Roosa clarifies powers of Code Enforcement Board

By Barbara Brundage

City councilmen who a few weeks ago expressed fears they had "created a monster" by establishing the Code Enforcement Board now regard the seven-man board as a pussy cat.

Credited with clearing the air is attorney Richard Roosa, who clarified the parameters of the board's powers at a special meeting of the council with board members last week.

Roosa serves as legal counsel to the board and explained that the Code Enforcement Board's primary purpose is to "bring violators of the city's laws into compliance within a reasonable time."

"The board has no authority to challenge the validity of any laws," Roosa emphasized.

The council's concern was that the powers of the board established two years ago under guidelines set out in a state statute were too broad.

The misgivings surfaced last August after the board approved a stipulated settlement of a dispute between the city and the Caribe Beach Resort. The Caribe was charged with violations of the Comprehensive Land Use Plan in the time-sharing resort's sale of beach club memberships.

Community group plans second candidates forum

By Cindy Chalmers

United States, Florida and Lee County candidates will have their say this Thursday evening, Oct. 21, at the second of three forums on Sanibel this election season sponsored by the Community Committee for Candidates Nights.

The third forum will feature the five candidates for the Sanibel City Council and will be held next Thursday, Oct. 28.

CCCN Chairman Henry Shelton said last week several candidates have confirmed their plans to participate in the forum, including U.S. Congressional hopefuls Republican Connie Mack and Democrat Dr. Dana Stevens; Florida State Representative candidates Democrat Joe Campochiaro and Republican Fred Dudley; and Florida Senatorial contenders Democrat Frank Mann and Republican Charles Ed ards.

Shelton said although Gov. Bob Graham and his Republican opponent L.A. "Skip" Bafalis have been invited to the forum, neither had made a commitment for the evening as of Friday afternoon.

Shelton added that the committee hopes to have the four candidates for two seats on the Lee County Commission at the forum. Democrat Sam Camporeta and Republican Roland Eastwood are vying for the District Two seat; Republican Art Rohwedder faces Democrat Bill Fussell for the District Four seat on the commission.

Each of the state and U.S. candidates will have 10 minutes to state his platform. The County Commission candidates will have five minutes each, Shelton said. CCCN has not prepared questions for the candidates to address.

Mayor Porter Goss will be the moderator for this Thursday's forum, and Betty Robinson will conduct the Sanibel City Council candidates' forum next Thursday.

Both forums will begin promptly at 7:30 p.m. at the Sanibel Community Association building on Periwinkle Way.

Clogging!

The Caloosa River Cloggers brought their high steppin', down home Appalachian folk dancing to Sanibel Saturday to the delight of the 130 people who attended the gala event at the Community Association. The New River band also provided some foot stomping bluegrass for an evening of country fun. For more photos, turn to page 11B.

Questioning the candidates

Bill Hagerup

1004 Spanish Laurel Lane

60 years old
Married
Four children, four grandchildren
Been on Sanibel for 6½ years
Came here from Chicago, Ill.

Educational background:

Professional background: 30 years International Packers Ltd., corporate vice president, division president.

If elected to Sanibel's City Council, what action would you favor?

1. Proposed changes in the method of ROGO allocations (lottery versus ranking based on set criteria).

"I favor ranking based on set criteria but feel the criteria could be reviewed, particularly as applied against single-family homes. I would not favor a change if it would be necessary to bring the change to the voters as would be the case in a lottery system, unless the majority of the voters indicated they would prefer a referendum."

2. The development of a commercial center in the Palm Ridge area. Should the city provide public parking or promote a theme for the center?

"I do not feel that the city should provide public parking in the Palm Ridge area and am against the use of public funds for the development of any commercial property. An architectural and development theme would be desirable as well as incentives for building in this area."

3. The proposal to reduce the Island's resort housing density from five to three units per acre.

"Before taking issue on this I would want an investigation made to determine the inventory of land available at five units per acre and carefully weigh the advantages against the disadvantages. We must do everything possible to control growth within the parameters of the CLUP as well as define and take action on the big problem of intensity of use."

4. Settling the question of buildback after a disaster on the Island.

"The city should have an emergency plan in hand to eliminate red tape for superficial damage particularly for single-family homes. Buildings with possible structural damage would require inspection before repair. I do not feel that the city's buildback policies fully address the problems of the community and need reviewing and amending."

Jerrold Muench

676 Anchor Drive

37 years old
Married
Three children
On Sanibel for 20 years
Came here from Syracuse, N.Y.

Educational background: Attended Syracuse University; four years in the U.S. Navy.

Professional background: Current owner, Periwinkle Trailer Park.

If elected to Sanibel's City Council, what action would you favor?

1. Proposed changes in the method of ROGO allocations (lottery versus ranking based on set criteria).

"Our Rate of Growth Ordinance is working. One of its primary assets is to create a balance between resort and residential dwellings. I would like to see the allocation process examined so as to provide a preference to owner occupied single-family homes."

2. The development of a commercial center in the Palm Ridge area. Should the city provide public parking or promote a theme for the center?

"I do not support the use of tax dollars to encourage development. I believe we should adopt design criteria, frontage and site location criteria to minimize traffic congestion and encourage pedestrian and bicycle activities."

3. The proposal to reduce the Island's resort housing density from five to three units per acre.

"The planning staff has been asked to study our residential densities. I would like to review any proposals that create a proper balance between resort and residential dwellings."

4. Settling the question of buildback after a disaster on the Island.

"I pledge to begin on day one to work to solve what I think is our most serious problem on Sanibel -- buildback. There are at least nine specific cases affecting our Islanders that are completely shrouded by federal, state and local regulations into a 'Catch 22' situation. The potential out-of-pocket loss for buildback of a single-family home begin 51 percent destroyed is enormous. That is, you receive 51 percent from your insurance company yet you must completely rebuild to all the new standards of federal, state and local codes. This destruction does not have to come from a hurricane. You could have a fire start in the kitchen."

Emily Barefield

1752 Serenity Lane

66 years old
Single
Four children, five grandchildren
Owned property on Sanibel since 1976
Born in "Town meeting country" in Connecticut

Educational background: College courses in government, human relations, ecology and gerontology and University of Miami and University of Southern California; no college degree.

Professional background: Administrator in aging, Senior Centers of Dade County and Florida representative of AARP; human relations, Metropolitan Dade County Community Relations Board and Florida Council on Human Relations; administrative aide to state Sen. Bob Graham; regional program administrator for Department of State, Tallahassee.

If elected to Sanibel's City Council, what action would you favor?

1. Proposed changes in the method of ROGO allocations (lottery versus ranking based on set criteria).

"Think the present ranking-based criteria method works well. Would have opposed lottery, except possibly to break a tie, had there been an opportunity to vote on it!"

2. The development of a commercial center in the Palm Ridge area. Should the city provide public parking or promote a theme for the center?

"I prefer to call it 'Town Center,' and I like the concept. I would like to see a mix of residential, commercial and community uses with adequate parking provided by and shared by the owners and/or operators of the facilities. I feel a planned development should be encouraged with a theme compatible with the Island's lifestyle, needs and architecture."

3. The proposal to reduce the Island's resort housing density from five to three units per acre.

"Whether the specific proposal or Porter Goss is the right one, I'm not sure. But as you know, the City Council does propose to pursue this matter. I am certainly in favor of reducing the resort area density and impact."

"The question of controlling density on the Island is a major one that I believe needs to be addressed by City Council with particular study of the differences in impact between residential and resort use."

Settling the question of buildback after a disaster on the Island.

"In general, as few structures as possible should exist forward of the setback line. In a buildback situation each case will have to be judged on an individual basis."

Editor's note: The Islander presented each of the five City Council candidates with a nine-part questionnaire two weeks ago. The candidates had one week to return their responses, which are printed here verbatim.

Candidates for Seat 4, which is currently held by Duane White, are Planning Commissioner Bill Hagerup and trailer park owner Jerry Muench.

Candidates for Seat 5, which is currently held by Porter Goss, are Planning Commissioners Emily Barefield and Louise Johnson and real estate broker Don Bissell.

Contributions step up Council Race

By Barbara Brundage

With the City Council election only two weeks away, the five candidates in the race for two council seats are stepping up their campaigns.

Planning Commissioners Bill Hagerup, Emily Barefield and Louise Johnson, the three candidates endorsed by the Committee of the Islands, lead the field in campaign contributions.

Hagerup tops the list with a total of $870 received from supporters. That figure includes COTT's $500 donation. As of last Friday, Hagerup had spent only $168.75 for newspaper advertising.

Barefield reports $795 and lists COTT as the heaviest contributor. Her only expenditure of $2.20 for certification of petition signatures was paid to the Lee County Elections Office.

Johnson's $765 campaign chest includes $300 from Margaret Fuller and $200 from Johnson and her husband, Arthur. She has spent $665 for newspaper advertising, printing and mailing expenses.

Real estate broker Don Bissell, Hagerup's opponent for Seat 4, is accepting no outside financial aid and has contributed only $20 to his own campaign. He reports no expenditures.

Jerrold Muench, who is vying with Barefield and Johnson for Seat 5, has contributions totaling $284. Included is $99 from his father, Al Muench. He reports an expenditure of $1.70 for petition signature verification.

Other contributions reported by the candidates are:

Hagerup -- $50 each from George Tenney, J.A. Hutchings and Richard Brashler of Geneva, Ill.; $25 each from Conrad Lickel, John Weinzettle, Charlotte White, Vera Graham, Charles Evans, Mrs. Derrol Johnson, Myron Klein and Frances McCurrach; and $20 from D.R. Manchester.

Barefield -- $50 each from Mrs. L. E. Loos and Thomas Green, Hartford, Conn; $35 from A.N. Lerner; $25 each from J.R. Weinzettle, Charlotte White, Mary Lee, Stanley and Lois Enebo, Gifford and Margaret Gardner and Abbott Byfield of Ephraim, Wis.; and $10 from George Campbell.

Johnson -- $50 each from John Cook, Aaron Ritvo, William and Helen Webb; $25 each from Duane White, James and Francis Levy and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Gragreen; $20 each from Lowell and Dorothy DeVasvie and Helen and George Calvin Jr.

Jerrold Muench -- $30 each from Robert Horak, Linda Horak, Margaret Greenberg, Mr. and Mrs. Burrell Ryckman, Shell Island Realty and Thomas Ware of Ely, Minn.; $20 from Jerrold Muench; and $10 from Jane Hands of Salem, N.Y.

Louise Johnson

3941 Gulf Drive

54 years old

Married

Two children

On Sanibel since August 1977

Came here from Syracuse and Skaneateles, N.Y.

Educational background: B.A. in education and English; Master of Library Science; and Doctor of Arts in literature; all from Syracuse University.

Professional background: Assistant to vice president for industrial relations, Champion-International Paper Company; high school English teacher; Adjunct professor of English composition and literature at Alfred University and Edison Community College; librarian at Alfred State Agricultural and Technical College.

If elected to Sanibel's City Council, what action would you favor?

1. Proposed changes in the method of ROGO allocations (lottery versus ranking based on set criteria).

"It appears that the question of changing the allocation method from scoring criteria to a random lottery is mute in that the original initiative ordinance requires the criteria scoring system. I do believe that ROGO has worked; it has regulated growth, allowing more single-family homes than multi-family homes to be built, bringing about a better balance of housing types and improving the quality of development.

"Within the scoring system I think some changes might be made to avoid inequities. The criteria should be examined and adjusted so that they are equally applicable to single-family and multi-family dwelling units. I also believe a standard evaluation form should be developed so that commissioners would be considering the same elements and weighting them the same. Applicants would have a clearer idea of the evaluation process."

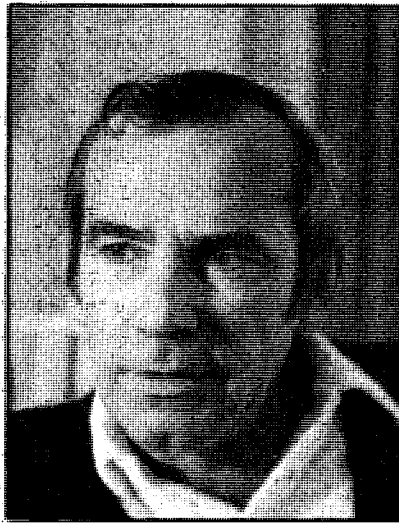

2. The development of a commercial center in the Palm Ridge area. Should the city provide public parking or promote a theme for the center?

"The Palm Ridge area is naturally evolving into the downtown commercial area. I would like to see the city proceed with an interior road from Gumbo Limbo to Periwinkle Way, allowing the lots access and limiting the curb cuts onto Tarpon Bay Road, Periwinkle Way and Palm Ridge Road.

"I would like to see the property owners included in a planning workshop which would consider mutually beneficial arrangements for public parking, sewage and drainage, open spaces, walkways and landscaping. A planned harmonious 'downtown' would benefit shop owners and the public alike."

Donald Bissell

698 Anchor Drive

47 years old

"Very married"

Six children

Sanibel resident since 1974, before, Captiva since 1970

Came here from La Grange, Ill.

Educational background: Bachelor of Science in business marketing from Indiana University.

Professional background: Island Real Estate by Bissell & Holtz, Inc., since 1976.

If elected to Sanibel's City Council, what action would you favor?

1. Proposed changes in the method of ROGO allocations (lottery versus ranking based on set criteria).

"I favor a lottery system for awarding or permits when more applicants apply than there are permits available. A point system for quality is too often perceived as unjust by applicants of varying economic means. If we wish to raise building standards, the building codes should be changed to reflect the new higher quality level for all to comply with."

2. The development of a commercial center in the Palm Ridge area. Should the city provide public parking or promote a theme for the center?

"The revised commercial zoning has given incentives to those who will develop in this area, by way of greater coverage, thus yield and return, as compared to most other commercially zoned areas on the Island. With this indicated 'direction' shown by the city, it becomes the responsibility of the city to provide the proper arterial traffic flow for the maximum safety of those working and shopping or just passing through this commercial 'zone.' The city already has a parking code for those building on commercial parcels. The concept of a theme development may be coming along a little too late in the game, as the undeveloped parcels in Palm Ridge are individually and separately owned, not held by just one developer-owner."

3. The proposal to reduce the Island's resort housing density from five to three units per acre.

"The current density of five units has been in place for some time now. Keeping in mind the potential for remaining build-out is rather low, this reduction to three units would not be significant in the overall scheme of controlled growth, especially when the possible 'vested rights' of current parcel owners could become expensive to the city, in the courts, as the landowners protect their rights, already established by the city. The city is correct to adopt a review and basis for intensity of use, rather than density, for growth control."

Make sure your vote will count before you leave

Registered voters who will not be in Lee County on Nov. 2 can vote absentee anytime between now and Election Day. The process is simple but must be followed exactly, officials in the Lee County Elections Office say.

To insure the return of a completed absentee ballot to the Elections Office by 7 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 2, voters should request the ballots by telephone as soon as possible. Call 335-2111 to arrange for a ballot to be mailed.

Once you receive your ballot in the mail, follow all instructions, complete it promptly and return it to the courthouse.

Absentee ballots received in the Elections Office through the mail will not be counted unless they include the signature of the voter and either two witnesses over 18 years of age or the seal of a notary public. The voter's signature will be compared with his signature on file in the Elections Office for validity.

Registered voters can also vote absentee before Nov. 2 at the Elections Office in the courthouse in downtown Fort Myers or in the courthouse branch at 2323 Del Prado Boulevard near the Coralwood Mall in Cape Coral.

The books closed Oct. 2 for voter registration for the coming election, so those who are not already registered cannot vote Nov. 2.

Future residents express support of Johnson

To the Editor
The Islander

For many years we were planning to retire here on Sanibel Island. The day has come. As of December 1982 we will be permanent residents.

However, we will not be here in time to exercise our right as registered voters. If this had been possible, our decision would be for Louise Johnson.

We have witnessed her in action at the Planning Commission, the conservation center, BIG Arts functions and wherever else the welfare of Sanibel was at stake.

We do wish we could cast our vote this year; it would indeed be for Louise Johnson.

Get it together, Sanibel! Place Louise Johnson on the Sanibel City Council.

Sincerely,
Herbert and Thelma Joseph

Residents urge support for Johnson, Barefield, Hagerup

To the Editor
The Islander

This letter is addressed as well to all of the voters on Sanibel. I ask them to compare the records of all five council candidates and then to vote for what is good for Sanibel.

While Mr. (Don) Bissell, a successful realtor and developer, and Mr. Muence, trailer park operator and developer, are nice people, they have taken no interest in Sanibel government over the past years except to appear before the Planning Commission or the City Council to plead their special personal interest. Their performance in any governmental office has not been tried or proven.

On the contrary, Bill Hagerup, Louise Johnson and Emily Barefield, running against (Bissell and Muench), have proved as Planning Commission members their interest, their dedication and their devotion to what has been done and what is being planned to make and keep Sanibel what it is and what we all want it to be.

The business interests of the community have been and are well represented by council members and businessmen (Francis) Bailey and (Fred) Valtin. To keep the council in reasonable balance, we must elect two new council members from the trio of Hagerup, Johnson and Barefield.

For Sanibel to stay on course and right side up we must elect people whom we know have worked and will continue to work for our ideals and interests. Hagerup, Johnson and Barefield meet that test.

Vote your judgment on Nov. 2 and, above all, be sure to vote. It is vital.

Environmental consultant expresses views on state, county candidates

To the Editor
The Islander

In order to have responsible representation at the State Capitol and in Washington, D.C., it is imperative that voters of Lee County take time to study the candidates before they vote.

After careful assessment of each candidate, I recommend Keith Arnolt and Joe Campochiaro for state representatives, Frankmann for the state senate and Roland Eastwood for the Lee County Commission District Two seat. I have no recommendation for the County Commission District Four seat. I highly recommend Gerry Ware for the Lee County School Board.

I also believe that Gov. Bob Graham and his team have done an excellent job in Tallahassee to enhance educational programs, environmental programs and growth management issues. It is not an easy job for anyone -- despite campaign rhetoric.

A vote in favor of these candidates will mean better representation for the public rather than special interest groups.

Please do not forget to vote on Nov. 2.

Sincerely,
Dinesh Sharma

COMMENTARY

Code enforcement board's territory should be expanded

Christ's supplication: "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do!" might well have been uttered by Florida's municipal officials in 1972.

In that year Florida's voters approved a revision of the state Constitution's judiciary article that abolished municipal courts in the state. That action left only the overloaded county courts to dispense local justice.

The move was motivated by the "bad name" given the municipal courts because many such courts in small, rural-type municipalities had been run by so-called "justices of the peace" who created "speed traps."

The intervening years and the vigorous pleadings of the Florida League of Cities, however, convinced the Florida Advisory Council of Intergovernmental Relations (FACIR) that the voters and the Legislature had thrown out the baby with the bath water.

Based on FACIR's recommendations the 1980 Legislature enacted a significant substitute for the old municipal court. It authorized the establishment of municipal code enforcement boards. After two fruitful years of many such boards, the 1982 Legislature broadened the sphere of code enforcement board activities and their application to counties.

The Sanibel Code Enforcement Board (see news article on same in this edition) was promptly established on Sept. 10, 1980. It now consists of seven members whose basic function is to obtain expeditious and inexpensive compliance with the valid enforcement rulings of the city's code enforcement officer. Their activities cover the various occupational license, fire, building, zoning, sign and other similar technical codes of the city.

The technical qualifications of the board members, who are appointed by the City Council, are spelled out in the state law and do not contemplate a member of the public at large. They are restricted to one successive term, and the entire board can be abolished by the City Council. All proceedings must be conducted in the Sunshine.

The powers of the board consist of: may fine non-compliers up to $250 per day; may attach a lien to any real or personal property owned by the non-complier that can be foreclosed within two years; and its final administrative orders may be appealed to the Circuit Court.

On the other hand, the code enforcement officer's duty is to initiate enforcement proceedings of the various codes. If he finds a violation of the codes he is required to notify the violator and allow him a reasonable time to make corrections. Should the violations continue beyond the time allowed, he must request the code enforcement board to set up a hearing and notify the violator of the hearing time and place.

Cases before the board are presented by either the city attorney or a member of the city administrative staff. All testimony is taken under oath and recorded. Formal rules of evidence do not apply, but fundamental due process is to be observed. Board findings must be approved by at least three members. The board has the additional power to subpoena alleged violators, witnesses and evidence using the city police to do it. The board's orders have the force of law and command whatever steps are necessary to bring a violation into compliance.

The most effective feature of this innovative board is that its use is designed as a "fall back" measure. It comes into play only after the code enforcement officer and the alleged violator have failed to arrive at a meeting of the minds on appropriate compliance measures.

Sanibel's council and city manager are properly bullish about this expeditious and economical method of righting wrongs outside of the courtroom.

During the first two years of the board's existence, the code enforcement officer uncovered 132 suspected violations of the city's technical codes. Of that total, 114 or 86 percent were settled by him without reference to the board. Of the remaining 18 cases, 11 violators rushed to comply rather than face the board; five complied after the board ruled on them; and the other two were granted relief by the City Council.

The salutary rapport between the code enforcement officer and the board since the latter's inception justifies the value of both mechanisms as an effective enforcement tool.

There is, however, another fine tuning to be made by the state Legislature in the 1983 session. Most urgent is the need for broadening the board's spectrum of codes to cover compliance with other purely city requirements such as those for parking and traffic control, littering and similar ordinances.

MUNICIPAL RECORDS

By Barbara Brundage

Request continued for home on Beach Road

The Planning Commission last week continued action on L.S. and B.J. Yeomans' request for a specific amendment to permit construction of a single-family home on the west side of Beach Road 50 feet from the center line of the road.

The Comprehensive Land Use Plan mandates a 75-foot setback from the center line of collector roads.

Sheila Antoni, representing the Yeomans at the hearing, said she had not seen the staff report that recommended approval of a 62.5-foot setback with the condition that the Yeomans dedicate an additional 25 feet of right-of-way to the public.

Since the Yeomans had not seen the report either, Antoni said she was reluctant to speak for them. She readily agreed to Commission Chairman Ann Winterbotham's suggestion that the hearing be continued until the applicants could react to the report.

The commission did take action on another staff suggestion and unanimously recommended that the city initiate an amendment to CLUP reducing to 62.5 feet the minimum setback for all residential properties abutting Beach Road.

Relaxation of the setback standard from 75 feet will give property owners greater flexibility in siting improvements, the staff pointed out.

Because of the predominately single-family residential character of the Beach Road neighborhood, the staff suggested that it would be reasonable to reclassify Beach Road from a collector to a rural local road with through traffic discouraged.

The commission also continued action on James Evans' request for a development permit for zero lot line development of two duplexes in his Sanibel Hamlet subdivision on Rabbit Road.

Evans asked for a postponement of the hearing until his attorney can execute the reciprocal four-foot easements required on the adjoining lots by the zero-lot line concept.

Permits approved for duplexes in the Dunes

Development permits for two duplexes on separate lots in the Dunes Phase III were approved last week by the Planning Commission.

The project will be the first on Sanibel for the Neimann-Walters Development Co. of Milwaukee Wisc., William Neimann told the commission.

His firm plans to do "small selective development similar to the Dunes," he said, adding that the homes will be for Milwaukee residents.

Neimann said he has no objections to the 14 conditions on the development permits recommended by the planning staff.

But Ray Pavelka, director of development for Mariner Properties, Inc., who sold Neimann the property, asked the commission to clarify the restriction that no building permits would be issued for the duplexes until a completion permit is issued for Phase III of the Dunes subdivision.

Pavelka said development of Phase III is being phased and added he understood the city would issue completion permits for each section when the infrastructure is finished.

Planning Director Bruce Rogers said he has no problem with phased approval.

Pavelka also requested that another condition on Neimann's development permit be amended to limit the fill under the houses and driveways to conform with the drainage plan for the Dunes phase III that was approved last June.

The commission voted 6-0 to approve the development permits as amended.

Ferry Road permit change approved

Architect Ray Fenton, admitting that expensive town house style duplexes are not selling in today's economic market, asked for and received Planning Commission approval to use one of the ROGO duplex allocations for Ferry Landing to build a single-family home on the nine-acre site on the bay at Ferry Road.

Fenton, who originally designed the nine-duplex project for Jerry Paulsen, has received to date a total allocation of 12 dwelling units under the Rate of Growth. But he said he is willing to sacrifice 10 of them if he can to build the single-family home as a model.

He explained he needs the flexibility to test the marketability of a new plan to develop the site with 12 single-family homes and three duplexes.

Fenton said he has found the zero lot line duplex not marketable and was the first to admit he made a mistake.

If he finds the new concept is acceptable to the consumer, Fenton said he will scrap the original plan and bring back the new plan for approval for a development permit and "start all over with ROGO."

The commission, after a preview of the new plan, pronounced it superior to the original duplex project.

Commissioner Bill Hagerup's motion to permit the construction of a single-family home on the nine acre site was approved by a 6-0 vote.

Three names suggested for park at old Algiers site

The City Council today is expected to choose a name for the new city park at the former site of the SS Algiers from a field of three names recommended by the Historical Preservation Committee.

Southwinds Park is the first choice of the group that was designated by the council to make suggestions for the gulf front park that provides public access to the beach.

Middle Gulf Park and South Shore Park are the committee's second and third choices.

The committee also recommends that the freshwater pond on the site should continue to be called Perry Pond, as it has been known long before the advent of the converted car ferry on the beach.

A plaque recognizing the park as the "former site of the land-locked SS Algiers Mississippi Riverboat - 1959-81," should mark the site, the committee added.

The council previously rejected a proposal to call the park "Algiers Park." Councilman Fred Valtin pointed out that a "few years down the road tourists would wonder why the park was named after a city in Africa."

Several councilmen said the ferry boat converted to a vacation home by a wealthy New York couple but never occupied, has "no historical significance to Sanibel."

Proposal approved to deed land to conservation foundation

A proposal from Carol Radefeld to divide a 9.29-acre tract of land just north of Tahiti Shores subdivision and deed 5.53 acres of the Wetland Lowlands to the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation for preservation as open space received Planning Commission approval last week.

Radefeld will retain the remaining 3.76 acres as a site for a single-family home.

Realtor Bert Jenks, who represented Radefeld at the commission hearing, said his client wants to retain enough land to be assured she can build on it. Planning Director Bruce Rogers pointed out that approval of the division of land does not guarantee approval of an application to develop.

Planner Jean Nichols added that a network of canals dredged several years ago makes the property "awkward to develop."

Jenks said the 13,000 square feet of clearance allowed on the three-acre site will accommodate the 4,000-square-foot home, swimming pool and tennis court Radefeld wants to build.

Action was delayed last week on Robert Gibson's request to build two duplexes, a tennis court and swimming pool on a 1.4-acre tract on the northwest corner of Periwinkle Way and Ferry Road.

Before the commission will hear his request Gibson must produce a deed for the property showing ownership of a 35-foot-wide strip of right-of-way along Ferry Road.

He says that in 1937 the right-of-way was "dedicated forever" for the use of the owners of the abutting property.

In Gibson's deed the legal description of the site does not include any portion of this right-of-way, which is needed to permit the four-unit density Gibson is proposing, the planning staff reported.

Gibson argued that deeds to properties east of Ferry Road (Ferry Landing and Shell Island Beach Club) show the right-of-way dedication. He said he would obtain an amended deed proving his claim and submit it and a revised site plan with the required 10-foot setback from the west property line before the commission's next meeting.

The commission voted 6-0 to continue the hearing until Oct. 25. Newly-appointed commissioner Lennart Lorenson was not present at last week's session.

Permits approved

Rick Kennedy's request to divide a 40,000-square-foot parcel of land on Middle Gulf Drive into two 20,000-square-foot single-family lots earned Planning Commission approval last week.

The request for a development permit was approved unanimously. One home can be built on each lot with both serviced by a common driveway.

Way, on Sunday night, Oct. 10. The keys were on 10-12 rings. All of the condominium units that could be opened by the keys have been secured. There were no signs of forced entry to the van.

An East Detroit, Mich., woman was taken to Fort Myers Community Hospital by air ambulance after she was struck in the head by a golf ball at the Dunes on Monday morning, Oct. 11.

Gordon Tracey reported a $3,000 boat trailer was missing from Out Island Marine, 1630 Periwinkle Way, on Monday afternoon, Oct. 11. The 12,000-pound capacity Myco trailer was taken sometime between 7 p.m. Oct. 9 and 11:55 a.m. Oct. 10.

A Greenwood Court resident reported a bicycle was missing from her home on Tuesday morning, Oct. 12. Later that day the woman reported the bicycle was found under her house.

A 900-pound roll of beige carpet valued at $2,000 was reported missing from the By the Sea resort on Wednesday morning, Oct. 13.

Two men's rings valued at $450 were reported stolen from a unit at the Sundial on Friday morning, Oct. 15. The rings were apparently stolen from an Orlando, Fla., guest's room sometime between 8:30 and 11 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 14. One ring was a University of Central Florida class ring set with a ruby; the other was a blue star sapphire with a silver band.

A resident of West Gulf Drive reported someone was trying to enter her outside bathroom door early Friday morning, Oct. 15. Police searched the area around the house and found nothing. Subsequent checks throughout the night turned up nothing out of the ordinary.

All information in the following reports was taken directly from Sanibel Police Department records.

A wallet, briefcase and purse valued at $172 were reported stolen from a van parked at Tarpon Bay on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 9. The items belonged to a Scarbrook, Ont., couple and were taken sometime between 1:30 and 3:30 p.m.

Police determined a vent window on the driver's side of the van was forced open to gain entry.

Police discovered a three-wheeled vehicle on the beach along West Gulf Drive on Sunday morning, Oct. 10. The vehicle belonged to the Beachview Cottages, 3306 West Gulf Drive.

Approximately 140 keys to rental units were reported stolen from a van parked at the John Naumann building, 1149 Periwinkle

Police club plans limited edition phone directory

By Cindy Chalmers

Island residents or businesses who want to be included for the first time or who want to make changes in the 1982-82 Limited Edition Sanibel-Captiva Phone Directory should complete the form below and return it to the Police Department no later than Monday, Oct. 25.

Only 3,000 of the Island directories will be printed this year, Police Recreation Club President Officer Mike Blackmore said last week.

As usual, the books will be illustrated with pen and ink renderings of familiar Island scenes. The drawings are the original works of Sanibel Sgt. Lew Phillips and his wife, Kat. But this year, Blackmore said, the books will have more artwork than past editions.

The 1983 directory is the third directory sponsored by the Sanibel Police Recreation Club. Representatives from 4-B Publishing will solicit advertising from Island businesses for the yellow pages of the directory and will also handle the printing of the books. The books will sell for $5, the same price as this year's 96-page directories.

Only residents of Sanibel and Captiva can be included in the white pages of the directory.

Only off-Island businesses that provide unique services not available on the Islands or services that are not advertised in the directory by an Island firm can advertise in the yellow pages.

All proceeds from the sale of the directories will go toward the betterment of the community.

Mail the completed form to The Sanibel Police Recreation Club, P.O. Drawer 869, Sanibel 33957, or bring it to the Police Department above MacKenzie Hall next to the Three Star Grocery.

COTI interviews the candidates

Four of the five candidates seeking election to two City Council seats Nov. 2 appeared before members of CONA (Committee of Neighborhood Associations) last Thursday to answer 10 questions on issues the group considers vital to the continued well being of the city of Sanibel.

Planning Commissioners Emily Barefield and Bill Hagerup and businessmen Don Bissell and Jerry Muench were each allotted a minimum of 30 minutes to explain their stand on subjects that ranged from the subsidization of Below Market Rate Housing to the continuation of the trolley operation on the Island in the winter season.

Planning Commissioner Louise Johnson, who with Barefield and Hagerup, is running for Council Seat 5, being vacated by Porter Goss, was criticized by CONA members for her failure to participate.

CONA president Urban Palmer, who moderated the forum, said Johnson had an out-of-town engagement that could not be postponed.

Bissell and Muench are both vying for Seat 4, now held by Duane White.

On the subject of BMR housing all four candidates agreed that the city was mandated to provide the opportunity for affordable housing for Island workers and all four opposed the use of tax payers money to subsidize the operation.

Barefield and Hagerup, however, said they believed the city would have to give some financial aid to the foundation for start up expenses. Barefield said it could be offered as a loan while Hagerup proposed the help might be given by using city staff.

All four agreed that an increase in density would be necessary as an incentive for private developers to become involved in the program.

Muench said the role of the city should be to review locations and design of the housing for Island compatibility.

Bissell said he was opposed to locating BMR housing in the proposed Palm Ridge Town Center and added he did not favor "mixed use" anywhere.

The candidates split on the value of continuing the trolley operation.

Barefield found them "delightful" and would favor continuing the service if another route were added on Periwinkle with frequent stops to accommodate shoppers.

Bissell's basic position was opposition to continued operation. He said the service is not warranted since it failed in its trial run

AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE FROM:

Dear Sanibel Voter:

In every council election since our city was incorporated, the Committee of the Islands has endorsed those candidates who, in its judgment, would best serve our island community. Sanibel needs:

- Continuity of good government
- Environmental protection
- Growth management
- Healthy island economy

The upcoming election is one of the most important ones in our city's history. With two of our most experienced and dedicated councilmen stepping down, it is vital that their seats be filled by persons who have the experience and training and the same dedication to those principles which have protected Sanibel for 8 years.

After studying the candidates, the Board of Directors of COTI is confident that the following persons are the best qualified for the two vacancies on the Sanibel City Council.

BILL HAGERUP SEAT 4

Sanibel Resident 6 years; meat packing executive 30 years; Sanibel Planning Commissioner 3 years; Sanibel City Committees-Vegetation, Charter Revision, Chianelli and Electrical fact Finding Teams; Sanibel Community Service-SCCF, Lions Club, St. Michael and All Angels Church, Gulf Pines Property Owners Association Board member and chairman.

EMILY BAREFIELD SEAT 5

Sanibel resident 2 years; an administrator for FL League of Women Voters, Dade Co. Senior Centers and Community Relations Board, FL Council on Human Relations, NRTA and AARP, FL Dept. of State, aid to staff of State Senator Robert Graham; Sanibel Planning Commissioner 1 year; Sanibel City Committees-Charter Revision, Below Market Rate Housing; Sanibel community Service-Congregational United Church of Christ Moderator, FISH vice-chairman.

LOUISE JOHNSON SEAT 5

Sanibel resident 5 years; Dr. of Arts, educator, Edison Community College adjunct professor; Sanibel planning Commissioner 2 years; Sanibel city Committees-Vegetation, Below Market Rate Housing, Properties Brochure, Properties Use; Sanibel Community Service-SCCF, Shell Harbor Property Owners Association Board member, Candidates Night Committee, Shell Fair, Sanibel Community Church Outreach Chairman, BIG ARTS Board member, League of Women Voters Chairman.

COTI urges each voter to get involved in the 1982 Council Election.

last winter to achieve its chief goal to "minimize traffic on Periwinkle Way."

Hagerup said that if it were proven the trolleys did "take cars off the road and reduced traffic on the Island" he would favor carrying on. But he opposed the use of only one trolley as contemplated for the upcoming season calling it a "gimmick and advertising for tourism."

Muench said he "didn't mind the trolleys as long as we don't spend tax dollars on the operation."

"It will be fine for the business community to sponsor the operation as a nice tourist attraction," he added.

CONA's concern for continuation of the Planning Commission as an advisory body to the City Council was mirrored in three questions.

All four candidate agreed to the "need for the Planning Commission as an intermediary between the Planning Department and the City Council, but only Bissell favored election over the current method of council-appointment.

Barefield and Muench opposed setting a limit on the time of service on the commission.

Because of the rigors of the position commissioners rarely opted to continue for a second three-year term, they pointed out.

Bissell and Hagerup agreed that there should be a two term limit.

Bissell and Hagerup also agreed that the chairmanship of the commission should be rotated yearly.

Bissell said he would strongly urge an annual change in leadership to encourage "fresh ideas and a different method of handling and conducting the commission meetings."

Barefield and Muench said the choice of chairman is an "in-house problem" and the choice of chairman should be left to the commission members as currently.

Following are the candidates answers to other questions posed by CONA.

Do you feel Sanibel is over-developed?

Bissell - Yes, in the area of condominiums. The line should have been drawn there four or five years ago.

Barefield - In places, yes. It's over developed commercially in some areas and in some resort areas.

Hagerup - Not in terms of keeping within the plan. But there should be continuing control of density and effort to lower the intensity of use.

Muench - No, not yet. It's still a nice place to live. We've been doing a good job controlling growth.

Do you feel Sanibel should have a publicly financed Performing Arts Center?

Bissell - No, I don't think the city should get into financing a performing arts center. There's a great interest and it can be done privately.

Barefield - No. There may be a need for a small, more intimate place in the next few

ON THE WATER

By Captain Mike Fuery

Something that often surprises out-of-state fishermen is that with the exception of only a few Florida fish, there is no limit on the number of fish you can catch.

Snook, tarpon, permit, bonefish and a couple of others are the only ones that are regulated in what is called a "bag limit." Most are set at two per day, per person.

The next question I usually get from visiting anglers is, "Why isn't there a limit?" And this is especially hard to answer when you see people bring in 30 mackerel or 60 sea trout or some other heavy catch when fishermen find the right conditions.

Down in the Everglades National Park, fishermen learned a very hard lesson. A combination of heavy commercial netting and pressure from sport fishermen resulted in a dramatic drop in fish caught in those beautiful, remote and once fish-rich waters.

Rangers there were put into a program of monitoring catches brought back to the few public docks. They kept records, and after a short time the evidence pointed to very poor fishing, as compared to what was being caught in just a few years before.

The result was that a bag limit of a total of 20 fish per day, with no more than 10 of any one kind, was imposed. Of course, of the few anglers lucky enough to catch snook, the state law of two per person, per day still held.

From what information I have heard or read, the Everglades Thousand Islands area is making a slow comeback in the fish being caught as a result of the regulation.

Would a 20-fish bag limit around Southwest Florida help to increase everyone's fishing luck? I can't help but think so.

I believe the fishing guide's nightmare is to have a couple of people come down to the dock with a large cooler and announce, "We wanna fill this up with fillets." It can be done, of course, under the right circumstances, but it's the attitude of these kinds of fishermen that makes any attempt at "sport fishing" very difficult.

At times during the spring mating season it is possible to catch all the sea trout you can pull in. There are times when if it weren't for running out of bait, anglers could have caught 100 in four hours or so.

What does this do for the future fish populations? Well, a school of dolphin could eat that many in a few minutes. No one objects to that. Or a school of mackerel and bluefish could come along and a pool of small sharks could tear them to pieces.

Many of us feel there should be limits on the numbers of fish anglers can take per day. Right now there is no limit on redfish, other than the 12-inch size limit that is also set for trout, mackerel and grouper.

This isn't a new idea, but it's been said that ideally anglers should take only what can be eaten that night. This way you get fresh fish, much better than frozen, and you keep to a reasonable number.

There are fish like mangrove snapper, whiting, sheepshead or grunts that don't come under any laws in length or numbers. They aren't as important to our commercial or sport fishing as the others.

Trout are the most popular sport fish in the state, but their numbers are starting to diminish. It's the same with redfish. These are resident fish, and I would expect a bag limit of 10 per person would in short time make it easier for everyone to have much better luck in their angling adventure. So far, that is only a voluntary number for local anglers, but anticipated increases in commercial and sport fishing pressures might result in 10 fish bag limits for several of our important fish.

SHELLING TIPS

By Captain Mike Fuery

Going out shelling is part looking for shells and part exploration, searching for new places where you might find something special for your collection table. Let's look at some interesting places you might want to check out while you have a picnic and perhaps a swim, too.

I usually talk about shelling beaches north of Sanibel, but this time, let's go over those to the east, not far from Sanibel's Point Ybel (the Lighthouse).

You will need to have your own boat or rent one. There are places to rent or launch your boat from the Sanibel Marina, the Tarpon Bay Marina or the Punta Rassa Marina on the mainland side of the Causeway.

You will also need an up-to-date chart. I like the pocket-sized Nautical Chart 856-SC. It covers Fort Myers to Charlotte Harbor and Wiggins Pass. The chart will tell you tides, but most important it shows the locations of the islands and where the navigable waters will be so you won't have problems getting to them.

These islands, most of which don't have names, are in San Carlos Bay north and northwest of the Sanibel Causeway. They are lined up along either side of the Intracoastal Waterway between the southern tip of Pine Island and the opening of the Caloosahatchee River.

Some are just an acre or so of sand and Australian pine trees; others are twice that size with full-sized trees and other vegetation. The two largest are called Big Island and Merwin Key.

I like what are often called "spoil islands." These man-made Islands were formed when the channel through them, called the Intracoastal Waterway, was dug many years ago. That sand from the channel was deposited on either side of the channel and over the years attracted plants and birds.

There is usually what we call "thin" water around the islands, so you need to be careful approaching them with the boat. If you have an outboard you can lift up the engine and slip into the beach with little trouble if your boat hull draws only a foot or so of water.

Once there, I would suggest scouring the adjoining waters for whelks, tulips, conchs, pear whelks and perhaps some sunray and venus shells, too. There are others, but it takes looking. That wide blade sea grass grows in abundance, so you must look diligently.

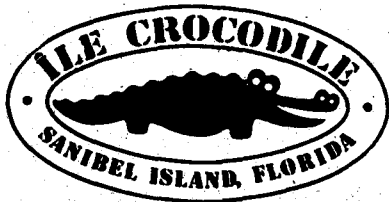

These islands are excellent places for setting up a "base camp" if any in your group want to picnic or snorkle in the shallow waters. There are rarely any other people around unless it's a weekend or a big holiday time.

Going in the middle of the week assures you of a quiet time as far as having to share the island with anyone else. You might be able to pick up some nice pieces of driftwood while you look over the beach line.

Not everyone in your group might be devoted shellers, so if there is a fisherman or two along for the trip use that chart to locate the deeper waters surrounding the islands and take some live shrimp along. You might catch a fish or two for dinner. Some very nice catches of sea trout are made along these waters of San Carlos Bay.

Good shelling this week, and check out these islands when the weather and your time permit. Please keep in mind the two shell per species per person limit.

Capt. Mike Fuery offers daily shelling trips to North Captiva and Cayo Costa Islands. Call 472-3459 for information.

years but it could be financed by individuals. There are funds available from state agencies such as the Florida Fine Arts Council.

Hagerup -- No. The city should not invest at all in any commercial property or in an area where less than 50 per cent of the residents would benefit. It can be done on a private basis.

Muench -- A performing arts center doesn't need to be publicly financed. There are a lot of talented people on this Island and it could be handled by private individuals. The new city hall site is providing an outdoor site that with a platform and a tent can be used for this kind of thing.

Do you believe we have adequate commercial facilities to serve the planned buildout of the Island?

Bissell -- We have more than we need of certain kinds and types such as real estate offices. There is further room for expansion in the Palm Ridge area but price and yield will control commercial buildout.

Barefield -- Yes. I don't believe we need three drugstores. Some type of businesses will close and others will be built.

Hagerup -- Yes. What we already have and what is planned for will be adequate. I would like to see control to limit new businesses to community related services and not the kind to draw people to the Island.

Muench -- Yes. According to the Barton Aschman study we have adequate facilities to serve future needs.

What are your views on limiting the occupancy intensity of various types of dwelling units?

Bissell -- I'm supportive of the council's study of the intensity of use in all areas. It's on the right track. We need to know the numbers.

Barefield -- I agree with the Planning Commission's recommendation that occupancy should be limited to no more than two persons per bedroom.

Hagerup -- Only way to handle intensity of use is to limit occupancy of motels, interval ownership units and condominiums. It could be done by the number of bathrooms but we need a formula to accomplish it.

Muench -- How would you enforce limiting the number of people per bedroom? It's a problem, we're not the Gestapo.

Committee of the Islands endorses Hagerup, Johnson, Barefield

Three candidates for the two open seats on the City Council have been endorsed by the Committee of the Islands, a non-partisan political organization.

For Seat 4, now occupied by Duane White, COTI endorses Bill Hagerup. Both Louise Johnson and Emily Barefield received COTI's approval for Seat 5, now held by Mayor Porter Goss.

David Davenport, acting chairman of COTI, said the endorsements were made because, "These three candidates have demonstrated their concern for the Island as a community. These persons would provide continuity in good government, work to protect our special environment, act to satisfy the urgent need for growth management and realize that a healthy Island economy must be geared to the needs of the residents."

Johnson, Hagerup and Barefield, all of whom are current members of the Planning Commission, have been face to face with the harsh realities of keeping our community on an even keel, Davenport said. "They are not entering the local political scene for personal interests and are not uninformed of the vast amount of work and types of decisions that must be made."

As a basis for making the endorsements, COTI used criteria that reflect the organization's objectives as stated in its charter, "...insuring that orderly growth and development proceeds as may be consistent with the preservation of the unique and natural characteristics of the Islands..." and "...to promote the establishment, realization and maintenance of good land use."

In issuing the endorsements, the COTI Board of Directors feels that Johnson, Barefield and Hagerup have been working for these goals and will continue to use their talents and energies for these principles in the future, Davenport explained.

COTI will continue its practice of offering transportation to the polls for those who need it on Election Day Nov. 2.

IRON FOR BABIES

Adding extra iron to infant formula encourages growth of contaminant bacteria in the milk, reports Pediatrics Magazine. Fortunately, the iron in human milk, unlike iron in cow's milk, is bound to a special protein and is unavailable to bacteria. If mothers nurse their babies and take sufficient iron in their food, their babies get all the iron they need in the safest possible way.

JACOBSON'S OPENING SOON IN FORT MYERS AT THE BELL TOWER

Jacobson's, one of the finest specialty stores in the country, will be bringing to you a wondrous new experience in shopping by the end of October.

Here you will be able to shop for the world's most important names in apparel and accessories for women, men and children. Names such as Halston, Albert Nipon, Calvin Klein, Stanley Blacker, Austin Reed, Gunne Sax.

Located at the intersection of Daniels Road and U.S. 41 (Tamiami Trail), our beautiful new store will reflect the spirit of the Spanish Colonial period with courtyards, graceful arches, flowing streams and fountains. Protected from sun and rain by colonades and trellises, shoppers will be able to stroll leisurely through tropical gardens. Look forward to sharing all of this with us by the end of October.

Enjoy the shopping convenience of a Jacobson charge account, a service already appreciated by our many Florida customers, and be ready for the festive holiday gift season just ahead. To apply, call (813) 489-3100 and plan to visit us at The Bell Tower, 13499 U.S. 41, S.E.

Diane Steger

Age: 30

Height: 5'8"

Roots: Detroit, Michigan

Pleasures: Reading, singing, baking, and chocolate cake with vanilla ice cream.

Last Book Read: The Legacy
by Howard Fast

Mentor: "My Dad, because he gave me a sense of being and taught me to respect other people's opinions."

Wish: To stay at the level of calm that I now have.

Words of Wisdom: "Cram in as much as you can and do everything."

If variety is the spice of life, Sanibel resident Diane Steger has long been caught up in one flavorful and zesty existence.

Currently one of four family members who co-own the Buttonwood Bar-B-Q near the Santiva Mini-Mart, Diane fills her days maintaining her reputation as the island's baker nonpareil, with such creations as luscious German Chocolate Cake (with a secret coconut frosting), heavenly Key Lime Pie (made from island-grown key limes), raisin-bran muffins, and light-as-a-feather loaves of wholesome grain bread.

Hard to fathom, perhaps, is that Diane began her baking career only three years ago with the opening of the Buttonwood (Diane, husband Greg, mother 'Pete' and father Harry only just finished celebrating the restaurant's third anniversary two weeks ago). "It was my first stab at mass baking," recalls Diane, "and I loved it."

But even Diane admits she'd never have "received the call to baking" had the events of her life not taken the turns they did.

A model student in high school, Diane was in her senior year with more than enough credits to graduate, when she was offered the rare opportunity for a work study program. She chose the unusual field of respiratory therapy, and began her endeavors in earnest, working her way through as respiratory technician, filling oxygen bottles, repackaging nasal canulas, and taking hospital classes, until she obtained her certification as a fully-fledged therapist. "It is real rewarding work," says Diane, "but real depressing, too. And the unfortunate part is that the better you get at therapy, the more complicated things become." All told, Diane put in seven years as a therapist, working primarily out of the emergency room, intensive care unit, and cardiac care unit, and was a steady emergency room personnel at Detroit's Bi-County Hospital in Warren, Mich. when she began feeling short of oxygen herself. "I would come home at the end of the day talking about nothing but the patients I had worked with all day long," Diane remembers. "No one wants to hear about that, so I quit."

With six aquariums at home, it was logical that Diane's next job (one that lasted four years) was selling tropical fish. The Puppy Palace of Detroit got themselves quite a bonus with the staff addition of Diane, as she came to the firm with a sound knowledge of fish compatibility and natural history. "I could tell people which fish went together and which didn't, she says with her broad smile, "and believe me, if you are spending $100 every month on fish, you want to know that what you're taking home is going to work out."

Diane's wealth of fish tales also helped her employers reel in a first place trophy at the 1974 Detroit Down River Aquarium Society's prestigious Fish Show. "I had quite a large clientele," she says with pride. "As far as jobs go, it was the best job I had ever had, especially since it had been a hobby first."

Two years after her Puppy Palace debut, and shortly after the Palace's coup at the fish show, another Detroit firm, Tropical Fish Unlimited, was quick to recognize Diane's singular talents and offered her improved job bait, which Diane took—hook, line and sinker. To this day, Diane's happy she was netted by Tropical Fish Unlimited, for it is there she met her husband Greg. Side by side they sold tropical fish to Canada, Michigan and the central U.S., until Greg switched businesses and found himself away from home up to four days each week. "We weren't 'making it' the way we wanted to," says Diane. "And I was wishing we could live in someplace warm."

By 1978 Diane's parents had purchased the Santiva Cottages and were writing their daughter, who was shivering in the bone-chilling cold that only Michiganites know, of the sunny delights of Sanibel living. That virtually was all it took to bring Diane and Greg south to Florida.

"We were ready to try something new, and something completely different," confides Diane, "and we began thinking we'd start our own business."

Diane and Greg found jobs with ease when they moved to Sanibel in 1978, with Greg waiting tables at the Timbers Restaurant and Diane selling at the counter of Bailey's Mini-Mart. "One night Greg and my dad smoked a whole pan of mullet, so we took a trayful to the store. It sold so well, and sold out so quickly, that we couldn't keep enough in supply," Diane remembers. "That's where we got the idea to open the Buttonwood."

Ironically, the site Diane and Greg finally chose for the restaurant had been sitting empty all those months they'd been working elsewhere. Today the Buttonwood's claim to fame lies in the sumptuous smoked fish, ribs and chicken they serve daily, alongside Diane's superb creations. "Here it is 1982!" exclaims an astonished Diane today. "And we didn't even fathom staying here when we first arrived."

But meeting lots of different people, working closely with her family for many hours at a stretch, and baking through the heat of the day all seems to agree with Diane. "I am the original Pillsbury Dough Girl, all right," she says with that lively grin of hers.

Everything she does attests to her content with her current lifestyle. One day, not too long ago, an old friend surprised Diane with a visit at the restaurant. Diane was so caught up in her friend's arrival, that she forgot to put the timer on for the bread that was in the oven. Suddenly, the fragrant scent of slightly overdone dough filled the kitchen. "Oh no!" said Diane, catching sight of several rather blackened loaves. "Oh well," she said with a shrug of her shoulders, "they'll make great croutons."

Obituary

Mrs. Hazel Getman

Memorial services for Mrs. Hazel Getman were held Monday in Kansas City, Mo., where she died on Oct. 14.

She had been in ill health for the past year.

Mrs. Getman, with her husband Merle, who survives, had been a winter resident of Sanibel for 11 years.

She is also survived by three daughters and several grandchildren.

Mrs. Getman was a member of Sanibel's United Church of Christ.

When in Sanibel the Getmans lived at 1254 Bay Drive.

LCEC to remove Captiva pines

A Lee County Electric Cooperative crew will be working on Captiva today and Wednesday removing Australian pine trees severely damaged in last June's No Name storm.

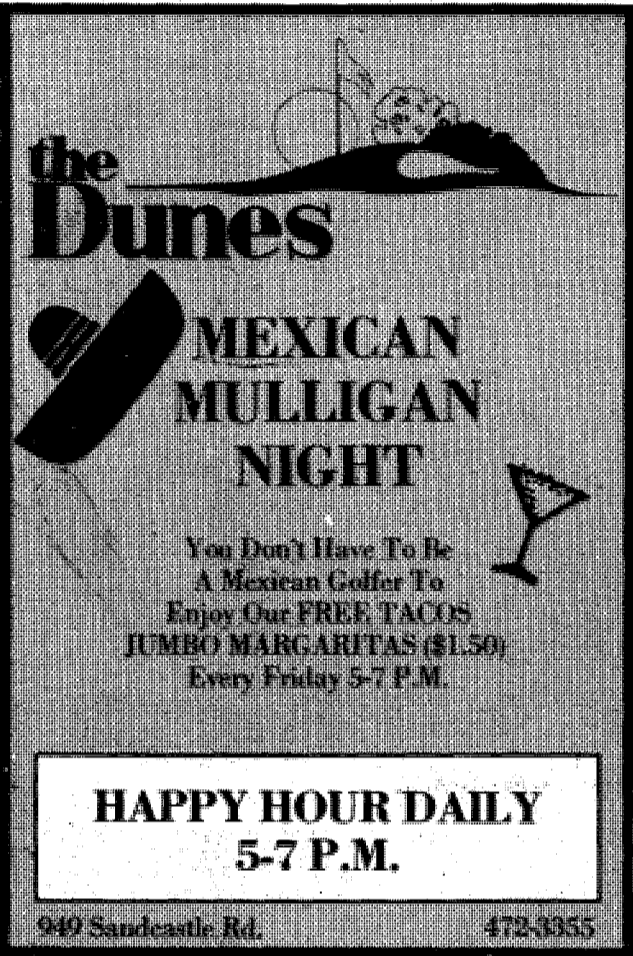

Jim Reed, manager of communications for the Co-op, said the trees on the gulf side of Captiva Road in front of Tween Waters Inn have become a safety hazard.

Electric lines will be kept energized during the project, Reed said, and service to Captiva customers will not be interrupted. Any outage on Captiva during the work will be accidental, he added.

Because of the live wires the operation is very delicate and will take about a day and a half day to complete as compared to two hours with the current off, Reed said.

Traffic in the south lane of the highway will be blocked while the crews are working between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., he said.

The agreement was negotiated by City Attorney Neal Bowen and Donald Hemke, attorney for Creekwood Investments, Inc. owners and operators of the Caribe.

It stipulated that the year-round beach use rights purchased before Aug. 5 by 800 Caribe time-share unit owners would be allowed, but the Caribe would cease and desist from offering the extra option to future buyers of the advance reservation package.

At the Sept. 7 council meeting Councilman Fred Valtin raised the question as to how the board had the power to approve a settlement that in effect "violated Sanibel's own law," and usurped a right that is the council's.

At that time Mayor Porter Goss said the council's intent of the board's function was only to "put a little pressure on code violators without coming down too heavy."

And in this respect the council agreed last week the board has been a big success.

Code Enforcement Officer Dick Baker said the record verifies the board's effectiveness and pointed out that 11 of the 18 violators scheduled to appear before the board had come into compliance before the hearing.

Another five had complied within the time limits set by the board, he added.

Roosa reaffirmed his opinion that the board had been acting within its powers in approving the stipulation that gives the Caribe 30 years to come into compliance.

The only question the council might have is the "reasonableness of the time allowed for the compliance," Roosa said.

Under the state statute the only way the council can contest a decision of the board is to file suit in circuit court, Roosa said.

But the council was mollified by Roosa's confirmation that a violator who feels the time the board sets for him to come into compliance is not reasonable has the option to come to the council to seek relief by the specific amendment route.

The issue was not whether the Caribe decision was a fair one, Valtin said, the real question was whether the board by a ruling can in fact grant a variance.

Roosa's answer was "no."

"The goal of every board order is to bring the violator into compliance," he added.

Board chairman Buhl Burgoyne said board members never had considered they had any other role.

5. Establishing an appropriate balance between resort and residential use on the Island.

"I believe that the overwhelming majority of the residents of Sanibel wish the identity of our community to be residential rather than resort. I agree with this philosophy and shall do all that is possible to keep further resort development at a minimum. I feel particularly strongly about interval ownership developments being held to a minimum."

6. Controlling melaleuca, Brazilian pepper and Casuarina pine trees on Sanibel.

"It is only necessary to drive on Daniel Road to see the need for strict melaleuca control, and Sanibel itself is a perfect demonstration of the destructiveness of rampant Brazilian pepper. I feel strongly both of these must be eliminated to the greatest extent possible -- melaleucas, as there are fewer, ought to be able to be completely eliminated. The casuarinas should be controlled to be kept from spreading as much as possible, and certainly none should be planted.

"It's a shame the larger casuarinas along Periwinkle need to be cut back, but I have been through so many hurricanes that I know exactly how effectively they can completely close roadways."

7. Beach access parking. Are you satisfied that the current strategy is equitable for Island residents and non-residents?

"I believe the current strategy is working well. I like it."

8. Establishing a Below Market Rate Housing program on Sanibel for Island workers.

"It is a requirement of CLUP that this program be implemented. I support this program, feeling that we must make it possible for our young people to live on the Island. We need them in many essential job situations and as the leaders of the future."

9. Developing better communications between the Lee County Commission on issues that affect Sanibel (i.e., off-Island development along McGregor Boulevard and CR 869, dual taxation).

"I believe that concerns of Sanibel need to have strong advocates in both county and state forums. City Council should seek diligently for opportunities to fill this function to an even greater extent. At the same time, City Council must strive for continuing harmonious relations with neighboring communities and governmental bodies, especially in light of the significant growth in adjacent communities."

A restaurant like this couldn't have happened any place else.

Chadwick's is the way a Captiva restaurant was meant to be. It captures all the charm and grace of Old Florida.

The mood is casual. The crowd, fun-loving. The service, warm and attentive in the best island tradition.

And the food? Well, it's the reason we've been acclaimed time and time again as one of Florida's best restaurants.

You can feast on fresh fish, thick & juicy steaks, and such specialties as Breast of Chicken Plantation and Beer Batter Shrimp.

There's a lavish Sunday brunch, too, with more than 70 different items to tempt you. And don't miss our bountiful Friday evening Seafood Buffet. The best catch for the money anywhere.

To top it off, Chadwick's provides some of the finest live entertainment on the islands, with dancing nightly in the lounge.

5. Establishing an appropriate balance between resort and residential use on the Island.

"One of the purposes of ROGO is to bring more of a balance between residential and resort housing. Of the 180 units per year allocated, 45 units are set out for multi-family, which includes condominium residence and well as resort housing. We are still feeling the results of county permitting prior to the city's incorporation. Council should continue to pursue any legal means available to further restrict resort housing."

6. Controlling melaleuca, Brazilian pepper and Casuarina pine trees on Sanibel.

"Exotic species of trees can become mono cultures choking out native vegetation, thus destroying wildlife habitat. The city should continue to monitor control through its Vegetation Committee."

7. Beach access parking. Are you satisfied that the current strategy is equitable for Island residents and non-residents.?

"There is no question in my mind that Island residents should receive priority parking over non-residents. The current system was developed after long study and is still in the trial period. The ordinance calls for annual review, and if it is deemed inequitable it can be adjusted."

8. Establishing a Below Market Rate Housing program on Sanibel for Island workers.

"Indications are that the council is near to completion of a BMRH ordinance that will provide opportunities for moderate income families to own their own home. Eligibility should be based on their contribution to the community as well as other factors. I prefer to see any BMR Housing scattered throughout the community in appropriate areas rather than concentrated in one specific area."

9. Developing better communications between the Lee County Commission on issues that affect Sanibel (i.e., off-Island development along McGregor Boulevard and CR 869, dual taxation).

"The city has worked hard to develop a satisfactory intergovernmental relationship with the county with limited success.

"Dual taxation is a statewide problem involving all local governments! The solution to the problem lies in the state Legislature, and pressure must be applied by coalitions such as the one Sanibel is working with.

"Off-Island development along our evacuation routes must be fought publicly and with individual commissioners to make them cognizant of and willing to consult Sanibel concerning development on evacuation routes."

5. Establishing an appropriate balance between resort and residential use on the Island.

"First, we must fight to preserve the residential nature of our community, and I will strive to do just that. The CLUP, ROGO and all future planning reviews should be based on this goal."

6. Controlling melaleuca, Brazilian pepper and Casuarina pine trees on Sanibel.

"We should attempt to control all exotic species that compete with our native vegetation."

7. Beach access parking. Are you satisfied that the current strategy is equitable for Island residents and non-residents?

"Yes. A recent review shows the current strategy working fine with a few modifications."

8. Establishing a Below Market Rate Housing program on Sanibel for Island workers.

"First understand that CLUP says we should provide the opportunity for BMRH. I agree we might be able to increase density or look at other development regulations. We should provide the opportunity without the use of tax dollars! The final role of the city should be the review of location and design of BMRH for Island compatibility."

9. Developing better communications between the Lee County Commission on issues that affect Sanibel (i.e., off-Island development along McGregor Boulevard and CR 869, dual taxation).

"Perhaps what we really need is more effective communications done at an earlier stage before a problem becomes a crisis, such as our evacuation routes. I favor more active participation with county officials to help solve what really are our mutual problems."

3. The proposal to reduce the Island's resort housing density from five to three units per acre.

"Because there are only about 25 acres of vacant resort designated land, the litigation resulting from a downzoning from five to three units per acre might be more damaging to our city than the benefit accrued from the density reduction. As has been mentioned, it is likely that developers would enlarge their allowed units so they would accommodate as many people as the original five units and raise their prices accordingly.

"Perhaps if the density reduction were related to occupancy, floor space or to intensity of use such as interval inflicts we might be more successful. I do believe in maintaining our density controls and am interested in studying the results of an Island-wide review of intensity of use requested by City Council. They may well suggest other ways of protecting our city from overly intense use of the land."

4. Settling the question of buildback after a disaster on the Island.

"I would like to see the buildback issue settled before the next hurricane season. Certainly, after 50 percent destruction, which is the figure mandated by Federal Flood Insurance, there are going to be hardship cases which will need some compassionate application of performance standards. Vegetation clearance, impermeable coverage and setback standards may well have to be waived to some extent if residents are to rebuild in some areas of the Island.

"However, I have serious reservations about allowing units which have been 50 percent destroyed to be built back in their original location forward of the coastal construction setback line and to the original density. The Federal Flood Insurance program is in a process of revision, and this may make an impact on our city policies."

5. Establishing an appropriate balance between resort and residential use on the Island.

"It is crucial that Sanibel maintains its residential nature and resists threatened resort spillover into single-family neighborhoods. Temporary occupants belong in transient resort-designated areas.

"I would like to see a limit to the number of times a dwelling unit in a single-family neighborhood may be rented annually. This might discourage individuals and corporations from buying homes as rental investment property, and it might encourage other people to make a permanent residential commitment to Sanibel.

"The more able we are to withstand resort-oriented pressures and remain dedicated to the preservation of our natural environment and to a heterogeneous, residential identity, the more like-minded people will be attracted to make this their home rather than their two-week vacation spot. The resort business is important to our economy, but not all-important. I believe it should be kept in perspective and that Sanibel must retain its residential identity."

6. Controlling melaleuca, Brazilian pepper and Casuarina pine trees on Sanibel.

"As a member of the Vegetation Committee, I am very aware of the need to eradicate all the pervasive Brazilian pepper possible if we are to have much of our native vegetation survive. Melaleuca if controlled within the next few years can be prevented from spreading into groves as it has on the mainland, where it is causing human bronchial reactions and ecological damage.

"I do not view the Casuarina tree as quite the same type of pest tree as the others. It lends beauty and shade to the Island and makes excellent firewood. Thinning should be done in some locations so that it doesn't smother undergrowth, and it should be coppiced or removed if the tree is in a location obviously dangerous to public health, safety and welfare. However, I think it is too bad to remove some of the huge, healthy trees in order to straighten or widen roads to that people may drive faster."

7. Beach access parking. Are you satisfied that the current strategy is equitable for Island residents and non-residents?

"I believe that the current parking strategy is equitable and legally defensible as it now exists. There are beautiful beaches accessible to all with free parking and some with restricted parking available for a small fee. I believe the benefit accruing to the residents of this Island who are now able to frequent all the beaches' parking areas might be lost in litigation if we were to change the basis on which the parking strategy is designed."

8. Establishing a Below Market Rate Housing program on Sanibel for Island workers.

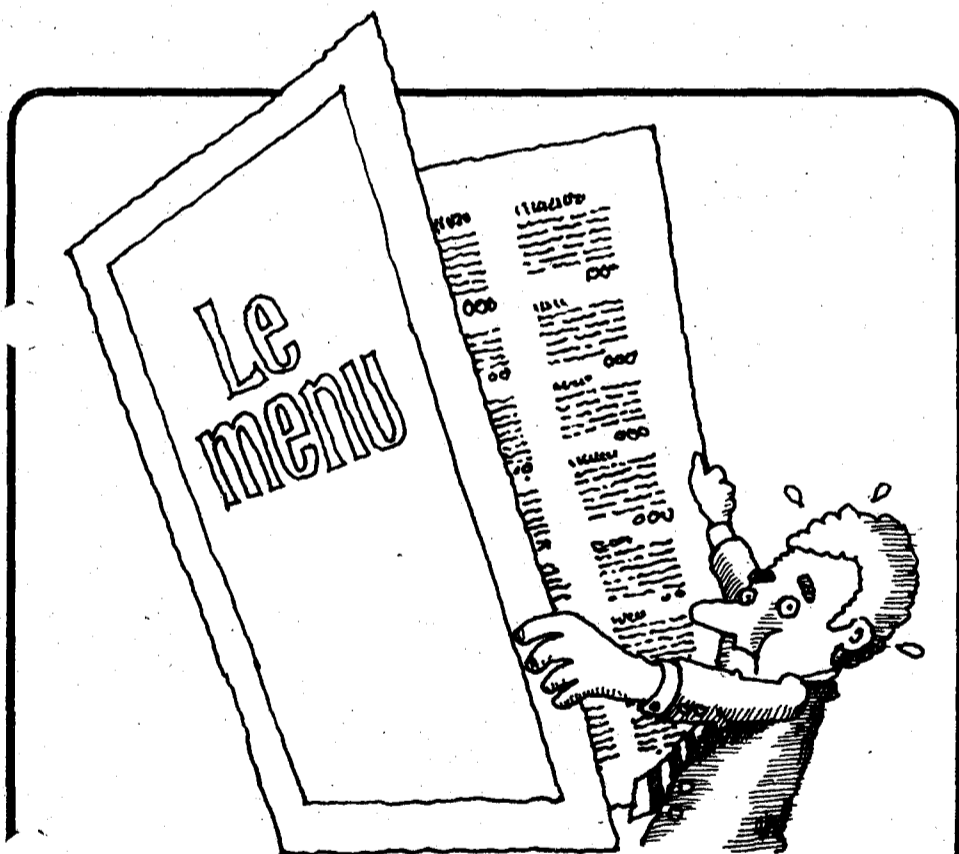

"I believe we need to pass the proposed ordinance allowing the city to franchise a Below Market Rate Housing Foundation. Such a foundation to administer policies and to establish guidelines for a BMRH program is essential to encourage non-profit organizations, private enterprise and individuals to initiate some affordable units on the Island.

"Market conditions are going to inhibit any great number of such housing, but I believe it is incumbent on the city to follow its (Comprehensive Land Use Plan) stipulation: 'to provide adequate opportunities for subsidized low and moderate income housing' (Section 2.5.3). I believe these opportunities should be available to those people who have established roots in the community through residency and whose work is vital to the city's welfare."

9. Developing better communications between the Lee County Commission on issues that affect Sanibel (i.e., off-Island development along McGregor Boulevard and CR 869, dual taxation).

"Our Island is part of the county and, along with Estero Island, is a great inducement for tourism in Lee County. If for no other reason, attention should be paid by Lee County to our city's health, safety and welfare. We have had little indication of county cooperation in their permitting hundreds of dwelling units along the evacuation corridors of the Islands residents and visitors. However, we must continue to attempt to work with the county on such things as intergovernmental coordinating committees and reciprocal land use review agreements, expecting consideration and cooperation.

"I believe in eliminating the dual taxation situation in all instances, and I support the decision of the council to join Cape Coral and Fort Myers in an examination of the issue to pinpoint where the areas of dual taxation exist so that further action may be taken."

4. Settling the question of buildback after a disaster on the Island.

"The issue of buildback after a storm needs to be resolved in an equitable manner, remembering that more than half of the homes on the Island are built at 'ground level.' It would seem a shame to me if any ground level home resident was not allowed complete insurance recovery within the scope of his policy, together with a reasonable buildback basis.

"If we do not come up with a fair basis, then applications, inspections and all the controls that would have to be enforced would become an administrative nightmare for the city and homeowners alike, not even considering the chaos of restoring power, water and clearing the roads as would have to be done in the wake of a storm.

"Think of the time we now devote to the ROGO for just one drawing period for approximately 35 homes. Then consider a storm system of major consequence that could inflict major damage to perhaps only 500 homes. A sensible recovery program must be accomplished at the earliest date."

5. Establishing an appropriate balance between resort and residential use on the Island.

"The land use plan has already established parameters for balance. Ongoing fine tuning will be required as intensities of use are more clearly defined from studies now underway."

6. Controlling melaleuca, Brazilian pepper and Casuarina pine trees on Sanibel.

"We already have an existing framework for controlling vegetation on the Island, but that framework is not being utilized to its fullest extent. We should look to the Vegetation Committee for guidelines and recommendations. The next step is the most important, that of communication of this information. The city should prepare guidelines in printed form and spread the word through the planning and building departments, as well as real estate offices, builders' offices and through the various subdivision owners associations."

7. Beach access parking. Are you satisfied that the current strategy is equitable for Island residents and non-residents?

"I am satisfied that the current strategy is the proper beginning. We will be under growing pressure to expand the parking facility as the build-out in the Lee County area resumes after the recession.

"We must protect the property rights of Sanibel owners, whether on the gulf or other Island locations. Disneyland limits its parking and admittance based upon capacity and relative safety. We must be attentive to the same safeguards. We also have a responsibility to make our rules known to those who are accustomed to visiting Sanibel."

8. Establishing a Below Market Rate Housing program on Sanibel for Island workers.

"I have been disappointed this program has not been worked out by now, with all the time that has been devoted to it. Fred Valtin is probably the first council member making a practical solution a real possibility. Purchase and rental opportunities should be available in reasonable numbers, in locations that will not adversely affect property values, coordinated by the city but built by the private sector. I believe this can all be accomplished."

9. Developing better communications between the Lee County Commission on issues that affect Sanibel (i.e., off-Island development along McGregor Boulevard and CR 869, dual taxation).

"Improved communication and relations with the Lee County government are an absolute necessity. Political barbing and sparring will not get done what needs to be done in the mutual interest of both governments. We each will have to hope to win our goals with understanding, not intimidation.

"Off-Island development along our evacuation route must reach a reasonable compromise. We must also remember we chose to live here. We must remember our struggle with growth controls over the years and the many out-of-court settlements we arrived at in achieving our present density. We must remember that Lee County government has been growth-oriented. They are now realizing a re-orientation is called for."

The Rescue of a Pregnant Widow

By George Campbell

Illustrated by Ann Winterbotham

The other day my friend Kris Altis caught up with me with the news that a poor pregnant widow was in need of help. Of course I responded. Who could ignore such an appeal?

Black widow spiders, Latrodectus mactans, are not common around here, so I usually ignore reported sightings, but Kris knows his stuff when it comes to natural history. It was he who sighted "Wulfert Slim," one of our two true Crocodiles, on numerous recorded occasions, and thus I figured he really had found a genuine black widow.

Widows don't travel much, so I didn't feel constrained to move into high gear immediately. So some 15 hours after receiving the report I went to the condo closet indicated and sure as God made little green apples, there was the biggest black widow I have ever seen.

Front foot to hind foot she was about an inch and a half -- huge for a widow -- the shiny black abdomen with the well-defined scarlet hourglass was at least three-eighths of an inch in diameter (big as a small marble).

Hanging with her in the messy web that stretched across the door of the condo closet were two egg cases. Tan, the size of large peas, they were suspended in the web. Widow webs have no symmetry. If your mystery spider spins an orb, it's not a widow.

With courage, skill and daring, I deftly captured her and the two egg cases in a glass petri dish.

This huge beauty deserved a better home. At Bailey's I found a chic rectangular display case made of crystal clear plastic. A hole was bored in the top -- too small for the widow to use as an escape, but large enough to provide air and water via a hypodermic syringe and occasional flies for food. A bit of shell and sand in the bottom and a stick or two for the web to be built upon, and the Widow's Palace was complete.

Again with care and courage, she and her two egg cases were transferred to this new habitat, and none too soon, either.

That night one egg sac was breached by a tiny hole and between 250 and 300 baby widows entered the world. Hundrreds of super-fine web strands criss-crossed the Widow's Palace and hundreds of babies hung waiting for prey that would never come. A few dozen found the air hole in the top and escaped into a larger universe. This potential hazard was corrected with a tuft of cotton through which a hypo was thrust to provide water and air.

Ideally, fruit flies, Drosophila sp., could be supplied to the brood and many would survive. But who wants hundreds of captive black widows? A dozen will be enough.

So in the Widow's Palace a dark and beastly practice is now in full swing: siblicide. Yes, you guessed it -- the little siblings eat each other up. And the eaters grow. Fast!

Already, only three days after emerging from the egg sac there are two that are larger than any of the others. They have eaten some siblings.

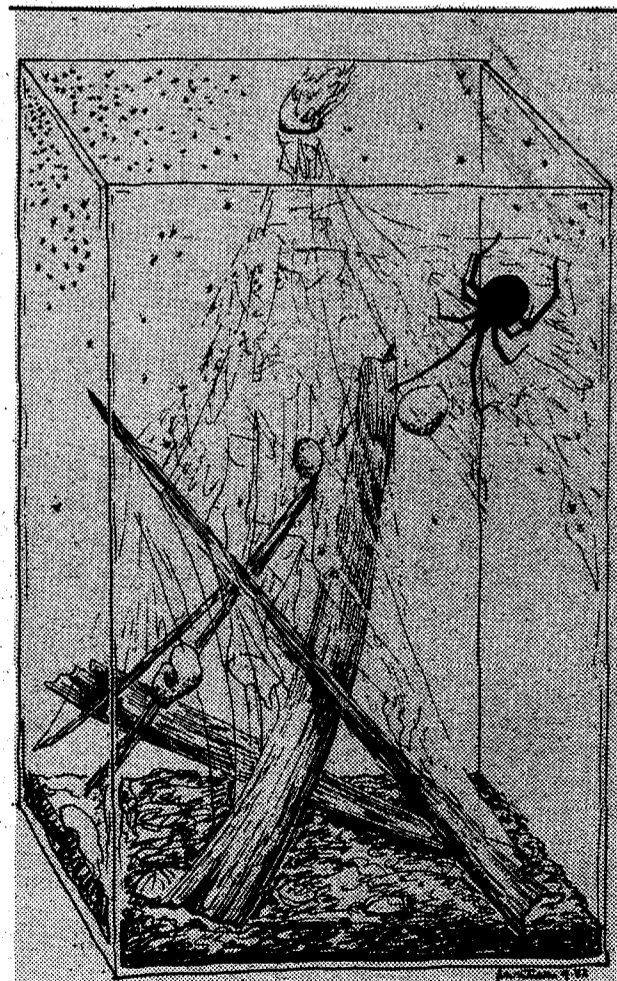

In a week or so there will remain perhaps 50 to 100 babies from that first batch, and all will have grown noticeably. Some half dozen will be larger than the others.

In a month there may be a half dozen good-sized young widows left from the hundreds that started out. But wait. The second egg sac will produce a few hundred more and they will be at a definite disadvantage and all will be consumed by their older siblings.

Last night the pregnant widow spun a third egg sac and deposited hundreds more eggs. As might be expected in interesting conditions of this kind, her great swollen abdomen is now much smaller and our huge black widow is not so huge any more, but looks rather like most that I have seen over all the years that I have been collecting black widows.

On Sanibel, black widows are not common. IWA meter readers, I am told, find them occasionally. The black holes where the meters are stashed are typical black widow habitat. Tin cans, scrap pipe, woodpiles, lumber stacks, rock heaps and empty flower pots are also good habitat.

But the biggest and best black widow dominated a condo closet! Her interval ownership was in the slack season and was soon terminated, a fact that would probably be appreciated by the other residents if they only knew. But of course, I won't tell!

Night-Blooming Cereus Queen of the night

A blanket of aromatic, tantalizing flowers lays over Sanibel and Captiva each summer. But on moonlit nights when the elves are at play, one flower alone can be called "Queen of the Night."

The fragrant, fairy-like qualities of the Night-blooming Cereus, Hylocereus undatus, with its cross-like pistils surrounded by flourishing yellow stamens, have long been known and cherished by local inhabitants.

And although cereus is a West Indies native, the plant has become naturalized on Palmetto trees on the Indian River, where hundreds of flowers have been known to open at once.

A member of the Cactus family, Cactaceae, Night-blooming Cereus is the summertime bearer of a deliciously edible red fruit not unlike that of the Prickly Pear Cactus. Its shape, grey fuzzy skin and seed-filled flesh are also reminiscent of the fruit of the Prickly Pear.

Practically epiphytic (meaning "upon plants"), members of the Cereus family are notorious for wrapping their long, snake-like limbs around a nearby tree for support. The Cereus derive little water or other nutrients from the plants upon which they grow, however, so that the parasite-host relationship is minimized and continues at no peril to its "organic" trellis.

The Cereus is especially equipped to survive life without leaves in an arid environment. The green surfaces of its tubular branches are laid out in such a way as to perform all of a leaf's functions, which include catching sunlight for use in building up carbohydrates and absorbing atmospheric materials, or those found in the soil (by transpiration) for increased growth.

Each branch is comprised of a series of "ribs" or involutions that not only increase surface area but help provide the branch with increased shade to withstand the full force of the sun's rays—the idea being that a ribbed cylinder will enjoy more shade than a smooth one.

The only drawback to this adaptation is that the Cereus' ability to withstand drought takes a toll on the metabolic rate — so that with a slower metabolism, the plant grows more slowly. Hence, the Cereus on our sister islands that have attained a height of 10 feet or more may have taken 30 or 40 years to grow.

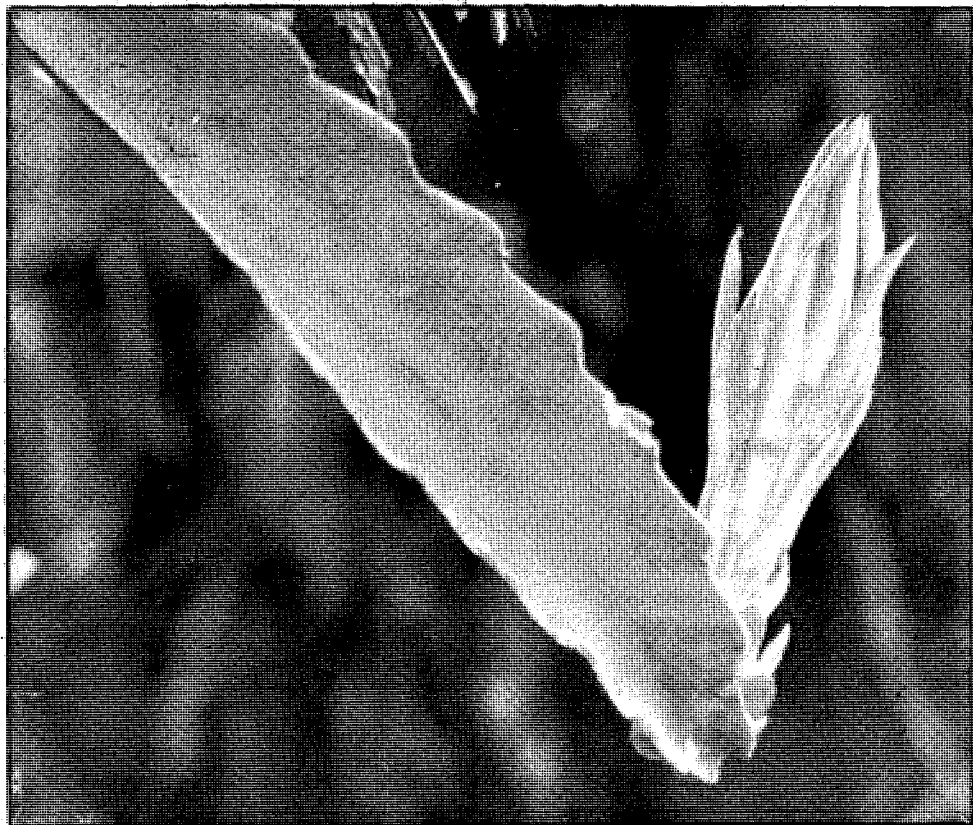

Unbeknownst to many, Night-Blooming Cereus make suitable and unusual houseplants that can be forced to flower during the day if refrigerated for a short period of time.

But for those who enjoy the wonder of this elfin (here tonight, gone tomorrow morning) flower, the best viewing hours are from mid-evening until an hour or so after sunrise.

Update: Mosquito control and Encephalitis

This portrait of Culex nigripalpus will show the careful observer how to distinguish it from the more or less two dozen other mosquito forms that inhabit Sanibel Island. This very localized freshwater species does vector or carry St. Louis Encephalitis. No other forms on Sanibel carry disease, yet the major thrust of mosquito control is against harmless salt marsh mosquitos which travel up to 25 miles.

Although Mosquito Control Director Wayne Miller wanted to discontinue the St. Louis Encephalitis search, he is now pleased that it was continued for it has turned up evidence of St. Louis Encephalitis presence on Sanibel and elsewhere in Lee County.

The adulticiding operation of October 13 was aimed at Culex nigripalpus, and to my mind, is good mosquito control and represents intelligent application of funds.

On October 13, between about 7 and 8 A.M., Lee County Mosquito Control adulticided Sanibel with malathion. Yes, malathion -- the insecticide about which I have written that is "lost" due to resistance or immunity. That is true -- our major harmless nuisance mosquito, Aedes taeniorhynchus, is resistant (immune) to malathion.

But on October 13 another mosquito was the target, Culex nigripalpus, the vector or carrier of St. Louis Encephalitis (SLE), and Culex nigripalpus is not -- I repeat, not -- immune to malathion here.

This is the kind of mosquito control of which I approve. Let me explain.

Large sums of money are used to apply organophosphate insecticides to kill purely nuisance mosquitoes just so that vacationers will be happy and cash registers will keep ringing. That is a waste of taxpayer money and a threat to public health as well as to environmental health. I oppose that practice and will continue to do so for another ten years if necessary.

But I have always said that when the threat of disease is real, then no holds barred -- let's get the vector. And that is what Wayne Miller and his people did on October 13.

The Center for Disease Control Trap (CDC Trap, for short) emits CO₂ which attracts mosquitoes catching them alive. Recently at Wulfert Point, more than 1000 C. nigripalpus were collected by trap.

This represents a dense population of this species of mosquito which is capable, as said above, of carrying SLE. In addition some sentinel chickens in Lee County had the extremely high titer of 1 to 640. Some Wulfert Sentinels had high titers too. In 1977 and 1979, when there was SLE about, titers did not exceed about 1 to 160.

The State of Florida operates an Epidemiological Laboratory at Tampa to handle just such matters. It is under the direction of Dr. F. M. Welling and Dr. Arthur Lewis. It was with the latter that I talked. Chicken blood is "run" for titers there. Also in a much slower process, mosquitoes in lots of 50 are macerated and spun down in a centrifuge with an appropriate diluent and antibiotics added to suppress bacterial growth. The supra natent (the clear liquid at the top) is then injected into newborn mice. After 7 to 14 days the presence or absence of virus can be determined. Seven to ten days more are required to identify the virus; i.e., to determine if it really is SLE virus.

In addition to being slow, the process is rather narrow in its search for virus in the mosquito population, being limited to only 50 mosquitoes per lot. More than 50 mosquitoes result in a liquid that can kill the test animal before any results are obtained. This, I believe, is due to the presence of too many foreign proteins for the mouse to tolerate. This process is also very expensive.

A much broader sampling of the mosquito population is possible with the employment of sentinel chickens, each of which may be bitten by many hundreds of mosquitoes. If blood from these exposed chickens can be delivered to the Tampa lab by Wednesday, their test results -- that is, the determination of the presence or absence of SLE virus -- can be ready by Friday. This process is cheaper and much faster.

Last year, Miller's group was unhappy with the Tampa lab. So much so that at a recent Commission meeting, Miller proposed the SLE search be dropped... that the sentinel chicken program be dropped, as well as the sending to Tampa of mosquitoes caught and sorted via the CDC Trap. He found that most of last year's mosquitoes caught, sorted as to species, frozen and delivered to Tampa, were never run and that they are still in the freezer there. Also, since no SLE viral indications had appeared in the blood of chickens since 1979, he proposed discontinuance in order to save money on what appeared to be a futile program. Commissioner Matt Smith vehemently opposed dropping the program, and a majority of his fellow-Commissioners supported him.

Today Mr. Miller is glad the program was not halted since Latest plans for the new beach and park at Bowman's Beach, the new Sanibel fishing pier and the addition to Lee Memorial Hospital will be displayed at the Sanibel Community House this week.

The display initiates Lee County Commissioner Walter Shirey's semi-monthly forum for residents of Sanibel and Captiva.

it has proved its worth and high titers have been found in sentinel chicken blood from Wulfert and elsewhere in Lee County.

He complains that this year expensively-caught sorted and frozen Culex nigripalpus are still lying in the freezer in Tampa, untested. Dr. Welling tells him that he already has the indication of the presence of SLE cirus on Sanibel, so why waste funds on these frozen mosquitoes? Besides, the Tampa lab points out, the tests take a long time before results are produced.

There is logical and philosophical conflicting conundrum here. You be the judge. My thanks to Mr. Miller for his help. Also, I thank Dr. Lewis of the Tampa lab and Commissioner Matt Smith for their help.

I wish to emphasize once again: it is under health-threatening conditions such as those that obtain today that I support the control of vector mosquitoes. Aren't we fortunate that Culex nigripalpus seems not to have developed immunity to past overuse of malathion?

Islanders prep for local art show

Plans are underway for the Seventh Annual Juried Show of the Sanibel-Captiva Art League, which was founded in 1964 by the late Leon Lesy.

The show is slated to be judged by internationally renowned artist Roberta Snyder of Cape Canaveral and promises to be one of the most varied and professional shows to date.

The show will open this year on Nov. 21 from 1-4 p.m. at the Captiva Community Center and will remain open to public daily through Sunday, Dec. 5, during those hours.

A member of the Florida Watercolor Society, the Orange County Art League and the Florida Federation of Artists, juror Snyder has created works that can be found in a range of private collections including those of Dr. Norman Vincent Peale and the Kennedy Space Center, and in an assortment of permanent collections throughout Florida and Georgia, Haiti, Germany and Hawaii.

The full-time working artist has four illustrated books and 16 published cartoons to her credit after working for 15 years as an illustrator and draftsman. A former student of Howard Veal of England and George Miller, director of art for the State of Pennsylvania, Snyder's education started at Slippery Rock College in Grove City, Penn., and Brevard Community College.

Prospectus and entry forms can be obtained from any of the member clubs of the Southwest Florida Art Council or by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ken Turney, SCAL Show, 202 E. Palm Drive, Rt. 10, Fort Myers, FL 33908.

Each entrant may submit up to three paintings at $1 each. Works will be received from 8 a.m. until noon on Tuesday, Nov. 16, at the Gulf Points Plaza on the corner of San Carlos and McGregor boulevards. Entries will also be received at the Captiva Community Center from 1-4 p.m. Nov. 16.

For more information call Ruth North, 472-1274.

Porcelain convention, rice paper collage workshop come to Sanibel

For the first time in the history of Southwest Florida, artists are gathering on Sanibel from all over the world for Porcelain in Paradise, the annual convention of the Florida State Association of Porcelain Artists.

Members of 16 participating clubs will display hand-painted china at the convention at the Sundial Beach and Tennis Resort from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Oct. 22-23.

Demonstrations in the art of china painting will be offered at hourly intervals on both days from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. $1 will admit students to a one-hour demonstration, and $2 will buy entrance to a two-plus hour demonstration.

The art of painting on porcelain has a large following in the United States and abroad. Porcelain artists have produced heirloom pieces for centuries. Colors are made permanent by a process developed in China more than 1,300 years ago. Each piece is painted several times and fired in tremendous heat, during which time the glaze softens and absorbs the colors.

Supplies for porcelain artists will also be on sale at the convention. Admission is $1 per person.

Rice paper collages will be the focus of the first annual meeting of the Sanibel-Captiva Art League at 1:30 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 21, at the Sanibel Community Center.

National League of Penwomen member and teacher Marie Purvis of Charlotte County will lead art leaguers in a demonstration of the age-old art of collage construction with delicate rice paper.

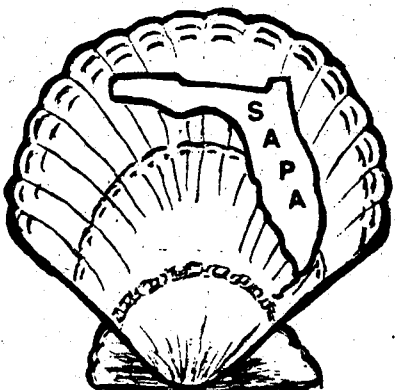

This year's officers, who include Mrs. J. Lee Gibson, president; Mrs. Harmon Elder, vice-president; Mrs. H.R. Taylor, secretary; and Mrs. C.J. Fox, treasurer; will be introduced at the first art league get-together, where plans for this year's Nov. 21 Art Show will be discussed.

Three musical gatherings are planned for Fort Myers this week, beginning with the monthly meeting of the Fort Myers Music Teachers Association at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 19.

Sunday, Oct. 24 will see a performance of the Gulfcoast Opera from 5-8 p.m., with the Calusa Chamber Music Players winding up the week's activities from 7-10 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 25.

All three events will be held under the auspices of the Lee County Alliance of the Arts. For more information call 939-2787.

The Southwest Florida Symphony Chorus will make its first appearance of the season on Wednesday, Oct. 27, at the Bell Tower Mall. The performance is a special solo presentation in anticipation of the chorus' scheduled activities with the Southwest Florida Symphony this spring and will be followed by presentations at Christ Lutheran Church in Cape Coral on Nov. 28, at Shell Point Village Church on Dec. 5 and at Faith Lutheran Church in Lehigh Acres on Feb. 6.

Islanders who remember Jimmy Stewart's movie Harvey with affection won't want to miss this delightful story again when the play by Mary Chase comes to Edison Community College in November.

Scenarios in the Dowd's family mansion and in the reception room of Chumley's Rest will enhance this hilarious comedy about a wealthy and benign eccentric who befriends an imaginary six-foot white rabbit.

Performances are scheduled on Nov. 5, 6, 11-13 and 18-20. Tickets are $3, and can be purchased at the ECC cashier's window or at the door prior to each performance. Curtain time is 8 p.m. For more details call 489-9298.

The Indian Presence

By Carol Kranichfeld

"Man is known to have been in Florida for at least 12,000 years, and future research is likely to push that date further back in time. Here, as elsewhere in the Americas, the early inhabitants, in small bands and family groups, led a migratory life collecting seasonal fruits and plants and hunting many animals including the large ice-age mammals; the mastodon and mammoth, camel, horse, sloth, saber-toothed tiger and dire wolf."

So begins the chapter on Paleo-Indian existence in Florida prehistory in local archeologist Dr. Charles Wilson's new publication, "The Indian Presence". Abundant with information heretofore to be found only in bits and pieces in other books (if at all), "The Indian Presence" breaks new ground in barrier island history as the latest in a series of Barrier Island Nature Publications, sponsored by the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation, and available at the SCCF Center for $3.50.

Most visitors to Sanibel and Captiva, and many residents as well, are not aware that these and other nearby islands have a long history of aboriginal occupation predating by thousands of years the first visits to this area by the Spanish explorers in the early 1500's and lasting into the late 17th century," says Dr. Wilson in his introduction. "Archeological evidence of early Indian campsites and the more obvious remains of prehistoric shell mound settlements can still be found not only on Sanibel, Captiva and all the other barrier island which enclose Pine Island Sound, but also on almost every significant land mass within the Sound."

The wealth of information that follows Dr. Wilson's introductory remarks is well-researched and documented, and specific enough to give every reader of "The Indian Presence" a solid understanding of our barrier island history. Lucidly written and accompanied by beautifully constructed drawings by his artist wife, Joan, and by easy-to-follow area maps, Dr. Wilson's discourse on the rise and eventual demise of the Pine Island Sound Calusa Indians makes for terrifically informative reading. The author brings all the information to a head in his chapters on the Wightman site excavation, an area of land offered for digging by Sanibel resident Karl Wightman and which yielded a tremendous amount of previously unknown information to the archeologist, who devoted many years to its excavation.

Dr. Wilson's interest in the archeology of the Sanibel-Captiva area has led him to various efforts to encourage more professional fieldwork in Southwest Florida. During the three years he directed excavation of the Wightman site (1974-76), Dr. Wilson also held a position as adjunct research professor at the University of Florida, and in 1979 helped SCCF organize an extensive exhibit on Southwest Florida Archeology and a Sanibel conference of leading Florida archeologists. He has instructed numerous courses in physical anthropology and prehistory at the Sanibel Community Center, and has led discussions on local archeology to a variety of island groups, including those at the Conservation Center's "Tuesday" programs.

A former director and past chairman of the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation, Dr. Wilson graduated from Yale in 1939 and, after a business career in management consulting, attended graduate school at Columbia University, where he received his Anthropology Ph.D. in 1968. His doctoral research was completed in Mexico, and was followed by years of university teaching at Columbia University. Dr. Wilson resided in Rowayton, Conn. during his years at Columbia before moving to Sanibel in 1972.

Computerized listing service planned for Island real estate businesses

By Cindy Chalmers

Starting next month Sanibel and Captiva real estate businesses will have the advantage of a computerized multiple-listing book that will be published every two weeks and updated every week.

A majority of the Islands' 23 real estate firms have already joined the Sanibel-Captiva Computerized Listing Service, Inc., a corporation headed by Sanibel Realty's Bert Jenks.

Jenks and VIP's Bob Hurbanis initiated the drive for a computerized listing service last spring. The new system will streamline the old cooperative listing system and pare down much of the administrative work involved in the current process, Jenks said when he announced the plan.

REALTRON, a Pompano-based firm, will publish the multiple-listing book every two weeks using information provided by Island firms on standard forms. Updated listings will be provided every week a new book is not-published. Pictures will be included as part of each listing on developed property. Data involving sales, listings and time on the market will also be furnished.

The REALTRON system will give the Islands' real estate community a great deal more information than it has had in the past and will enable Realtors and Brokers to better identify the market as it currently exists on the Islands, Jenks explained.

In short, Jenks added, the system will make the Sanibel-Captiva real estate community more professional and efficient.

He estimated the first book, which is expected in mid or late November, will include 700 listings of residential and commercial property.

Serving with Jenks on the board of the listing service are Thomas Brown of Thomas Brown Realty, first vice president; Hurbanis of VIP, second vice president; Juanita Hermes of Priscilla Murphy Realty, secretary; and Donald Bissell of Bissell and Holtz Realty, treasurer.

Clown ministry teens plan repeat performance on Sanibel

The Clowns of Saint Michael's are returning to Sanibel! A group of teenagers from Saint Michael's Lutheran Church in Fort Myers formed a clown ministry last year and have since appeared throughout the Fort Myers area.

On Friday evening, Oct. 22, they will perform at Saint Michael's Episcopal Church on Sanibel.

Clown ministry in the church dates as far back as the Middle Ages when clowns were used during the lengthy church services to fill up times when few words were spoken.

Clowns are the symbols of hope. They symbolize success where others seem to fail. They are also symbols of nonconformity.

Down through the ages clowns, fools and jesters have challenged conventional ways of thinking in order to make people more sensitive to one another. They have humbled the exalted and exalted the humble.

But clowns are ultimately servant figures who spend themselves for others. Through comedy, play and brightly colored costumes, the clowns seek to bring joy into the world and to uplift the spirits of the sorrowful and the downcast.

Church doors will open at 7:30 p.m. for the one-hour performance. All children, pre-teens and teens and their parents are invited to attend.

Captiva Fitness Caper plans November program

The Captiva Fitness Caper announces plans for the November program at Captiva's Tween Waters Inn. A well-planned schedule of beach walking, jogging, hatha yoga, jogging, water dynamics, tennis, guitar instruction, arts and crafts, music and entertainment will take place from Nov. 1 through Nov. 8.

The program includes three meals a day with a total of 900 calories. Participants can choose to stay through Nov. 10 to take part in a liquid cleansing fast of fruit juices, vegetable juices and broth.

Cost of the Fitness Caper is $441 double occupancy, $553 single occupancy or $301 for the program and meals without room.

For more information call Tween Waters Inn, 472-5161.

Chadwick's plans Halloween bash as part of birthday celebration

Chadwick's Restaurant, as part of its fifth birthday celebration, will host a Halloween Birthday Bash from 8 p.m. to midnight Sunday, Oct. 31.

The party will be free of charge to the public and will feature dancing, a live disc jockey, movies, games, prizes and a costume contest with trends and tastes reminiscent of 1977 as the theme.

Dinner for two at the King's Crown restaurant will be the prize for each individual winner of the costume contest for originality, style, humor and authenticity in relation to the year 1977.

And don't forget Chadwick's Great Birthday Cake Contest. The top three guesses at this event will be carried over to the final night of birthday celebrations, where a weekend for two at Eagle's Nest Resort on Marco Island will be the grand prize.

Chadwick's Restaurant is at the front gate to South Seas Plantation on Captiva.

Mobile Tag Unit comes to Bailey's

The Lee County License Tag Mobile Unit will be at Bailey's Center on Sanibel, October 26th, from 8:45 to 3:30.

All renewals and new applications must be accompanied by proof of insurance.

Please bring your pre-written registration.

Rotary Club hosts blood center officials, plans bloodmobile visit

The Sanibel-Captiva Rotary Club will host speakers from the Edison Regional Blood Center at the club's regular breakfast meeting this Friday, Oct. 22. The meeting will begin at 7:45 a.m. at the Sundial.

The ERBC Bloodmobile will be at Bailey's from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 30. Donors are asked to call Pat Welsh, 472-0487; Bob Dellorto, 472-4592; or Bram Boonstra,

Community Association hopes Bingo games will raise funds

Weekly Bingo games open to the public will be held each Tuesday evening starting Nov. 9 at 7:30 p.m. at the Sanibel Community Association, the SCA Board of Directors announced last week.

The Bingo games will be sponsored by the Association to raise funds to help pay off the mortgage on the building. SCA Vice President Bud Bernhard heads the committee in charge of the Bingo games. Other members are Myra ZuHone and Art Ford. "We hope the Bingo games will be well attended by Sanibel and Captiva residents and that we will attract players from all over the surrounding area," Bernhard said.

SCA President Jerry Wierman pointed out that the association building fills a vital community need by providing facilities for regular meetings of groups such as the Shell Club and Audobon Society and for such special events as the Shell Show and entertainment and cultural events.

"The association must obtain more funds in order to continue to make the facility available to the public," Wierman said. "Revenues from membership dues and rentals of the building are not large enough to make any substantial reduction in the mortgage."

St. Isabel's women meet this week

Saint Isabel's Women's Guild will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Parish Hall this Wednesday, Oct. 20.

'Sunflower' scouts meet this Thursday

Girl Scout Troop 81, The Sanibel Sunflowers, will meet from 5:30-7:30 p.m. this Thursday, Oct. 21, at the cemetery off Casa Ybel Road. Dinner will be provided.

Delectable delights at Letizia's

By: JULIE GRAY
Menue

Cocktail hour: Served formally in champagne glasses, on a silver tray was a very delicious Aste Spumante. The service was a bit flawed since the bus jiggled a bit. One of our members deftly demonstrated the art of pouring over his left shoulder!

SOUP: Minestrone. Not just any "Soup du jour" this chock full of fresh vegetable soup was hearty, yet delicately flavored, with bits of pasta floating tantalizingly throughout. If you are even the most confirmed vegetable hater, you will join the "all gone" group on this one. Served in a delightful covered crock, it was fantastic.

SALAD: Neapolitan style individual antipasta: Truly a visual delight, these individual antipasta salads were served on chilled brown glass plates. Each salad looked like a bouquet with its circular placement of a slice of genoa, and various pickled vegetables and assorted crisp greens!

GARLIC BREAD: Divine. Our table consumed three baskets and probably could have consumed more (we didn't need them). Baked with butter and cheese and garlic, the special house blend of 75 percent romano and 25 percent parmesan cheese made the bread just melt in your mouth.

CHICKEN SESAMO: An original creation of our chef, (more about him later) this sauteed chicken cutlet was moist, flavorful and abundant. Topped with a lemony fresh Hollandaise sauce the combination of flavors and textures was demolishing to even the most determined dieter.

Fresh Steamed Broccoli: Yup, fresh!
SPAGHETTINI WITH CHOICE OF AGLIO E OILIO OR MEAT SAUCE: Our pert waitresses deftly inquired which sauce we desired and with nary a miss served us each our choice cooked to perfection.

DESSERT: Cappamocca Layer cake. Four layers of chocolate and coffee cakes, whipped cream and special secrets. Calories too!

FINALE: Choice of Coffee, tea, sanka or CAPPUCINO with whipped cream! I mean really....there was no choice as tray after tray of guess which appeared and was consumed.

Promptly at 6:30 p.m., 29 of us climbed aboard the Mariner Properties English Double Decker for our BREEZE Dining Out group's trip to Letizia's restaurant on Sanibel Island.

The bus was exactly the right note to start such a trip. We sipped our Aste Spumante on the way to the cries of "Let's open the next bottle further down the road where it's smoother!"

With great class, the champagne glasses were brought forth and much merriment ensued as we got a different view of our area from the second story of the bus. (quite a sight going over the Cape Coral Bridge!)

Mariner Properties makes this bus available to interested community groups, and we thank them.

Upon arrival at our destination we were escorted into a lovely private dining room and shortly thereafter began our feasting.

Owned by Bob Janes, Letizia's kitchen has been presided over by Bill Essex of Cape Coral since the previous ownership. Bill, who resides equally in Sanibel with his kitchen duties, appears to be no more than a young boy at first glance.—BUT...CAN HE COOK!!! Self trained, perhaps in the classic manner, Bill has been assistant chef in many fine restaurants throughout the northeastern United States before coming to this area.

As he puts it, "I've always cooked. Since I was a little boy at the Jersey Shore."

Bill came out of his immaculate kitchen several times before and during the dinner to explain what he was doing and what wine went with what.

On the matter of wines, we had our choice of a Verdicchio Del Castelli Di Jesi (white) or a Moe Baril, 1981 Rose. Our wine tasting group chairman, Don Cohen made notes for future reference!

Letizia's chef Bill Essex ponders his kitchen creations.

Visiting with Bill in his kitchen, I was astonished that such superb food and in quantities could come from such a miniscule work area. No FRYER or BROILER! "Everything is baked, steamed or sauteed! One eight burner stove, two ovens and a tiny microwave is all there is folks, yet during the height of the rush, not a crumb was on the floor not any indication of tension or strain. Each of the five-man kitchen crew knew his job and performed it swiftly and with good humor! Tod Blakely, Steve Mankin, "Chat" and T-Bone all are known as assistant chefs...and able ones, too!

As I went between the kitchen and the dining room, the comments floated around the room;

"OOOO, I waited too long to stop eating, look at that dessert!"

"I can't wait to see what's next" and so on.

With all the food surrounding us, most of the conversation revolved around meals we had eaten, were going to eat or new techniques for cooking.

We asked Bill Essex what his definition of a Gourmet was:

His reply: "Using the freshest, nicest food and ingredients you can use. Never use inferior ingredients. It should look well and taste well."

It was with full tummies and happy hearts that we boarded our waiting Mariner Bus for the return ride home. Around 11:30 we returned. Probably pounds heavier, but certainly happier. Another fun evening. Thank you to Claude and Edie Sturm who arranged our evening.

For information on further going-out tours, call me or send a note to me at the Breeze and you will be notified or Jack and Treva Wermuth.

CHICKEN SESAMO Letizia's

Chicken breast (1 whole per serving)
Note: 1/2 breast would be enough.

Pound breast smooth & flat
Dip in egg wash, coat with a mixture of fresh bread crumbs, garlic powder, fresh parsley, salt, pepper, dash of oregano, and sesame seeds, and house cheese mixture of 75 percent grated Romano & 25 percent grated Parmesan.

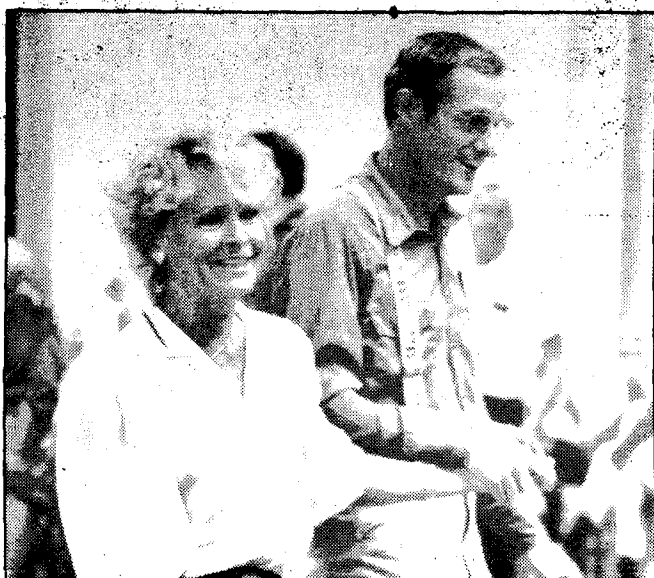

Sautee in a mixture of 1/2 olive oil & clarified butter

Serve promptly with Hollandaise sauce topping garni with fresh parsley.

HOLLANDAISE

3 egg yolks
6 oz. clarified butter
3 Tablespoons fresh lemon
dash of cayenne pepper

Follow mixing directions for any hollandaise sauce. Chef Essex claims his secret is the Cayenne pepper!!

Shopping

Sanibel is a veritable shopper's paradise. Tasteful boutiques and casual island shops join forces to present visitors with everything and anything a vacation shopper could hope for.

At the Lighthouse (Eastern) end of the island, Punta Ybel Plaza and the Sea Horse Shops are right across the street from one another, providing a variety of products that can cure your sweet tooth or tickle your shell finder's fancy. Need a good haircut or coiffure? You can get it in either of these shopping centers.

Most businesses open at 10 a.m. and close at 5:30 p.m. This holds true for many island stores, although some are open evenings during the winter season.

Tall Australian Pines shade Periwinkle Way and the shopper travels west along this main thoroughfare. This stretch of road is truly a shopper's paradise! It's all here -- the fast and not-so-fast eating spots, casual and elegant boutiques, hand-wrought jewelry, craft designs, shell shops and balm for health product fanatics.

Watch to your right and left as you drive or cycle along. Photographic supplies, bait and tackle, deli foods, fresh seafood and baked goods, knick-knacks and what-nots can all be found along the drive to the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road. Along the way, shopping centers such as the Heart of the Islands, Periwinkle Place and Tahitian Gardens offer a variety of island delights.

Palm Ridge Road, the Periwinkle Way turn-off to Captiva, offers several shopping centers featuring everything from imports to gift shops for the discriminating shopper, plants and shells, a sandwich shop, ice cream parlors, pizza parlor, boutique shop and the Island Apothecary pharmacy.

At the Tarpon Bay-Periwinkle Way intersection, the Island Shopping Center features the island's only supermarket and movie house.

A left on Tarpon Bay Road takes the visitor past Sanibel's original schoolhouse, which now holds original island watercolors and woodcuts.

Then on to West Gulf Drive and westward to an interesting little artisan shop and gallery.

At the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road, you may choose instead to turn right and follow the signs to the Tarpon Bay marina, where you will find a cluster of quaint shops overlooking the back bay. Some antiques, shells and shellcrafts, what-nots and clever clothes can be found here, as well as a great seafood sandwich and soft drinks.

The spectacular ride to Captiva, with its lush foliage and enchanting view of the Gulf, is well worth a day's outing. Talented artists display their works in one roadside shop, while others feature some nifty gifts for Grandma to take home to little hands as a pleasant hodge-podge of remembrances from these barrier islands.

Whether for shopping or merely browsing, island shops offer a surprising variety from one-of-a-kind collectibles for the discerning shopper to postcards for the simple souvenir hunter. And of course, for all shells -- shell jewelry, shell lamps, just plain shells -- the most beautiful shells in the world from the most beautiful shelling beaches in the world.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE VISITOR'S INFORMATION SERVICE

Sanibel-Captiva Chamber of Commerce
 Just off the Causeway on Causeway Road 472-1080
 Open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Sundays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

SHELLING

The city's resolution limiting the taking of live shells to two live shells per species per person is one to be scrupulously obeyed. As a matter of fact, in order to preserve Sanibel's beautiful shelling beaches, most collectors refuse to take any live shells whatsoever.

DOGGY DO'S AND DON'TS

If you are visiting Sanibel with the family Fido in tow, all the better. All family members can enjoy Southwest Florida sun and surf.

The Chamber of Commerce can tell you what accommodations are available for families with pets.

Remember: Wherever you are, clean up after your pet! "Leave nothing on the beach but footprints" applies to dogs, too.

There's no leash law on Sanibel, but of course an excitable or unruly animal is better off when controlled with a leash.

FISH Friends in Service Here

Neighboring help for Islanders in need of transportation, regular phone checks and assorted non-emergency neighborhood services. Call 472-0404, 24 hours a day.

WARNING! SAFEGUARD YOUR VALUABLES

In order to protect your valuable possessions from theft, it is recommended that you take them to a bank or hotel vault for safekeeping. Do NOT leave them in your room or car.

CAMPING, BEACH FIRES

Camping on the beach is prohibited, as are open beach fires.

An exemption to the beach fire ordinance is a fire in an approved cooking container (not to exceed 48x24x12 inches deep) with an extruded metal grill for non-commercial food preparation. This type of container will be allowed on the beach without a permit.

After you have had your beach party, please assume the responsibility for cleaning up any debris or litter in your area.

BICYCLING

If you aren't used to a lot of bicycle traffic, watch out on Sanibel. The extensive network of bike paths on the Island is clearly marked along the edge of the road.

Observe caution when driving near the bike path. A state law and city ordinance combine to prohibit parking or driving on the bike path. Mopeds are not permitted on the bike paths.

If you plan to spend some time on a bike to enjoy the Island sun and sights, make sure your vehicle is equipped with a bike flag, horn, good brakes and a light for night riding.

Under Florida law, bicycle riders have the same rights and responsibilities as motor vehicle drivers.

Drive safely!

FISHING

While no license is required for saltwater fishing, fishing in freshwater ponds or the Sanibel River requires a Florida fishing license.

Licenses are available at Bailey's General Store on Periwinkle Way. The fee is $6.50 for residents and $10.50 for non-residents.

Minimum Legal Lengths
 Blue Fish 10 inches

Flounder	11 inches
Grouper	12 inches
Mackerel	12 inches
Mullet	12 inches
Pompano	10 inches
Red Fish	12 inches
Snook	18 inches
Trout	12 inches

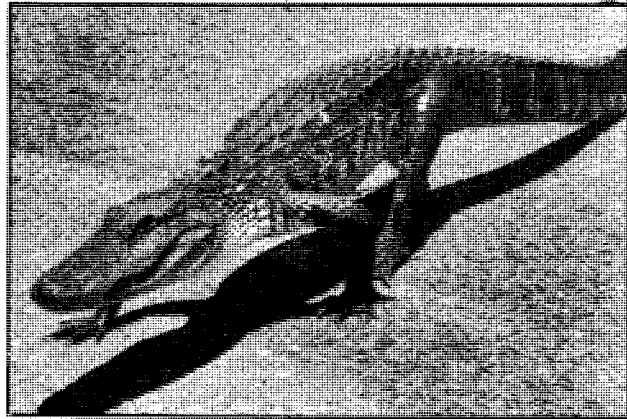

Snook fishing is outlawed from June 30-Aug. 1.

SPEED LIMITS

There is very good reason for the varying speed limits (20-30 mph) along the Causeway. The slower speeds preserve the bridge supports from strain and stress.

This speed limit is strictly enforced with radar on a 24-hour basis by both the Sanibel Police Department and the Lee County Sheriff's Department.

GATORS

Feeding alligators anywhere within the Sanibel city limits is not only illegal, but can be extremely dangerous.

Alligators can run up to 45 mph, so if you are close enough to feed an alligator, he is close enough to bite you. An alligator fed for fun loses his natural fear of humans and becomes a potential threat to children and pets.

Dogs should never be permitted to run free on Sanibel.

Fence them, walk them on a leash or, if you must free your dog for a walk, keep him under voice control. Never tie your dog in an unfenced back yard.

For help with a nuisance alligator, call the following representatives of the Southwest Florida Alligator Association. They are licensed and have permits to legally handle gators: George Campbell, 472-2825; Steve Phillips, 472-2329; Mark Westall, 472-5128.

Welcome to the Islands

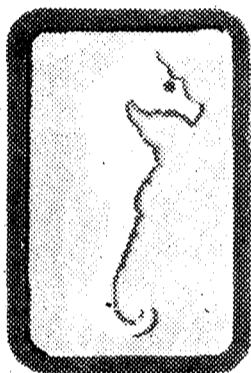

The Islands' Leading Realtor.....Since 1955

This lovely two bedroom, two bath home is hidden away on a Captiva Island private lot in a quiet, secluded spot within walking distance to the beach. It features a solar-heated swimming pool, fireplace, cathedral ceiling and is in immaculate condition. Professionally landscaped with native vegetation and many fruit-bearing trees. Offered at $188,000 unfurnished.

"Top of the line" describes this magnificent POINTE SANTO DE SANIBEL condominium. Third floor, corner apartment with 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, offering a spectacular view of the Gulf. Beautifully decorated and completely furnished, the Spanish-style design and lush landscaping make this one of Sanibel's most attractive condominium projects, complete with pool, whirlpool and tennis. Offered at $495,000.
