Hagerup wins; Johnson, Bissell face run-off

By Barbara Brundage

Sanibel voters will go to the polls next Tuesday for the second time in two weeks to fill Seat 5 on the City Council.

Two council seats were up for grabs at the city's biennial election last Tuesday. Planning Commissioner Bill Hagerup handily won election to Seat 4 over his opponent, Periwinkle Trailer Park owner Jerry Muench. Hagerup garnered 1,133 votes; Muench won 824.

Planning Commissioner Louise Johnson with 871 votes and Island real estate broker Don Bissell with 682 votes were the top vote getters in the three-way race for the council seat being vacated by veteran councilman Porter Goss. Planning Commissioner Emily Barefield ran third with 406 votes.

At next week's run-off election Johnson and Bissell will battle it out and, according to most political observers, will afford Islanders a "clear choice."

Johnson, an avowed environmentalist whose top priority is preserving Sanibel's vegetation and wildlife, is counting heavily on her two years experience on the city's Planning Commission to put her front.

Bissell, a 12-year resident of the Islands, ran a low-key campaign the first time around and bills himself as the "quiet

New guidelines adopted for Rate of Growth procedure

By Barbara Brundage

A new ordinance regulating the system of receiving, evaluating and allocating dwelling units under the Rate of Growth was finally adopted by the City Council last Tuesday after months of discussion.

But the council exempted the November allocation process that took place Monday from the new rules and regulations.

Although Nov. 2 was set as the effective date for the ordinance that replaces the original 1978 document, the council agreed it would not apply to applications for development permits filed on or before Nov. 1, 1982. Nor will the new guidelines apply to applications were filed to that date but have not received a full allocation in and are carried over into the new ROGO year that began Nov. 1.

No dramatic changes were made in the regulations, but the council has recommended that further work be done on revising the point system criteria specifically as it applies to single-family applications.

Revisions that will affect future allocations include: defining multi-family housing as a structure containing more than one dwelling unit or a parcel of land containing more than one single-family structure or one or more duplex structures; classifying all new camp sites, mobile homes or houseboats as dwelling units; setting new deadlines for filing development permit applications prior to the end of any four-month ROGO period to at least 30 days for single-family and at least 64 days for multi-family construction; allowing unused balance of reserves to be carried forward to a subsequent Rate of Growth year for allocation to any category of housing upon annual consent of the council; applying beneficial use to any application that has received one or more allocations of dwelling units; defining phased development as the willingness of a developer to accept an allocation of as few as four dwelling units per year but does not require their construction; providing that if a structure(s) containing one or more existing dwelling unit(s) allocation(s) is to be relocated to a different site, the existing dwelling unit(s) may go with the structure to the new site and not require an allocation, or the existing dwelling unit(s) may stay with the original site and not require an allocation(s), thereby requiring the relocated structure to obtain a new allocation(s).

In a last minute switch just before the ordinance was adopted last Tuesday, the council decided to retain the seven-day limit within which the council may review the allocation process to determine whether the Planning Commission has properly applied the standards set forth in the ROGO ordinance.

The council had favorably considered the Planning Commission's recommendation to extend the period to 10 days. Allocations are not final until the council has determined

COTI recommends 'yes' for amendments

By Barbara Brundage

A "yes" vote on Nov. 16 for the 18 proposed amendments to Sanibel's City Charter has been recommended by the Committee of the Islands in a resolution passed unanimously by the COTI Board of Directors.

The amendments are the result of several months' deliberation by a council-appointed Ad Hoc Charter Revision Committee with extensive public input and subsequent modification and approval by the City Council.

According to COTI Chairman Bo Veal, many of the amendments bring the charter into conformity with state law, modify administrative and legislative procedures in order to streamline the functioning of local government and cut out redundant wording.

Of significance are three or four of the amendments, Veal said. One establishes the Planning Commission as a permanent part of city government, unless removed by referendum, but limits it to an advisory relationship with the City Council.

Another requires candidates for City Council to officially signify their intention to seek office 20 days before they file petitions to run for a specific seat on the council.

This new procedure, Veal said, should result in a slate with the strongest candidates for all seat open. It should also reduce the likelihood of run-off elections since it could lead to some potential candidates deciding not to file when the list of intended candidates is known.

The amendments requiring all ordinances to be reviewed once every 10 years and making the city attorney office a charter mandated position are also constructive, Veal said.

Parking permits offered at polls

The Sanibel Police Department will issue 1983 beach parking permits at the Sanibel Community Association all next Tuesday, Nov. 16, when Sanibel voters will return to the polls to fill Seat 5 on the City Council.

More than 780 parking permits were issued last Tuesday, Nov. 2, when voters went to the polls for the general election. All city voters seemed pleased to be able to purchase their parking stickers at the same time they cast their ballots, Police Chief John Butler said.

1982 beach parking permits expire on Nov. 30. In order to qualify for a $1 resident decal, an applicant must execute an affidavit declaring himself a Sanibel resident and produce one of the following: a valid Lee County voter registration card showing a Sanibel address, a valid Florida driver's license showing a Sanibel address, a certified copy of a declaration of domicile or a current tax bill of other document showing a homestead exemption on property within the city limits of Sanibel.

Non-resident permits are available for $1 to persons who, although they do not live in the city permanently, can show proof of ownership of Sanibel property. Restricted permits are available for $30 to all persons.

candidate who gets things done." He stresses that, "With Bissell on the council the land use plan and Islanders' rights under the plan are safer and more defensible."

He charges that Johnson's interpretation of the Comprehensive Land Use Plan as a planning commissioner has been "too rigid and inflexible" and promises his application of the land use plan to citizens' needs will be "practical and reasonable."

Johnson agrees there is an "essential difference" between her and her opponent and says voters will have a clear choice at the polls next Tuesday.

She says she will continue to try to win the council seat but will campaign at a slower pace during the final week. She will forego the "daily coffees" that were the mainstay of her campaign earlier but will make herself available to appear at club, civic or other group meetings to answer questions or clarify her position on any issue.

Both candidates are involved in community activities.

During his 12 years on the Island Bissell has served as vice president of the Sanibel-Captiva Chamber of Commerce and on the Board of Directors of the Community Association. He was Contributions Chairman of the Sanibel Community pool complex and chairman of the Residential Task Force for the Comprehensive Land Use Plan.

The father of six children, Bissell has served on the Advisory Board of the University of Florida's college of Arts and Sciences, on the Advisory Board and Booster Club at Cypress Lake High School.

Johnson, a former English professor, holds a doctor of arts degree from Syracuse University. She moved to Sanibel in 1977 with her husband, Arthur, and became active in the Island's conservation organizations.

Johnson served as chairperson of the Sanibel Nuclear Freeze Coalition and Sanibel's ERA Task Force. A member of the Planning Commission since 1980, she has also served on the city's Vegetation Committee and the Below Market Rate Housing Committee.

The turnout last Tuesday was 64.4 per cent of Sanibel's 2,826 registered voters.

Traditionally a run-off election draws fewer voters, but city officials hope that the 18 amendments to the city's charter that are also on next Tuesday's ballot will increase voter interest.

Poem decries 'Gulfside City'

To the Editor
The Islander

Gulfside City? Where is that?
I hear they've got a park there.
It's somewhere east of Ararat.
(Like Noah beached the Ark there?)

Whose park it is I think I know.
It's not in Gulfside City though.
Gulfside's the descriptive name —
To Sanibel's eternal shame.

Gulfside City — catchy phrase?
It gets to you in different ways.
It makes you sick.
It makes you mad.
But worst of all, you feel so sad.

Gulfside City Park? Dear God,
Please do not let it stand.
A ghastly name, not merely odd,
Betrays that sylvan strand.

Klein will miss fellow councilmen

To the Editor
The Islander

This past Tuesday was the last council meeting to be attended by Mayor Porter Goss and Councilman Duane White. I'd like to say a word about my two councilmen friends who are leaving office at this time.

The two years I have spent working with them have been not only educational and beneficial to me but very enjoyable as well.

I don't believe there are any two people on Sanibel more dedicated to keeping this Island a fine residential community.

All of us living here on Sanibel owe a great deal to these men. Many of you don't realize the hours of study they have spent, the mountains of documents they have reviewed, the numerous meetings they have attended, the thousands of letters they have answered, much less the countless hours they have lain awake searching for solutions to Island problems.

Although they have received no material compensation for all their effort, I know they must take great pride and satisfaction in knowing that they were instrumental in founding a new city and then in guiding it successfully through its formative years.

I will miss their wisdom and their quick wit, and I will miss working with them at the council table.

Sincerely,
Mike Klein

Mayor Porter Goss, with the approval of the City Council issued a proclamation on Nov. 2 recognizing the service to the community by Friends In Service Here during its first six months of operation.

Sincere thanks are extended to the mayor and to the members of the City Council for this act, and also for the time, thought, effort and sacrifice they have contributed for Sanibel.

Thanks are also due to the members of the Board of Directors of FISH who have guided it through an active adolescence. But most of all, credit goes to the dedicated volunteers, some 50 in number.

FISH of Sanibel is more ready than ever to respond to people calling 472-0404 requesting help for themselves or for someone else.

Finally, thanks to the press for its cooperation in publicizing the service available through FISH of Sanibel.

COMMENTARY

Eighteen proposed charter amendments deserve consideration

Sanibel's eight-year old City Charter may get its first overhaul by the voters next Tuesday. The charter is the pioneer one that was formulated shortly after the enactment of Florida's first Municipal Home Rule Act in 1968.

The 18 amendments proposed by the city's Charter Review Committee, composed of council and Planning Commission members and a sprinkling of laymen, are not earth-shaking.

They are mostly "house-keeping" types that can hardly be compared with the policy-establishing 10 Bill of Rights amendments of the National Constitution adopted four years after that document's original ratification. Nor are they as far-reaching as the three 1968 amendments to Florida's Constitution that combined to give the state an almost new charter whose centerpiece was Home Rule for local governments.

In the order in which the affected subjects appear in the charter and thus will appear on the Nov. 16 ballot, the 18 amendments propose:

1. Deleting an express authorization to expend money for publicizing or advertising the city.
2. Making it optional rather than mandatory for council members "to receive" their actual and necessary expenses.
3. Explicitly providing for the vice mayor to serve as acting mayor when the mayor's office is vacated by death, illness, resignation, forfeiture or removal. Vacancies must be filled, however, at the very next council meeting.
4. Easing the present ban on a former council member holding a paid city job within a year after leaving the council by permitting such a switch with a majority vote of the council.
5. Relaxing the current ban on council's interference with the city manager's functioning and requiring "a majority vote of at least three council members" to initiate any investigation of the city manager.
6. Changing "all" to "three or more" the requisite number of council vacant seats caused by "extraordinary vacancies" to trigger the governor's action to fill them on an interim basis, and specifying the charter provisions to be used to permanently fill those vacancies and designating the "seat number" to be assigned.
7. Adopting the state's definition of the word "resolution" and shortening the period of newspaper notices of action on same. Also deleting the present enumeration of actions requiring the use of ordinances.
8. Changing budget adoption actions to conform with current state law and eliminating the now-requirement handling of intro-budget appropriations.
9. Adding a new requirement that there shall be a minimum of five unpaid Planning Commissioners appointed by and to advise the council and perform such delegated duties as desired by the council.

10. Elaborating on the current procedure for council firing the city manager by "at least three council members," and providing for the city manager's appeal.

11. Eliminating the required council approval of the city manager's designation of an acting city manager in the former's absence and not to exceed a 30-day term.

12. Adding a new requirement that there shall be a city attorney appointed by the council to serve as a legal advisor to the council and city manager and handle the city's legal proceedings. He may be full-time or part-time and subject to removal by the same procedure as that for the city manager.

13. Prescribing that City Council candidates must declare their intentions to seek specific seats no later than 20 days before filing their supporters' nominating petition, and clarifying current charter procedures and forms for ballots.

14. Eliminating the charter's current unique and humane recall procedure and substituting therefore a state-mandated and mislabeled "uniform municipal recall" device created by the same 1974 Legislature that also endorsed our current recall procedure. (Voting against that amendment would express your preference for the Legislature to permit an alternative for the uniform mechanism.)

15. Providing additional signers' identification data for proposed initiative and referendum actions; and additional time for determining documentary sufficiency.

16. Requiring the City Council to review "within each even decade year" the city's charter, ordinances and resolutions and to follow-up with appropriate action.

17. Simplifying and speeding up the procedure for council delegating to the city manager routine ministerial duties and powers, and expressly empowering him to remove city employees under his jurisdiction.

18. Extending for another week the current interval of two weeks for conducting "run-off" elections for City Council members.

In my opinion, many of the proposed amendments, while worthy of documentation, are more of an operating manual nature and belong in ordinances and resolutions rather than in a basic policy charter such as our National Constitution.

It seems cumbersome and costly to freeze mutable operating procedures into our charter unnecessarily. Maybe a committee of ordinary citizens with diverse geographical and political backgrounds can someday be selected to develop better guidelines for the conduct of our municipal affairs and way of living on a barrier island.

Church must pay, council won't waive fees

The City Council last week stuck to a strict policy adopted last summer and turned down a request from St. Isabel's Catholic Church to waive approximately $4,000 in fees for permits required for the $450,000 expansion of the church now in progress.

On July 20 the council voted not to waive permitting fees for anyone, including churches or charitable and community-wide service organizations.

Bert Jenks, representing St. Isabel's, appealed to the council to waive the fees he said were "excessive and four times what Fort Myers or Fort Myers Beach charge." "Throughout history," Jenks said, "Churches have been granted favorable treatment by governments."

By comparison, Jenks said, permitting fees for the construction of a $450,000 church in Fort Myers were only $892, while Lee County's fees for permits for an $248,000 addition to the Church of the Ascension in Fort Myers were only $362.

Councilman Fred Valtin said he was surprised at the discrepancy in fees between Sanibel and neighboring municipalities.

Although he would not waive the fees, Valtin said he would favor "a lower level of permitting fees for the kinds of organizations that have an IRS tax exempt status." He suggested that staff come up with a formula for a reduced schedule of fees for these organizations.

Mayor Porter Goss said the discrepancy in fees did not surprise him at all. "Ours are set up so that growth will pay for itself," he said.

Councilman Mike Klein said he was willing to consider discounting the fees but suggested City Manager Bernie Murphy verify the permitting fees charged by other cities.

Goss pointed out that there is a basis in CLUP for special treatment for community-wide service organizations. He proposed the council stick with its policy not to waive fees but look for a way to reduce fees for tax-supported government agencies such as the Sanibel Public Library as well as churches and charitable and community-wide service groups.

Murphy said he could recommend ways to handle a reduced schedule of fees, but the final decision would be the council's. "I have a bias against exemptions because it puts a greater burden on someone else," Murphy said.

"It appears there is a reluctant consensus to take a look at some form of reduction," Goss said.

Jenks said St. Isabel's has already paid the city $2,620 for permits and the fees for landscaping, roofing, electrical, air conditioning and parking are estimated to be another $2,000.

SCCF acquires land with $10,000 grant

The Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation with the help of a $10,000 grant from the city has acquired 25 lots in Tarpon Bay subdivision and 21 lots in Sanibel Gardens to be preserved as open space. Malcolm Beattie, SCCF Land Acquisition chairman, reported the news to the City Council last week.

The foundation paid property owners $35,121, Beattie said, adding that $25,121 came from the Land Acquisition Fund. Three lots were donated to the foundation by the owners. Legal and tax costs connected with the purchases were also paid by the SCCF, Beattie said.

The city has pledged $10,000 annually for the next four years to SCCF, and Beattie said the foundation will continue its active campaign to acquire wetlands for preservation.

"We hope the city's 1983 grant will be available to us by April 1 in that year," he added.

Australian pine program report made to council

The first phase of the Periwinkle Way Australian Pine Management Program has been completed, City Manager Bernie Murphy reported to the City Council last Tuesday.

Five dead pine trees rated as a Class 20 hazard by the city's Vegetation Committee have been removed along Periwinkle Way, 11 trees have been trimmed and five clumps of pines have been thinned at a cost of $7,920.

Native vegetation including mastic, strangler figs, Jamaica dogwood, live oak, buttonwood and sweet acacia have been planted to replace the pines and maintain Periwinkle's countryside ambience. The total cost of the revegetation was $728, Murphy said.

The city's tree trimming program should not be confused with Lee County Electric Cooperative's on-going project trimming trees in the utility's easements, Murphy said, adding, "We have no control over their methods of operation."

Attorney's resignation accepted, proclamation expresses sincere thanks, commendation

The City Council last Tuesday formally accepted the resignation of City Attorney Neal Bowen, effective Jan. 14. The council issued an official proclamation expressing "sincere thanks and commendation for work well done" during Bowen's six-year tenure with the city.

Councilman Duane White, who read the proclamation at last Tuesday's council meeting, called Bowen "the most ethical man I've ever known. He would never violate a confidence."

The proclamation lauds Bowen for his adroitness and success "in supporting and defending the city of Sanibel's innovative Comprehensive Land Use Plan, which is in the vanguard of land use planning and environmental protection."

Councilman Mike Klein, who is working with Bowen in the search for his replacement, complimented Bowen on his ability to explain legal procedures in a "crisp, concise manner and with humor to make them more palatable."

"I only hope we will get someone with half Neal's capability," Klein added.

Klein said an advertisement had been placed in the Florida Bar News, with Dec. 13 the cut-off date for accepting applications.

Two resumes from attorneys have already been received, and Bowen predicted that at least 100 replies could be expected in response to the ad.

Klein suggested that each councilman should screen all applications and pick 10 for consideration.

The two retiring councilman came in for kudos also when Urban Palmer, president of the Committee of Neighborhood Associations, presented plaques to Mayor Porter Goss and Councilman White on behalf of CONA.

Palmer said the presentation was made as a "little token of our gratification" and recognition of Goss' and White's "devotion to preserving the integrity of Sanibel's residential neighborhoods."

Alternative sought for canal district

In the wake of a judgment invalidating the Shell Harbor Canal Maintenance District, the City Council last Tuesday voted unanimously to "wind up the affairs" of the special taxing district and to look into other options for dredging the five-mile network of canals in the Shell Harbor area.

Circuit Court Judge Robert Shafer's ruling in favor of the Mariner Pointe Condominium Property Owners Association abolished the district for all practical purposes, City Attorney Neal Bowen informed the council. The condominium association filed suit against the district for exemption from its jurisdiction.

Shafer upheld the association's charge that the original engineering survey setting up the district's boundaries was incorrect and ruled the Mariner Pointe complex should not have been included in the taxing district.

Bowen did not recommend that the city appeal Shafer's decision, nor did Bob Crossman, president of the Shell Harbor Property Owners Association that spearheaded the move for a special taxing district to finance dredging and maintenance of the canals that are in danger of becoming unnavigable.

"We have no relish for an appeal," Crossman said. He agreed with Shell Harbor resident Drum Bradley that the city should "wipe the slate clean, refund tax monies collected from the property owners and begin addressing as soon as possible other options to get the work done."

The district has been in limbo since Mariner Pointe started litigation more than a year ago protesting the ad valorem tax method for financing the dredging operations.

Under that mode the Mariner Pointe owners claimed that although they had only 3 percent of the total canal frontage they were paying for 25 percent of the cost of operation.

More than $300,000 in taxes collected in 1981 has been held in escrow and has earned more than $20,000 in interest, which was used to reimburse the city for start-up expenses of the district.

Attorney William Haverfield, who represents the Mariner Pointe owners, said his clients would drop their claim to a share of the earned interest in exchange for the city's pledge not to appeal Shafer's decision. Bowen and Haverfield will draw up a final judgment based on this "trade-off" for Shafer's signature.

City Manager Bernie Murphy, as executive director of the district, was authorized to arrange for a complete audit for the fiscal year and begin negotiations with the county Tax Collectors Office for the refund of tax monies to property owners in the district.

Because of myriad problems in the tax office, Bowen said he could not predict when the refunds might be forthcoming. "It will be up to the judge to determine what is a reasonable time," he said.

"Though the district is dead, the problem remains (canals that need dredging) and we need to find a solution," Mayor Porter Goss said.

Stringent code would ensure construction resistance to hurricane winds

By Barbara Brundage

Sanibel City Council will begin serious consideration next month of a more stringent building code designed to ensure construction that will be resistant to 140-mile hurricane force winds.

Dr. Herbert Saffir, an engineering consultant who drew the specifications for the construction of a "refuge of last resort" at the new City Hall, will be on hand at a special council meeting at 1 p.m. Dec. 15 when an ordinance authored by Building Officer George Blain will be discussed.

Also invited to participate are members of the Sanibel-Captiva Contractors Association and other Island builders.

The ordinance was introduced last Tuesday at first reading. It utilizes Blain's experience with a team from the city that witnessed the destruction wrought by Hurricane Frederick on Dauphin Island, Ala.

But retired engineer Robert Godman of Cape Coral, who helped that city draft a new hurricane construction code, said Sanibel's new code is not strict enough. He criticized the use of nails instead of steel bolts to hold down roof trusses and said the practice does not even meet the standard building code.

Building to withstand only 140-mile winds is not enough on an Island that lies in the path of prevailing hurricanes, he added.

Godman offered to review Sanibel's code free of charge as a public service.

Some builders have already expressed concern that the stricter code would raise the cost of construction to an exorbitant level, but the contractor's association is eyeing the new rules with interest.

That group has suggested that the proper way to upgrade the quality of construction is by strengthening the building code and not by a point evaluation system using a set of criteria as is currently done in the ROGO allocation process.

The ordinance has been advertised for second reading on Nov. 16, but City Manager Bernie Murphy recommended that the council continue the hearing at that time until the scheduled Dec. 15 workshop.

ON THE WATER

By Captain Mike Fuery

It took a few days of settled weather after our first cold fronts, but right now we are in the middle of a run of the largest Spanish mackerel we've seen in recent years.

The mackerel showed up around the first of the month, working baitfish around the passes and off shore of Sanibel and Captiva Islands. Catches of 25-35 are not unusual, but what is interesting is the larger size than we normally see in these fish.

Our usual Spanish mackerel are from the legal 12-inch length up to about 15 inches or so. We have seen some this fall, however, up to 18 and 24 inches. That's a big mackerel for us and a handful on the light tackle fishing equipment we use.

In with the mackerel are bluefish, but I would expect that over the next few weeks we will see the mackerel move south, and the majority of the larger catches will come from blues.

The birds are still marking the way to the good coastal fishing along the Islands. One day last week when I was returning late in the afternoon with a shelling party, we watched perhaps 300 gulls and pelicans working over a feeding school of fish. If you ever get to see such a sight you will always remember the racket created by the crying birds as they race to catch bait and keep up with the schools of mackerel, blues and other fish.

Most of the guides are starting out trolling with silver spoons. But in a couple of instances with the larger mackerel, we've lost every one of our lures on a trip.

Even with the wire leader the fish can cut off your fishing line at the leader swivel. These lures cost about $1.50 each, so the loss of half a dozen in a trip costs some money. If you have the fish in the locker to show for the money and effort, then it's not so bad.

When we run out of spoons we usually have to go to feathers or jigs. They work just as well in most instances but are subject to being cut off more often. The jigs usually sell three for $1.50.

Here are some thoughts on spoons. A year ago a customer of mine who does a lot of freshwater fishing brought me a large bag of assorted spoons that northern fishermen like to use. Not a one of them looked like the sleek, uncluttered silver spoon designs we use down here.

We were smack in the middle of a school of crashing blues and mackerel the other day when I decided to let my charter group experiment with some of the freshwater contraptions.

The first I took out of the bag had a large treble hook with a feather attached to that and above the hook was a large golden spinner. I was laughing so hard at the sight of it that we all bet there wouldn't be a bite on such a lure.

It wasn't out 30 seconds before a mackerel surfaced behind the trolled spoon. We tried another, this one with a spinner and a skinny gold body and another treble hook. Still another fish.

Then we got into the most ridiculous looking lures I've ever seen in a tackle box, and even they worked just fine. That's the way it goes when the fish are feeding like that. But it's fun to get a strike on something that looks like the creation of a person with an odd imagination.

One thing I didn't like about the weird outfits was the treble hook. They are too difficult to get out of the toothy mouth of a mackerel or blue. But they can come flying out of the fish's mouth and get caught in you, too. Stick to the single hook lures when you fish for mackerel and blues.

SHELLING TIPS

By Captain Mike Fuery

I am often asked if there are times of the year when certain shells are found on our beaches that would be difficult to find during other months of the year.

I can't really name one particular dead shell that might fall into this category, but I do see how collectors might find this does happen.

One comment I hear goes like this: "Last year we found all the olives we wanted down around the Lighthouse. The year before that we found wentletraps there. Now we can't find either one."

Or people say they came down last June and found certain shells on a particular beach. They returned in December and found totally different shells and couldn't find any of the summer shells.

Are there shell seasons? I don't really think so. Rather, there are conditions that allow certain shells to come to an area.

In the summer months we typically have light winds from the east and gentle sea breezes from the west in the afternoons. In other words, the sea conditions are relatively calm. There are exceptions; for instance hurricane conditions, but overall the summer months are ideal.

Summer visitors enjoy wading offshore and walking in chest deep waters to find sand dollars. Some dollars are dead and some are alive; but they are there and many are found.

The same people come back in the winter months. The weather is cold, the water temperatures are in the high 50s and the seas are kicked up so they can't get in the waters to shell. And no sand dollars are found.

So the same people see a difference in all the shells they find, not only in the sand dollar. Other creatures like urchins, whelks, conchs and tulips are affected by the water conditions. That explains the different shells found on the beach from season to season.

But there are still some hard-to-explain shell appearances on the beaches. Some years just seem to be better for various shells.

I remember two years ago we found about a dozen Scotch bonnets on some of the northern islands, and I don't recall finding half that many since. Same goes for that most elusive of shells, the junonia. Some years are easier than others, but never will this shell be found in large numbers.

Sometimes the baby's ear and false angel wings are easy to pick out of the shells that line the shore; other times of the year you can't buy either one.

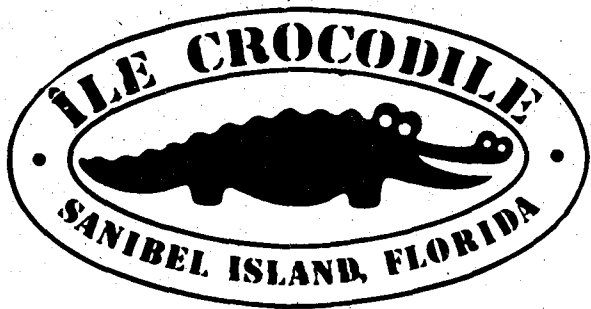

You will definitely see differences in what comes to the beaches if you visit our Islands several times during the same year. It's not that they are in some secret natural timetable of making beach trips, but rather that they are the victims of waves, wind and other sea conditions.

In late winter it's not unusual to see more whelks on the flats producing eggs and cases for their young.

Good shelling this week, and remember the limit of two live shells per species per person.

New City Council faces 'exciting challenge' with CLUP review, discussions

By Barbara Brundage

The new City Council that will be seated Dec. 7 will face an "exciting challenge" when discussions of the Five Year Evaluation and Appraisal of Sanibel's Comprehensive Land Use Plan and the Planning Department's study of intensity of use begin in earnest.

Retiring Councilmen Porter Goss and Duane White have flung the gauntlet to their successors to carry on in making decisions they believe could lead to a major overhaul of CLUP.

The presentation of the 210-page CLUP Evaluation and Appraisal report to the council for first reading last Tuesday was just to "start the clock running" for the lengthy procedure required to adopt a general amendment, Goss explained.

Before the second hearing set for 5:01 p.m. Nov. 16, Goss suggested that all councilmen including newly elected Councilman Bill Hagerup be prepared to identify some of the issues.

"There are many decisions to be considered and this document opens up every issue ever discussed since the city was incorporated," Goss said. "We must set up a program of how to address these issues and outline steps to grapple with the problems."

"I predict it will take a year and a half to get all the ordinances generated by this document on the books," White said.

White will not take part in the discussions on Nov. 16. He will step down after Hagerup takes the oath of office as the first order of business.

Councilman Mike Klein, who is vacationing in Nepal and other remote areas of Asia, will not be present. Goss will be on hand until the winner of his seat in the Nov. 16 run-off is sworn in at the Dec. 7 council meeting.

Assistant Planning Director Bob Duane pointed out that the dwelling unit occupancy study and a compendium of facts and figures pertaining to intensity of use the council received Tuesday (totalling 67 pages) goes along with the Land Use Element of CLUP.

"They make good reading together," Duane, who researched the intensity of use study, advised the council.

Duane said Reed Liming, a former planner with the now-defunct Planning Department of the city of Fort Myers, has been retained to assist in updating CLUP and speed up the process.

None of the council last Tuesday was prepared to discuss the intensity of use question. City Manager Bernie Murphy said staff at this time was merely looking for direction on how to proceed.

Councilman Valtin said the subject is worthy of a special council meeting

Dec. 15 was set as the date for the new council to begin coming to grips with the substance of the study. The discussion will begin at 9 a.m.

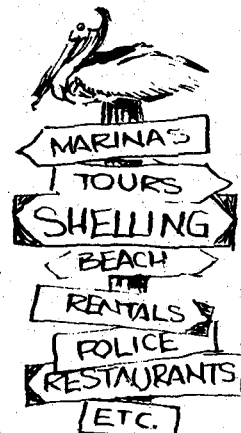

Goss suggested the focus should be on both residential and non-residential use and buildback options.

"This study makes it very apparent that if we don't do anything our community will change," Goss warned, citing the grisly prospect of daily bumper-to-bumper traffic on Periwinkle Way by the year 2000.

"This is a bone for the new council to chew on, and I would hope the issue will be kept on the front burner," he added.

Humans need iron-rich food to make hemoglobin, the oxygen-carrying part of red blood cells. Research shows that tea-drinking can reduce iron absorption from food by as much as 95%. AN EYE FOR THE ISLANDS

By Maggie Greenberg

The Season is almost upon us! Certainly all Islanders have observed countless little harbingers of the annual onslaught -- which makes many of us wish that we might hibernate for the duration.

Bailey's and Periwinkle Way are the most obvious seasonal barometers. Shopping at our peerless emporium has not yet become an exercise in battling with bedlam. However, recent difficulties in maneuvering my cart in a systematic manner remind me that I must soon juggle my schedule to accommodate 8 a.m. food forays.

Cutting across one lane of traffic on Periwinkle is now rather problematical; cutting across both lanes is nearly suicidal. Since my car has never responded with the celerity of a startled swamp bunny, I am frequently stranded at the corner of Dixie Beach Boulevard and Periwinkle Way. When I finally sight a break in the steady stream of cars to my right, I inch forward -- praying that the oncoming cars to my left (well hidden by all that "native vegetation" around the bend) will not reduce me to a gory, concise column in the weekly police report.

Indeed, it has almost reached the point where only two species of drivers will allow me to conduct my motorized movements with a degree of decorum and dispatch:

1. Drivers of vehicles bearing Island license plates, and
2. Drivers of vehicles bearing all kinds of license plates -- as long as I am backing out of a choice parking space at Bailey's.

On our beaches I have noted a distinct increase in the number of people doubled over in the most incongruous positions, ever hopeful of finding the elusive Junonia that may roll up to the feet of a seasoned sheller or to the feet of a toddler in diapers. (Frankly, it always irks me to think that such a prize should be so utterly indiscriminating with regard to its final destination.)

During our recent, record-breaking cold spell, many people were walking the beach shortly after dawn in bathing suits! (Surely they were not Islanders.) Moreover, as I jog along I must now keep my eyes trained on the sand in order to avoid all the potholes left by enthusiastic (but most untidy) young sand castle architects. While I have never defiled a sand castle, I may well revert to the state of nature ("mean, nasty, brutish and short") should I sprain an ankle in a pothole.

Yet another reason for jogging with my head down is the very sharp increase in our coastal canine population. These four-legged tourists tend to leave a great deal that is not at all desired when they are out for "walkies" -- in the Woodhouse way, to be sure.

While our stores, roads and beaches provide distinct intimations of the coming Season, current construction is most certainly a dead giveaway. Only in Florida is major construction timed to be untimely.

Although our Islands are exceptional in many respects, we are unable to avoid the mindless schedules and schemes of those who never outgrew their youthful addiction to erector sets. (Whatever happened to, "But when I became a man, I put away childish things"?)

Thus, Palm Ridge Road throbs with the persistently monotonous "kerthump, kerthump" of a relentless pile driver. The pile driver is but an ear-shattering symbol of a determination to transform that area into a major commercial "nodule."

Perhaps Islanders are now more aware of Palm Ridge Road than they have ever been before. We must all go down that thoroughfare, turn by the library and then attempt to negotiate a left (followed by a right) in order to reach the exit-entrance of our Post Office.

Unconscionable numbers of highly-paid workmen always seem to be hanging around -- bearing bright, orange flags -- ever ready to halt the flow of left-to-right traffic on its way to our lifeline to the world.

"How long is this road construction expected to go on?" I asked a postal clerk.

"Oh, for several months at least."

"Right into The Season?"

"Yeah. People are coming in here, hoarding stamps like squirrels. Anyone who makes it deserves a medal!"

Actually, I have a theory about untimely construction in our Sunshine State. According to this theory, which absolves everyone involved of any guilt, construction workers move about the country in accordance with the seasons (i.e., the barometric seasons, not the tourist seasons).

When horrendous heat and biting bugs hit Florida with a vengeance, the mighty army of migrant hats moves north to carry out its mission of destruction and construction. Then, when northern frosts threaten the comfort of the army, its regiments follow the flight of the birds to more hospitable climes.

Thus, Sanibel is blessed with all the inconveniences of destruction-construction on the very eve of The Season. (While Napoleon's army may well have marched on its stomach all the way to Moscow, the lack of warm woolies proved to be disastrous.)

Someone once wrote a book entitled, The Reason Why. As I recall, this edifying historical analysis was devoted to an explanation of the inevitability of the Crimean War. (If I am in error as to the particular war in question, surely any war will do. After all, it's the thought that counts.)

In any event, it is always rather comforting to know why we are afflicted with the unacceptable. Thus, construction is upon us, The Season is nearly upon us, and there is absolutely nothing that we can do to alter the inexorable course of either the former or the latter.

Chapel Historic

By Carol Kranichfeld

The building has stood since 1901, when it opened as the Island's first schoolhouse. That says Captiva resident Peg Hofschneider, is reason enough to seek both county and state historic designation for the Chapel By The Sea and the Captiva Cemetery.

Located on land originally owned by a colorful character, William Herbert Binder, who first landed on Captiva's shore on debris from his shipwrecked sailboat, the Chapel By The Sea boasts an original board of directors including ancestors of some of the best-known Island families today: Bailey, Bixby, Beals, Dickey, Ault, Erler, Gillet and Wiles.

The chapel and cemetery's beginning is a story in itself, owing to young Ann Emma Brainerd, who emigrated with her parents and brother from Canada to Buck Key in 1900. The little girl fell in love with Binder's gulf-front property and persuaded her parents to let her purchase a small tract with the gold coin given her by her grandmother when the family left Canada.

Young Ann bought her tract of land, extracting a promise from her parents, Hattie and Herbert, to bury her there when she died. Within one year, Hattie and Herbert were destined to fulfill their promise to their daughter, when she stepped on a rusty nail and died of tetanus poisoning.

The family donated the tract of land to Captiva, which purchased another larger tract of land from Binder. And the Captiva Cemetery was born.

Both Sanibel and Captiva students attended classes taught by Robert K... in the tiny schoolhouse that was later renovated to serve as a Sunday school.

building also provided a pulpit for the Rev. C.W. Kennedy, the first circuit preacher who began delivering sermons on Sunday, Jan. 2, 1949. He had arrived on the Islands the day before on the mailboat from Fort Myers.

At the beginning of his affiliation with the Chapel By The Sea (then known as the Wayside Chapel), Kennedy was put up at the Gulf View Inn (now Captiva's Mucky Duck Restaurant). He would make the short trek from the inn to the chapel to minister and mingle with his fellowship at picnics and other after-chapel get togethers.

Kennedy was to be the chapel's only minister until 1951, staying with the fellowship even after its purchase by the Florida Annual Conference of Methodist Church Corporation in 1921.

He was provided a manse to serve as his residence in 1950, shortly before the chapel received its first organ (donated by Mary Bailey and played by Julie Miller, the chapel's first organist). He conducted Chapel By The Sea's first wedding in that same year between Sarah Ruth Wedekind and John Bailey, brother of Sanibel City Councilman Francis Bailey.

The chapel's first baptism was also performed by the Kennedy, when he initiated June Rosse, the daughter of Andy and the late Dessa Rosse. Also among the first to be baptized at the chapel were Charlotta and Carolyn Wiles, the daughters of T.M. and Beulah Wiles.

Other "firsts" at the chapel involved ancestors of some household Island names. The first funeral, for example, was for Mrs.

John Engle, the former owner of Twin Palm Cottages.

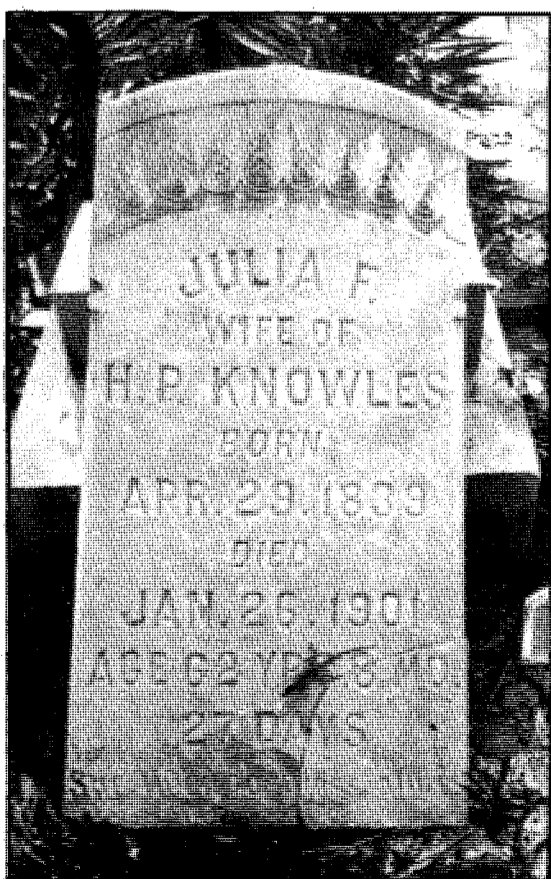

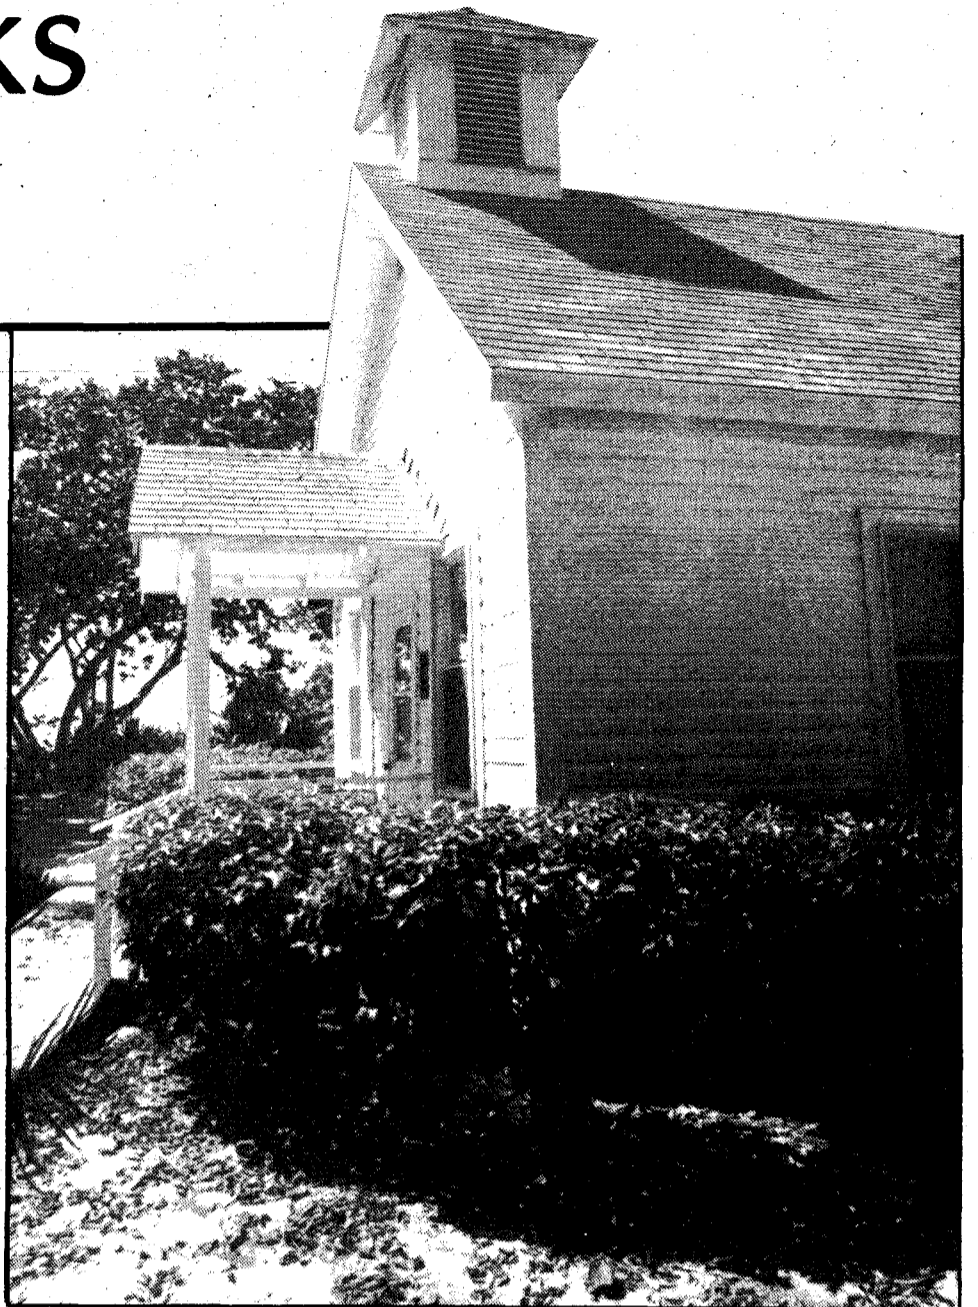

The church was reorganized under the Captiva Civic Association, and in 1954 the chapel trustees saw fit to sell the church building to the Chapel By The Sea, which purchased the historic site for $2,500. The transaction was made under one stipulation, however, that the church would revert to Methodist "should the property ever be discontinued as an evangelical religious meeting place for more than two consecutive years, unless by war or other catastrophe."

The cemetery was deeded to the Chapel By The Sea after chapel trustees refused to pay for the property but promised to accept responsibility for the cemetery's perpetual maintenance.

The last change in the structures on the original Binder property occurred in 1961, when a small addition was made to the church in memory of Herman Dickey, father of Captiva resident Marie Dickey Kalman. The addition is now used for dressing rooms for bridal parties.

The chapel is presently governed by an annually elected board and is designated as non-sectarian. Its ministers contract for one year (contracts may be renewed for three consecutive years), deliver sermons from November through Easter and are compensated by chapel donations.

Plots in the cemetery are at a premium today, but burials are still performed there. The board asks only that the services are for Captiva residents who regularly attended Chapel By The Sea services.

For a man who came to Sanibel just to see "a steamboat on the beach" mentioned by a friend, restaurateur Bud Locicero has put down some mighty deep roots.

The owner of McT's Shrimp House recently put out his seafood flag at another Island eatery, Pepper's, in Tahitian Gardens.

The burly, dynamic Islander is obviously totally infatuated with his new endeavor and is giving it his all. The wholehearted thrust of his energies to Pepper's seems to be a way of life for Bud, who gives his all to everything he does.

A professional drummer since the tender age of 13 (his first job was in the Poconos), Bud says he made his living making music until he arrived on Sanibel. He worked his way up through the ranks to play with the likes of Joe Walsh and did his share of road work and studio recordings.

"I was probably a lot like Danny Morgan," he says. "But it got to the point where I was playing for my house payments, so I quit."

He considers himself lucky, as, "Most of the people I know who played music are divorced or were mentally or physically destroyed." He, however, was fortunate to marry Mary, a woman who "was incredibly understanding and patient through all the years I played."

The financial advantages of performing weren't all that important, Bud says, although he admits his paychecks from various gigs provided the family's bread and butter, even when he took on a second job.

"Money just isn't all that important. Today I may have it and tomorrow, maybe I won't," he says. "It doesn't really matter."

The former Ohio resident and restaurant owner in the town where Kent State University lies, Bud feels he is at least partially a product of the days when Kent State rose to fame because of its student marches (1970).

"I was there when the professors were handing out flyers on how to make molotov cocktails," he remembers. "It was then I began to realize that freedom is something that people misuse or don't use at all."

Freedom seems unusually important to Bud, who went on to work for the governor of Ohio (Gilligan) as a grantsman. He discovered some "corruption in the ranks" and set out to expose it -- a move that displeased his higher-ups. He went on vacation, and when he returned 15 of his employees had been fired.

"People were getting hurt, and that was hard," he says. "After several tactics like that, they offered to drop that $100,000 lawsuit they had filed against me if I quit by midnight the same day."

"I had to run for cover, but there was no place to run," Bud recalls. "So I bought a bar."

Packing up the kids and the rest of the family in a camper, Bud and company headed south. "We spent New Year's Eve at Disneyland," he says. "I remembered thinking that here I was in my shirt sleeves with a warm breeze all around me -- on New Year's Eve, no less! It was just dynamite."

That, Bud says, is when he realized he "really wanted to go to the sun."

Since opening up the first McT's at the Castaways Cottages, Bud has learned a lot about freedom -- including freedom for women, thanks to his three daughters and especially his wife.

"We were down at the Lee County Courthouse not long ago, and my daughters were astounded. Most of the people sitting behind desks doing the same thing day after day were women," he says. "I don't want my girls to sit behind a desk like that. I want them to be able to compete to whatever degree they want to."

As an "independent sort of person," Bud no doubt will give his daughters every opportunity to do just that. And in the meantime, he'll be "people-watching" at Pepper's. "They bring energy into your soul," he says. "Just like a good lick at the drums."

CEPD directors take questions about taxing units

By Carol Kranichfeld

A round of questions from the audience concerning Municipal Service Taxing Unit voting distribution was put to the directors last Monday at the Captiva Erosion Prevention District's November meeting.

The queries centered on the apportioning of MSTU votes to individual homeowners versus condominium owners. CEPD Chairman Dick Butze responded to the questions and explained that every property owner will be entitled to one vote, irrespective of the amount of beachfront property owned. Condominium owners who jointly own the land upon which their building stands also will be entitled to one vote each, he explained.

Petitions for the special taxing unit to renourish the southern portion of Captiva will be mailed to each landowner next week.

Although Butze emphasized the voting distribution was not a method "thought up" by the CEPD board, Commissioner Ed Olling contended that allotting each condominium owner one vote is "illegal and unconstitutional." Olling said he will take the issue to court if the petition indicates that, for example, each Sunset-Captiva condominium owner is entitled to one vote.

Petitioners, who include property owners from South Seas to the southern end of Captiva, will have six weeks to vote on the MSTU plan, added Butze. A hard upper limit of $3.5 million has been established for the renourishment plan, he said.

Ready answers were not available for a question from the floor concerning additional taxes should "unforeseen circumstances" (such as inclement weather) require additional funding for the renourishment project. Butze said he would look into the matter.

Approximate tentative assessments for property owners are as follows: $125 per gulf-front foot for single-family residents from the S-curve to the Captiva Post Office; $250 for private homeowners south of the Post Office; $450 for condos and multiple-family residents south of the Post Office; and $525 for commercial and public frontage.

State funds for the renourishment may total $2 million, said Project Manager Dick Stevens, who reported CEPD's $1 million request from the county is still active and will be added to the $3.5 million maximum CEPD expects to bill Captiva residents.

Workshops will be held this month and in December to explain the entire MSTU system to Captiva residents, who will be expected to turn in their final vote by Jan. 1, 1983.

THE WAY WE WERE

20 Years Ago This Week 1962

The Lee County Commission has signed an agreement with Walter Turner that will provide Lee County and the Islands with a 2½-mile-wide public beach on the southern end of Captiva by the end of 1982.

The first 2,500 feet of beachfront near the Blind Pass will be paid for at a rate of $25,000 a year. In five years the county will be able to pick up its option for the second section for the same rate and so forth until the county owns the complete 2½ miles.

Under the agreement with Turner, the county will not remove any trees from the property or allow any waste to accumulate. The county also agreed not to put any permanent structures on the land without Turner's approval.

The beachfront land is part of the property that was homesteaded by Turner's father, who was a county commissioner for the Island district from 1911-1923.

Sanibel resident Dr. Charles Fishburne will speak at a public meeting this week about proposals to reorganize the Lee County government.

Fishburne urges communities such as Sanibel and Captiva to resist incorporation and instead recommends a stronger county government, saying a proliferation of local authorities is doomed to inefficiency and failure to meet the needs of a growing area.

In order to increase the scope and effectiveness of its activities in wildlife protection and conservation, the Sanibel-Captiva Audubon Society is conducting a vigorous drive aimed at doubling its membership. Already 37 new members have joined the organization.

Long-time Islander recommends Johnson for council

To the Editor
The Islander

Now we must choose between two candidates for Sanibel City Council Seat 5. Both of those candidates are honest and sincere persons. However, one of them stands out as the very best choice for our community: Louise Johnson.

Louise is the one who has worked hard for years as Planning Commissioner. She is the only who really knows the CLUP and will defend its fundamental principles. She is the only who will always work to keep Sanibel a residential community where we will want to continue to live.

I intend to vote for Louise Johnson on Nov. 16. It is important that we give her a large plurality. Vote for Louise Johnson on Nov. 16.

Arthur Hunter
Sanibel

Resident outlines Bissell's qualifications from page 4A

Don Bissell will do the more outstanding job in representing all citizens of Sanibel. Here are a few reasons why:

1. Helped establish the Comprehensive Land Use Plan. After the formation of our city, he was appointed by Duane White, then Planning Commission chairman, as chairman of the Subdivision Task Force that provided much support for the WMRT planners in writing the original CLUP.

2. A principled person. Folks just aren't any more principled than Don! For example, as a business person he has opposed interval and time sharing and has refused to permit his real estate business to enter into that market.

3. Has actively worked for our community for over 12 years. His list includes the following: Sanibel Community Association Board, Church Board, Chamber of Commerce Board, Fire Control District Board (Captiva).

4. Concerned about our youth. Served as Cypress Lake High School Booster Club president, on Community Pool Board, Community Recreation Facility Board, Volunteer High School Basketball Coach, CYO Board.

5. Concerned with the arts, sciences and education. He serves on the advisory board of the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Florida and on the Advisory Board at Cypress Lake High School.

6. Knowledgeable about zoning and buildback. His appointment to a CLUP task force recognized his expertise in this critical area. He was first to express concerns about single-family buildback problems inherent in our present plan. He has opposed the over building in multi-family housing on Sanibel and is dedicated to its control.

7. A real "people" person. His leadership in community and business activities is good evidence of his ability to deal with the multiple needs of people. Indeed, Don is a master at bringing folks together. This is perhaps his greatest single skill, and we need it!

8. A pragmatist with his feet on the ground. You won't find Don in a "way" position. His feet are always tastefully placed on the good earth, with due regard, of course, for all forms of life.

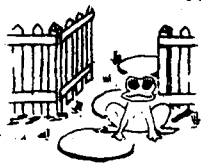

In short, I know and like both candidates. But we need Don's demonstrated skills.

Don Bissell will bring additional balance, sensitivity and common sense to city government. Let's all give him our support! Don is a natural for the job!

Sincerely,
William "Bill" Frey, Ph.D.

Supporter thanks Barefield for candidacy

To the Editor
The Islander

Our thanks to Emily Barefield for running a constructive candidacy for City Council. The Island can be grateful that we have people like Emily whose dedication would prompt them to undertake such an arduous task. And this goes for Jerry Muench as well.

We're also grateful for Emily's continuing service to all of us on the Planning Commission as well as the many other responsibilities she'll volunteer to accept, as she has so unselfishly in the past. All hail to you, Emily.

Senior citizens voice vote for Bissell

The following is our opinion. We would appreciate your publishing it in your paper.

As concerned senior citizens and lovers of Sanibel since 1972, it is our sincere and honest opinion that Don Bissell, because of his integrity and sensible, practical attitude, can serve "all our citizens" for the utmost benefit to them and our Island.

There is only one candidate in the run-off election Nov. 16 for Sanibel City Council Seat 5 who is capable of flexibility of judgment required for the job.

It has been learned by dedication to community service for 12 years on Sanibel and Captiva and 15 years prior community service in Indianapolis, Ind.

We hope Sanibel voters prove their true concern for Sanibel's future and elect Don Bissell to the Sanibel City Council!

All information in the following reports was taken directly from Sanibel Police Department records.

A Camden, Ohio, resident reported between $120 and $220 was missing from a wallet in a unit at Oceans Reach condominiums on Friday afternoon, Oct. 29. The money was taken sometime between 10 a.m. and noon that day.

Police discovered the screen door was forced open to gain entry to the unit. They later arrested 19-year-old Timothy Michael Young, 444 Lagoon Drive, for the burglary.

Young had been working on landscaping by the pool at the condominiums Friday morning. He was charged with the third degree felony of burglary of a structure.

Police investigated an attempted burglary at 998 Greenwood Court on Friday evening, Oct. 29. The screen on a sliding kitchen window was bent and the window could have been easily opened. No entry was gained, however, and nothing around the house was disturbed.

A Fort Myers man reported a $125 cassette deck was stolen from his unlocked car while it was parked at the Timbers restaurant sometime between 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 29.

A West Gulf Drive resident complained of cars racing along Rabbit Road early Saturday morning, Oct. 30. Officers patrolled the area but found nothing suspicious.

A Sage Court resident told police two 10-year-old boys on bicycles were weaving on and off the Periwinkle Way bike path on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 30. The woman expressed concern for the boys' safety. Police did not locate the boys.

A woman in a brown Cadillac reportedly tried to run a man riding a tractor off Umbrella Pool Road on Saturday evening, Oct. 30. The man's parents complained to police and said their son was hired by the Sanibel Bayous neighborhood association to chip Brazilian peppers in the area. They also said the woman in the brown Cadillac lives

Police looked for reported motorcycles racing along Sandcastle Road on Thursday evening, Nov. 4, but found nothing suspicious.

A Sandcastle Road resident called police for assistance after his truck became stuck in a ditch along Bailey Road on Thursday night, Nov. 4. The man told police he missed his turn and was backing up when he went into the ditch. Island Exxon was called to tow the truck. There was no damage to the truck.

Church commended for off-duty work in Fort Myers

Police Officer Dick Church was commended last week by Chief John Butler for his part in arresting a purse snatcher in Fort Myers.

Church and his wife, Donna, own and operate a day care center in Fort Myers. On Oct. 15 and 22 they received reports from two women whose purses were stolen from their cars while the women checked their children into the day center in the early morning.

Both thefts were reported to the Lee County Sheriff's Department, and one purse was recovered several days later by someone collecting cans along the road.

On Friday, Oct. 29, Church decided to try to nab the thief. He hid outside the day care center at 5:30 a.m. and waited for the subject to try again.

At 6:30 a.m. a woman arrived to drop off her son. She left the overhead light on in her car and took her son inside. Church then saw a white male later identified as Richard Miller, 23, move toward the car from a hiding place.

As Miller entered the car and grabbed the woman's purse, Church approached and ordered Miller to the ground. Sheriff's deputies were then advised, and Miller was taken to the Lee County Jail.

He holds a bachelor's degree in education from the University of South Florida. His wife Meri teaches at Sanibel Elementary School. The Rhodes have two children, Andrea and Raymond Michael.

The graduation ceremonies for the first criminal justice class of the Southwest Florida Police Academy will take place on Dec. 3 at the Fort Myers High School auditorium.

Henry was charged with failure to signal. Essex was charged with violation of limitations on passing.

No charges were filed after a parking lot accident at Huxter's Market on Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 3. Carl Allen Wright of Fort Myers backed out of a parking space and struck a parked car belonging to George Duane Melling of Alabama. Police estimated there was no damage to Wright's 1973 Chevrolet and $85 damage to Melling's 1976 Mazda.

Conservation through utilization:

Use them or lose them

By George Campbell

Illustrated by Ann Winterbotham

NAIROBI, Nov. 7 - Mankind is increasing out of hand. In 1900 there were a billion people; now there are four to five times that number, depending on whose count you accept.

But scientists the world over agree that we are far outstripping and overusing Earth's resources, regardless of what Interior Secretary James Watt and people of his stripe contend.

Each year we add 70 to 100 million people. And there seems to be no slacking off in this increase, especially in Third World countries, where the needs and problems are greatest. And between a third and half of all the world's people are undernourished or malnourished.

Some headway in population control is being made in China. There "planned parenthood" means just that: planned parenthood. Second and children are frowned upon and officially deprived; their parents are penalized. Single-child families are privileged, with more food, clothing and other essentials per capita made available.

But in China - at least in Central and Eastern China, where I have visited on trips to that fascinating country - the forests are largely gone and wildlife is no more. The world's only Alligator other than our own Florida form is severely stressed. That living progenitor of the mythical Chinese Dragon seems doomed to extinction.

In India the girls use IUDs for earrings. Only in the Sacred Cow is the IUD (XL, of course!) successful.

India's population explosion may, one day soon, catch up with China's. Then two out of every five people will be Indian or Chinese.

Here in Kenya is found one of the highest birth rates in the world: about 3.7. Here, too, are sparse grasslands, dire dust bowl conditions and poor soils.

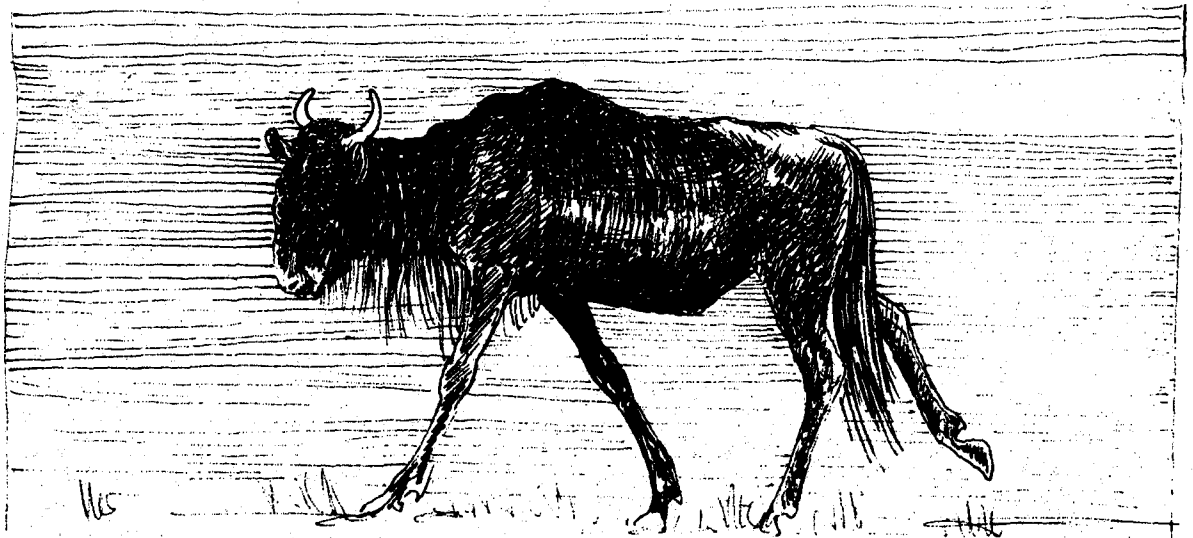

Indigenous here are many species of selective feeders: ungulate grazers, selective because one species consumes one grass, while another species of antelope consumes another grass form. Others munch on low-growing bush. Still others, like the Gerenuk, stand on their hind legs and, stretching long necks, browse at about six feet. Of course the Giraffe works over the canopy with his head held majestically high in the Thorn Trees.

Each species of grazer - and there are some three dozen major forms - specializes on certain food elements in the habitat. In general, competition among the grazing animals for food in the natural Kenya plains was non-existent before the British came.

But the British, when they built their Empire, had at least one bad habit that was perhaps a fatal habit. If the Bwana had been raised in Kent where daffodils, tulips and forget-me-nots grew at his doorstep, then by all the powers daffodils, tulips and forget-me-nots damn well had to grow in his garden in Kenya or India or Trinidad. That is the way of the British.

Now daffodils, tulips and forget-me-nots don't make too much difference one way or the other. But when the British applied the same habit to cattle and goats and took them to Kenya, then the trouble really started.

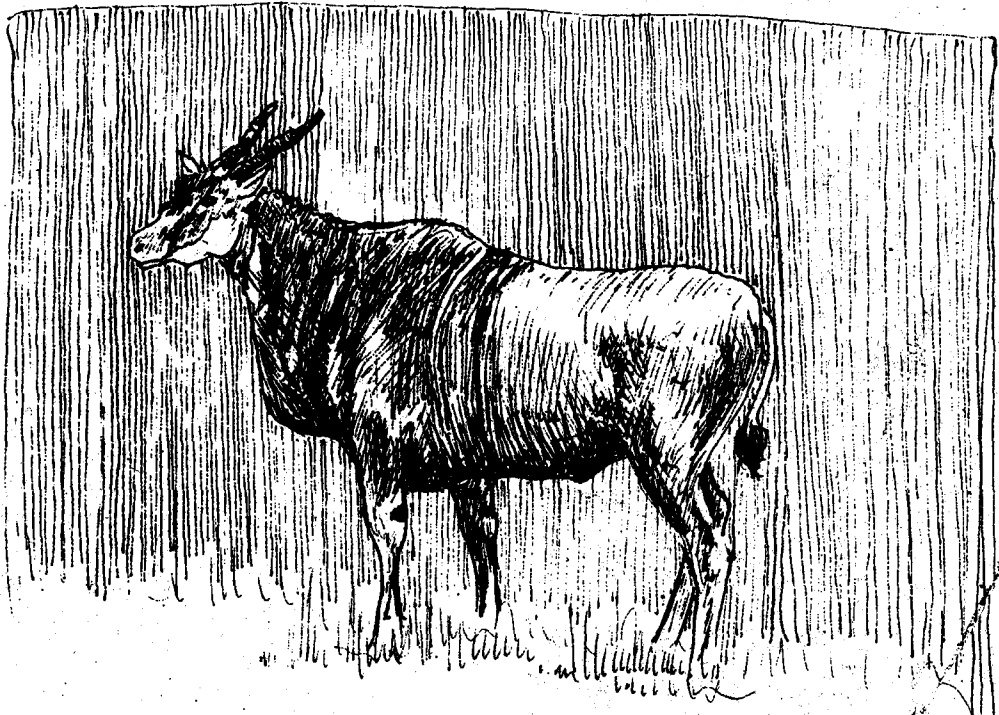

The land deteriorated and the wild game diminished in numbers until today most specimens remain only in national parks. And even there goats and cattle are encroaching. And goats and cattle are not discriminating selective feeders - they eat everything and leave the land

In Africa lots of Gnus is good Gnus.

Beefy Cape Buffalo can be domesticated by skilled husbandry.

The gentle Eland is the world's largest antelope.

SCCF gift shop expands in time for holidays

By Carol Kranichfeld

Remodeled and enlarged by 40 percent, the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation gift shop has expanded just in time to become one of the Island's greatest places to shop for Christmas.

The new shelves and displays sport an entire shop of nature-oriented merchandise from stationery to sculpture and jewelry, much of which is handcrafted by local artists.

Shop manager Nancy Johnson says one of the newest items is a line of stationery by Island artist Ann Winterbotham. The writing paper is ornamented with pen and ink drawings of native vegetation found on Sanibel and Captiva.

Pottery by Hanna Hilger and oil paintings by Alice Kylo have also been added to this year's stock of merchandise. Functional ceramic hurricane oil lamps, geodes and fossils have also been added to the gift shop shelves.

The SCCF gift shop still offers much of its former merchandise, including the Barrier Island Publications Series, the most recent of which outlines The Indian Presence on Sanibel and Captiva.

The gift shop remodeling and expansion were made possible with the donation of countless hours of labor by a crew of SCCF volunteers including Al Lloyd, Ken Preston, Bob Byers, Fritz Holtz, Dick Light, Stephen Byrlinsky, Dick Squires and Bram Boonstra.

And while shopping for those extra special Christmas gifts, remember that all proceeds from your purchases will help further the foundation's efforts to protect and preserve our environment.

impoverished and the habitat destroyed.

Of course the British found cattle and goats already in Africa when they arrived. Africans had bartered for these alien animals with Arab traders. The skinny things were so emaciated that no herdsman would sell an animal at noon because the slatted rib cage showed up as stark ridged shadows in the midday sun.

Instead of imaginatively looking about them and comparing their skinny cattle with the sleek and fat native animals such as zebra, Eland, Oryx and Kudu, the Europeans simply shot millions of the native forms to make room for more of the icky cattle.

Tsetse flies could not harm the native forms, but they decimated the imported cattle. So, still not able to understand what needed to be done, the British shot millions more of the native animals in order to form Tsetse-free "insulation zones" around the cattle.

It took our own Teddy Roosevelt to plant the germ of an idea here that only in the past decade or two has begun to bear fruit: Why not live with nature instead of fighting it? Why not domesticate native wild animals that had evolved on this land and can grow sleek, where domestic cattle are sickly bags of bones?

Roosevelt was a butcher. He shot far too many animals all over the world, for my taste. But he did have the germ of a novel idea — domestication of native wild animals.

The Eland, the world's largest antelope, is huge, docile and lends itself to domestication. (The Russians even milk some they took to the Caucasus.) Buffalo, Impala (no relation to GM), Oryx, Zebra, Grant's and Thompson's Gazelles have all been captive-bred. So has the Wildebeest or Gnu.

Mixed herds do not destroy the habitat, and all are immune to diseases that devastate cattle. Perhaps the future protein diets of Kenyans will come from game farms.

To some, it may seem cruel and inhumane to kill the beautiful indigenous beasts of Africa to feed the burgeoning human population. Other, perhaps more realistic, people may realize that traditional domestic animals are not adequately feeding the people and that they are destroying the land and rendering it unsuitable for the great wild herds every day more impacted by man.

To such realists, the idea of conservation through utilization may seem attractive. "Use them or lose them" is their motto.

Over the next two weeks we shall see how this same principal applies to other animals including the great carnivores, the Lions and Leopards.

Ospreys take unplanned detours, make migration via airplane

By Carol Kranichfeld

Imagine beginning a winter migration south, running into bad weather off Bermuda and landing on a northern-bound tanker only to wind up close to where your journey began?

That's what happened to one of three ospreys recently sent to CROW by Leonard Soucy of New Jersey, who feared releasing the detoured birds that far north so late in the season.

Thanks to the miracles of modern technology, Soucy, who is the director of a raptor rehabilitation program in Milington, N.J., was able to put the three ospreys and three "downed" fish hawks on a plane to Fort Myers last week.

The birds were greeted by CROW staffer Holly Davies. All three ospreys are "first-year" birds, said Davies, who had the foresight to mark the trio with orange plastic bands (the kind she normally uses on pelicans). Since the birds were already wearing metal Fish and Wildlife bands, they should be readily spotted should they run into trouble.

Two of the fish hawks were released last Thursday immediately after their arrival on Sanibel. The third didn't make it, but as Holly said, "Two out of three isn't bad," adding she will continue to work with the third until he is strong enough to fly on his own.

Releasing the ospreys on Sanibel was preferable to a northern release for three reasons, Davies explained. Not only is it "gunning season" all along the east coast, but for Soucy to keep the birds through the winter probably would have been a real hardship, not only for the ospreys but for Soucy, whose only source of fish during the coldest months of the year is frozen (reducing valuable vitamin and mineral supply) and somewhat difficult to obtain.

Also, she said, for the bewildered osprey that rode north on the tanker eating table scraps and whatever pieces of fish were available, the homing system might have been affected.

And since it was the osprey's first migration, Soucy wanted to ensure the bird every chance of survival.

The cooperative release program is sponsored by the Fish and Game Wildlife Endangered Non-Game Species Program, a non-profit organization funded entirely by voluntary donations made by listing contributions on annual tax forms. This volunteer donation program is handled by some 20 states (Florida is not one of them) and was responsible for paying the birds' fares to Fort Myers last week.

And even though not everyone is as knowledgeable about raptors as Davies and Soucy (the tanker's deckhands first reported the bird on their ship as a "rare eagle"), the events show there is a lively interest up and down the coast in preserving and protecting the environment and the wildlife we cherish so highly on Sanibel.

LeBuff announces new beach walks, wildlife tours for winter season

Charles LeBuff, project director of the Sanibel-based sea turtle conservation foundation Caretta Research, Inc., announced this week plans to increase Caretta's educational program with the addition of two wildlife oriented tours this winter season.

Caretta sponsors beach walks year 'round and sea turtle patrols during the summer loggerhead turtle nesting season. These activities help fund the group's sea turtle conservation activities on Sanibel and Captiva and throughout south Florida.

The popularity of the existing tours persuaded Caretta's Board of Directors to approve LeBuff's suggestion that the group proceed with new outdoor educational programs. This month the organization will add a tour through the J.N. "Ding" Darling Refuge and a water-borne trip to Pine Island and Matlacha Pass National Wildlife Refuges to its tour schedule. A handout describing the tours will be distributed to Island business establishments in the near future.

The "Ding" Darling Refuge tour will be a mangrove ecology caravan that emphasizes the unique mangrove ecosystem. Although they are not designed as "birding tours," the region's birdlife and the identification of species will be an important aspect of the outings.

One tour will be given each Wednesday evening; another tour will be given on Sundays. Exact times will vary depending on best observation conditions. Each caravan will last from two to three hours.

The national wildlife refuge tours by boat will carry a limited number of serious birders, wildlife photographers and sight-seers to areas little seen by area visitors. Tour participants will get a glimpse of pristine Florida as they visit major colonial bird rookeries. The trips will be made only with weather permitting, with tour participants providing their own lunch or dinner. Each tour will last from three to four hours.

LeBuff will still offer his popular beach walks that serve as an introduction to Sanibel and Captiva Islands and their unique marine environment. A "must" for the first time visitor, the beach walks include discussions about local history, Island development, hurricanes, tides (including the infamous Red Tide), beach dynamics, sea turtle biology, shelling and identification of beach creatures.

Each beach walk lasts up to two hours on Thursday afternoons and Saturday mornings.

During the summer, Island visitors can join LeBuff on his Sea Turtle Patrols made by Jeep along Sanibel's loggerhead turtle nesting beaches. The objective of the patrols is to search for nesting giant sea turtles for tagging and egg protection. Patrols take from two to four hours and can be taken any time from May 1 through Aug. 1.

LeBuff said he has started to interview

Charles LeBuff and a loggerhead turtle people interested in leading the mangrove ecology caravan, but until someone is selected and trained he will serve as leader.

One licensed captain has indicated interest in providing transportation for the wildlife refuge tour. Back-ups or additional captained boats may be required from time to time.

Qualified people interested in serving as guides for either tour can contact LeBuff in the evenings at home, 472-1041, or at Caretta's office, 472-3177.

Lions celebrate 15 years of Island activities, services

By D.E. Cooperrider

The Sanibel-Captiva Lions Club recently held a cocktail party-dance at the Sanibel Community Building to celebrate 15 years of service activities on the Islands.

The club was chartered in October 1967 and had 25 charter members at that meeting. Five members from the original group are still active in the club and received 15 Year Charter Monarch certificates and 15 Year Chevrons during the meeting. Those honored members are Robert Aycock, Francis Bailey, Norman Chambers, Robert Dormer and LeeRoy Friday. Music for the affair was furnished by Sal's Vibratones.

At the last meeting, Lion Robert Sagers was recognized and honored as Outstanding Lion for his participation in the activities and services of the Sanibel-Captiva Club. He first joined Lions in 1947 in Springfield, Penn. In 1956 he was transferred and enjoyed membership in Somers, Conn., where he was club president during 1964-65.

Sagers was also an active Lion in Atlanta before he was transferred to Australia. From there he retired to Sanibel and has served as overall Projects Chairman and helped raise more than $20,000 for the charities supported by the club. He has also attended several regional, state and international conventions as a delegate of the Sanibel-Captiva Club.

The Lions held their regular meeting on Nov. 3 at the Sanibel Community Association hall. A guest from Sweden helped boost the good attendance. Lars Larson presented President John Wilcox with a banner from his home club and in turn received the banner of the Sanibel-Captiva club to take to his own club.

President John Wilcox thanked those Lions who participated in the Island children's Halloween Party at the Dunes, which was the effort of service clubs to make Halloween safer for children of the Islands.

Delayed awards were presented to Lion Sagers for perfect Attendance and to Lion Norm Chambers for 15 years of membership.

Wilcox announced the coming meeting of the clubs in southern Lee County on Nov. 18 in Fort Myers. Those attending will meet at the Sanibel-Captiva Chamber of Commerce to travel as a group.

Lion Mike Malone delivered a moving tribute to the veterans of wars with special emphasis on those who served in Viet Nam. Malones voice on tape was backed with sound effects that brought back memories for veterans of various military actions in which the United States has been involved.

The next meeting of the club will be at 6:30 p.m. on Nov. 17 at the Sanibel Community Association hall.

HOPE of Lee County offers supportive care for ill

This week is National Hospice Week in honor of more than 800 hospices throughout the United States.

Hospices provide supportive care for the terminally ill who are on life's last difficult journey.

In Lee County the hospice concept and philosophy is available to those who are dying and to their families in the home. HOPE of Lee County, Inc. is administered by an uncompensated board of directors, patient care coordinator Diann SEals, R.N., and director of volunteers Maxine Crispi, R.N.

Volunteers complete a formal 16-hour training program and have ongoing education programs that include case conferences. The volunteer can act as a listener, provide respite care and give family members an opportunity to handle personal matters, do homemaking chores, run errands, shop and assist with funeral arrangements.

Referrals are made to other community resource agencies when necessary.

Referrals to HOPE come from physicians, home health nurses, hospital social services departments and from individuals who know about the program.

The only criterion for admission to the program is that the patient-client agrees to have the service. His or her physician must sign an authorization for hospice care. There is no fee for the service.

Operational expensed for office equipment, reference materials and volunteer training are met by donations, grants and fund raising programs.

HOPE of Lee County has been in operation since May and has provided supportive care to approximately 45 dying patients and their families.

Thirty-five individuals have recently completed the volunteer training program and are prepared to become part of the hospice team. Another training program is planned for January 1983. Anyone in need of the service or who would like to become a volunteer or contribute to the cause should call the HOPE office, 334-1157.

Needlecraft artist learned through intense apprenticeship

Not many artists can say they are the personal protégé of one of the nation's top artists, but Beth Traucht is one of those lucky few.

The wife of Sanibel postal clerk Thom Traucht, Beth's forte is needlework. And with just one look at her creations, one can easily see the handwork of a painstaking professional.

Beth's precision needlework is the result of an intense apprenticeship under Truby Walker, owner of one of the nation's top-ranked needlepoint shops, Needle Nicely, which was established 10 years ago in Blowing Rock, N.C. Walker has served as judge of The Queen of England's Needlepoint Show, England's most prestigious national needlework event.

Beth remembers working through the wee hours of the morning during her apprenticeship perfecting a piece of handwork under Walker's watchful eyes. And though her training was grueling at times, Beth says it was the most valuable experience she could possibly have had.

Every item that went through the shop was custom ordered, and during the time of her affiliation with Walker, Beth created everything from needlepointed golf bags to suede vests.

With Beth's expertise and nimble fingers, needlework on the finest French silks is an everyday affair. But Beth is the first to recognize that her talents weren't always so finely honed.

"Anyone can do it," she says enthusiastically. "All that's needed is the confidence to start."

And to prove her point, Beth is planning needlepoint workshops for anyone interested, from beginners to advanced needleworkers. A six-week session will offer each student an opportunity to cross-stitch anything from Christmas ornaments and gifts to pillows, pictures, clothing, belts and purses.

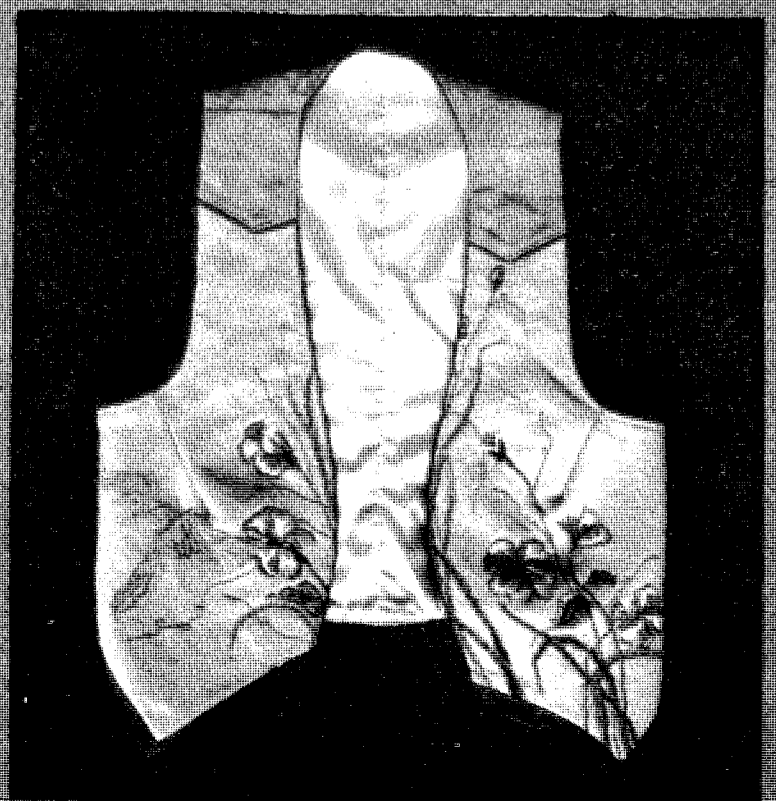

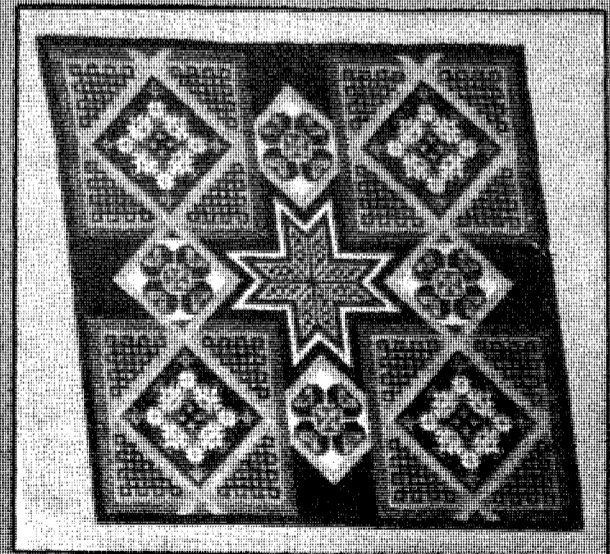

Students will begin with a sample design worked up by Beth and will eventually create their own needlework designs. Workshop participants will also be instructed on choosing materials and on stitch and color compatibility. Every stitch from the basket weave to the more complicated mosaic will be demonstrated.

"But most of all, I will emphasize the ease of the craft," Beth ensures.

Personal, individualized instruction will help each student create an heirloom that could not be bought in any store.

"The satisfaction alone from creating an exquisite piece of work is, I find, reason enough to needlepoint," Beth says.

Classes will begin in mid-November, meeting weekly for an hour and a half. A six-week session will cost $60. For more information call Beth, 489-0147.

BIG Arts dinner meeting, juried art show top calendar

Members who plan to attend should bring a dessert or salad to serve six. For details contact Mary Ann Seipos, 472-5187.

Last minutes plans are being made for the Seventh Annual Sanibel-Captiva Art League Juried Show, which is expected to be the best show in the history of the league.

The show will open from 1-4 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 21, with awards presented to winning entries at 3 p.m. at the Captiva Community Center. Each winning artist will be honored personally by judge Roberta Snyder of Cape Canaveral, an accomplished watercolorist whose works can be found in the personal collection of Dr. Norman Vincent Peale and at the Kennedy Space Center.

Up to three entries can be made by any member in good standing of any art league in the Art Council of Southwest Florida. Entries will be received from 9 a.m. until 12 noon on Tuesday, Nov. 16, at a marked blue over white van near the Goodwill depository at Gulf Points Plaza at the intersection of San Carlos and McGregor boulevards and at the Captiva Community Center from 1-4 p.m. that afternoon.

Any works not selected for awards must be removed from the Captiva Community Center between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 20. Selected works should be removed between 3 and 5 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 5.

The first week's visitors to the show will have an opportunity to select the recipient of the "Popular Prize and Ribbon," a first-time award offered by the Art League this year.

Free gift wrapping will be offered and packing and shipping will be available throughout the exhibit, which will run through Sunday, Dec. 5. Viewing hours are set for 1-4 p.m. daily.

For more information call Ruth North, 472-5274, or Ken Turney, 482-3491.

'Sanibel Theatre Company' returns from World's Fair

By Cindy Chalmers

Sanibel's The Company returned from the 1982 World's Fair in Knoxville, Tenn., with a new name and a listing in the Knoxville News-Sentinel alongside Victor Borge.

"We were astonished to be co-billed with Victor Borge," dramatic artist Charlotte Heimann said last week after the group's return to the Island. The group's performances were listed right next to Borge's in a column outlining attractions at the fair for two days.

The new name for the dramatic reading group that has delighted area audiences since September 1980 is The Sanibel Theatre Company. Fair officials renamed the group so fair goers could associate it with Sanibel.

"We decided we like being The Sanibel Theatre Company, so we're going to keep the name," Heimann said. "It's more expressive."

Heimann and Fran Levy and Robert Murphy represented Sanibel and Southwest Florida at the fair. The group presented three performances of "The Everything World of Carl Sandburg." A fourth performance at the outdoor Elm Tree Theatre was rained out.

B.G. Olson, the fourth member of the group, bowed out of the World's Fair engagement at the last minute to help with a gubernatorial campaign for a friend in Alaska, where Olson has a home.

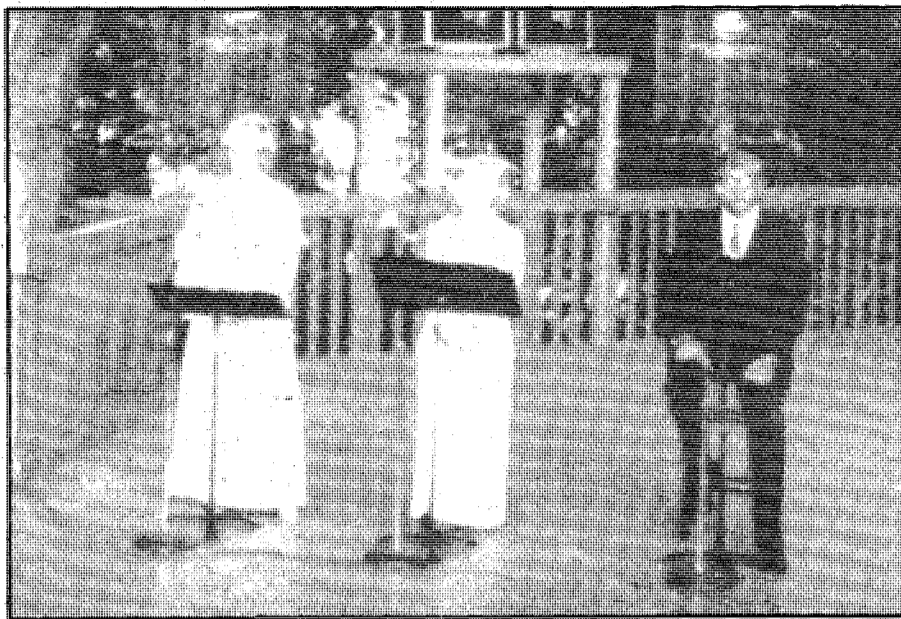

Heimann said the group is preparing for the 1982-83 season without Olson. "We're working on a new script called 'Portraits,' which will be presented in March under the sponsorship of BIG Arts," she said.

The Company's original line-up included Heimann, Levy and John Anspacher. Levy originated the idea and put together the first script. She has played many demanding roles at the Clarksville Theatre in a suburb of her home city, Louisville, Ky., and won Best Actress awards of her portrayal of Mary Todd in "Mrs. Lincoln" and of Nettie in "The Subject Was Roses."

Heimann, a Sanibel resident since 1974, has played leading roles and character parts with groups in Roslyn, Long Island and Utica, N.Y., and Greenwich, Conn.

Murphy joined the group last year. A former teacher at Kalamazoo College and Western Michigan and Michigan State universities, he was active in Michigan with the Kalamazoo Civic Players. He has also made many radio and television commercials.

Shopping

Sanibel is a veritable shopper's paradise. Tasteful boutiques and casual island shops join forces to present visitors with everything and anything a vacation shopper could hope for.

At the Lighthouse (Eastern) end of the island, Punta Ybel Plaza and the Sea Horse Shops are right across the street from another, providing a variety of products that can cure your aching tooth or tickle your shell finder's fancy. Need a good haircut or coliffure? You can get it in either of these shopping centers.

Most businesses open at 10 a.m. and close at 5:30 p.m. This holds true for many island stores, although some are open evenings during the winter season.

Tall Australian Pines shade Periwinkle Way and the shopper travels west along this main thoroughfare. This stretch of road is truly a shopper's paradise! It's all here - the fast and not-so-fast eating spots, casual and elegant boutiques, hand-wrought jewelry, craft designs, shell shops and balms for health product fanatics.

Watch to your right and left as you drive or cycle along. Photographic supplies, bait and tackle, deli foods, fresh seafood and baked goods, knick-knacks and what-nots can all be found along the drive to the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road. Along the way, shopping centers such as the Heart of the Islands, Periwinkle Place and Tahitian Gardens offer a variety of island delights.

Palm Ridge Road, the Periwinkle Way turn-off to Captiva, offers several shopping centers featuring everything from imports to gift shops for the discriminating shopper, plants and shells, a sandwich shop, ice cream parlors, pizza parlor, boutique shop and the Island Apothecary pharmacy.

At the Tarpon Bay-Periwinkle Way intersection, the Island Shopping Center features the island's only supermarket and movie house.

A left on Tarpon Bay Road takes the visitor past Sanibel's original schoolhouse, which now holds original island watercolors and woodcuts.

Then on to West Gulf Drive and westward to an interesting little artisan shop and gallery.

At the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road, you may choose instead to turn right and follow the signs to the Tarpon Bay marina, where you will find a cluster of quaint shops overlooking the back bay. Some antiques, shells and shellcrafts, what-nots and clever clothes can be found here, as well as a great seafood sandwich and soft drinks.

The spectacular ride to Captiva, with its lush foliage and enchanting view of the Gulf, is well worth a day's outing. Talented artists display their works in one roadside shop, while others feature some nifty gifts for Grandma to take home to little hands as a pleasant hodge-podge of remembrances from these barrier islands.

Whether for shopping or merely browsing, island shops offer a surprising variety from one-of-a-kind collectibles for the discerning shopper to postcards for the simple souvenir hunter. And of course, for all, shells - shell jewelry, shell lamps, just plain shells - the most beautiful shells in the world from the most beautiful shelling beaches in the world.

SHELLING

The city's resolution limiting the taking of live shells to two live shells per species per person is one to be scrupulously obeyed. As a matter of fact, in order to preserve Sanibel's beautiful shelling beaches, most collectors refuse to take any live shells whatsoever.

DOGGY DO'S AND DON'T'S

If you are visiting Sanibel with the family Fido in tow, all the better. All family members can enjoy Southwest Florida sun and surf.
 The Chamber of Commerce can tell you what accommodations are available for families with pets.

Remember: Wherever you are, clean up after your pet!
 "Leave nothing on the beach but footprints" applies to dogs, too.
 There's no leash law on Sanibel, but of course an excitable or unruly animal is better off when controlled with a leash.

WARNING! SAFEGUARD YOUR VALUABLES

In order to protect your valuable possessions from theft, it is recommended that you take them to a bank or hotel vault for safekeeping. Do NOT leave them in your room or car.

CAMPING, BEACH FIRES

Camping on the beach is prohibited, as are open beach fires.
 An exemption to the beach fire ordinance is a fire in an approved cooking container (not to exceed 48x24x12 inches deep) with an extruded metal grill for non-commercial food preparation. This type of container will be allowed on the beach without a permit.
 After you have had your party, please assume responsibility for cleaning up any debris or litter in your area.

FISHING

While no license is required for saltwater fishing, fishing in freshwater ponds or the Sanibel River requires a Florida fishing license.
 Licenses are available at Bailey's General Store on Periwinkle Way. The fee is $6.50 for residents and $10.50 for non-residents.
Minimum Legal Lengths
 Blue Fish 10 inches

|----------|-----------|
| Flounder | 11 inches |
| Grouper | 12 inches |
| Mackerel | 12 inches |
| Mullet | 12 inches |
| Pompano | 10 inches |
| Red Fish | 12 inches |
| Snook | 18 inches |
| TROUT | 12 inches |

Snook fishing is outlawed from June 30-Aug. 1.

SPEED LIMITS

There is very good reason for the varying speed limits (20-30 mph) along the Causeway. The slower speeds preserve the bridge supports from strain and stress.
 This speed limit is strictly enforced with radar on a 24-hour basis by both the Sanibel Police Department and the Lee County
 Sheriff's Department.

GATORS

Feeding alligators anywhere within the Sanibel city limits is not only illegal, but can be extremely dangerous.
 Alligators can run up to 45 mph, so if you are close enough to feed an alligator, he is close enough to bite you. An alligator fed for fun loses his natural fear of humans and becomes a potential threat to children and pets.
 Dogs should never be permitted to run free on Sanibel.

Fence them, walk them on a leash or, if you must free your dog for a walk, keep him under voice control. Never tie your dog in an unfenced back yard.
 For help with a nuisance alligator, call the following representatives of the Southwest Florida Alligator Association.
 They are licensed and have permits to legally handle gators: George Campbell, 472-2825; Steve Phillips, 472-2329;
 Mark Westall, 472-5128.
