordered on the east by a plant nursery and on the west across Purdy Way by the Tahitian Gardens Shopping Center.

But the Planning Department maintains that residential use (up to six dwelling units) is a reasonable use of the property and that creation of a Special Use District at this location would be inconsistent with the city's plan for commercial development.

The planning staff argued that once these non-residential buildings are constructed, if the larger theater proves to be unprofitable and the demand is insufficient for the cultural use of the special retail area, the city would be left with little choice but to approve some sort of commercial uses for the site.

This same fear was shared by several Planning Commissioners, including Larry Simon, who questioned how likely the

This can best be accomplished by developing a master plan for the area, which currently is only about 50 percent developed, the council agreed. The majority of the 30 acres of the land still vacant is zoned for Primary Office and Retail, Edwards said.

The council discarded Edwards' proposal for the development of a community center to anchor the Town Center. His suggestions to expand the Sanibel Public Library to provide a day care center, meeting rooms for civic and fraternal organizations and clubs and a community theater would duplicate facilities already provided by the Community Association, Childrens Center of the Islands, the city's recreation complex and the Pirate Playhouse, the council agreed.

The council also turned thumbs down on a third route Edwards proposed for uniform development of the Palm Ridge area.

Under this scenario the city would solicit from outside developer interests requests for proposals (RFPs) based on the city's commitment to assist a major private project that would serve as anchor for the Town Center.

Because the results of a commercial study last year projected a limited retail need through 1990, Edwards recommended residential development of the vacant area across from Bailey's between Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road.

Councilman Francis Bailey applauded the idea and said it would offer an excellent opportunity to provide Below Market Rate Housing.

Planning Commissioner Emily Barefield said she thought a residential-retail mix was good and viewed it as a chance for the elderly to live within walking distance of shops to fill their daily needs.

In general, members of the Planning Commission at last Tuesday's workshop lauded Edwards' overall plan. Planning Commission Chairman Ann Winterbotham said control of development in this central location is needed.

"We must be careful that it does not become urban decadence before it becomes anything else," Winterbotham warned.

"Growth should not be allowed to continue willy nilly," Commissioner Louise Johnson said. She favored adopting an architectural theme for the new development in the area and emphasized that to be successful the project must be a cooperative venture with input from the landowners.

Commissioners Bill Hagerup and Harold Schuyler both liked the plan for interior roads that will permit three large vacant areas to be developed internally.

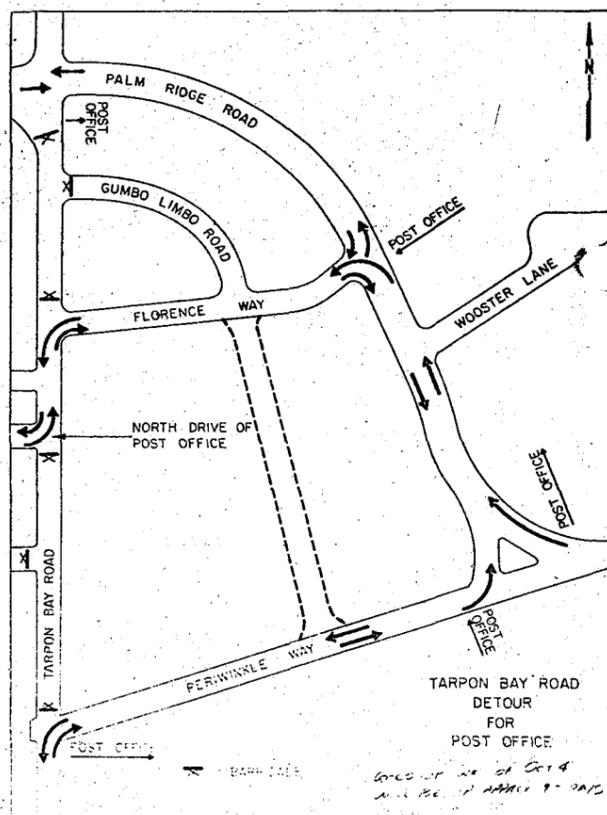

Because most of the vacant land in Palm Ridge is comprised of small lots with multiple owners, consolidation of smaller parcels under unified ownership should be encouraged, Edwards said.

The council charged the staff to study the pattern of ownership and directed Edwards to continue with Phase II of the study, which includes preparation of a master plan including roads, vegetation, parking, pedestrian walkways and some residential development at a density of 2.2 units per acre.

Goss emphasized that by proceeding on this route the city is only trying to encourage location in the Palm Ridge area rather on Periwinkle Way of commercial projects that will develop normally under the private enterprise system.

"Our goal is not to encourage businesses to move to Sanibel," Goss said. "It is to encourage businesses that are oriented to provide services to residents of the community including visitors but to discourage those businesses that would attract more tourists."

Planning Director Bruce Rogers suggested that potential purchasers of property in the Palm Ridge area should be put on notice that changes are underfoot.

Obituaries

Larence Givens

Island environmentalists mourned the loss of their friend and colleague Larence Givens last week, when they learned of his death on Sept. 25, 1982, after a struggle with cancer.

The former assistant regional director and regional supervisor of wildlife refuges for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service worked closely with the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation on a land acquisition program that was to set aside hundreds of acres as protected wildlife habitat on Sanibel.

He spent many hours with then-SCCF director Roy Bazire, Dick Workman and Ann Winterbotham making preparations for the land transfer.

In lieu of flowers, the Givens family requests that donations be made to Our Lady of Perpetual Help, 760 Washington St. SW, Atlanta, Ga.

George James Hill

George James Hill of 334 S.E. 46th Lane, Cape Coral, died Saturday, Oct. 2, 1982, at Lee Memorial Hospital. He was 56.

He is survived by his wife, Anne, who works at the Putting Pelican at the Beachview Golf Club on Sanibel; three daughters, Julie Vivi, Roni Cody and Lena Slankard; and one granddaughter, Coryn Cody., all of Cape Coral.

Private services and burial will be held at a later date at the convenience of the family. There will be no visitation at the funeral home.

The family asks that memorial contributions be made to the American Cancer Society.

Alvin Paul Mast

Former Sanibel Postmaster Alvin Paul Mast of Fort Myers died on Thursday, Sept. 23, 1982. He was 75.

He held the Sanibel postmaster's position from 1963-1972. Memorial services were held on Friday, Oct. 1, on the Sanibel side of the Causeway.

Louise Gates Houghton

Part time Sanibel resident Louise Gates Houghton died on Sunday, Sept. 19, 1982, at her home in South Dennis, Mass. She was 71.

She is survived by her husband, Charles Houghton; two daughters, Deborah Ann Tedeschi of Hingham, Mass., and Jean Gray of Medical Lake, Wash.; a son, David Houghton of Newport, R.I.; a brother, Alden Gates of Hingham, Mass.; and two grandchildren.

Memorial services were held on Sept. 23 in Hingham. In lieu of flowers, donations can be made in Houghton's memory to the Chapel by the Sea, Captiva.

Evacuation route alarms resident

To the Editor
The Islander

I have read with interest the feature in your issue of Sept. 21, 1982, that McGregor Boulevard has been chosen as the main hurricane evacuation route for Sanibel-Captiva residents.

You do not name the officials who made this decision, and they may well wish to remain anonymous. Unfortunately this prevents me writing directly to them to record the following views:

In order to be prepared in advance and gain some idea regarding likely conditions for evacuation, following the recent heavy rains I drove through the section of McGregor Boulevard presently under reconstruction. I found certain parts of the road almost impassable, with deep potholes and mud slides several inches deep.

Similar heavy rain and road conditions are quite likely to apply in advance of a hurricane. I personally feel that anyone who suggests this road in its present state could possibly be used as a major evacuation route with heavy traffic density in time of emergency must be kidding.

Yours sincerely,
C.R. Dickenson

Islander remembers 'snakin,' explains differences in bites

To the Editor
The Islander

I enjoyed George Campbell's recent "Snakin'" article even more than most of his contributions, partly because it brought back memories from more than 40 years ago when I was one of a small group that collected harmless water snakes of four or five species (plus some cottonmouths) in the borrow pits of the Mississippi Delta south of Memphis for the Memphis Zoo.

I am writing now to confirm and explain the difference in liability to infection between the bites of the harmless water snakes and those of the venomous cottonmouth.

It is absolutely true that there is no danger from the non-venomous snakes. We were all bitten by them hundreds of times, and not once did any of these bites develop an infection.

Only one of our group was ever bitten by a cottonmouth (though not on one of our trips), and he had a serious infection. The liability of such bites to infection is well known.

There is a simple explanation for the difference. The body's natural defense mechanisms can take care of the occasional infecting organism that might get into the slight wound made by one of the harmless water snakes.

Howe suggests cure for council 'hang up'

A copy of the following letter to the Sanibel City Council was given to The Islander for publication.

Gentlemen,

Our local press reports that you are "hung-up" on how to determine who is "an aggrieved and affected party" to a Planning Commission's decision on a proposed development permit.

My suggested guide for such action may be found in the Florida Administrative Act. To resolve a similar dilemma, it provides that such party shall file a petition for a hearing on a questioned ruling. It requires that the petition be in writing and state "with particularity" facts sufficient to show possible defects in the questioned ruling.

The hearing body appealed to (in this case the City Council) is required to promptly respond as to whether the petitioner is sufficiently affected to warrant a formal hearing before it.

That suggested action would probably be considered as exhausting an aggrieved party's administrative remedies. It certainly does insure equal opportunities to all affected parties for obtaining City Council redress of any demonstrable wrong wrought by its appointed Planning Commission.

I trust that the above-suggested remedy will cure your "hang-up" on the use of the broadened CLUP appeal procedure which you referred to Tallahassee for comments.

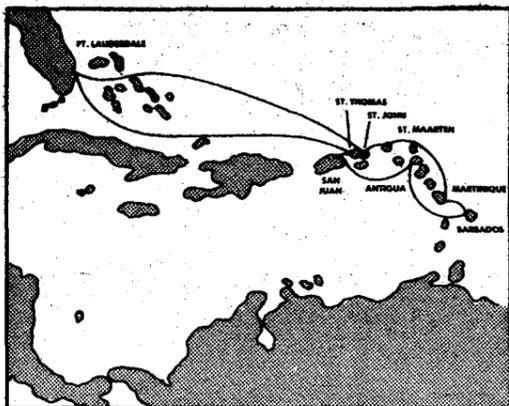

Sincerely,
Paul Howe

COMMENTARY

Bravo! for another Jazz on the Green

Kudos to BIG Arts, WRCC Radio, the Dunes and the Islands in general for hosting another tremendously successful Jazz on the Green.

Despite rains that fell on the green throughout most of the evening, a happy, enthusiastic crowd of jazz aficionados applauded the music of the Peter Graves Orchestra, bassist Jaco Pastorius and Danny Morgan.

Like last year's Jazz on the Green, this year's evening drew an impressive audience of young and old alike, all of whom enjoyed listening to the entertainment and socializing with others on the green.

BIG Arts events at the Dunes always attract fine crowds, and the sponsoring groups obviously know how orchestrate a good show. You've done it again, Islanders! Bravo!

-Howe now!

By Paul Howe

It was most heartening to learn of the Sanibel Council's recent decision to again join hands with its two sister cities in Lee County to resist dual taxation by an insensitive county government.

This renewed struggle has a much better chance of succeeding than the initial 1975 one. In the intervening seven years, significant changes have been wrought in the state-wide legislative and judicial views of the lopsided taxation of 54 percent of Florida's population living in municipalities.

Many of those changes were directly induced by the relentless action of regional groups of affected communities such as the Southwest Florida League of Cities, of which Sanibel was a charter member. Those regional efforts were also orchestrated by the Florida League of Cities.

One of the most far-reaching statutory changes impacting on the problem came out of the 1978 Manatee versus Longboat Key case. At that time the Florida Supreme Court called for the state Legislature to address the question of whether the Constitutional and statutory ban on such dual taxation applied to all revenue received by a county government, not just that from the advalorem property tax.

The Legislature responded by an affirmative mandate to counties to treat all revenue sources alike, including federal- and state-shared revenues. Thus, cities were categorically recognized as full-fledged and independent members of the county community, not vassals of the county's governing body.

It now behooves our local city triumvirate, therefore, to emphasize the matter of shared revenues in its current dealings with the Lee County Commission.

Reportedly, at the factually-unsupported behest of an influential realtor, those commissioners recently shifted millage rates around so that taxpayers in the unincorporated areas get more benefits from the local share of the new sales tax revenues than provided by the state formula.

Our three-city alliance might also develop recommendations for the state Legislature to review all state programs which provide shared-revenues to local communities to assure more equality in allocations.

For instance, the obsolete 1972 allocations of tax sources for years has produced declining yields for cities and inclining ones for counties. That disparity results from a large use of static physical-unit based (i.e., per gallon, pack, etc.) tax sources for the cities' shares, while the counties' shares keep up with inflationary pressures through rising advalorem (by the dollar) based tax sources.

Yes indeed! The renewed joint attack on dual taxation by our three local cities has a rosy future. It deserves the full support of our City Council by each of us. The effort does not cost us -- it pays us.

Do ask each candidate for state and local office what he will do to erase dual taxation forever in our city.

Quote-Unquote

There are various elements in the venom of the cottonmouth, but like that of all American venomous snakes except the coral snakes, it is primarily haemotoxic. This means that it breaks down the structure of the blood and the walls of the blood vessels.

Since the body's defenses against infection are centered in the normal blood, we have no natural defenses against and are, therefore, extremely susceptible to infection from the bite of a cottonmouth or copperhead, rattlesnake, bushmaster, fer-de-lance, etc.

Sincerely,
Calvin Brown

MUNICIPAL RECORDS

Seven apply for Planning Commission

Seven volunteers will be considered by the City Council today to replace Planning Commissioner Arthur Wycoff, who has resigned for reasons of health. His term expires Dec. 31.

Sanibel residents who have indicated their willingness to serve and have submitted resumes of their qualifications are: Robert Diederich, general manager of radio station WRCC; Joe Feeney, Sanibel's representative on the Lee County Electric Cooperative Board of Trustees; Garth Good, who served nine years on the South Portland, Me., city council; William Grossman, a resident of Sanibel since 1979 when he retired as Deputy Associate General Counsel for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development; Donna Kreager, active in Island affairs since she moved from Michigan four years ago; Lennart Lorenson, a retired Illinois Bell Telephone Company executive who served on the Planning Commission of the Village of Mt. Prospect, Ill.; and Gail Reynolds, a licensed building contractor and an energy efficient design consultant.

Good, Grossman, Lorenson and Reynolds were among the nominees last July when the council named Harold Schuyler to fill Al Edwards' unexpired term on the commission.

There is a potential for two more vacancies on the commission pending the outcome of the City Council election Nov. 2.

Commissioners Louise Johnson and Emily Barefield are contenders with real estate Broker Don Bissell for Seat 5, which is being vacated by Mayor Porter Goss. Commission Vice Chairman Bill Hagerup is battling Jerry Muench for Seat 4, which is now held by Councilman Duane White.

Planning Commissioners receive no compensation and serve three-year terms. Today's appointee, however, will serve only until the end of the year.

The council originally scheduled the appointment of the new commissioner as the first order of business for a special council meeting last Tuesday.

But none of the councilmen had had the opportunity to review Diederich's resume, submitted only the day before, and they were not ready to make a final decision.

Planning Commission Chairman Ann Winterbotham, who had urged the council not to delay filling the vacant seat, said there would be no problem if the appointment were made by Oct. 5. The next regular commission meeting is scheduled for Monday, Oct. 11.

Frustrated property owners face City Council

"Terribly frustrated" by another failure to secure the city's approval to build a home on two lots in Sanibel Highlands subdivision, Matthew and Virginia Stewart will plead their case before the City Council today.

Last week the Planning Commission recommended denial "without prejudice" of the Stewart's request for a specific amendment to permit construction of a single-family home on their 10,800-square-foot double. The lot is considered under-sized in the Upland Wetlands ecological zone.

The commissioners agreed with Planning Director Bruce Rogers' assessment that the issue of minimum lot size is overshadowed by the more serious problems of sewage and storm drainage that continue to plague the Sanibel Highlands area.

He recommended that no more amendments for development be approved until these problems are solved. "Now's the time to stop," he advised the commission.

But, "Why start with me?" was Stewart's retort. The Largo, Fla., couple purchased their property 12 years ago and have paid taxes on it ever since, they told the commission.

Under Lee County zoning the two lots were "buildable," Stewart said. But when Sanibel's Comprehensive Land Use Plan regulations were adopted in 1976, minimum lot size in the Upland Wetlands in Sanibel Highlands was increased to 15,000 square feet.

Last week's appearance before the commission was the Stewart's fifth attempt to obtain use of the property.

"Precedents have been set as recently as October 1980," when a property owner with the same problem was granted an amendment to build a home on an under-sized lot, Stewart said. "I can neither build a home nor sell the land," he pointed out, adding that he considers the city's stance a confiscation of his property rights.

The Stewart's son, Kirk, and his wife, Beverly, are in the same bind. They own two lots on the same street (Piedmont Road), and their request for a specific amendment for the right of a reasonable use of their property was similarly denied last week.

The motion to recommend council denial of both requests without prejudice and an expression of the commission's concern about the drainage and sewage problems in Sanibel Highlands passed by a 5-0 vote.

Commissioner Bill Hagerup was absent, and the vacancy on the commission created by the resignation of Commissioner Arthur Wycoff had not yet been filled at the time of last Monday's meeting.

Officials opt for simple groundbreaking ceremony

A simple groundbreaking ceremony to mark the beginning of construction of the new $1.39 million City Hall complex has been scheduled for 4 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 14, at the site off Dunlop Road.

Members of the City Council, City Manager Bernie Murphy and representatives of Stewart Corporation Architects of Tampa, who designed the complex, will participate in the informal commemoration.

Murphy said there will be no special guests, but all Sanibel residents are invited to celebrate the long-awaited occasion.

The council concurred that a simple, symbolic groundbreaking ceremony would be most appropriate and postponed a more elaborate celebration until the complex is completed a year from now.

"No gold shovels allowed," Mayor Porter Goss cautioned.

Commission recommends planter at Sanibel Standard

The Planning Commission has recommended council approval of a specific amendment permitting a wooden planter at the Sanibel Standard Service Station only 27 feet from the center line of Periwinkle Way.

Through a misunderstanding with the Planning Department the planter was installed without a development permit, Attorney Reed Toomey, representing owners Robert and Anne Louwers, explained to the commission last week.

The primary purpose of the planter, Toomey said, is to provide a safety barrier between the gas pump island and the bicycle path that runs in front of the station at the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Beach Road.

Planner Jean Nichols had recommended that the planter be removed and replaced with a buffer of native vegetation in compliance with Comprehensive Land Use Plan goals for natural screening of commercial uses on major roads.

Toomey argued that it would be costly to tear out the planter and that vegetation extending beyond the planter box would interfere with trucks filling the fueling tanks.

The commissioners recognized the Louwers' efforts to upgrade and improve the appearance of the gas station that in the past has been a "real eyesore."

A compromise that permits the Louwers to retain the planter box but instructs them to plant as much low shrubbery on either side as practical was approved by a 5-0 vote. Vice Chairman Bill Hagerup was not present.

The commission also recommended approval of the installation of a security fence 33½ feet from the centerline of Beach Road to enclose a storage area for automobiles impounded by Sanibel police. Vegetation will be planted along this fence, Toomey said.

Ingress and egress to the station will be limited to one 22-foot-wide access point on Periwinkle Way and two 22-foot access drives on Beach Road.

Toomey agreed to submit a review of the existing survey of the property before the specific amendment request is heard by the City Council.

Action deferred on West Wind Inn request

Action on a request for a development permit to convert an existing recreation room at the West Wind Inn to a breakfast room and cocktail lounge for inn guests was deferred last week by the Planning Commission.

The planning staff had recommended denial of the request because the land use plan permits accessory commercial uses in the Gulf Beach Ridge Ecological zone only when the development density is at least three units per acre.

The commission agreed with the staff that the special amendment process is the "appropriate course to follow."

On the city's development intensity map the West Wind Inn is in an area limited to single-family development with a density of 1.5 units per acre.

The 104-unit motel on West Gulf Drive was designated a lawfully existing use by a 1977 amendment to the Comprehensive Land Use Plan.

Last week attorney John Wilcox, representing Cul-Nud Realty, Inc., the owners of West Wind Inn, suggested that the city's intensity map is wrong because the West Wind has always been considered in the resort use zone.

Planner Jean Nichols said the planning department, too, thought the West Wind Inn was in the five-unit-per-acre resort housing area until the map was checked.

Planning Director Bruce Rogers said it has been generally acknowledged that the resort housing area along the gulf beach stops west of the West Wind Inn. He suggested that perhaps the map was not drawn the way the city fathers had intended.

Wilcox asked that the map be straightened out it is wrong.

Commissioner Louise Johnson's motion to ask the city to clarify the map passed by a 5-0 vote.

Rogers advised Wilcox to "hold on to the development permit."

Commission Chairman Ann Winterbotham informed Wilcox that two objections to the operation of a restaurant and bar at the West Wind Inn had been received from neighbors.

Wilcox explained that the facility would be operated only for the convenience of West Wind guests. The bar would not be open to the public, and patrons would be admitted only by producing a key to a West Wind unit.

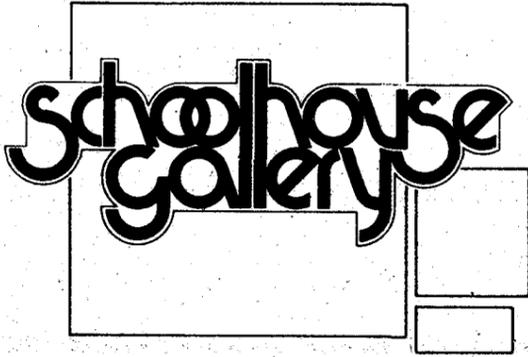

Breakfast only would be served in the room in an existing building that is more than 500 feet from the nearest property owner, he added, and alcoholic beverages would be served only until 9:30 p.m. Music is already piped into the well-insulated room, he said, and there would be not increase in the level of noise.

Muench requests fence to protect campground

Four Planning Commissioners accepted Periwinkle Trailer Park owner Jerry Muench's interpretation that the 1.5 acres of land that borders the park's new campground addition and fronts Periwinkle Way was intended to be used as open space by trailer park residents only.

The land is currently the site of the historic "Uncle" Clarence Rutland house.

Commissioner Louise Johnson, however, said she had the same understanding as Planning Director Bruce Rogers that when the City Council approved 49 additional camp sites for the trailer park earlier this year, the Muenches indicated the area would be kept as scenic open space that could be enjoyed by everyone.

The question arose last week during the Planning Commission hearing of Muench's request for a development permit to construct a six-foot high cedar fence to provide security for the campground.

The proposed fence would be 75 feet from the center line of Periwinkle Way. The fence now in place along the southern boundary of the open space area is 242 feet from the center of the road. It will be moved closer to the road after the city relocates the Rutland house to the new City Hall site, where it will be remodeled as an Old Settlers Museum.

The new location puts the fence at the northern edge of the old garage that the Muenches now use for storage.

Natural vegetation will be maintained between the fence and the Periwinkle Way bicycle path, Jerry Muench told the commission.

He said the fence is needed to protect trailer park residents from "drunks who wander over from a neighboring liquor store."

Alice Kylo, a frequent visitor at the Rutland house while Rutland was alive, agreed that the liquor store creates a problem.

Johnson's motion to deny the development permit received no support.

Commissioner Larry Simon's subsequent motion to approve the relocation of the fence passed 4-1 with only Johnson dissenting.

Commission approves gift shop for Sundial lobby

A development permit for Sundial Associates II to operate a gift shop in the lobby of the Sundial Beach and Tennis Resort on Middle Gulf Drive gained Planning Commission approval last week.

A similar request to convert the 500-square-foot manager's office into a retail shop was denied by the commission last October because the shop was to be leased out and not under unified ownership.

The current plan calls for the use of 250 square feet of space in the lobby itself with the shop under the same management as the hotel and restaurant facilities, Sundial general manager Michael Furcht assured the commission.

The commissioners objected to the sale of cold cuts and frozen foods, which they thought smacks more of a convenience grocery store than a hotel gift shop.

They did agree to leave milk, bread and a limited selection of canned goods on the list of acceptable items to satisfy transient guests' yens for late night snacks.

"We don't want to set a precedent by allowing neighborhood convenience stores in a resort area," Commissioner Louise Johnson explained.

Exterior signs identifying the accessory retail use or off-site advertising of the shop will not be permitted.

Planning Director Bruce Rogers pointed out that a permit from the Lee County Health Department is required for the food sales.

Commercial uses in a resort housing district are permitted to the extent that they complement and serve primarily the needs of the residents of the resort housing on site, Rogers explained.

ON THE WATER

By Captain Mike Fuery

A short time ago I returned from a vacation on Eluthera Island, the most northeasterly of the Bahamas Islands, with some choice stories of how fishing is approached in those remote, beautiful islands.

The innkeeper where we lodged near Hatchet Bay warned in a letter prior to our arrival that life there was some 50 years behind ours. He's a resident of St. Petersburg, but he owns and runs this resort on Eluthera. He told us not to expect modern conveniences. We thought he meant no color television; he meant no hot water.

Anyway, we heard some fishing stories that will show you how good and at the same time how abundant fish and shell life still are there.

On Eluthera, hook-and-line meat fishing, mostly for groupers, is productive, but not nearly as productive as skin diving for the fish.

Eluthera residents often spear fish for sale in the handful of resort restaurants. It seems that one of the local men, equipped with a 13-foot aluminum job boat tiny outboard and new wife, started out along the rolling, rough rocky coast on the eastern side of Eluthera in search of grouper.

You've heard of trolling, I'm sure. Well, in the Bahamas it's done like this: First the fisherman jumps over the side of the small boat and grabs a line of about 10 feet long. The wife (in this case, anyway) runs the outboard.

Off they go, the guy with mask and snorkel being pulled slowly behind the boat. He's got a spear and Hawaiian sling gun to take the fish. They might idle along for half an hour, the hunter looking down into 20 to 40 feet of clear water for a grouper in the rocks below.

If he spots something he shouts for his wife to shut off the engine. Then he takes a breath and heads down for a shot at the fish. This works fine for grouper up to 20 pounds or so, but this particular day a 60 pounder was lying half hidden in the rocks below.

The native diver went down 30 feet, without air tanks, and with a well practiced aim put that spear right into the big grouper. It went belly up immediately and the fella swam to surface. Once there, he pulled up the fish. His wife in the boat and he in the water had quite a struggle, but they finally rolled the fish over the low side of the aluminum boat. What a lucky catch. They could sell this one for a lot of money.

At this point the new wife started to scream and the big grouper in the tiny boat started to beat a rumba sound that threatened to tear the sides off the boat.

The diver recovered and angrily climbed back into the boat with the thrashing fish and screaming wife. He quickly pulled the spear out of the fish's side, reloaded it into his sling and took one last shot at the big fish's head.

Only trouble was the spear glanced off the grouper's slippery, slanted head and went right through the bottom of the boat, allowing a large spout of water to come gushing into the skiff!

At this point the diver, wife and fish were being washed steadily towards the rocky beach with each wave. The hole was finally plugged, and all did end well as fish, wife and boat were pulled onto the beach.

Our innkeeper said the wife was warned very sternly not to ever admit to the incident, but after several weeks the entire island population knew about it.

Well, that's one way to fish in the Bahamas. There are a couple of other stories I'll pass on, too, but for the time, be thankful we can troll from inside the boat.

SHELLING TIPS

By Captain Mike Fuery

Some say sharks have evolved very little since they have been on this earth, but there is another living creature you might find on our beaches that is just as old and a lot safer to be around, too.

Horseshoe crabs are found in waters as cold as Maine all the way down to the tropical waters of the Virgin Islands. They are a mysterious marine animal full of contradictions.

For instance, this crab is really horseshoe shaped, with the addition of a long tail barb. I've never seen another crab with a potentially dangerous tail like that. Fortunately, I've never had a problem with a horseshoe crab where the long, sharply pointed tail ever offered any danger.

I've walked many miles of shallow, sandy grass flats with plenty of live horseshoe crabs, but I've never stubbed a foot into the tail.

It's curious that as tiny little horseshoe crabs move around the clear sand bottoms they leave a very distinctive trail that one only has to follow to come upon the maker. When picked up, the little live ones, often smaller than a half-dollar coin, whip that pointed tail around in the air.

It certainly would be possible to accidentally stumble onto that barb, and I expect some of the reported sting ray problems might actually have been horseshoe crabs.

Another funny thing about this slow moving, unaggressive crab is that it doesn't appear to have any claws. You might see large live blue crabs in the surf in Pine Island Sound when you look for shells. They definitely have the personality and claws to give you a painful nip should you inadvertently corner one where it can't escape.

From what we know about this oddly shaped crab, it eats tiny bits of plant or animal life on the bottom of shallow bays. It does not actively seek large marine life, as the blue crab does. Most other crabs, like the stone and the spyder, will climb right into a large wire trap and gorge on fish heads or chicken parts. But not so the horseshoe crab.

A magazine writer I had out once said the horseshoe has two sets of eyes. You can see a wide pair high on the top of the adult crabs, near the front portion of the shell. There is also a second, closely set pair of eyes in the lower center front of the body.

Shells don't have red blood, but have either clear or blue blood. The horseshoe crab has blue blood with a special clotting quality that scientists study to aid heart patients.

So the horseshoe is a crab, but without aggressive claws. It's a shifting feeder, rather than eating large chunks of meat. And another thing bothers me, too.

Most hard shelled crabs can rely upon a nearly wrap-around shell for protection, but the horseshoe has only a shell on the top of its body. The underside is open to attack should the crab be turned over.

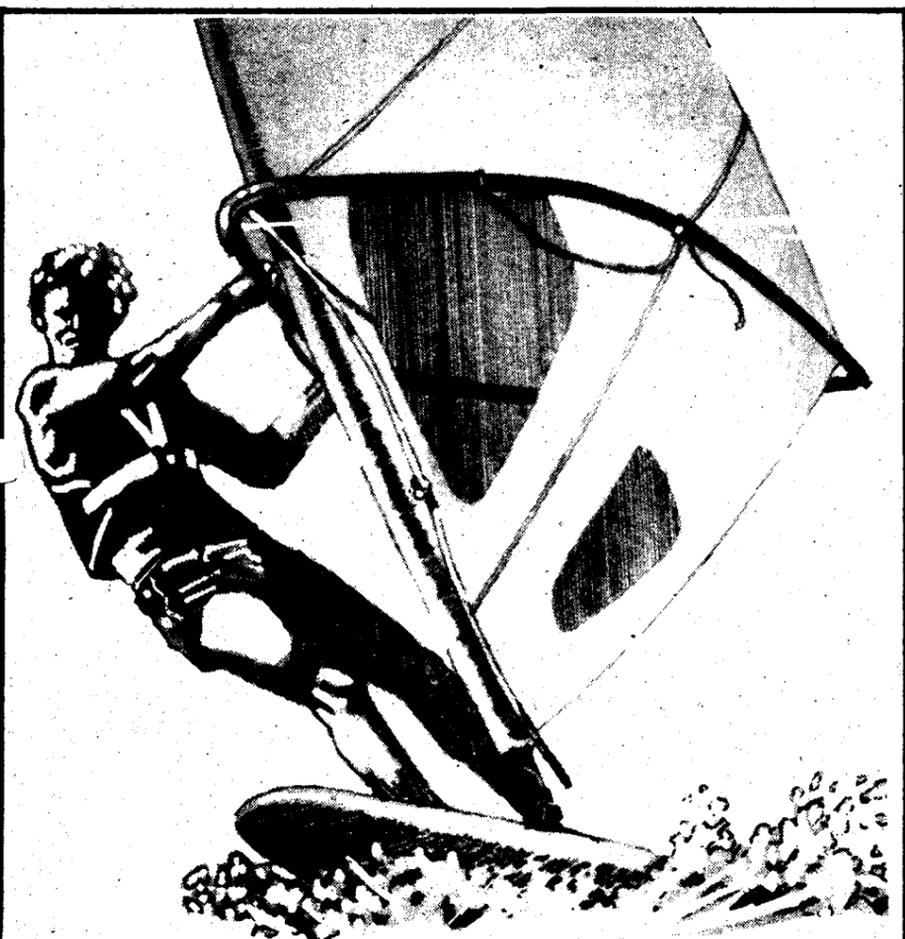

I've never seen anything prey on these crabs in natural settings. I've seen shells like the king's crown come by the dozens to dine on a horseshoe after it dies, however. So, perhaps without natural enemies it has never worried about protecting that vulnerable underbelly.

I've found most of these crabs on the bay side of the Islands. Big storms might turn up some on the beaches, but overall they prefer life in the quiet, shallow, warm waters of Pine Island Sound.

Look way up in the shell line, sometimes even in piles of seaweed, to find good dead specimens. Simply pull the insides, legs and all, out for a great display piece.

Don't bother taking the lives one; there are plenty of dead, dried horseshoe crabs to be found. Good shelling this week.

WRCC's Chuck Thomas emcees the evening's events, left.

Showmanship, talent put premiere bassist in a class all his own

It is the day before Jazz on the Green, and Jaco Pastorius, the bold, brash, bad ass bass player has just arrived at South Seas Plantation on Captiva, ready for action.

His hair is short - Marine style - and he looks rough around the edges, the result of a pre-dawn auto accident near Sanibel, which left him with minor cuts and bruises. Nine stitches grace his lower lip.

Still, he is energetic, even bawdy, and has no trouble convincing the waitress at Chadwick's that Jaco Pastorius at Jazz on the Green will be a happening event.

The title of his most recent solo album, "Word of Mouth," is fitting, as recognition for his fine craftsmanship with the bass guitar has grown steadily through this medium since he bought his first bass when he was 15.

Now 30, no one sings praises of Jaco louder than Jaco himself. But he is not alone. Since his rise to international acclaim with Weather Report, Pastorius has established himself as a premiere bassist and has created a style all his own.

Not content solely with the behind-the-scenes rhythmic role traditionally reserved for bass, Pastorius explores the melodic possibilities of his instrument, using chords and melody line in the upper registers to make his bass the driving force of a band.

While on Captiva, Pastorius spoke to The Islander of his influences, outlook and current musical projects.

"Humor is the only thing that keeps you going straight," he said, adding he would like to become the "Perry Como of bass guitar." When asked the standard Islander question, "Who is your mentor?" he responded without hesitation, "Donny Osmond."

But seriously, Pastorius lists Bernard Odum (James Brown's bassist during the '60's) and Jimmy Blanton (Duke Ellington's bassist) as influences and is devoted to the Duke himself. "I love him madly," he said.

His three favorite composers are Igor Stravinsky, George Gershwin and Ornette Coleman, in that order. While he listens to all types of music, he lists rhythm and blues best (his work is heavily spiced with it) and confesses an aversion to opera.

"I like Tosca. It's a beautiful piece of work. But in opera, I just don't dig that singing," he said.

Nevertheless, he respects Luciano Pavarotti for his fine voice and discreet use of vibrato.

About composing, Pastorius said, "I approach it with kid gloves. I think Igor Stravinsky put it best: 'A good composer doesn't borrow, he steals.'"

Jaco's projects over the next six months include completion of two live albums from his recent "Word of Mouth" tour of Japan, where his album is at the top of the charts. He is also working on an album titled "Holiday for Pans," which will feature steel drum player Othello Molineaux.

He also claims to have written a new tune called "Pac Man Blues," or "Miss Pac Man Reprise."

Jazz (actually, he prefers his style to be called Modern American Music) has always drawn a wider following in northern cities and on the west coast and especially overseas. Where does this leave a Florida jazz musician?

"On airplanes going to Japan," he says.

Nevertheless, he is ready to shun the international jet-set scene for a while and instead tour south Florida with "The Word of Mouth Octet." The world premiere of this group, which Jaco calls "Two Me" for short, will be at the Musician's Exchange in Fort Lauderdale Oct. 20-22. An appearance in these parts will take place by Christmas, he says.

Jaco Pastorius and Jazz on the Green have become synonymous, but for Pastorius the event has developed a closer meaning over the past year. "Up until a year ago, it (coming to Sanibel for Jazz on the Green) was music and peace," he says. "But now that my brother (Gregory) lives here, it's music and my brother."

Artist Gregory Pastorius, who designed this year's highly successful t-shirt for Jazz on the Green, was badly injured in a motorcycle accident on Ash Wednesday last February. He now reflects upon the accident with typical Pastorius wit, calling it "Crash Wednesday" or "Cavalcade of Scars."

Jaco Pastorius' showmanship and sometimes reckless abandon both with and without a bass in his hands leaves him in a class of his own. Sometimes he's in the outer limits, and sometimes he's Mr. Gone. But his musical endeavors are rich and meaty and worthy of our attention.

"I ain't got no competition because I ain't competing," he says. "I'm just a musician. I happen to be very good. Big deal."

the Green

More than 2,000 jazz aficionados gathered on the green Saturday night for Jazz on the Green. The extremely successful event was orchestrated and sponsored by BIG Arts, WRCC Radio and the Dunes.

Aleiha Kreager Godfrey, almost 2, sports a Jazz on the Green t-shirt for tots.

Concert captured on tape in mobile studio

While musicians belted out a barrage of jazz-blues rhythms to the delight of the audience on a waterlogged evening, about 100 yards away a mobile sound studio equipped with some of the most sophisticated recording technology available quietly captured the heat of the moment.

For the second straight year, Jazz on the Green was recorded, and this week Peter Graves is set to begin negotiations for the production and release of a live album of the event.

The album will feature Graves' Atlantean Driftwood Orchestra and will include cuts with bass virtuoso Jaco Pastorius.

It was not clear whether the album will include any of the music of Danny Morgan. "We don't have a business arrangement with Danny," said Scott Strawbridge, general manager of Artisan Recorders, Inc., of Pompano Beach. Nevertheless, Morgan was recorded, and Strawbridge did not rule out the possibility of an agreement that would include Morgan on the album.

The record will be co-produced by Graves and Peter Yianilos of Artisan, the chief designer of the mobile studio. A label has yet to be chosen, but Strawbridge said several are under consideration.

Weighing 13,000 pounds and with dimensions of 28 feet long by eight feet wide by nine and one-half feet long, the soundproof studio on wheels cost $350,000.

Strawbridge said he was pleased with the quality of the music. "The last set was fantastic. I only wish they had played more."

His sentiments were echoed a thousand times over Saturday night.

Burger Emporium Enters The Burger Battle!!

SANIBEL, FL.: The Burger Emporium has taken on the big guys.

Owner Lou Martelli was quoted as saying, "Fast talk, fancy slogans or colorful arches don't make for food quality, service or value. None of the giant food chains can boast of what we do."

"Our menu is Burgers Plus - homemade chowder, steaks, salads, chicken, fish, etc. - and even beer. Our dining room is probably the best quick-serve dining room in the U.S.A."

"All our food," Martelli went on to say, "is cooked and dressed to each diner's individual order (their way), and our deep fried foods are cooked in pure No Cholesterol Peanut Oil, also to order."

"So, if people really want to know who is No. 1 in quality, tell them to check out the BURGER EMPORIUM OF SANIBEL."

"If that's not enough, you can browse through our beautiful new gift shop, open seven days a week."

DIABETES

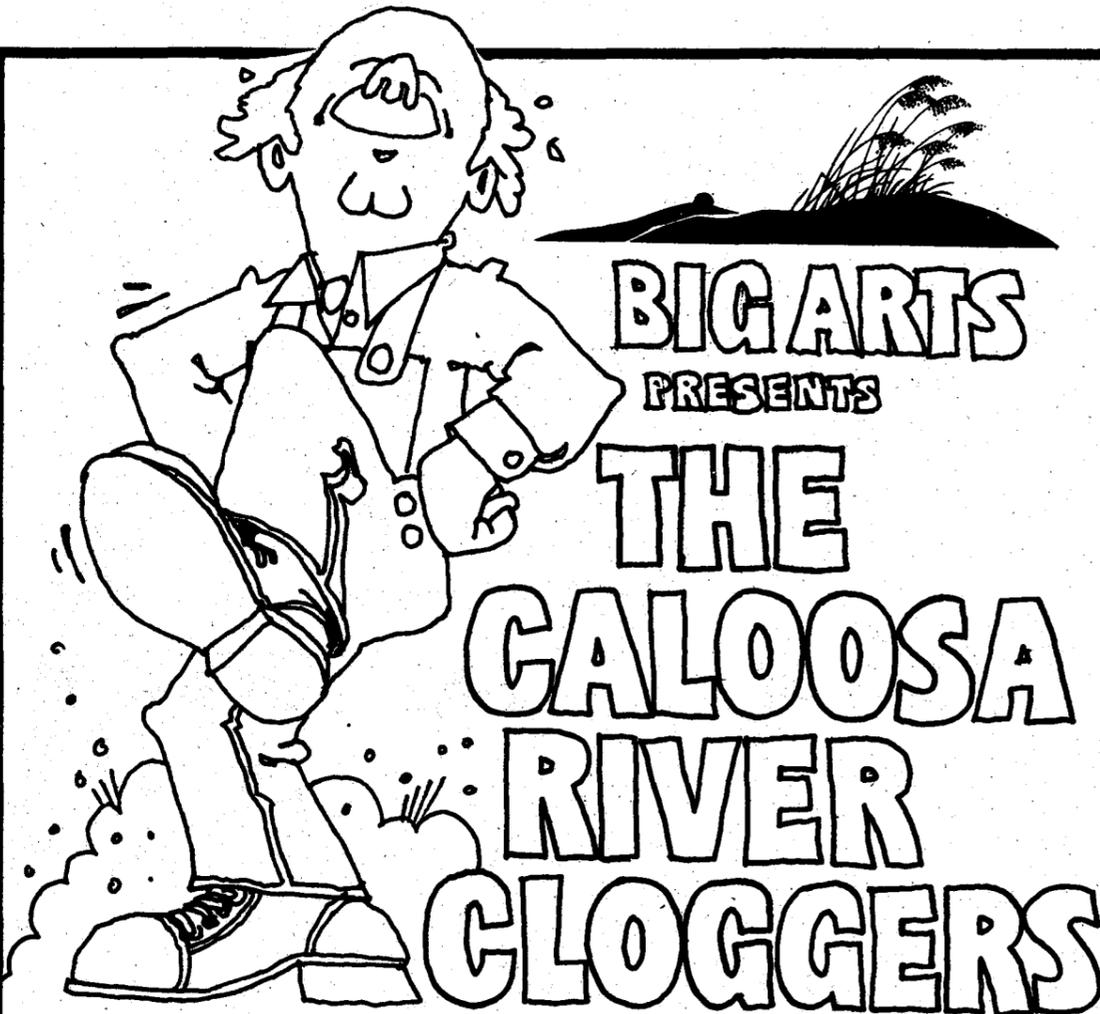

If you are diabetic, your vitamin C requirements are likely in excess of other persons, states Dr. G.V. Mann, biochemist at Vanderbilt U. He theorizes that diabetics lack the ability to transport adequate vitamin C across cell membranes, resulting in serious blood disorders associated with some lifelong diabetics. Extra Vitamin C could help prevent many complications that diabetes brings with passing years.

Mary Ann Aleck

Age: 24

Height: "Short"

Roots: Sanibel

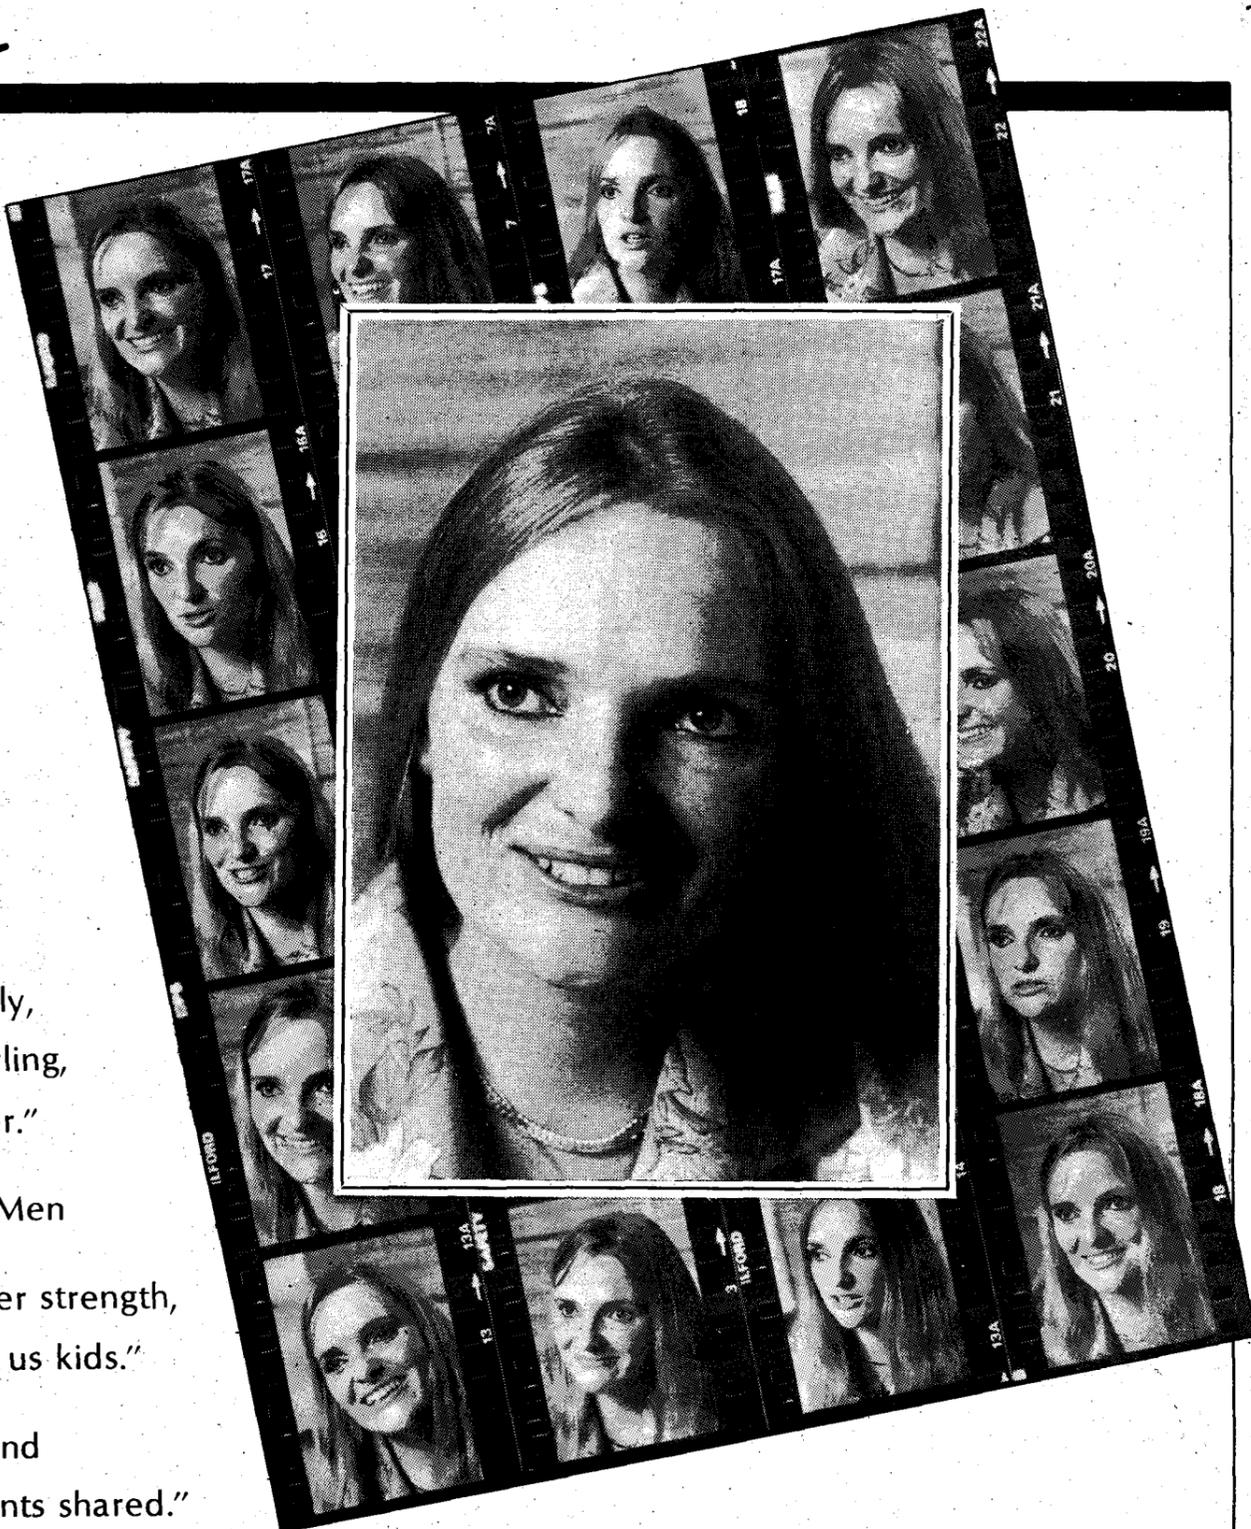

Pleasures: "Hairdressing, my family, Kevin, my dogs, softball, bowling, my new house and Budweiser."

Last Book Read: Of Wolves and Men

Mentor: "My Mom, because of her strength, wisdom and endless love for us kids."

Wish: "To find the kind of love and happiness that my grandparents shared."

Words of Wisdom: "Don't deny your creator; follow His teachings."

By Carol Kranichfeld

Mary Ann Aleck's customers at the Sanibel Beauty Salon probably wouldn't be surprised to learn their favorite hairdresser has never spent a moment wanting to be anything but a hairdresser.

Well, that's nearly true, says Mary Ann. "The only thing I wanted to be besides a hairdresser that I never got to was a boy," she says with a big laugh.

Mary Ann "grew up" in the shop she now owns with her sister, a family business started by her mother more than 30 years ago. She became the youngest licensed operator in Florida when she passed the state boards in cosmetology in 1975. She was 17.

"We learned everything back then," she recalls. "We had to learn chemistry, facial muscles and bones, even first aid."

Much of that, she adds, has since been dropped from the program. But from the stories Mary Ann can tell, it's a good thing the state gave instruction in those subjects.

Take the woman who came in for a shampoo and "went completely limp" while she was in the chair. "I thought she was dead!" exclaims Mary Ann. Certain she had killed her customer, Mary Ann let out one of her enormous screeches. "All of a sudden her mouth popped open and she started snoring," she remembers, adding that she was so glad her client was alive she let out another screech, which brought the slumbering lady back out of the land of nod.

"She jumped up and right out of her chair, yelling, 'Where am I? Where am I?'" It took only a few moments to calm the client and a few more for Mary Ann to do likewise. Today the same lady comes in all the time. But now when she falls asleep, Mary Ann goes right on shampooing.

Experiences like that made Mary Ann's first year in the business a tough one. "Studies show that 25 percent of hairdressers working for more than 10 years have ulcers and that 50 percent of hairdressers working for 25 years or more have mental problems," she says. "Hairdressers and bartenders are cheaper than psychiatrists," she adds with a twinkle.

But recurring nightmares were standard fare during Mary Ann's first year or two. "In the first dream, I'd be semi-awake in my bedroom at home. I'd glance around, and all the walls would be lined with shampoo bowls! Clients would come through the door, sit on my bed and ask, 'Would you tease a little more here!' or, 'Would you clip a little more here!'" Mary Ann says she would wake up feeling as though she had worked through the night.

"My second dream took place during winter season, when we put in 12-16 hour days with no lunch," she says. "I would be nearly finished with a client's haircut when one side of her hair would start growing -- and not stop! I'd keep cutting, and half an hour would go by, an hour, two hours, five hours and her hair was still growing!

"I'd still be cutting this lady's hair, and all around me clients would be screaming that their husbands were waiting for them, and when would I be starting on them. And the lady in the chair would be screaming for me not to take off too much hair!"

Mary Ann says she was sure she was going off the deep end, until one day the dreams ended. She explains that the dreams stopped after she snapped at one of her more difficult customers.

"A client who came in every week and gave me a hard time was particularly impossible once. I gave her what for." Ever since, Mary Ann says, she's not been troubled with exhausting dreams.

It took her a long time to arrive at that point, however, mostly because she is so aware of what that person in the chair feels.

"When I was in school learning how to cut hair, we used to practice on one another. I started out the year with my hair as long as it is now. When I graduated it was one inch long. And I never had a decent haircut all that time."

To this day, Mary Ann confides, she hates to have her hair cut. "I am terrified to have it cut. When I get up out of the chair, I don't want to see any hair on the floor. And I want to be buried this way."

Loving her job the way she does, people wonder if she ever has time for anything else. Does she look forward to other things? "Oh yes!" she answers quickly. "My sister is about to have a baby, and I can't wait to see that little critter!"

Editor's note: Mary Ann's sister, Alice Henderson, delivered John Robert Henderson on Friday morning, Oct. 1.

Tiles, workshops, try-outs fill arts calendar

America does not have a long tradition in tile design, production and usage, as do Europe and South America. But since World War II a new awareness and interest has developed in the United States, particularly in the past few years.

The Sanibel (Art Fac) Gallery has taken a strong interest in unusual tile designs and recently received a new shipment of artistic and utilitarian tiles from Colorado.

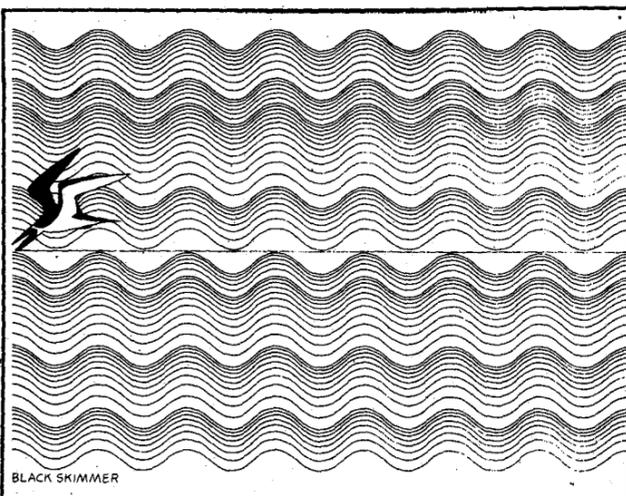

Very few contemporary studio craft-people make hand-produced tiles professionally and on a consistent basis, but

RETURN OF THE SNOWBIRDS

BLACK SKIMMER

Matsumoto calendar hot off the press!

At long last the wait is over! The 1983 Ikki Matsumoto Calendars have arrived at the Schoolhouse Gallery and are on sale for $7.

"By The Beautiful Sea" contains an Ikki print to match each month, all of which are reproduced faithfully on fine linen paper. Included in the series are several new and whimsical prints like She Sells Seashells, Return of the Snowbirds, Rain Rain Go Away, Arthur Fiddler and the Beach Pops, Surf Fishing, and Joggerhead Turtles, all of which can be purchased individually at the gallery in full print size.

The calendar also contains new versions of Ottermelon, Flower Children, Black Skimmer, Over the Rainbows, and I Just Hate To Get My Feet Wet.

"By The Beautiful Sea" is an honest reflection of the artist's philosophy. "I want to paint poems. There are no heavy messages in my work. I simply wish to delight," he says.

As a youngster, Ikki was inspired and trained by his father, a widely respected Japanese artist. Private tutoring followed, then study at the Tama Institute in Japan.

When he was 20 years old, after his arrival in the United States, Ikki received scholarships from both the John Herron Institute of Indianapolis and the Art Academy of Cincinnati. He was further trained under the renowned artist Charles Harper.

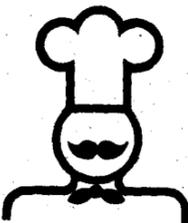

A notable career in commercial art followed his formal training, with commissioned work for major American corporations, illustrations for one of America's favorite cookbooks, The Joy of Cooking, textbooks for McGraw Hill and Houghton Mifflin and designs for toys making for a well-rounded art introduction.

The desire for creative artistic freedom brought the Matsumotos to Sanibel in 1975. Since then Ikki has made his mark in the contemporary art world and has become one of the Islands' most sought after artists.

the Wenzel Studio of Longmont, Colo., has done just that for nearly a decade. And although the design of the tiles is contemporary, the clayworks are hand moulded by traditional methods, not unlike the Moravian Pottery and Tileworks of Doylestown, Penn.

Each tile is made from a specially formulated stoneware clay body that is heated to 2,300 degrees. After firing and cooling the tiles can be used as trivets, plaques and architectural additions.

These unusual tiles can be seen at the Sanibel Gallery from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Sanibel artists Polly Matsumoto and Anita Amodeo have teamed up again for a new and expanded craft workshop series this fall.

Beginning Oct. 14 are classes in weaving four different types of baskets, triangular shawls, and special workshops in natural dyeing techniques and handmade paper creations.

Basketry students will learn the art of making hearth baskets (for magazines or logs at the fireside), wash baskets, potato baskets and garlic baskets. Yarn and basketry reeds will be dyed using native plants.

Students of the paper workshop will be instructed in stationery and envelope design.

All classes are completed in one day. For further details call Amodeo, 481-1964.

Local artists and craftsmen are beginning to prepare for the 1982 BIG Arts Crafts Festival, which will be held under the big top at the Sanibel Community Association on Saturday, Nov. 27. Space is limited and booths are expected to be rented out quickly, so prospective participants should make arrangements for space early. For more information contact BIG Arts president Jim Levy, 472-3526.

Artists who have yet to find the perfect shop for their wares may want to investigate the Islanders' Gallery, newly opened at Punta Ybel Plaza on Periwinkle Way across from the Lighthouse Restaurant.

Open seven days a week, the gallery will display local arts and crafts only and is designed to take works on consignment. For more information call 472-5051.

Auditions for the three-act comedy A Shot in the Dark, made famous by the movie version with Peter Sellers, will be held at 7:30 p.m. this Thursday at the Sanibel Public Library.

Sponsored by Barrier Island Group for the Arts, the play has parts for three men, three women and two parts that can be played by either men or women. Anyone interested in tryouts should contact Fran Levy, 472-3526, or Marty Grasgreen, 472-3301.

Cloggers are expected to come out of every nook and cranny on Oct. 16 when the Caloosa River Cloggers come to the Sanibel Community Center. The exhibition team dressed in colorful mountain attire will present the original Appalachian Mountain style folk dance using line and circle movements and clogging footwork.

Sponsored by Barrier Island Group for the Arts, the evening's fun will be set to music by Don Smith and his Bluegrass Orchestra. So get out your dancing shoes and bring the family to the Community Center at 8 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 16. Admission is $3 per person.

Young Island thespians will meet for two special movement workshops at St. Isabel Catholic Church from 1-3 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 9 and 16.

Movement and clowning instruction will be offered by Muffet Hayes at the workshops. Sam Hay will make a film of the students and demonstrate the art of making commercials at the second series of workshops scheduled for Nov. 6 and 13.

Sponsored by the Island Youth Theatre, the workshops are open to all Island children. For more information contact Jeri Magg, 472-1393.

concerto and the Borodin Symphony No. 2. Performances throughout the symphony's 22nd season will include guest appearances by harpist Heidi Lehwalder, solo violinist Howard Gottlieb, baritone John Reardon and flutist Brooks deWetter-Smith.

Jacobson's store plans late October opening in Bell Tower

A new full-line specialty store is opening in Fort Myers later this month. One of the oldest retail organizations in the country, Jacobson's already has six stores in Florida. The seventh store will anchor the Bell Tower shopping center on U.S. 41 North.

The new store will reflect the spirit of the Spanish Colonial period with courtyards, graceful arches, flowing streams and fountains. It will offer a selection of merchandise similar in content to the other Florida Jacobson's stores. Customers will recognize such names as Ernst Strauss, Albert Nipon, Calvin Klein, Stanley Blacker, Austin Reed, Gunne Sax and Erno Laszlo.

The store is scheduled to open in Fort Myers on Oct. 28. The firm plans to expand to Jacksonville next year and is currently working on plans for a store in Tampa.

"We plan not only to sell merchandise, but also to sell the pleasure and satisfaction the customer expects to receive in the use of the article purchased," Jacobson's President J.R. Fowler said.

Alert radios still available

Specially adapted alert radios are still available through the Sanibel Police Department to help keep Islanders advised of emergency situations. Police Office Jack Primm is taking orders for the radios.

Twenty radios are already placed around Sanibel in Neighborhood Watch leaders' and EPERT notification captains' homes. So far the system has worked without a hitch and has received an enthusiastic response from the recipients, Primm said.

"I haven't had one negative comment about the radios," Primm, who is coordinating the radio network, said.

The radios have been used to advise Islanders of heaving rains, flooding and power outages that have occurred since they were issued, Primm said.

Adapted with special crystals, the radios monitor only the Sanibel police frequency that broadcasts weather alerts and other local emergencies. They run on either batteries or electricity and are equipped with a siren that sounds when important information is about to be broadcast.

Primm said he hopes to issue a radio to every home and business on Sanibel. Captivans are also more than welcome to purchase the radios. He added, however, that some locations on Captiva might experience difficulty receiving the signal.

The radio program was initiated to facilitate the fast relay of up-to-date information in hurricane situations. But Primm said he hopes the radios will eventually be used to advise Island residents and missing from a West Gulf Drive home. During his investigation he learned that the elderly victims had also been burglarized in August but that the stolen items were "recovered" for them by Oliver.

The victims had hired Oliver from the labor pool in Fort Myers to help them move from one house to another on Sanibel. They told police Oliver told them he thought he could recover their missing jewelry for a price. They paid him more than $400, and he turned over two of three missing rings and two watches.

Upon hearing the story, Church decided to track down Oliver for questioning about the second theft. The next day and several days thereafter Church "dressed down" in his oldest work clothes, didn't shave and took his place in the labor pool at 5:30 a.m. in an effort to learn Oliver's whereabouts.

"I wanted to see things first hand," Church later said about his "time" in the labor pool line. "I knew I was chasing the right guy. I just needed time to build a good case."

He eventually established a connection between Oliver and Munn, who had pawned some of the jewelry the Sanibel residents had reported missing.

On Sept. 27, with sufficient evidence against Munn, Church and Phillips secured a warrant for Munn's arrest on charges of dealing in stolen property. They spent the day at the labor pool waiting for Munn to return, and the arrest was made shortly after 5 p.m.

Munn's statements after his arrest gave police the needed evidence to build a case for Oliver's arrest on charges of grand larceny. A lawyer from the State Attorney's Office spent most of the night of Sept. 27 helping Phillips and Church draft the arrest warrant, which they delivered to County Judge William McIver at 1 a.m. Sept. 28.

Just before 2 a.m. Phillips and Church, with a back-up of Lee County Sheriff's deputies, found Oliver at his Fowler Street apartment.

Police arrested Oliver and took him to the Lee County Jail. When they asked to search his apartment, however, Oliver vehemently refused. Church and Phillips were forced to obtain a search warrant for the apartment, an exacting process that normally takes several hours.

With the help of the attorney, Phillips and Church drafted a five-page document that was presented to Circuit Court Judge Hugh Starnes at 6 p.m. Sept. 28.

The search of the apartment was completed by 8 p.m. with the assistance of four additional Sanibel Police Department employees for inventoring the contents of the apartment, virtually all of which turned out to be from the home of the Sanibel residents whose jewelry was stolen.

"Everything from the monogrammed towels to the wall hangings was from the Sanibel house," Phillips said last week. "We inventoried approximately 130 items."

The recovery of the stolen goods ended an investigation that involved 160 hours on the parts of Phillips, Church and many of their colleagues who worked overtime while the two tracked down their leads in Fort Myers.

Butler said the case is a prime example of how much time and effort is involved in police work. "I don't know of any other profession where people will take that much time and work that long to bring a problem to a successful conclusion," he said. He added that both Phillips and Church will be given formal commendations for their efforts.

As Church's supervisor, Phillips had nothing but praise for Church's efforts throughout the investigation. "He persevered to the point where we could make a successful arrest," Phillips said.

Church is a four-year veteran of the Sanibel Police Department and has served as an officer for the past two years. Phillips has been on the force for seven years this month.

Court dates have not been set for either Oliver, 33, of 1804 Fowler St., or Munn, 22, of 4522 Greenwood Circle, Fort Myers. Both remain in the Lee County Jail.

The eight stages in the life of the mosquito:
From lower left — eggs hatch into four stage instars, followed by the pupal stage shaped like a comma, then comes the adult, the female of which bites.

Kudos To Kontinos

By George Campbell

Illustrated by Ann Winterbotham

John Kontinos, who has owned Bailey Plaza for years, recently made two fine decisions that contribute greatly to Sanibel's well-being.

One, he has beautifully planted the huge corner parking lot, its islands and its edges. Every citizen of Sanibel owes John a debt of thanks for this move. It cost plenty, too, and only diminished parking slots by fewer than a half-dozen. That is the first act bringing Kudos to Kontinos.

The second act relates to Kontinos' membership on the Lee County Mosquito Control District Board of Commissioners. It has been years since Francis Bailey learned, shortly after he was first elected to Sanibel's City Council, that it was not legally possible to hold two elective offices at the same time.

Bailey had to resign from the mosquito board, and Kontinos was appointed to serve out Bailey's term. When that term expired he was reelected to a new term by Lee County voters.

I confess that I was not too enthusiastic about Kontinos' being on the mosquito board. I have always felt the job should be held by an environmentalist, a biological scientist of some kind, or a conservationist.

I was proud to support Judy Workman against Kontinos in the 1980 election. Judy lost the county-wide election (we still have "at large" voting here, even though the district is divided up), but in a way she won for she received a miraculous 25,000-plus votes! That's pretty darned good for a relatively unknown environmentalist and mother who lived on Sanibel. (Of course she was well known on Sanibel, but she was not so well known county-wide).

I hope it doesn't come as a shock to you, but Sanibel residents are not the most popular people in Lee County. Neither are Grosse Pointers in Michigan, nor are Shaker Heights and Larchmont citizens in Ohio and New York. We all share a certain common stigma.

So Judy's 25,000 votes made us all proud of her and also, for those of us who can read the handwriting on the wall, we saw changed attitudes toward the use of lethal toxicants in the habitat we share with the plants and animals, including the shrimp and fish that live all about us.

Anyway, at the Lee County Mosquito Control District's board meeting of Sept. 18, 1982, Kontinos earned the second of his kudos. We who fight the use of environmentally damaging lethal chemicals salute you, John!

At that meeting Kontinos supported the use of an environmentally harmless Insect Growth Regulator, Altocid, for mosquito larviciding on the J.N. "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge, to replace the toxin, Abate.

William Spikowski, a leading Lee County Zoning Board member, proposed this change to the mosquito board, which then accepted his proposal.

We hail this long-sought breakthrough, for Abate, the product that has been used for many years, is an organophosphate toxin and, we believe, causes much environmental damage.

So now the J.N. "Ding" Darling refuge will be free of direct application of toxic organophosphates for larviciding as it has been almost freed from the direct application of other related toxins, malathion and fenthion, formerly employed on the refuge for adulticiding.

Some years ago, at the behest of this writer, the United States Department of the Interior prohibited adulticiding with fenthion and malathion on the refuge. Drift and drainage still take place, but the situation is very much improved.

The Sept. 18 mosquito board meeting was for the consideration of next year's Mosquito Control District budget, which has increased in total dollars but not in millage.

Commissioner Matt Smith moved to amend the budget to, among other things, reflect any Altocid costs so that this new larvicide of choice for the Darling refuge would be adequately covered financially.

Director T. Wayne Miller and some of Smith's fellow commissioners assured Smith the change could and would be made within the proposed budget and said no formal budget modification would be required to effect this most welcome new practice.

That Kontinos supported the switch from toxic substances to non-toxic Insect Growth Regulators is laudable.

Altocid is a product of Zoecon Corporation, an innovative California firm whose work I have watched with admiration for about 15 years.

Altocid employs an entirely new environmentally safe approach to mosquito control. This Insect Growth Regulator will, for the purposes of this discussion, be called a Mosquito Growth Regulator. It is the result of long years of extensive and costly research into the intricacies of natural biochemical regulation of mosquito development.

The combination of basic biological study results and scientific innovation has produced a unique mosquito killer, a larvicide that kills in the sub-adult stages. It doesn't simply kill the insects outright; instead, it induces morphological changes in the developing mosquito larva that prevent it from reaching successful breeding (and BITING!) adulthood.

Most mosquito species (there are two dozen on Sanibel) pass through eight stages: (1) egg; (2) first instar, the first tiny "wriggler" right after hatching; (3) second instar after the tiny one casts or moults its exoskeleton and is now a little bigger; (4) third and (5) fourth instars with growth again evident after two more "sheddings" or moults; (6)

REFUGE REPORT

Refuge manager thanks volunteers for time, effort, money

By Delano Pierce, manager

J.N. "Ding" Darling Wildlife Refuge

Last month I ran out of space and could not list all the people who have donated talent, time or money to the refuge. I am happy to be able to report that there are many more persons to whom we owe special thanks.

Pam Horne donated her time and her professional voice to our audio visual presentation of An Introduction to the 'Ding' Darling Refuge. This show, which Horne narrates, is a seven-minute slide presentation with a musical background. It was produced by the AVP Company in Fort Myers and would have been much more expensive without Horne's contribution.

Bill and Shirley Speckerman recently signed up under the Refuge Volunteer Program and have been a real asset to the program. They each work about two hours a week answering inquiries from refuge visitors.

Bud Ryckman has done a splendid job organizing a Cooperating Association for the Visitor Contact Station. This fledgling organization, to be called the "Ding" Darling Wildlife Society, Inc., will be a big part of our program in the future. Reed Toomey, William Frey, Dan Kimpel and Milena Eskew have volunteered their various areas of expertise in forming this association also.

The Cypress Lake United Methodist Youth Fellowship donated $70 for equipment to help manatees.

The following people made donations for the purchase of trees for landscaping: the Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Knight, Mary Baker, Dr. and Mrs. George Cramer, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Sullivan, Dr. and Mrs. Norman Bowles, Carolan Ellis, Mary Walker, Cynthia Lockwood, Mr. and Mrs. Myron Klein, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Ferguson Jr., Dr. and Mrs. Ingalls Simmons, Mr. and Mrs. John Sheperd, Polly Seely, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Groh, Mr. and Mrs. Derrol Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Krausse Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Jim Luckett and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Burnham.

Ken Preston and Fred Sheakley have donated their labor to help K.C. Emerson and Dee Slinkard plant trees at the VCS.

Although I do not have the names, the refuge staff also wishes to thank the many people who unselfishly donated their services to helping us with holding and loading the manatee at the Causeway, the persons who voluntarily pick up litter on the Wildlife Drive; those who call in with information regarding wildlife; and those who point the error of their ways to alligator feeders, wrong way drivers on the Wildlife Drive and other violators.

These people have helped greatly in making the job of administering the refuge a pleasurable one.

Eastern diamond back rattler killed on Causeway

By David Meardon

A five and one-half foot eastern diamond-backed rattlesnake met its untimely death last week on the Causeway.

Sighted on Sept. 27 at the southerly Causeway island just north of the restrooms, the snake was reported to Sanibel Police Dispatcher Leslie LeBuff, who was working at the weigh station. She made repeated attempts to reach Island naturalists George Campbell and her father, Charles LeBuff, to no avail.

Enter off-duty Officer Scott Ashby, crossing the Causeway after a fishing trip. The poisonous snake was deemed a nuisance, (with the number of people who stop to fish and sightsee on the Causeway, there's no telling who might have run across it), and Ashby killed the reptile.

"We tried to catch it, but it was dangerous out there," LeBuff said.

"It was the biggest snake I've ever killed," Ashby said.

As for how a snake got out there in the first place, elder LeBuff said it may have been crossing the Caloosahatchee River, got caught in the current and ended up on the Causeway. In this area, LeBuff said, snakes have been observed and collected up to 25 miles out to sea. "Just like people, they get caught in currents," he said.

The eastern diamond-backed rattlesnake and the coral snake are the only poisonous snakes found on Sanibel. Only one other rattler has been recorded on the Causeway, and that was first sighted by Jean LeBuff in 1962.

Dolphin of porpoise?

Biologists describe the difference

"What's in a name? That which we call a rose by any other name would smell as sweet." So spoke Juliet to Romeo in William Shakespeare's famous tragic play.

What's in a name? Well, when it comes to sorting out dolphins from dolphins and dolphins from porpoises, names mean quite a bit.

The first difficulty arises with the word "dolphin," the name given to a brightly colored fish that prefers the deeper ocean waters and is a very fast swimmer. Dolphin is also the name given to several species of marine mammals that are also fast swimmers but are warm-blooded air breathers who bear their young and nurse them on milk.

Most common is the Atlantic bottle-nosed dolphin, like Flipper of the television series and the usual performers at whale and porpoise shows at marine attractions across the state.

Whale and porpoise shows? That's right.

The Atlantic bottle-nosed dolphin is also called a porpoise, and the two names have come to be used interchangeably even though, to the scientist at least, there is a difference between the two animals.

Dolphins and porpoises, along with whales, are classified biologically as Cetaceans, from a Greek word meaning sea monster. Cetaceans are further classified as toothed whales and baleen whales. Baleens have no functional teeth but rather rows of whalebone in either side of the jaw.

Dolphins are toothed whales. They are abundant around the Florida coast, and anyone who has watched them perform at marine attractions can vouch for their intelligence and acrobatic ability.

Dolphins have a sleek look with a dorsal fin that curves back and single blow hole on top of the head. Perhaps the distinguishing physical characteristic is the long snout and the somewhat puffy forehead.

Campbell continued

the pupa - no longer a wriggler but shaped like a little comma with a tail; (7) the pupa splits open dorsally allowing for the emergence of; (8) the full-grown flying adult. The females of the adult mosquito are the biters. They seek a blood meal to provide sufficient protein and other nutrients to permit egg production.

Larval death takes place. Thus traditional measurements of developing broods of mosquitos (by dip testing and counting of second, third and fourth instar larvae) give false and inaccurate evaluations of what is really going on in the MGR application area.

After practice, a skilled evaluator can make a general determination of whether or not the MGR is working in a specific situation. The evaluator should look for:

1. Lighter than normal color of larvae
2. Less movement in larvae
3. Less pupal movement
4. Any malformed "basket cases"
5. Usually comma-shaped pupae which may have straightened out
6. Slowed development of, say, second instar larvae to the third instar stage

One or several of these symptoms may be present.

I am sure that among our Lee County personnel subtle detecting skills have already been sharp-honed, for Miller and his people have been experimenting with such products for years. In fact Miller was involved with early MGR on Sanibel and Galt Island and has published articles on the results.

There is no question that we have about the most highly skilled, most sophisticated and costly Mosquito Control District extant in the world today.

Now that the district is gradually moving away from its former attitude that a toxic drug "fix" will solve all problems, this writer has only praise.

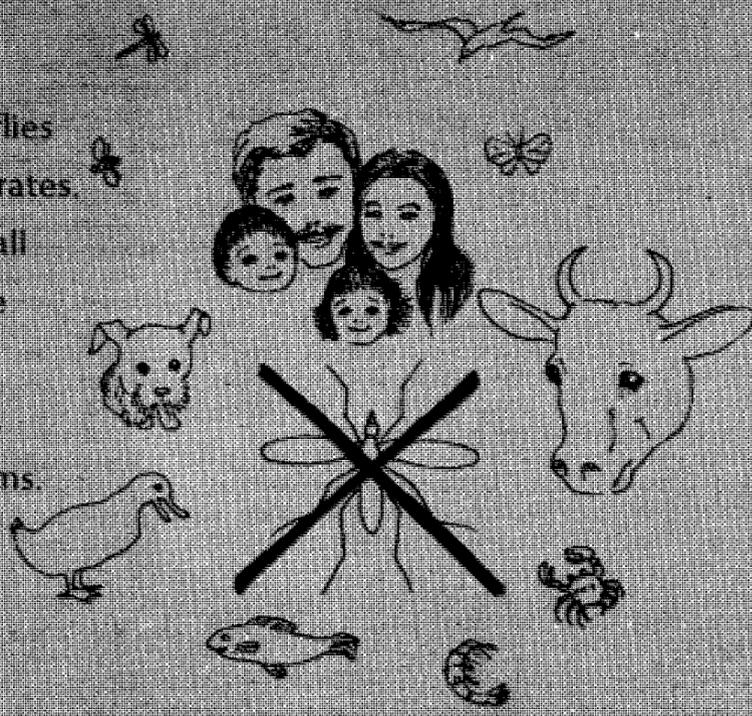

From Miller's strong group of scientists who are accomplishing valuable research along many environmentally acceptable control lines (monomolecular film, other IGRs, planaria, bacteria, nematodes and more), we can expect innovative and courageous new mosquito control techniques that will satisfy all concerned - tourist, environmentalist, businessman, resident and conservationist. Satisfy all, that is, except the mosquitos.

So once again: Kudos to Kontinos.

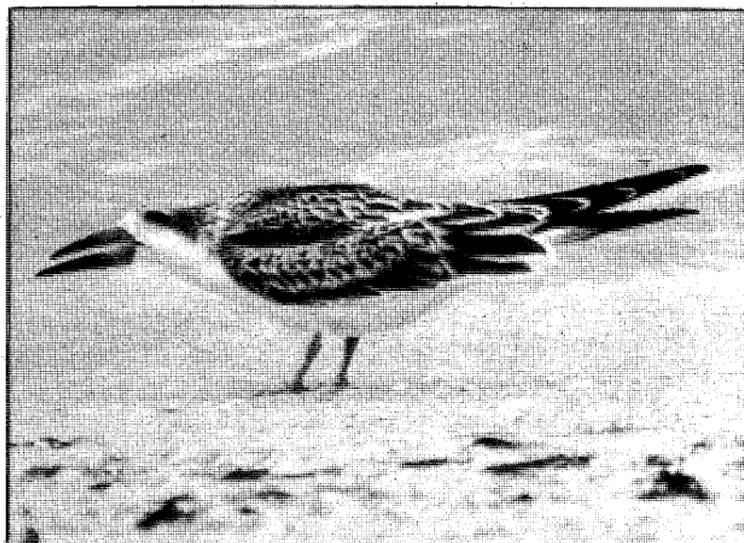

As suggested in the illustration, Altocid, when applied according to Zoecon Corporation's instructions, does not have harmful effects on man, wildfowl, fish, crustaceans, beneficial insects such as dragonflies or non-target invertebrates.

It would, however, in all probability affect some insects more closely related to mosquitoes, e.g. flies and no-see-ums. It "offs" mosquitoes in the pupal stage.

Skimmers grow up, refuge proposes protection

By Carol Kranichfeld

Black skimmers have delighted Sanibel Causeway travelers with their antics since they began nesting on a small patch of sand near the bridge in early July.

Because the skimmer colony has given thousands of passersby the chance to stop and watch, photograph and film the unfolding story as a new generation of skimmers was given life, it seems fitting that gratified observers complete the circle and return the gift.

Under the guidance of the J.N. "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge management, a written suggestion has been made to Lee County that eternal protection be granted for future Causeway nesters. The proposal is awaiting final approval.

Although transfer of Causeway nesting site jurisdiction has yet to be completed, everything points toward approval from the Lee County Commission.

As outlined in the refuge's correspondence, the plan is designed to grant refuge management authority over the Causeway site beginning April 1 of each year, when least terns typically arrive to breed.

Commission approval of the jurisdiction transfer will permit refuge personnel to scrape a section of Causeway land free of vegetation to encourage least tern colonization. Black skimmers are expected to succeed the terns later in the summer.

Refuge management would also be allowed to construct a barrier, along the lines of a wooden snow fence, to discourage terns and skimmers from flying low into nearby Causeway lanes and oncoming traffic. The protective barrier should minimize bird kills, which have been seen this summer.

Although efforts were made to attract least terns and skimmers to other more protected parts of the Island, such as the Bailey Tract, the black skimmers chose to nest alongside the Causeway this year.

"The disked soil in the Bailey Tract must have been too dark to provide good camouflage for their eggs," refuge Assistant Manager Larry Narcisse surmised earlier this summer. He explained that the birds usually prefer white sandy flats to disguise the three to four eggs laid in each clutch.

The young skimmers, which hatched in late August, are adolescents now. Skimmers do not generally colonize the same area each year, but commission approval of the refuge's request may ensure the unique opportunity to see this year's adolescents and the offspring that are sure to follow next year.

Islander Sports Quiz

A record five people knew the correct answer to last week's Islander Sports Quiz. Rose Marie Best, Toby Cudahy, Dick Traucht, Sam Price and Lloyd Kylo all knew that Roger Maris holds the season record for the most home runs and that he set that record in 1961 with 61 home runs while he played for the New York Yankees.

If you think you know the answer to this week's Sports Quiz, call The Islander, 472-5185. If you're right we'll print your name in this spot in next week's paper. Here's the question:

What pitcher-slugger led the Boston Red Sox to their last World Series Championship? In what year?

Good luck!

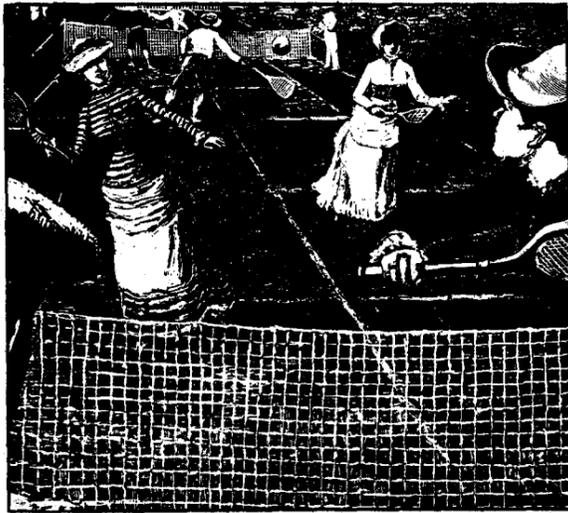

Island tennis

The Dunes tennis women made a fine showing at the Lee County Women's Tennis Jamboree held at the Dunes on Sept. 28, 29 and 30. The jamboree kicked off the 1982-83 women's tennis season in Lee County.

Also representing the Dunes in the jamboree were B Division players Jeanette Case, Ellen Hunt and Lisa Williams.

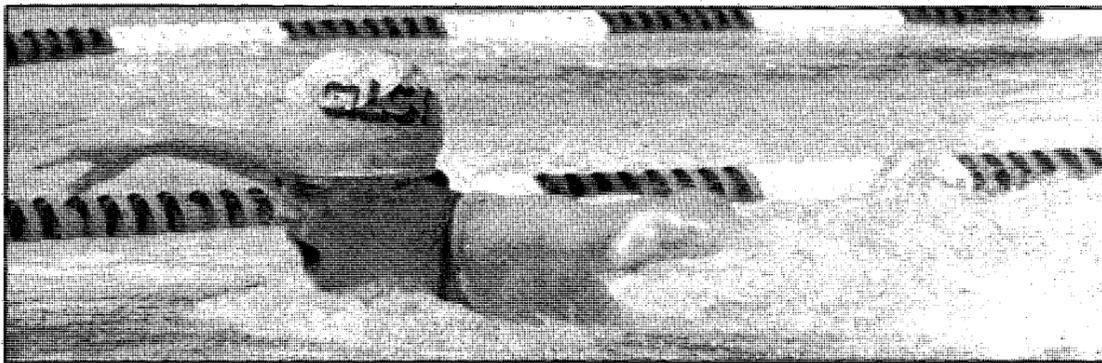

Dunes pro Bill Fous asks that any Island tennis women who want to join the team for the new season contact him at 472-3522.

On Tuesday, Sept. 28, a quartet of foursomes traveled to Port Labelle Inn and Country Club for 18 holes of links action. With a net score of 296, the winning foursome was comprised of Jeff Dean, Frank Rosen, Charlie Uhr and Clem Donnell. THE WAY WE WERE

20 Years Ago This Week

Mary Lee Wightman brought her brand new baby girl home to Captiva on Oct. 3. Sandra Lee weighed in at 7½ pounds at Lee Memorial Hospital.

The Sanibel-Captiva American Legion hosted a Shipwreck Party over the weekend in honor of the many non-Legion members who have given their time and effort to help with Legion fish fries.

The covered dish supper was held in the Legion hall, which was cleverly decorated by Velna and John Ridge and Harry Sheldon. Among the guests of honor were Jake and Pearl Stokes, John Peurifoy, Arthur Gibson, the Irving Rhodes and the Dale Ballingers.

Jeanette Hayford has been named chairman of Captiva's United Way campaign for the third straight year. Under her direction last year Captiva residents passed their quota and hope to do the same this year.

Besides being chairman of the United Way, Hayford serves on the Sanibel-Captiva Planning Board and is secretary of the Seminole Electric Cooperative.

Ruth Hunter won a prize of long-playing records at Millers Department store this week, so for the coming season audiences at the Pirate Playhouse will be treated to Street Fair, The Magic Organ, The U.S. Navy Band, the Fantastic Fiddles of Felix Slatkin and Van Cliburn's Favorite Encores between acts.

Culex nigripalpus, the mosquito that carries St. Louis encephalitis, has been found on Sanibel in the highest concentration in Lee County.

A visit to the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation center south of Sanibel-Captiva Road revealed preparations are proceeding slowly but surely toward the opening of the center in early November.

The Sanibel-Captiva unit of the Lee County League of Women Voters will meet this week to discuss the feasibility of establishing some sort of mass transit system on Sanibel and Captiva. The league is planning an Island-wide traffic study.

The Sanibel Fire Department last week christened a new rescue vehicle with advanced equipment to aid the department in handling medical calls, car accidents and small fires.

The vehicle, a 1982 GMC truck, was refurbished for rescue operations by lead firefighter and master mechanic Don Frye.

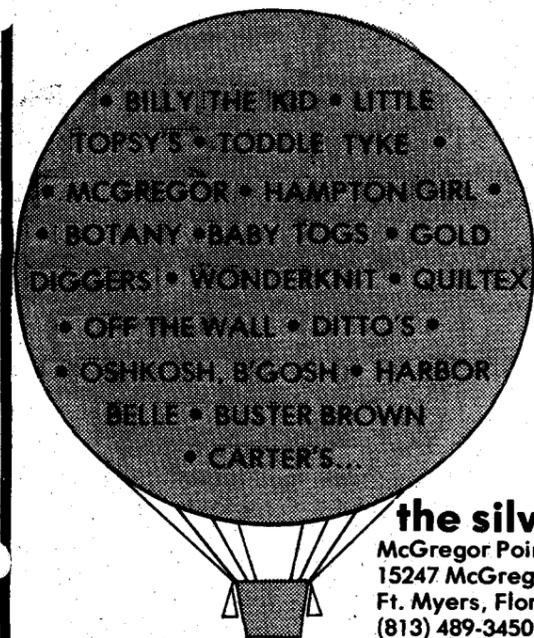

The Sanibel Police Department has a new $3,000 radar that can trick fuzz busters and clock speeds both while the squad car is parked beside the road and while it is moving.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

Dick Muench, beautiful birds to entertain at SCA dinner

Dick Muench and his Beautiful Tropical Birds will entertain after dinner at the Sanibel Community Association's first fall covered dish supper today, Tuesday, Oct. 5.

Muench's father, Al, started with a pondful of colorful waterfowl in 1970. Two years later Dick was hooked on birds and has expanded the aviary behind his house to include more than 400 beautiful and fascinating feathered creatures.

Best known for his prowess and involvement in Island sports, Dick provides a striking contrast for his fragile parrots, cockatiels and tiny finches in a rainbow of brilliant colors.

The dinner will begin at 6:30 p.m. today, Tuesday, Oct. 5, at the community center on Periwinkle Way. Bring your own table service and a covered dish to serve at least eight people.

Those who can only attend the after dinner program should arrive by 7:30 p.m. All residents and Island visitors are cordially invited.

Community association plans weekly Bingo to raise mortgage money

Weekly Bingo games open to the public will be held each Tuesday evening starting Nov. 9 at 7:30 p.m. at the Sanibel Community Association, the SCA Board of Directors announced last week.

The Bingo games will be sponsored by the Association to raise funds to help pay off the mortgage on the building. SCA Vice President Bud Bernhard heads the committee in charge of the Bingo games. Other members are Myra ZuHone and Art Ford. "We hope the Bingo games will be well attended by Sanibel and Captiva residents and that we will attract players from all over the surrounding area," Bernhard said.

SCA President Jerry Wierman pointed out that the association building fills a vital community need by providing facilities for regular meetings of groups such as the Shell Club and Audobon Society and for such special events as the Shell Show and entertainment and cultural events.

"The association must obtain more funds in order to continue to make the facility available to the public," Wierman said. "Revenues from membership dues and rentals of the building are not large enough to make any substantial reduction in the mortgage."

Island Girl Scouts meet this Thursday

Girl Scout Troop No. 81 for scouts in grades 4, 5 and 6 will meet for the first time from 7-8:30 p.m. this Thursday, Oct. 7, at the Children's Center of the Islands on Casa Ybel Road. Scouts are asked to please bring your badge book.

Rotarians host hospital speaker

The Sanibel-Captiva Rotary Club will host guest speaker from Lee County Memorial Hospital at the club meeting at 7:45 a.m. this Friday, Oct. 8. The speaker will discuss emergency services at the hospital.

The public is invited to the morning meeting at the Sundial resort.

Christian women plan 'Fall Fling'

A Fall Fling of Fashion will be the theme of the Sanibel-Captiva Christian Women's Club luncheon on Thursday, Oct. 14.

The special feature will be a fashion show by La Belle Difference. Guest speaker will be Gayle Mason of Titusville, Fla., a mother of two whose husband is associated with the Kennedy Space Center. Musical entertainment will be provided by Betty Blackwell of Fort Myers.

Come to the luncheon at the Sundial and bring a friend. If not contacted by Oct. 8 call Lillian, 482-5905; Shirley, 472-5202; or Audrey, 481-1864. Reservations are necessary for the $6.75 lunch. Nursery service is available at no charge by calling Ruth, 472-1218.

Clowns of St. Michael's plan second Sanibel show

The Clowns of Saint Michael's are coming to Sanibel! A group of teenagers from Saint Michael's Lutheran Church in Fort Myers formed a clown ministry last year and have since appeared throughout the Fort Myers area.

On Friday evening, Oct. 22, they will perform at Saint Michael's Episcopal Church on Sanibel.

Clown ministry in the church dates as far back as the Middle Ages when clowns were used during the lengthy church services to fill up times when few words were spoken.

Church doors will open at 7:30 p.m. for the one-hour performance. All children, pre-teens and teens and their parents are invited to attend.

St. Louis encephalitis

Carrier mosquito detected throughout Lee County

By Joe Dysart

More test chickens are being bled this week in an effort to determine the extent of St. Louis encephalitis in Lee County, a Lee County Mosquito Control Board official said today.

The mosquito-transmitted virus, which has no known preventative or cure and can produce severe retardation or death in its victims, was detected last week at six of 15 test sites scattered throughout Lee County.

Follow-up tests taken late last week confirmed first reports of the virus' presence released Wednesday.

Health officials said St. Louis encephalitis is carried by Culex Nigripalpus, one of 45 species of mosquitoes found in the area. They say there is no easy way for the layman to perceive the carrier mosquito from other mosquitoes.

Dr. Joseph Lawrence, director of the Lee County Health Department, advised Lee County residents, "There is no reason for panic at all." He said the chances of a Lee County resident contracting the disease are "remote -- if common sense is used."

"These are shy mosquitoes that would rarely bite a person who is moving around," Lawrence said. "My advice would be don't sit around parks at night, and use insect repellent if you're going to be near swales -- use common sense like that."

Lawrence also noted that the carrier mosquito is less prevalent than many other mosquito species currently thriving in the area.

He said doctors throughout the county have already been notified of the presence of St. Louis encephalitis. Symptoms of the virus include aches, pains, high fever and a stiff neck.

Senior citizens are especially susceptible to the virus, which produces an inflammation of the brain, Lawrence said.

Area doctors will need to be especially cognizant of St. Louis encephalitis, he added, since its symptoms could be misconstrued for a common cold or flu. He said the virus was last diagnosed in Lee County in 1977, when it was contracted by three persons.

In the same year, doctors reported 110 cases of St. Louis encephalitis in Orlando. Eight people died as a result of the virus, according to Dr. Pat McCreedy, health program supervisor for the Lee County Health and Rehabilitative Services.

McCreedy added the last major outbreak of the virus before 1977 occurred in Tampa in 1962, when 45 people died.

No cases of St. Louis encephalitis have been reported in Florida this year, Lawrence said. McCreedy discounted rumors that a case of the virus had been diagnosed in DeSoto County this year.

Jim Burgess, supervisor of the Encephalitis Surveillance Program for the Lee County Mosquito Control Board, said peak biting periods for the carrier mosquito are at dawn and dusk. He added Culex Nigripalpus never bites during the daylight hours.

Excellent breeding conditions for the carrier mosquito include pools of stagnant or standing water, such as roadside swales or rainwater-filled garbage cans.

Culex Nigripalpus "loves high humidity," Burgess said.

Sites where positive readings of St. Louis encephalitis were found last week in the blood of test chickens were:

— Sanibel's Wulfert Point, where Sanibel and Captiva meet.

— Bayshore Elementary School in North Fort Myers.

— Shady Oaks Park behind Fort Myers Recreational Park in Fort Myers.

— San Carlos Elementary School in San Carlos.

— South Fort Myers south of Bass Road off Galdiulous Drive.

— Bonita Middle School in Bonita Springs.

Burgess noted test results should not be regarded as a perfect representation of the virus' distribution.

"Just because we don't find a positive reading of St. Louis Encephalitis in a certain area doesn't mean it isn't there," Burgess said.

He said all October vacations for his workers have been canceled and crews will be working seven days a week in the Lee County Mosquito Control Board effort to wipe out Culex Nigripalpus.

County crews have been working intensively within a one mile radius of sites where positive St. Louis Encephalitis readings have been found, Burgess said. Fog trucks have been deployed, and walking crews will be spraying standing water where mosquito larvae is found.

Burgess said the one-mile-radius "intensive treatment" zone was formed because the carrier mosquito generally needs to travel no further from its birthplace to obtain its blood meal.

Helicopters will inspect the work of trucks and crews, and any slighted areas within the one-mile radius of a positive reading site will be treated with a second wave of spraying. Burgess said a semi-intensive program has been instituted within a five-mile radius of positive test sites.

"But we're not letting up on any other area of the county just to concentrate on this, I want everyone to know that" Burgess said. "We're just increasing our efforts to try and eradicate the problem."

Burgess said another reason why chances of contracting St. Louis encephalitis are slim is due to the incubation period for the disease. St. Louis encephalitis needs 12 days to incubate in the carrier mosquito, and the average life expectancy for Culex Nigripalpa is also 12 days.

"It comes down to a numbers game," said T. Wayne Miller, director of the Lee County Mosquito Control Board. He said only carrier mosquitoes that happen to live past the twelfth day, and that contract the virus, are capable of transmitting it.

Miller estimates more than 90 percent of the carrier mosquitoes die in their 12th day.

Burgess said very little is known about St. Louis encephalitis, other than its devastating effects of humans, which can't be prevented or cured. He said one intriguing aspect of Culex Nigrapalpus' behavior is its switch in host preference midway through the mosquito season.

"For some reason — and we still don't know why — Culex Nigrapalpus changes its host preference from small mammals to human beings midway through the season," Burgess said. "In August, September and October, Culex Nigrapalpus goes after human beings for its blood meal."

Burgess said some researchers theorize the mosquito picks up St. Louis encephalitis from small mammal hosts. He is currently testing that theory with a small mammal catching and testing program.

Burgess' menagerie of test animals also includes the now famous flock of chickens that tipped-off mosquito and health officials to the presence of St. Louis encephalitis this year.

He uses approximately six chickens — all of them roosters — at each of the 15 test sites throughout the county. Many of the sites are located at Lee County Schools, where barbed wire fences already in place for package sewage treatment plants can protect the roosters from vandals.

Burgess said sometimes a resident will offer the use of a backyard or field for the roosters, but he likes to clear the offer with neighbors first.

"You've got to remember you have six roosters, and all of them like to start their crowing at three or four in the morning," Burgess said. "We've received threatening calls from people in the past, who said 'you better get rid of those chickens, or I'll shoot 'em.' So we move them."

Burgess said budgetary restrictions prohibit him from saturating the county with flocks of test chickens. He obtains the best cross section of the county he can by relocating flocks away from areas where tests have been negative for extended periods of time.

"We had a test site in Cape Coral for awhile, but we never found any positive readings there," Burgess said. "Cape Coral has a good drainage system in its populated area. It's not a good breeding area for Culex Nigrapalpus."

Miller said the average life expectancy for a Florida residents when the state was first formed was 33 years. Part of that life outlook was the result of diseases carried by mosquitoes.

"A lot of northerners coming down to Florida think we're some kind of agency for pest control," Burgess said. "But the real reason the Lee County Mosquito Control Board was formed was to get rid of diseases like malaria and yellow fever, which are carried by mosquitoes."

Burgess said St. Louis encephalitis test results from chickens bled today and tomorrow will be ready Friday.

Susan Forster weds Roy Hull Jr.

Susan Marie Forster and Roy Thurman Hull Jr. were married on Sept. 11, 1982, at the Sanibel Community Church. The Rev. Bruch Milligan officiated. Gerry Perkins was the organist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Forster of Sanibel. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thurman of Sanibel.

Bridal attendants were Mary Gerwig, sister of the bride, matron on honor; and Lucretia Hull and Theresa McNally, bridesmaids.

James Alan Hull was his brother's best man, and groomsmen were Chuck Kubit and Robby Wilson.

A reception was held after the ceremony at the Beachview Golf Club. After a wedding trip to Lake Tahoe the couple is making their home in Houston, Texas, where they will live for one year before moving to Dhahran, Saudi Arabia.

The bride attended the University of South Florida in Tampa. Her husband graduated from the University of Tennessee at Knoxville and did graduate work at Carnegie Mellon Institute in Pittsburg, Pa. He is employed by the Arabian American Oil Company as a construction engineer.

Shopping

Sanibel is a veritable shopper's paradise. Tasteful boutiques and casual island shops join forces to present visitors with everything and anything a vacation shopper could hope for.

At the Lighthouse (Eastern) end of the island, Punta Ybel Plaza and the Sea-Horse Shops are right across the street from one another, providing a variety of products that can cure your sweet tooth or tickle your shell flinder's fancy. Need a good haircut or coiffure? You can get it in either of these shopping centers.

Most businesses open at 10 a.m. and close at 5:30 p.m. This holds true for many island stores, although some are open evenings during the winter season.

Tall Australian Pines shade Periwinkle Way and the shopper travels west along this main thoroughfare. This stretch of road is truly a shopper's paradise! It's all here - the fast and not-so-fast eating spots, casual and elegant boutiques, hand-wrought jewelry, craft designs, shell shops and baits for health product fanatics.

Watch to your right and left as you drive or cycle along. Photographic supplies, bait and tackle, deli foods, fresh seafood and baked goods, knick-knacks and what-nots can all be found along the drive to the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road. Along the way, shopping centers such as the Heart of the Islands, Periwinkle Place and Tahitian Gardens offer a variety of island delights.

Palm Ridge Road, the Periwinkle Way turn-off to Captiva, offers several shopping centers featuring everything from imports to gift shops for the discriminating shopper, plants and shells, a sandwich shop, ice cream parlors, pizza parlor, boutique shop and the Island Apothecary pharmacy.

At the Tarpon Bay-Periwinkle Way intersection, the Island Shopping Center features the island's only supermarket and movie house.

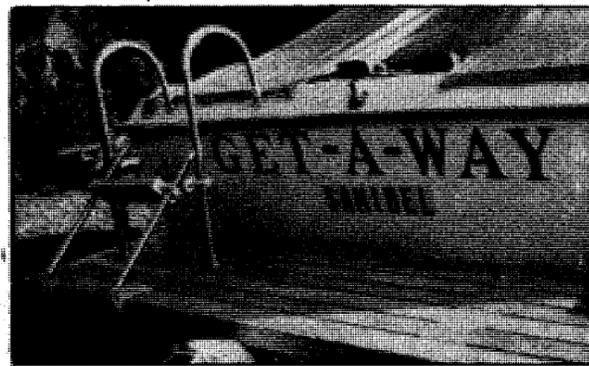

A left on Tarpon Bay Road takes the visitor past Sanibel's original schoolhouse, which now holds original island watercolors and woodcuts.

Then on to West Gulf Drive and westward to an interesting little artisan shop and gallery.

At the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road, you may choose instead to turn right and follow the signs to the Tarpon Bay marina, where you will find a cluster of quaint shops overlooking the back bay. Some antiques, shells and shellcrafts, what-nots and clever clothes can be found here, as well as a great seafood sandwich and soft drinks.

The spectacular ride to Captiva, with its lush foliage and enchanting view of the Gulf, is well worth a day's outing. Talented artists display their works in one roadside shop, while others feature some nifty gifts for Grandma to take home to little hands as a pleasant hodge-podge of remembrances from these barrier islands.

Whether for shopping or merely browsing, island shops offer a surprising variety from one-of-a-kind collectibles for the discerning shopper to postcards for the simple souvenir hunter. And of course, for all, shells - shell jewelry, shell lamps, just plain shells - the most beautiful shells in the world from the most beautiful shelling beaches in the world.

SHELLING

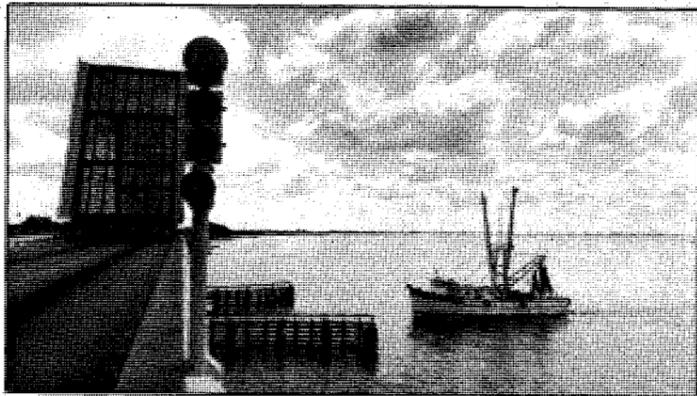

The city's resolution limiting the taking of live shells to two live shells per species per person is one to be scrupulously obeyed. As a matter of fact, in order to preserve Sanibel's beautiful shelling beaches, most collectors refuse to take any live shells whatsoever.

FISH Friends in Service Here

Neighboring help for Islanders in need of transportation, regular phone checks and assorted non-emergency neighborhood services. Call 472-0404, 24 hours a day.

WARNING! SAFEGUARD YOUR VALUABLES

In order to protect your valuable possessions from theft, it is recommended that you take them to a bank or hotel vault for safekeeping. Do NOT leave them in your room or car.

DOGGY DO'S AND DON'TS

If you are visiting Sanibel with the family Fido in tow, all the better. All family members can enjoy Southwest Florida sun and surf.
 There's no leash law on Sanibel, but of course an excitable or unruly animal is better off when controlled with a leash.
 The Chamber of Commerce can tell you what accommodations are available for families with pets.

Remember: Wherever you are, clean up after your pet! "Leave nothing on the beach but footprints" applies to dogs, too.
 There's no leash law on Sanibel, but of course an excitable or unruly animal is better off when controlled with a leash.

BICYCLING

If you aren't used to a lot of bicycle traffic, watch out on Sanibel. The extensive network of bike paths on the island is clearly marked along the edge of the road.
 Observe caution when driving near the bike path. A state law and city ordinance combine to prohibit parking or driving on the bike path. Mopeds are not permitted on the bike paths.
 If you plan to spend some time on a bike to enjoy the island sun and sights, make sure your vehicle is equipped with a bike flag, horn, good brakes and a light for night riding.
 Under Florida law, bicycle riders have the same rights and responsibilities as motor vehicle drivers.
 Drive safely!

CAMPING, BEACH FIRES

Camping on the beach is prohibited, as are open beach fires.
 An exemption to the beach fire ordinance is a fire in an approved cooking container (not to exceed 48x24x12 inches deep) with an extruded metal grill for non-commercial food preparation. This type of container will be allowed on the beach without a permit.
 After you have had your beach party, please assume the responsibility for cleaning up any debris or litter in your area.

FISHING

While no license is required for saltwater fishing, fishing in freshwater ponds or the Sanibel River requires a Florida fishing license.
 Licenses are available at Bailey's General Store on Periwinkle Way. The fee is $6.50 for residents and $10.50 for non-residents.
Minimum Legal Lengths
 Blue Fish 10 inches

Flounder	11 inches
Grouper	12 inches
Mackerel	12 inches
Mullet	12 inches
Pompano	10 inches
Red Fish	12 inches
Snook	18 inches
Trout	12 inches

Snook fishing is outlawed from June 30-Aug. 1.

GATORS

Feeding alligators anywhere within the Sanibel city limits is not only illegal, but can be extremely dangerous.
 Alligators can run up to 45 mph, so if you are close enough to feed an alligator, he is close enough to bite you. An alligator fed for fun loses his natural fear of humans and becomes a potential threat to children and pets.
 Dogs should never be permitted to run free on Sanibel.

Fence them, walk them on a leash or, if you must free your dog for a walk, keep him under voice control. Never tie your dog in an unfenced back yard.
 For help with a nuisance alligator, call the following representatives of the Southwest Florida Alligator Association. They are licensed and have permits to legally handle gators: George Campbell, 472-2825; Steve Phillips, 472-2329; Mark Westfall, 472-5128.

First Federal Savings and Loan
 Corner of Palm Ridge Road and Florence 472-1537

Gulf Coast First National Bank
 Sanibel-Captiva Road and Andy Rosse Lane Captiva 472-6666
 Hours: Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Closed weekends.

SPEEDLIMITS

There is very good reason for the varying speed limits (20-30 mph) along the Causeway. The slower speeds preserve the bridge supports from strain and stress.
 This speed limit is strictly enforced with radar on a 24-hour basis by both the Sanibel Police Department and the Lee County Sheriff's Department.
