Johnson defeats Bissell for council

By Barbara Brundage

For the second time in Sanibel's eight year history a woman has been elected to serve on the City Council.

Former Planning Commissioner Louise Johnson emerged the victor in last week's run-off race for Seat 5. Johnson polled 799 votes to Real Estate broker Don Bissell's 652 votes to win the seat vacated by veteran Councilman Porter Goss.

The seat originally was held by the late Zee Butler, who was elected to the City Council in the city's first election in 1974. She was serving as mayor at the time of her death in February 1981.

Johnson will be sworn into office Dec. 7 and will join former Planning Commission colleague Bill Hagerup, who defeated Jerry Muench for Seat 4 in the general election Nov. 2.

A little more than half the city's registered voters (1,451) went to the polls in last Tuesday's run-off. More than 64 percent had voted in the general election two weeks earlier.

Johnson, disappointed at her slim margin of victory -- only 147 votes separated the two contenders -- attributed the lower turnout to "complacency."

Nevertheless, she said she felt she has a "mandate."

Both candidates received fewer votes than they did in the three-way race with Planning Commissioner Emily Barefield the first time around.

Johnson lost 72 votes from her earlier total of 871, and Bissell's total dropped 30 from 682. It appeared that neither picked up the 406 votes that were cast for Barefield.

Bissell said he had expected the race to be close and added that many of his supporters believe that with a bigger voter turnout the results would have been turned around.

On Friday Bissell said he had not yet decided whether to seek an appointment to Johnson's seat on the Planning Commission.

Muench fills Hagerup's post on commission

By Barbara Brundage

Periwinkle Trailer Park owner Jerry Muench, who was defeated by Planning Commissioner Bill Hagerup for a seat on the City Council, has been appointed to fill Hagerup's unexpired term on the commission.

A 20-year resident of Sanibel, Muench, 37, was named to the commission post at a special meeting of the City Council last Friday morning. He will serve until Dec. 31,

The steady pounding of jackhammers and the whir of saws and drills are familiar sounds on Sanibel these days with construction going on around almost every corner. Work has started full force at the new City Hall site on Dunlop road, where crews are driving pilings for the Florida-style center, below right. Below left, a painter puts his touch on the Shell Harbor Inn restaurant, which should be completed in January.

City Hall crews ease a piling in place, right. The detour to allow widening along Tarpon Bay Road, far right, will be removed by early December. Franchise agreement proposed for trolley operation to resume

By Barbara Brundage

The trolleys will begin running again on Sanibel by mid-December if the City Council approves a proposed franchise agreement with the Naples Transit Co. at its Dec. 7 meeting.

The three councilmen present at last Tuesday's meeting appeared satisfied with the terms of the agreement with a few minor revisions that will permit operation of one or two 30-passenger trolleys from mid-December through April 20.

Mayor Porter Goss was appeased when Naples Transit President Ed Verdesca agreed to let the city review the compatibility of all advertising carried on the trolleys. Advertising on the inside and outside of the trolley cars finances the $64,000 operation.

Verdesca also had no objection to submitting proposed "repetitive charters" outside of regular business hours (Sundays and after 5:30 p.m.) to the city for approval.

Newly elected Councilmember Louise Johnson, who will assume Goss' seat on Dec. 7, said that according to a survey of the operation last winter the trolleys were a "drawing card for day visitors."

"The figures don't show that it was a service to the people," she said. "I would like to see new routes to help people who need transportation to work before 9:30 a.m. and after 5 p.m."

Service to Island residents should be a priority of the trolley system, she added.

City Manager Bernie Murphy said the survey showed that during March 78 percent of the trolley passengers were first time riders; 70 percent used it for sight seeing; and 28 percent were visitors for a day.

Walter Klie, executive director of the Sanibel-Captiva Chamber of Commerce, which promoted last year's pilot program, said he only had a "paternal interest in the outcome."

"But the trolleys had a good track record last year," Klie added.

Under the proposed franchise the city will have no stake in the operation, unlike last year when the city made up a $6,000 shortfall in operating costs.

And unlike most utility franchises, Naples Transit will not pay the city for the right to operate and the city will not share in any profits.

Murphy explained that the trolley transit is a marginal operation economically and the franchise is only for one year.

Verdesca is optimistic that the trolleys will be a success. He said 80 percent of last year's advertisers have signed up again. Had the survey of ridership been taken in January or February the numbers would be different, Verdesca said.

In March 75 percent of the people on Sanibel are tourists, he said. But, he added, "In January 50 to 60 percent are part time winter residents."

"Sanibel's trolleys were not advertised per se, and I seriously doubt that anyone came to the Island exclusively for the purpose of riding the trolley," he said.

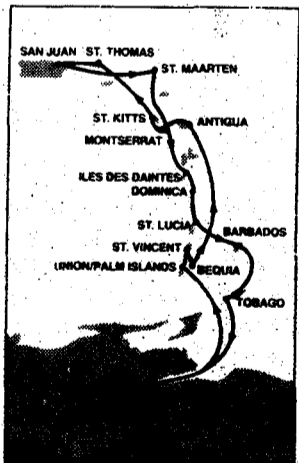

Verdesca expects to begin operating two trolleys around Dec. 15. The same routes and schedule of stops as last year will be used, and the fare will remain 50 cents, he added.

Any changes in routes or fares must be approved in advance by the city manager.

COMMENTARY

Election season ends, congratulations to winners

Election season on Sanibel is over for two more years, and the City Council has a new look. When Louise Johnson takes the oath of office on Dec. 7, she will join Bill Hagerup, her former Planning Commission Colleague, as newcomers on the council.

We congratulate both Johnson and Hagerup on their successful bids for the council. At the same time we congratulate Jerry Muench on his appointment to the Planning Commission to fill Hagerup's post. The council must now appoint a second new member to the commission to replace Johnson.

All five candidates in this year's race for two City Council seats carried out fine campaigns and rightly should be proud of their efforts. Last week's run-off between Johnson and Don Bissell was close for both candidates and proved that the division between the two was not as strong as has been evident in past races for council seats.

Had more Sanibel voters gone to the polls last week we might have seen the division lessened even more. Only 147 votes separated Johnson and Bissell after little more than 50 percent of the Island's registered voters cast their ballots.

And now election season is over. The new City Council and Planning Commission face major issues in the coming year, and we wish both elected and appointed members on the two boards well with confidence that they will serve our city well.

Howe expresses chagrin over campaign-related phone calls

To the Editor
The Islander

I was chagrined by several offensive, anonymous phone calls about my letter in the Nov. 16 issue of The Islander that decried questionable politically-motivated condemnation of City Council candidate Don Bissell.

It never occurred to me that the spirit which promoted that letter could be misconstrued by any Sanibelite who is normally imbued with a healthy measure of sportsmanship.

Apparently, however, the Islands do harbor a few non-average Sanibelites. To especially that pitiable minority are commended some thoughtful words from President Lincoln's first Inaugural Address. They were uttered about a month before the first shot that started the Civil War.

His conciliatory message pleaded: "We are not enemies but friends, we must not be enemies. Though passion may have strained, it must not break our bonds of affection. The mystic cords of memory stretching from every battlefield and patriot grave to every living heart and hearthstone all over this broad land will yet swell the chorus of the Union when touched, as surely they will be, by the better angels of our nature."

With such a spirit my letter was written. I now propose to further follow Lincoln's sage advice uttered in his second (and last)

Inaugural Address just a month before Lee's surrender at Appomattox Courthouse. He then said: "With malice toward none; with charity toward all; with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right."

So be it!

Sincerely,
Paul Howe

Editor's note: The Islander apologizes to Paul Howe for a typographical error in his letter that appeared in the Nov. 16 issue. The letter should have read, "...I can readily empathize with candidate Don Bissell on the vicious character assaults that attempted to link him with unproven anti-Island personalities..."

But only you and dear George C.

Clarification

An article on Captiva's historic Chapel By The Sea in the Nov. 9 issue of The Islander should have named Mary Bailey as the chapel's first organist. She played for the congregation for 20 years. Also, the chapel's present organ was donated by Mrs. Collin Gordon and Mrs. Augustus Brandon in memory of their husbands.

Contractor promises to open Tarpon Bay Road by Dec. 3

A promise from the contractor that Tarpon Bay Road between Periwinkle Way and San-Cap Road will be open to traffic by Dec. 3 has allayed city officials' fears of a "horror scene" in the Sanibel Post Office parking lot during the Christmas mailing rush.

One layer of asphalt base will be laid on Tarpon Bay Road north of Periwinkle Way and the detour to the Post Office via Florence Way will be removed by the first weekend in December, Assistant City Manager Gary Price reported to the City Council last Tuesday.

Couch Construction has put three crews on the project that involves widening Tarpon Bay Road, improving the Periwinkle Way-Tarpon Bay Road intersection and extending the Tarpon Bay Road bicycle path from Bailey's parking lot to San-Cap Road.

Couch now "absolutely guarantees that all the work will be finished by Christmas," Price said. He added he was concerned last week when he learned Couch was behind on its own construction schedule.

Work on the project had slowed down due to heavy rains and problems with the utilities, he said.

With the extra crews at work, all concrete curbs, separators, pipe work and inlets will be completed and all grading from Periwinkle Way to San-Cap Road will be finished by Thanksgiving.

Complete paving of the base, shoulder grading and cleanup will be done by Dec. 10. The final dressing, top course, striping and signage will be complete one week later.

If Couch adheres to the above schedule the job will be finished a month ahead of the contract completion date, Price said.

Applicants continue specific amendment requests, will wait for full council

Under state law specific amendments dealing with land use require three votes for approval by the City Council. With only three councilmen present at last Tuesday's meeting, four applicants opted to have their hearings continued and take their chances with a new council on Dec. 7.

Matthew and Virginia Stewart went along with Mayor Porter Goss' suggestion that, "The odds are better with a full council," for approval of their request for a variance to build a single-family home on an under-sized lot in Sanibel Highlands.

The Stewarts say they have been trying for seven years to build a home on the property they purchased 12 years ago.

In a letter to council members an attorney for the Stewarts suggested that their application be "treated favorably to avoid further proceedings."

He charged that the Stewarts have been treated in an "arbitrary, discriminatory, confiscatory manner by the city of Sanibel and its officials personally."

A similar request from the Stewarts' son, Kirk, and his wife, Beverly, also was continued to the Dec. 7 meeting.

It will be the new City Council's decision, too, whether to grant Richard and Carmen Donlin's request to site their proposed new home 55 feet from the center line of Rabbit Road to permit a larger back yard.

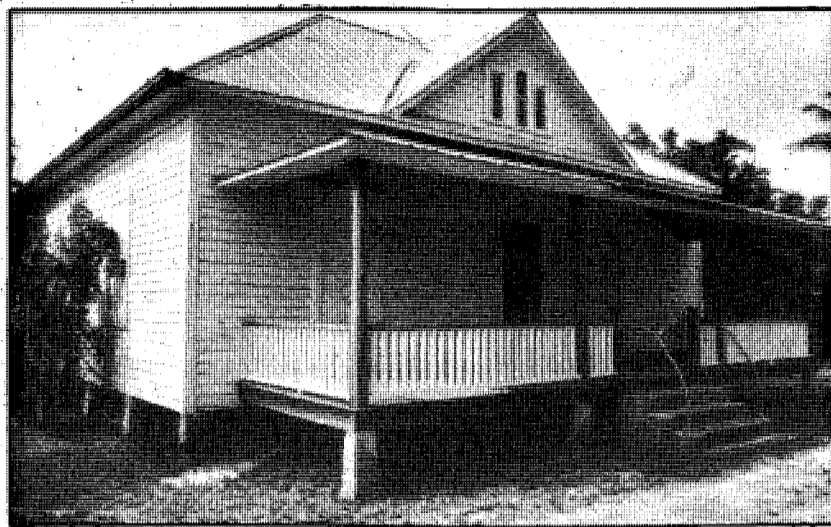

A general amendment to the Comprehensive Land Use Plan is in the works to reduce the required setback from 75 to 65 feet. But the Donlins say they need the extra 10 feet to give them enough room to install a swimming pool at a later date.

Planner Jean Nichols says the city wants the additional 10 feet in the event the collector needs to be widened in the future.

Councilman Fred Valtin asked for a continuance of the second reading of his request to exchange a portion of residential property on Palm Ridge Road for another commercially zoned piece.

Valtin had declared a conflict of interest and will abstain from voting on that issue.

House moving contract awarded

The contract to move the Uncle Clarence Rutland home from Periwinkle Way to the new City Hall site off Dunlop Road has been awarded to Precision House Movers, Inc., the low bidder.

Precision's bid of $9,660 was substantially lower than the two others received, City Manager Bernie Murphy told the council last week.

The price includes adequate insurance to cover any liability connected with moving the house and its porches, rear kitchen and bathroom in one piece two miles to the new site.

The move will be made sometime during the second week in December, Murphy said. The operation will start between midnight and 2 a.m. so the structure will not obstruct early morning traffic on Periwinkle Way.

Under terms of the agreement with the owners of Periwinkle Trailer Park, who donated the historic house to the city, the structure must be removed from its present site by Jan. 1, 1983.

Council rules 'no call-up' needed

There were no requests for a review of the Planning Commission's allocation of 86 dwelling units under the Rate of Growth ordinance on Nov. 8, City Manager Bernie Murphy reported to the City Council.

Last Tuesday the council voted 3-0 to accept the Planning Department's report and rule that "no call-up" is required for the November period.

Councilman Francis Bailey, who was on jury duty, and Councilman Mike Klein, who is vacationing out of the country, were absent from the meeting.

County will reimburse city for guards

Lee County will reimburse Sanibel $4,821 for school crossing guards that protect Sanibel Elementary School students during the 1982-83 fiscal year under terms of an interlocal agreement.

The City Council last Tuesday authorized City Manager Bernie Murphy to execute the new agreement with the county.

Murphy said that unlike other municipalities that station guards at specified school bus stops, Sanibel's guards ride on the school buses and provide protection for the children at every stop.

The amount reimbursed covers the guards' salaries and pays for their uniforms.

Planners will correct 1976 error in city map

An error made on the city's official Development Intensity and Permitted Uses map when the maps were drawn in 1976 will be corrected by the planning staff.

The City Council authorized the correction last Tuesday after City Attorney Neal Bowen advised that a specific amendment to CLUP would not be required for the correction.

The error in the map became apparent during a staff review of Cul Nud Realty, Inc.'s request for a development permit to remodel a recreation building at West Wind Inn motel for use by guests as a breakfast room and cocktail lounge.

The western boundary of the resort housing zone was shown on the map as the east property line of the West Wind Inn, placing the motel in a residential zone with a density of 1.5 units per acre and in a zone where commercial accessory use is prohibited.

Planner Jean Nichols said the Planning Department has always believed the resort housing zone extended to the West Wind Inn's western property line -- a belief that is shared by Planning Commission Chairman Ann Winterbotham and veteran city council members.

Minutes of the June 24, 1976, council meeting verify that an error was made in mapping the line that separates the resort housing area with density of five dwelling units per acre from the 1.5-unit density area.

The Planning Commission earlier had recommended that the council authorize the map correction.

To waive or not to waive? New council will decide policy

The new City Council on Dec. 7 will have to grapple with the problem of whether the city should reduce fees for "certain specified organizations that operate for the benefit of the community as a whole."

Last Tuesday the council agreed to hold firm to its policy of not waiving fees for anyone. But council members did agree there is some merit in reducing fees for certain non-profit, charitable organizations.

St. Isabel's Catholic Church requested the city consider reducing the fees totaling more than $2,000 the church has already paid in connection with the $300,000 renovation that is currently underway.

On Nov. 2 Bert Jenks, representing St. Isabel's, pointed out to the council that Sanibel's fees are far in excess of those charged by neighboring municipalities.

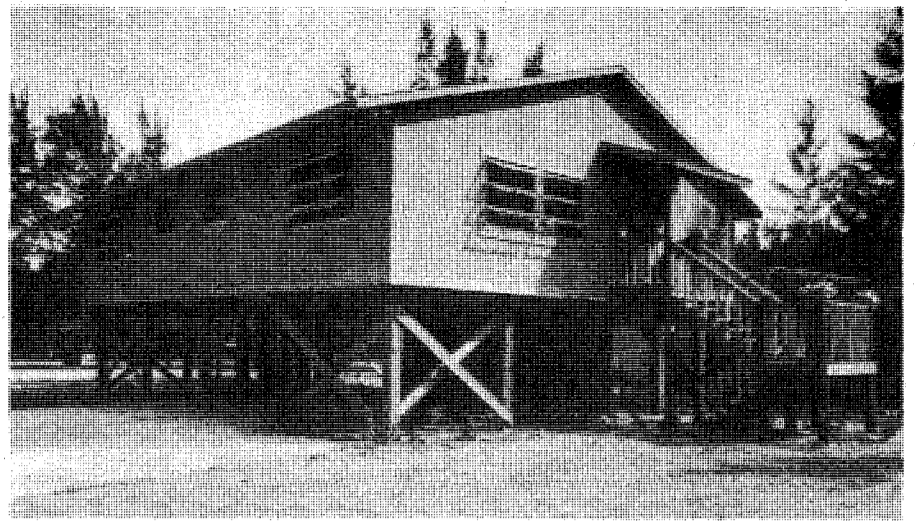

The council agreed that the city's fees are high but said they were set deliberately so in an effort to make development pay for itself.

Councilman Fred Valtin, a holdover on the new council, said if a formula can be found to clearly identify those organizations of community-wide benefit he would favor a reduction of fees for them.

Councilman Bill Hagerup, sitting in his first meeting since he was elected Nov. 2, said the city should stick to its policy of treating everyone the same. Mayor Porter Goss agreed that would be the safest and easiest way to go.

City Manager Bernie Murphy said that to use as a guide all organizations eligible for tax exemption would be "painting with a broad brush."

Valtin's motion to continue the discussion of a reduction of fees to Dec. 7 and leave the decision to the new council passed by a 3-0 vote. Councilmen Francis Bailey and Mike Klein were absent.

Maps will confirm public ownership of Sanibel streets

Casa Ybel and Island Inn roads and other principal streets in Sanibel are in rights-of-way that were not dedicated to the city but were acquired through maintenance and public usage.

To confirm public ownership of these roads the City Council last week authorized filing with the Lee County Clerk of Courts a set of maps of city streets recently updated by Johnson Engineering.

While the city thus far has had no challenges of its use of these rights-of-way, City Attorney Neal Bowen said filing the maps with the county would strengthen the city's claim to public ownership.

Below market rate duplex would operate 'in the red' at $500 per month rental

The cost of Below Market Rate Housing on Sanibel is far from moderate, the City Council learned last week when Charles and Barbara Nave submitted the balance sheet for the construction of a duplex unit on Sand Pebble Way.

And according to the Naves' estimated operating statement with income from renting each unit for $500 a month, the operation would still be in the red.

"Monthly rental of $500 is in the upper level of moderate cost housing," was the comment from City Councilman Fred Valtin, chairman of the city's Below Market Rate Housing Committee.

In 1979 the city granted the Naves an increase in density that enabled them to build the duplex. The increase was granted on the basis that the Naves would make the duplex available for the Below Market Rate Housing pool when a program is adopted.

The Naves report the total development cost of the duplex at $101,006.91, including $25,000 for the land and $68,750 for the base construction.

Their estimated net yearly income from the duplex will be $11,400 with operating expenses including debt interest and taxes totaling $14,049, resulting in a net net loss of $355.

As a condition of the specific amendment the Naves agreed "to make a matter of public record" the facts and figures relevant to their experience in developing and maintaining the duplex as a moderate cost housing unit.

An ordinance to establish a housing foundation to run the Below Market Rate Housing program for the city is still pending.

Changing the charter Voters approve eighteen amendments

By Barbara Brundage

A revised document incorporating 18 amendments approved by the voters last Tuesday was declared the official charter of the city of Sanibel by the City Council at a special meeting Friday morning.

Article VIII of the original charter that provided for a transition schedule has been deleted from the new version because it is no longer relevant, City Attorney Neal Bowen said.

Signed by Mayor Porter Goss and City Manager Bernie Murphy as city clerk, the new charter will go into effect after it is filed with the Florida Department of State.

All 18 amendments to the charter passed by large majorities.

Amendment four drew the strongest opposition with 389 votes cast against and 1,001 cast for the change. Former elected officials now will be permitted to hold compensated appointive city office or to be employed by the city within the first year after the expiration of the official's elective term with the consent of a four-fifths vote of the City Council.

Under the old charter former elected city officials had to wait a year before being eligible for such compensated employment.

The official vote on the other amendments as certified by the city's canvassing board follows:

Amendment No. 1 -- Removes the specific authority for the city to advertise itself since this authority is provided for elsewhere in the charter -- 940 FOR; 180 AGAINST.

Amendment No. 2 -- Changes the handling of actual expenses of City Council members from a mandatory to a discretionary reimbursement -- 1,215 FOR; 185 AGAINST.

Amendment No. 3 -- Outlines a replacement procedure if the mayor's position become permanently vacant for any reason with the vice mayor serving as acting mayor until the next regular council meeting, when a new mayor will be elected -- 1,257 FOR; 90 AGAINST.

Amendment No. 5 -- Permits council members to consult directly with city employees only on routine council matters but reinforces the charter provision that council members may not interfere with the administration or with administrative matters -- 1,178 FOR; 165 AGAINST.

Amendment No. 6 -- Permits the governor to appoint temporary or interim council members should three or more seats become vacant for any reason -- 1,217 FOR; 165 AGAINST.

Amendment No. 7 -- Adds the standard Florida law definition of "Resolution" and reduces the period of advertising required for an ordinance from 14 to seven days --

1,141 FOR; 197 AGAINST.

Amendment No. 8 -- Changes the annual adoption procedure to conform with state law -- 1,170 FOR; 192 AGAINST.

Amendment No. 9 -- Provides for a Planning Commission as a charter requirement and stipulates the commission can only be disbanded by a voter referendum on a charter amendment -- 1,134 FOR; 196 AGAINST.

Amendment No. 10 -- Requires three council votes for removal of the city manager and stipulates that the city manager will have five days after a vote of removal to request a public hearing, which must be held within 10 days -- 1,244 FOR; 146 AGAINST.

Amendment No. 11 -- Allows the city manager to appoint an acting city manager for no more than 30 days without council approval -- 1,138 FOR; 190 AGAINST.

Amendment No. 12 -- Makes the office of city attorney a charter requirement subject to the same rule of appointment and removal as the city manager -- 1,213 FOR; 164 AGAINST.

Amendment No. 13 -- Provides that a candidate must file a Declaration of Intention to run for City Council at least 20 days prior to filing a petition for a specific seat -- 1,192 FOR; 134 AGAINST.

Amendment No. 14 -- Brings the charter into conformance with Florida law for the recall of an elected official -- 1,211 FOR; 150 AGAINST.

Tickets selling 'like hotcakes' for appreciation party

By Cindy Chalmers

Almost all of the 300 tickets for the appreciation party honoring retiring and retired city officials have been sold to appreciative Islanders, party organizer Urban Palmer reported late last week.

The Texas ranch-style party is planned for Monday evening, Dec. 6, at the Sanibel Community Association. The honored guests will be Porter Goss, Duane White, City Attorney Neal Bowen and former City Councilman Charles LeBuff.

Goss and White stepped down from the City Council this election year. Bowen announced last month his resignation as the city's counsel effective Jan. 1. LeBuff served on Sanibel's original City Council.

"I don't think we have to worry about selling 300 tickets," Palmer said. "What we have to worry about is all the upset people we're going to have when they learn we're sold out."

Palmer has orchestrated a buffet dinner, dancing and cash bar for the evening. The dinner and dancing will be covered by a $7.50 admission ticket. The cash bar will be operated by the Sanibel Police Recreation club.

Tickets, if there are any left, are available from Palmer or from any representative of the following organizations or businesses: The Sanibel-Captiva Chamber of Commerce; the American Legion; the Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions clubs; the Committee of Neighborhood Associations; the Committee of the Islands; the Police Recreation Club; the Sanibel-Captive Power Squadron; Bailey's; West Wind; or City Hall. For more information call Palmer, 472-1316.

Fire Control District president reports insurance savings

Captiva Fire Control District President Marty Holtz reported last week the fire insurance premium on his Captiva home dropped $330 a year because of the improved rating the district received in July.

Holtz said the drop to a Class 7 from a Class 9 should mean savings on fire insurance rates for almost every home, apartment or business property on Captiva. He suggested that property owners check with their individual insurance agents to insure the credit is properly applied.

The lower rating should mean a savings of hundreds of thousands of dollars for Captiva property owners in the first year alone.

HYPOTHERMIA

Old people have been found dead from hypothermia (chilling of the body) in cool houses at temperatures which would not endanger younger people. When rescued from the cold, old people should be heated 'passively' under blankets and with hot drinks. It is dangerous to rewarm them quickly with hot water bottles or by putting their feet or legs in a hot bath.

Final hearing set on Captran bankruptcy

By Barbara Brundage

The final hearing on Captran Resorts International's motion to dismiss the firm from voluntary bankruptcy is scheduled for 2 p.m. on Monday, Dec. 6, in Bankruptcy Court in Tampa.

Captran attorney Diane Jensen said Friday final documents outlining the time sharing company's plan for reorganization were being collated and would be filed with Bankruptcy Court Judge Alexander Paskay before Thanksgiving.

The plan to turn over unsold interval weeks in Captran resorts in southwest Florida to the Captran Creditors Trust (CCT) is designed to pay off creditors "100 cents to the dollar."

Captran Resorts International will work for the CCT as a marketing agent, and as the interval ownership weeks are sold the creditors will be paid off, Jensen explained.

David McConnell, president of the Summa Group, realtors and developers; Gerald McHale, general partner of McHale, Ezzell & Co., CPAS; and Robert Taylor, chairman of the board of The Mariner Group, developers based on Sanibel; are co-trustees to administer the trust.

Keith Trowbridge, founder and president of Captan, filed for voluntary bankruptcy under Chapter 11 last July 16.

First hearing of a motion to free the firm that specializes in "vacation by the slice" from bankruptcy took place in federal court in Fort Myers Oct. 28 before Paskay.

At that time a Creditors Committee composed of Captran's major creditors was working to finalize plans for reorganization that would liquidate Captran's debts of $1.3 million listed in its bankruptcy filing. The firm's assets were estimated to be $10 million.

Included in the CCT plan is repayment of $1.3 million to Club Baha resort in Freeport, Bahamas, whose successful suit against Captran triggered the company's decision to file for voluntary bankruptcy.

SHELLING TIPS

By Captain Mike Fuery

Two fascinating little creatures come to our shores this time of year when the waters are cooler.

One is sometimes called an underwater butterfly. As with many of our shells or mollusks, this strange little thing is often misidentified.

The other creature looks like a long, green vegetable that pickles are made of. It too has several names, but it is often addressed with the simple remark, "What's that?!"

I have never been able to determine just why we start to see these two marine animals as the waters cool. I know that as we progress into the winter months they are found more frequently, and as winter storms increase many of them die and wash up on the beaches. This is because neither animal can swim, and both are at the whim of the winds and the sea.

The first creature, which you might have heard called a sea or underwater butterfly is most probably a sea hare. These docile, fleshy creatures have wings that move them at slow speeds over the grassy, shallow flats of Pine Island Sound. I have seen them offshore, but not frequently. They usually work their way over the shallow waters.

If you can imagine what an overweight butterfly might look like, then you can have an idea of what the sea hare looks like. They are usually various shades of green with spots of darker green.

Underwater they are in their element and are very graceful. And yes, in the winter they do look like butterflies. But on shore or in very shallow waters they look like tiny beached whales. They flounder around, sometimes emitting a blue dye when disturbed.

Sea hares are harmless, so don't be frightened if you try to shove one out to sea and it gives off a cloud of blue-purple coloring.

Those who study the interior of such marine animals say that deep inside there is a shell of sorts that is something like a true hard shelled mollusk. I myself have never seen that shell and can't bring myself to find a live sea hare and cut it open to find out.

The second shell in the "strange" category is an odd-looking marine animal called a sea cucumber. For once, the folks who name shells got one right with the sea cucumber -- they do look a lot like a common, green cucumber.

I saw my first sea cucumber of the season the other day as I walked along the sound side of Cayo Costa Island. It had been several months since the last sighting. This cucumber was half buried in shallow beach sand. Just a bit of its green was exposed, and I guessed it was trying to get completely hidden.

From what I can determine, sea cucumbers might be like sea hares and have a tiny interior shell hidden beneath the flesh. Again, I can't tell you what that shell might look like, but be assured that if it were highly valuable I would know!

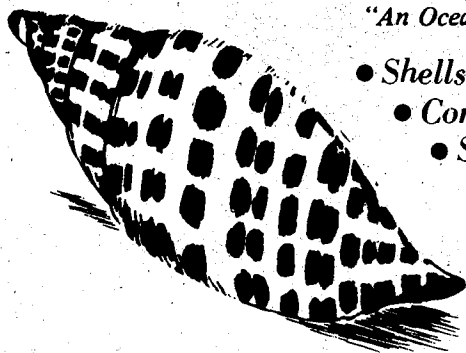

Apparently when hares and cucumber die their shells don't last very long in the shell line. Even so, they are fascinating. If you do see a live one, please leave it alone. Thanks.

 Denotes very strong tides

Conversion table: The above tides are for the lighthouse point of Sanibel only. To convert for Redfish Pass (North tip of Captiva), add 55 minutes to the time shown for every high tide. Subtract two minutes for every low tide.

For Captiva Island Gulf side, subtract 30 minutes for each high tide, and subtract hour and 16 minutes for each low tide.

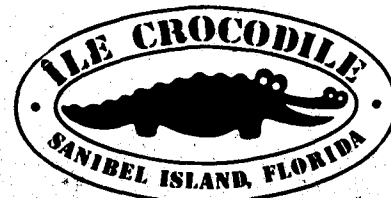

For Captiva Island, Pine Island Sound (Bay) side, add 1 hour and four minutes for each high tide and add 52 minutes for each low tide.

In between these points, gulf or bay, guesstimate and have good fishing or shelling.

ON THE WATER

By Captain Mike Fuery

I don't know why I don't talk much about the grouper we catch around our Islands. I guess most people think you have to go way over the horizon to catch them, but that's not the case. Many good stringers of tasty grouper come from just a few feet offshore.

The backbone of our grouper population is the black grouper. He's called a black grouper if he's caught in one of the passes or offshore; he's a "grass grouper" if he's caught over the flats of Pine Island Sound.

Now don't get the offshore fish stories of 90-pounders mixed up with our grass grouper or black grouper. He's got some close cousins, such as the jew fish, that get way up there on the scale -- in the hundreds of pounds, actually -- but our local fish are smaller.

If you get a 10-pound black you've got a decent size fish. The average m... two to five pounds. That's good fishing size, and nearly any light or medium weight rod and reel outfit will handle them.

Offshore fishing often takes what old timers call "grouper digger" rods that are heavy and necessary to pull those larger fish out of the rocks.

There are several things I dearly like about grouper that have saved many a bleak fishing day for me. One is that the black grouper is a generous eater that will take just about anything you drop his way.

I've caught grouper on shrimp, pinfish, pigfish, cut ladyfish and just about anything else that smells and looks fishy. They are also easy to fool with jigs and bucktails.

One problem here is that grouper are rock dwellers that often get into places such as docks and bridges, where sharp edges from barnacles will cut or snag lines.

So while the grouper is a good feeder, he's in a difficult element to catch. Be prepared to tie on many outfits if the action gets good.

Some easy grouper fishing happens right in the middle of Boca Grande Pass and Captiva Pass. These are north of Sanibel and are easy to fish on calm days.

The trick is to get your baits down to the bottom, touch briefly and then crank up your hook so you won't snag. You might have to use a couple of ounces of lead to get down to the bottom, but that's where they feed.

If the grouper are there, they are there to eat. So if you don't have a strike after five minutes, move a short distance.

On the grass flats we often catch grouper while casting shrimp imitators. The grouper like to inhale these plastic body shrimp, and a bit of real shrimp on the hook often increases your chances.

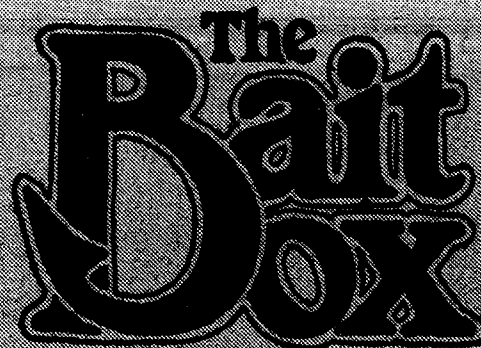

You might come upon some grass grouper around the deep cut at the free fishing pier near the Sanibel Lighthouse or along the Causeway if you can't get a boat and work the passes.

One word of caution, however. Only a couple of years ago did the state change the law to allow only grouper more than 12 inches to be taken. Up until then fishermen could take any size fish. Of course that lack of regulation severely hurt the grouper population, and the law had to be enacted.

One time a year or so ago a couple docked at our marina and proudly announced that they had caught 76 grouper. We were impressed -- until we saw that only a dozen or so were even 12 inches long. Do us all a favor and throw the illegal ones back. We'll all have better fishing for it.

THE SUCCESS OF THE BAIT BOX HAS LEAD US TO OVERSTOCK ON CERTAIN ITEMS. WE WOULD LIKE TO MAKE ROOM FOR ARRIVING PRODUCTS AND INTRODUCE TO YOU NEW TACKLE IDEAS FOR 1983. VISIT US ON FRIDAY AND SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 26th & 27th, 1982 TO SEE WELL KNOWN BRANDS AT VERY GOOD PRICES.

Police issue fitness challenge to Islanders

The Island's police force's physical prowess has been put to test, and Officer Dick Noon, director of the recreation complex, has issued a fitness challenge to the general public as well.

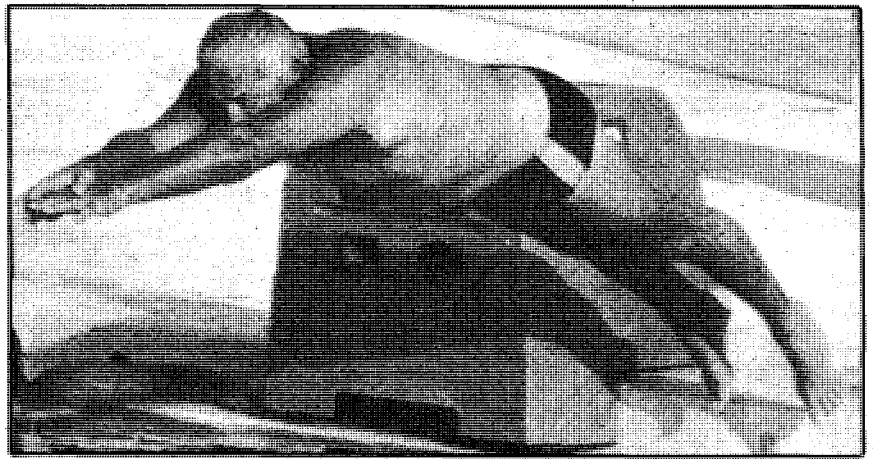

In an attempt by the Police Department to establish minimum accepted physical fitness qualifications for sworn personnel, Sanibel's finest are required bi-annually to run a mile in 12 minutes or less and swim 100 yards (four lengths of the pool) in three minutes or less. Both feats must be completed in a 30-minute period.

Before they can join the force, new members must complete the above test and pass three of the following four tests: 1) 10 push-ups in 15 seconds; 2) 20 sit ups in 45 seconds; 3) 10 pull ups in 45 seconds; 4) 10 squat thrusts in 20 seconds.

Noon has challenged all comers to put themselves to the same test required of new members. Successful completion is worth a T-shirt that says, "I Survived the Sanibel Police Department's Fitness Test."

If you feel up to this rigorous task, get over to the recreation complex, referably between the hours of 10 a.m. and noon, and show your muscles. Noon will be happy to put you to the test.

careless driving and driving without a valid license after a one-car accident on Main Street shortly after midnight on Saturday, Nov. 13.

Constance Haag of South Seas Plantation was driving south on Main Street near Court Place when she left the side of the road and overcompensated and swerved from side to side before finally hitting trees and bushes on the west side of the road.

Police estimated damage to Haag's 1975 Buick at $1,500.

A Sanibel man was charged with careless driving and having no drivers license after a two-car accident on Periwinkle Way near Meridian Drive on Saturday evening, Nov. 13.

Marc Aune of 1248 Seagrape Lane struck the rear of a car driven by Douglas Mark Andrews of 954 Whelk Drive. Both drivers were traveling east on Periwinkle when Andrews stopped for another car that was turning left off Periwinkle. Aune failed to stop and struck Andrews.

Police estimated there was $800 damage to Aune's 1976 Volkswagen and no damage to Andrews' 1977 Chevrolet.

Del Pierce

Age: 47

Height: 5'10."

Roots: "Sagle, Idaho. It's not a town, it's a sort of place."

Pleasures: "Hunting and watching the world go by."

Last Book Read: Rabbit Is Rich by John Updike.

Mentor: "My father, because of his personal attitudes, and Aldo Leopold, the father of game management, because of his professional attitudes."

Wish: "That all of mankind could live in true harmony with nature and the natural world."

Words of Wisdom: "Never take yourself too seriously. Keep things in perspective, including yourself."

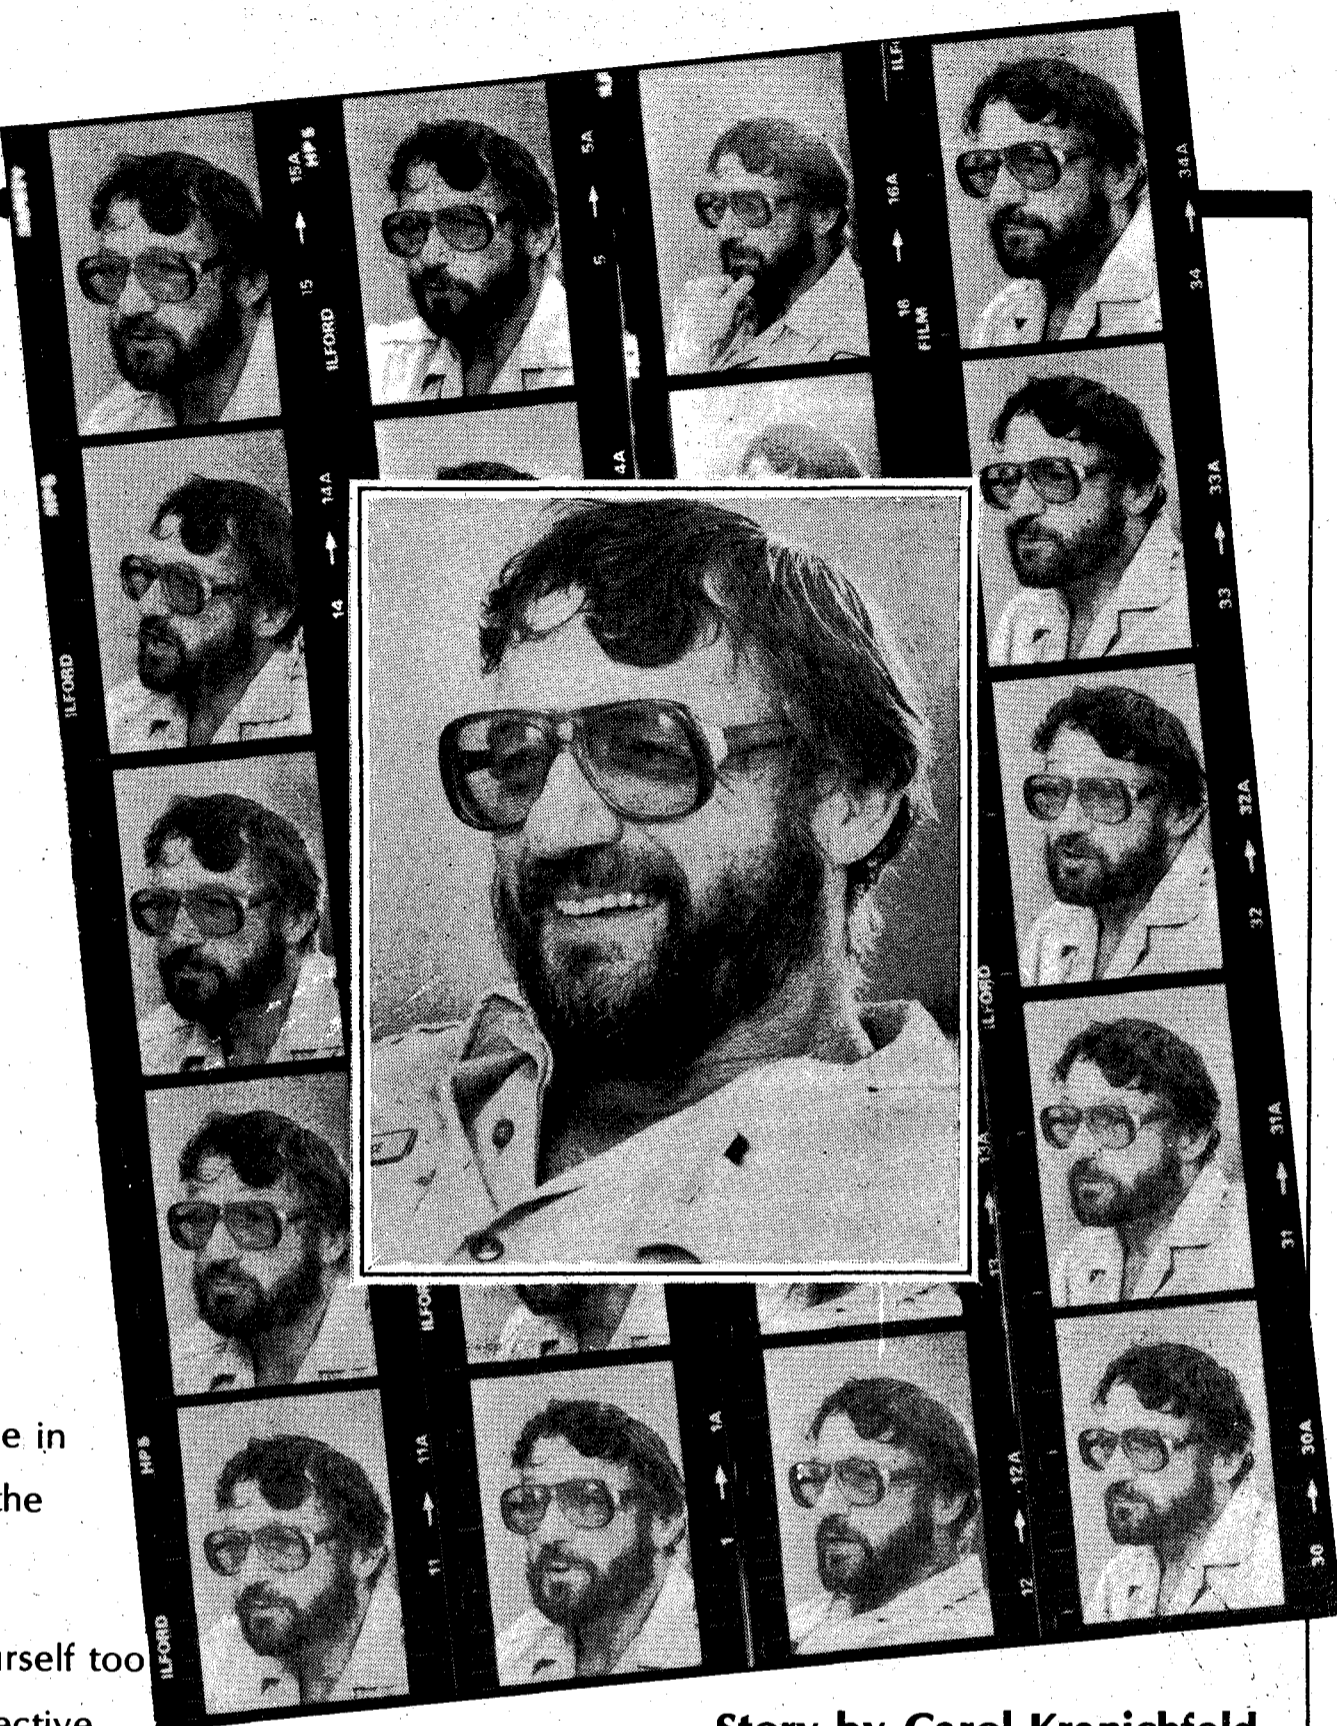

He's managed Sanibel's unique J.N. "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge for five years, and Del Pierce calls those five years "the most exciting time the refuge has ever had or ever will have, more than likely."

Hunter, fisherman, disciple of the father of game management Aldo Leopold, who spent most of his adult life learning how the human race can better get along with life in the wild through a sound understanding of biological and ecological dynamics, Pierce has seen the refuge on Sanibel through many major and some controversial changes.

The Island will lose Del in January, however, when he transfers far to the north and west to one of the nation's largest waterfowl and watershed production areas in North Dakota, named Des Lacs for the lazy, winding river that provides the area with much of its water resources.

"When people ask me what I will miss most about Sanibel, I can't answer them with any single thing," Pierce says. "I'll miss the beaches and the roseate spoonbills and all the wildlife along Wildlife Drive. But really, I'll miss the whole scene, and it's a mixture of all those things."

Unused as he is to living in an area as heavily populated as southwest Florida, Pierce looks forward to living in Kenmare, N.D., where the population is approximately 1,500, the mercury on the thermometer occasionally registers 40 degrees below Fahrenheit and the Des Lacs Refuge birdwatchers are measured in terms of dozens per year instead of dozens per hour.

Story by Carol Kranichfeld
Photos by David Meardon

Pierce says he takes with him to the north some great lessons learned during his Island residency. "I've been really happy participating in the whole manatee rescue and recovery program we were able to get involved with," he says.

"When I first saw a manatee, I wondered what anyone could see in such a big, ugly, blubbery thing," he adds. "But after I'd worked with them a while, I understood why people fall in love with them. It's been tremendously rewarding work, and really a chance of a lifetime -- even in Florida most refuges don't get involved in that kind of thing."

In addition to the tremendous effort made by Pierce and the entire refuge staff in manatee rescue and recovery missions, Pierce spearheaded the task Brazilian pepper eradication throughout the refuge during his Sanibel stay.

"I'm really proud of the Bailey Tract especially," he says. "We've made a start on the control of Brazilian pepper and have made it possible for that area to be a managed area."

The new building, new land purchases, increase in staff and budget changes and development of the water control structure at the refuge have made Pierce's time at the refuge most interesting. But he expresses concern that the Island may "settle in" from here on, not because of future refuge management, but because of the tremendous growth that seems to be in store for the entire area.

"I hate to see the coastal area in a constant state of deterioration. Tarpon Bay has oysters in it, but they're always polluted," he says with dismay. "This area is always under stress nowadays."

The people who currently live here and those who will come in the future have a great responsibility to protect the Island's resources, Pierce says. After all, he adds, that is the main reason most of them are here to begin with.

"The supreme irritation, to me, is the folks who move here for the sun but don't want the mosquitoes and find the vegetation gets in their way.

"They want the rural life and want to live among wildlife, but they also want the alligator removed from the pond in back of their house, and they panic if they see a ring-necked snake cross their path. In fact, they are generally reluctant to get along with animals," he says.

Conservationist efforts based on this kind of attitude, Pierce fears, will be just a "rear guard action all the time," with conservation victories simply slowing down defeat, not halting it altogether.

But for a man who has endured verbal and written missiles during his tenure on Sanibel, Pierce is surprisingly optimistic. "There's always a way of improving circumstances, both by wiping out ignorance and by using what you've learned," he says.

And for those who have come to appreciate the wildlife management projects Pierce initiated during his five years at the refuge, the scenario is not unlike that of his mentor, whose efforts are appreciated even more as time goes by.

South Seas report

Renourishment had no effect on Sanibel shoreline

By Barbara Brundage

The South Seas Beach Renourishment Project has had no apparent effect on Sanibel's shoreline so far, Planning Director Bruce Rogers reported to the City Council last week.

According to a monitoring report received by the city last August from South Seas Plantation Co., "Accretion has resulted at both ends of the project and erosion near the center," Rogers said.

Under a March 1981 stipulated agreement with South Seas, Sanibel withdrew its objection to the Captiva resort's renourishment project. South Seas in turn agreed to furnish the city aerial photographs of the shoreline from Redfish Pass to the Sanibel Lighthouse taken before the beach restoration project began and six, 12 and 18 months following its completion.

Rogers said a non-analytical examination of the aerial pictures taken in June and November 1981 and last April seem to indicate there has been no adverse effect on Sanibel's gulf beach.

He said information from the Lee County Community Development Department indicates South Seas is complying with another condition of the agreement and has not used the restored beach as justification for additional development or density increases on Captiva.

State issues 'intent to permit' letter for Redfish Pass borrow site

By Carol Kranichfeld

After months of planning, researching, monitoring and paper pushing, the Captiva Erosion Prevention District learned last week that the first step toward government approval of another Redfish Pass borrow site for the proposed beach renourishment project is in the mail.

Department of Environmental Regulations representative Dan Garlic let fly the news that DER issued a letter of "intent to permit" shortly after the department received recent data provided by CEPD showing that Redfish Pass has recovered from its recent use as a borrow site for the controversial beach renourish-ment at South Seas Plantation.

Ironically, the data that brought about issuance of DER's letter was, according to CEPD Project Manager Dick Stevens, "a supplemental analysis in addition to the required data," provided voluntarily by CEPD.

Also ironic is the fact that CEPD initially applied for use of other areas for the borrow site, but DER countered with the suggestion of using the Redfish Pass area again.

"Redfish Pass is very dynamic and naturally under stress, so that the organisms there come back very quickly," Stevens explained. The area is constantly cleaned out by tidal action and produces the best type of sand for beach renourishment -- sand that, when laid down, stays where it's supposed to, he added.

Despite the dynamics of Redfish Pass, the area of the pass used previously will be skirted this time, Stevens said. "The borrow site we will be using extends to the north, south and east of the old site," so that, in effect, the South Seas beach borrow site will not be touched, he explained.

The area just west of the site will not be borrowed from, either, he said, because that is where the sands naturally build up, a process CEPD chose not to interfere with.

DER has expressed some reservation, however, concerning the ability of the monolithic dredging equipment to effectively skirt the former borrow site, particularly in rough weather.

But Stevens said he is satisfied that the dredgers will pull anchor, as they did during the South Seas project, within hours of the first signs of inclement weather and wait out any storm in Pine Island Sound.

Once final permit approval is received, dredging bids will be solicited by CEPD, a process Stevens expects to take about 30 days. The sealed bids, which will be reviewed by CEPD, will be evaluated on the merit of the "lowest responsible" contract bid, as according to state law.

Talkin' tropical turkey

Start a Florida tradition for Thanksgiving

By Catherine Battista

In America cultures merge from one generation to the next, but in kitchens across the country women and men continue to take pride in the traditions of the past.

They follow handwritten recipes in the yellowed pages of old cookbooks to prepare dishes their grandmothers knew. Many of these recipes have migrated into Southwest Florida's "melting pot."

Family tradition is relived each year at Thanksgiving, which we tend to think of as a purely American holiday. But very few dishes have survived in their pure form because they were inspired by the immigrants of Europe and the Orient.

For example, you could find Chinese workers in the wilds of Oregon, and Indians in Tahlequah, Okla., still prepare squaw bread, hickory nut soup and boiled salmon. Today you could find as many recipes for turkey as there are ethnic groups in New York, each one reflecting a bit of its own culture.

As you discover a new lifestyle on Sanibel you might be ready to try something in the Florida tradition and leave grandmother's recipes tucked away.

These might be new insights into old favorites. Some might be new and exotic dishes made possible by Caribbean and Latin influence. As the vegetable basket of the United States, Florida produces a wide variety of hard to obtain fruits, vegetables and herbs. So the sky is the limit.

Muench garnered three council votes and Joe Feeney received one vote for the commission appointment. Councilman Mike Klein was absent.

The council was reluctant to make the appointment without a full membership present, but Klein, vacationing out of the country, is not expected to return to the Island before Dec. 3, the deadline for compliance with the ordinance establishing the Planning Commission that requires unexpired terms be filled within 30 days after the vacancy occurs.

On the advice of City Attorney Neal

Bowen, Hagerup resigned from the commission effective Nov. 3, the day after he was elected to the City Council. Under state law, Bowen explained, an official cannot hold in two offices at the same time.

Under the same rules Louise Johnson, elected last Tuesday to fill Council Seat 5, resigned from the commission the next day and created a second vacancy on the planning board. Friday morning the council accepted her resignation from her term that expires Dec. 31.

Earlier in the week Acting Planning Commission Chairman Larry Simon urged the council to fill Hagerup's seat quickly in order to insure a quorum at Monday's regular commission meeting.

Planning Commissioner Emily Barefield also pleaded with the council to make the appointment before Monday's meeting. Still recovering from a bout with pneumonia, Barefield feared she might not be well enough to participate.

Commission Chairman Ann Winterbotham, still vacationing in Africa, would not be present. With Muench on board a quorum for Monday's commission meeting was assured.

The new council, with two new members, will make the appointment to fill Johnson's unexpired term on Dec. 7. The term of Commissioner Lennart Lorenson expires Dec. 31. He was named to the commission last October when Arthur Wycoff resigned because of ill health.

It was the intent of the council at that time that Lorenson would be reappointed for a full term, Mayor Porter Goss said.

In considering appointments to the Planning Commission Goss urged the council "to look at the current composition and strive for balance such as age and points of view."

Goss will step down from the council after Johnson is sworn in Dec. 7.

Muench named to commission

Muench was appointed by the City Council on Friday morning to complete Hagerup's term on the commission, which expires in December 1983.

Bissell, 47, who said he represents a cross section of Island residents including many in the business community, viewed the closeness of the vote as a sign that, "The gap is closing."

Bob Buntrock, perceived as the businessman's candidate in a special election in April 1981 to fill the council vacancy created by the death of Butler, was defeated by Porter Goss 1,308 to 528.

Johnson, an avowed environmentalist, has served on the Planning Commission almost three years.

The eyes have it Optometrist offers tips for sunburned eyes

You just arrived ahead of the cold north winds and can't wait to head for the beach. If you haven't been in the sun recently and if you learned a painful lesson from your last vacation's sunburn, you probably packed your suntan lotion, put on a light, long-sleeved shirt and maybe even a hat -- but I doubt it -- before heading out.

But what did you do for your eyes? My eyes, you ask? Believe it or not, you can sunburn your eyes.

It is easy to walk the beach, look for shells and glance out across the beautiful rolling waves of the Islands' coast. It is even easier to do this if you are on vacation.

You probably walk farther and longer and stay outdoors for more hours than at any other time of the year because you want to get the most out of your vacation. And you do this on white, sparkling, sandy beaches. Who can blame you? Your eyes.

What you are doing is exposing your eyes to long intervals of ultra-violet radiation. The cornea (outer most part of your eye) absorbs much of this radiation and it has uncomfortable side effects.

This is the same group of wave lengths that suntan your body, but unlike your skin, the cornea doesn't tan. It burns.

The effects are not lessened with time, nor do the eyes build up any protection of their own, as the darker pigmentation of the skin allows.

Instead, the absorption is cumulative. The eyes do not develop a tolerance, but actually become more sensitive with repeated exposure. Thus, your many forages to the sea over your vacation can add up and take their toll on your eyes. And they do.

What this is called is "photo-ophthalmia" or "photo-keratitis." For our friendly snow birds, it is also called "snow blindness." A more descriptive name is "exposure keratitis," and that should give you an idea of what may happen to your cornea and other parts of your eye.

The results? Your eyelids become reddened and swollen. There is a sensation of "sand" in the eyes, and you become sensitive to light. Your eyes will tear and itch, and you'll make faces at your friends from squinting and tensing your lids.

These symptoms usually begin six to 12 hours after the exposure and last up to two days. If you are not careful, you will begin to rub your eyes and perhaps risk a secondary infection, aggravate the cornea more and just slow down the healing process because you don't give the new cells a chance to hang on. And women, your wrinkles will show even more!

But, ah, you say, what if it is a cloudy day? Sorry. Clouds and fog absorb very little of the ultra-violet light. You are fooled by the cool shade, but your are still susceptible. Not only that, but the rays are reflected from the sand and water and every smooth, light surface around.

Now before you pack your bags and fly back to the safety of the Chicago shade, there is a solution. First is common sense. Don't overdo a good thing. You shouldn't spend the entire day in the sun, and you should avoid the hottest part of the day.

Spend most of your time away from the sand and reflecting surfaces. Surround your place in the sun with a lot of towels to block the sand's reflections, and don't forget your sunglasses.

As for your sunglasses, make sure they are dark. How dark? So dark that you can't see much of anything if you wear them indoors. A nice blue or pink tint makes a fine cosmetic tint, but it will not screen like a dark lens.

Take the same precautions you take to prevent sunburn to your body. Just remember you eyes never get the suntan lotion and they can't roll over to get out of the sun like your backside can!

Editor's note: Dr. Albert Evans practices optometry on Sanibel. He is licensed in Florida, Texas and South Africa.

THE WAY WE WERE

20 Years Ago This Week 1962

A pot luck supper was held at the Captiva Community Association last week to welcome Dr. and Mrs. A.G. Butzer. Dr. Butzer will officiate at Chapel By The Sea this season.

Floyd Snook and some friends have a hunting lodge, the ACR (Alibies, Confusion and Lies) Hunt Club in Oklawaha, Fla. Last week Floyd took Doc Bryant to the club, and Doc brought in the first deer, which weighed in at 144 pounds.

Dan and Elsie Malone of Marathon, Fla., who are frequent Island visitors, arrived here last week to stay at the Villa Capra. They went shelling on Friday with Priscilla Murphy.

Books weren't the only things given to the Sanibel School last week. Island artist Robert Klotz presented the school a matted, framed picture of the school house that he created in an art week demonstration.

Also at the school this week the Alligator Essay Contest winners were announced. They are Donald Miller, Jean Wooster, Denise Stevens, Mike Dormer, Becky Miller, Alice Aleck and Debbie and Mark McQuade.

Rehearsals have started for the Island Instrumental Ensemble, which meets at the home of Ruth Ross in Chateaux sur Mer. The group includes Mrs. John Walters, Admiral E.G. Konrad, E.F. Legel, Zee Seigler and Mrs. Rex Seigler.

About 30 members of the Audubon Society of the Everglades with headquarters in West Palm Beach visited Sanibel and Captiva last week. Most used camping facilities at Periwinkle Trailer Park and spend long and rewarding hours touring the J.N. "Ding" Darling Sanctuary.

An up-to-date list of birds that can be seen on Sanibel and Captiva has been released by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Entitled "Birds of the J.N. 'Ding' Darling National Wildlife Refuge," the leaflet lists 227 species plus 24 species considered rare or accidental.

will be presented to Island residents on Nov. 30. The plan eventually will be submitted to the full board of the County Commission for approval as the guide for future growth on the Islands.

The bandage rollers met at the home of Ruth Hunter at the Pirate Playhouse earlier this month. Working very hard with Ruth to turn out a fine supply of bandages were Sylvia Olling, Peg Racek, Dorothy Dickey, Peg Dunham and Violet Renshaw. The bandages are sent to the Catholic Medical Mission Board in New York City.

Scotty's restaurant advertised two Thanksgiving dinner specials: Virginia baked ham with pineapple slices, raisin sauce, plenty of vegetables, fresh pumpkin pie, hot rolls and butter, green salad and relish; or roasted young tom turkey with giblet dressing and natural gravy, cranberry sauce, homemade stuffing, pickled beets, Scotch stove potatoes, Idaho and sweet potatoes, sweet peas and local finger carrots. Both dinners for $3.95.

City Manager Bill Nungester has been authorized to execute a contract with Bankers Life of Des Moines, Iowa, to provide a pension plan for city employees.

The Live Shelling Committee last week met to consider a proposed study of seashell populations in Island waters to determine the effect of live shelling on Sanibel's vital molluscan community.

More than 180 acres of Sanibel's interior wetlands will be formally turned over to the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation by the state of Florida in a lease agreement now being prepared by the Department of Natural Resources.

The agreement is being formalized to allow the establishment of a wildlife rescue facility to be operated by Care and Rehabilitation of Wildlife.

City Manager Bernie Murphy was authorized last week to negotiate a contract with the First National Bank of Boston to serve as the city's fiscal agent in possible negotiations with Lee County to purchase the Sanibel Causeway.

Sanibel residents Linda and Brian Houston have been given the first option to purchase the city's first below market rate house. The Houstons were selected in a lottery held at the recently renovated house on Atlanta Plaza and have already indicated their intention to seek purchase of the house for $45,000.

Conservation through utilization

Use them or lose them

A pride of Lions in Kenya. The genetic isolation of such groups is a threat to the future of the species.

By George Campbell

Illustrated by Ann Winterbotham

NAIROBI, Nov. 18 - We have seen in the first two parts of this mini-series how African herbivores can be domesticated and utilized to feed the masses and also saved from extinction.

We discussed how Flamingoes "harvested" in modest numbers preserved the species while legal "protection" seemed to hasten their destruction. This principle can serve to preserve Leopards and Lions here in Kenya, too.

Not so long ago Kenya initiated laws to legally protect all wild species. There are no more trophy shops. Taxidermists are hungry. White hunters are learning about cameras and forgetting their guns. Photographic safaris, such as the one we are on, flourish. But wild animal trophies of any sort (with the possible exception of venomous snakes) are not legally bought or sold.

The world's conservation community hailed this move. Finally, it was said, the great animal herds of Kenya would be safe.

Well, unfortunately, there are breaches in the dike. Poaching is big business, even in government circles. Ivory and Rhino horn poached in Kenya are smuggled across borders into other nations and exported by third parties.

But what about Leopards and Lions? Before the spotted cat pelt ban, Leopards were of value to Kenyans. A poor farmer might tolerate occasional stock losses due to Leopard predation. Why? Because once in a while that poor farmer could shoot a Leopard and thereby earn a year's income in one fell swoop.

Leopards represented danger; they represented stock losses. But they also held out the promise of lots of wealth. Such farmers actually studied local Leopard populations, using care to "harvest" only certain identified individuals. They made sure the Leopard family was left sufficiently intact to be able to reproduce and perpetuate what, to the farmer, was a good deal.

Given a realistic evaluation of circumstances as they exist in Kenya today, it may have been a good deal for the Leopards, too.

Soon after the ban on buying, selling and exporting Leopard pelts came into being, the heretofore valuable Leopard family became a family of vermin.

Without the ability to earn large sums from the modest exploitation of the cats, the Kenyan natives thought only to destroy them -- rid the countryside of a valueless predator that, under present conditions, was only a liability. So here is another case where animal protection laws backfired on conservation.

Fortunately the crafty Leopard is smart and adaptable enough to measure the changed attitudes toward his existence and manages to cope in many localities. But some say he was better off when valued and exploited than in his present "protected" condition of being considered only vermin.

Lions are quite another story. Some scientists feel that isolated groups of Lions in widely separated National Parks may be preventing the gene pool variability necessary to the maintenance of a healthy Lion population.

Such parks may be many dozens or even hundreds of miles apart. In between are often the big cattle ranches where Europeans and some Africans, too, are perpetuating the folly started in early colonial times -- raising exotic cattle strains on land to which they are ill-adapted.

Plagued with the intrinsic problems of the perpetuation of such folly, the attitude among the ranchers that they don't want any damn Lions around eating their livestock becomes widespread. So they shoot them, thus leaving widely-isolated Lion gene pools in the National Parks as the only means of maintaining Lions in the wild.

Some smart ranchers and conservationists have put their heads together to try to unravel a workable modus operandi that will satisfy both the ranchers and the genetic problem of the remaining Lions: appeal to the "instinctive," venal and base desire of Texas millionaires and others of their stripe who butcher wildlife for sadistic pleasure and allow them license to pay big bucks to the Kenya government for a license to kill.

This huge license fee per animal (and I'm talking about something like $10,000 per kill) would be shared 50-50 with the ranchers. The government's perpetual need for funds to operate the National Parks would be partially satisfied and the ranchers would be compensated for stock that might otherwise be unsalable -- for don't forget that natural selection would play its role and the weaker stock would fall prey to the Lions, thus strengthening the ranchers' herds.

The base instincts of the Texas macho type would be satisfied: he would pose, foot on the dead beast's shoulder, high-powered rifle in hand, and "prove" to the world that he can not only run a bank in Houston and an oil field in West Texas, but also, at grave danger to himself and with great courage, he can knock off a poor old Lion with a high-powered piece of modern artillery.

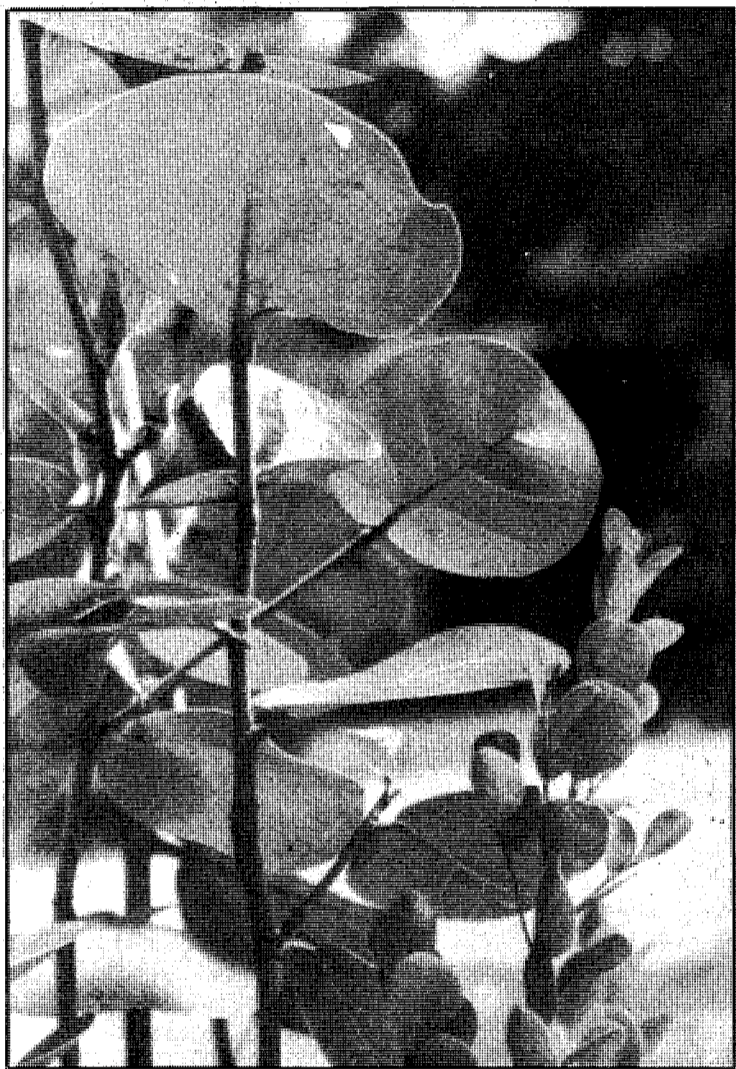

Eventually the photograph, and of course the mounted head, could look down from the wall of his den in River Oaks, that Texas bastion of murderers and millionaires which only in that state is considered really posh.

Even the Lions would benefit, because animals to be hunted could be individually identified by trained rangers. A certain beneficial selection could be undertaken by those in charge, allowing only those animals to be killed that are no longer useful or that are at least of declining genetic usefulness to the pride.

Vigorous young males coming into their prime would not be target animals. All females, too, would be spared.

The Lions, then, would repopulate areas between the National Parks and, in due course, Park A would recruit new genetic stock that may have originated in Park B. The reverse would also take place, thus replenishing the

SCCF nursery, county undertake Causeway beautification program

By Carol Kranichfeld

Those of you who consider the Sanibel Causeway a bit of an eyesore, take heart. Lee County and the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation Native Plant Nursery are about to effect some changes.

Salt-hardy plants are being provided by the nursery under the watchful eye of manager Dee Slinkard, to provide the Causeway not only with some aesthetic vegetation but with some protection against erosion as well.

Although the final tally has yet to be made, Slinkard is potting varnish leaf, golden creeper, coco plums and sea grapes to be transported and planted on either side of the Causeway islands, particularly at the rest area that is heavily trafficked by picnickers and fishermen.

Proposed initially by former SCCF Director Dick Workman and nursery manager Norma Jean Byrd four or five years ago, the project is finally taking shape with the help of Slinkard and consultant Bill Byle of Alva's Environmental Services Unlimited.

"My guess is that most of the vegetation installed will be fairly low because of the nature of the land and the salt spray," Slinkard says. "Some of the plants will be used for erosion control around the cemented areas, but the project will probably go far beyond that and into building some native communities."

Sea oats, cat's claw, strangler fig and gumbo limbo and marsh elder are all on the list of recommended vegetation for the Causeway islands.

genetic variability of the Lion population in both National Parks. The grid would spread and eventually a successful overall situation would obtain.

I feel the principle is sound, but of course it is not as simple as outlined above. There would be rogue Lions and situations where human settlements would interfere because of their location between National Parks. But an effort will be made along these lines. Scientists and ecologists here in Kenya are mulling this proposal.

I have reservations. I don't like to endorse anything that permits killing. I feel that the human species should have become sufficiently civilized so that killing for fun would no longer be considered an instinctive human need.

Unfortunately the members of the hunting community don't agree with me. However, in the United States some are leaving the ranks of hunters and joining conservationists, as we saw recently in the Everglades deer case.

So some such controlled hunt might be of benefit to the Lions. Such very selective shooting, rigorously controlled, goes on today in Scotland, Holland and West Germany, where rigid codes of ethics are enforced -- without any booze consumed on the hunt, I might add.

United States "hunters" (read "butchers") are less disciplined. All kinds and stripes of enthusiastic killers, equipped with copious quantities of beer and liquor, not to mention all-terrain vehicles and expensive, high-powered artillery, go out each hunting season and shoot anything that moves, from legal target animals to Holstein Cows and, bless 'em, each other.

I don't ever want to see American-type "hunting" here in Africa. But a disciplined Lion program such as described above could serve Lion conservation through lion utilization.

As some say, "Use them or lose them."

Editor's note: The opinions expressed in this article are those of the writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of The Islander.

Fortunately, the crafty Leopard is smart and adaptable enough to measure the changed attitude toward his existence and manages to cope in many localities.

CROW Director Holly Davies.

Help the people who help our wildlife; volunteer your services to CROW

The Care and Rehabilitation of Wildlife has long been a source of pride and delight to Island conservationists and has cared for nearly 70 species of wild animals numbering in the hundreds in the first seven months of 1982 alone.

The kind of dedication required to provide proper care for such a variety of injured and sickly creatures can only be maintained with a great deal of assistance, and CROW Director Holly Davies needs extra help.

Although a few part-time employees have been hired recently, Davies says more help is needed. She is calling on CROW's reserves and enlisting new help to perform such tasks as flight-cage construction, volunteer a c t i v i t y coordination, Brazilian pepper eradication and cage-cleaning.

An hour a day, an hour a week or an hour a month of volunteer time will be greatly welcomed by Holly and the CROW board. Anyone wishing to donate some spare time should call Bette Parke, 472-2946, Alfred Battista, 472-4945, or Davies, 472-3644.

Mangroves headline this week's Tuesday at the Center program

Next week's Tuesday at the Center lecture will be given by Sgt. Kat Kelley-Phillips, a wildlife inspector with the Florida Game and Freshwater Fish Commission. The lecture and slide presentation, entitled "Endangered Species," will be presented on Tuesday, Nov. 30.

General admission for non-SCCF members is $1 for adults and $.50 for children. The public is invited to attend.

Handpainted silk artist takes talent to BIG Arts Crafts Show

Entering the world of Lahja Tischler's "Handpainted Silks" is entering a world of timelessness and color.

Everyone who attends this weekend's BIG Arts Crafts Fair will have an opportunity to do just that, simply by browsing Lahja's booth.

A veteran BIG Arts Crafts Fair participant, Lahja was one of the first to sell out last year. The eye with which she applies her soft and impressionistic designs is a great gift, but she also makes a point of pricing her creations to entice every passerby into taking one home.

The silks she imports from China (georgette, tie silk and crepe de chine) are white, at least initially. Lahja and her young apprentice, Kerry Casper, are responsible for every dab of color the scarf, or purse, or pareo (a type of caftan) takes on.

The rainbow of hues the two women have at their fingertips is truly nothing short of superb. But even more creditable is the experienced eye with which they put those colors together.

The dyes originate in France and, as natural colors, lend themselves perfectly to the designs Lahja is so comfortable working with - poppies, orchids, irises, shells, fish and the sea itself.

Oriental imaginings take shape on Lahja's hand-painted silks, too, in the form of bamboo shoots and grassy ferns. With a pinch of sea salt the dyes bubble into miraculous free-flowing forms.

Aside from the silken dresses, skirts and blouses, all of which "breathe" and are, therefore, comfortable wear in any weather, Lahja offers silken evening bags with matching eyeglass cases, pillows, miniature tissue holders and even exquisite ascots for men.

Most delightful of all, perhaps, is the wearability of Lahja's creations. It has been written that Lahja's silks "wash like diapers, press like hankies and wear like your favorite jeans," all due to the baking process each piece goes through before it is placed on the rack. The process renders the silks durable enough to withstand the hottest iron and the dyes to endure the hardest water.

Sound too good to be true? It will be easy enough to see for yourself at the BIG Arts Crafts Fair this Saturday, Nov. 27, at the Sanibel Community Association from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Or see Lahja's silks anytime at her studio-shop, "Handpainted Silks," just next door to Elsie Malone's Shell Shop on Periwinkle Way.

Treehouse Gallery reopens on Captiva

The Captiva Art Gallery at the Treehouse Gift Shop has reopened just in time for the holidays and some delightful Christmas shopping experiences.

Closed since June's No-Name Storm, the Captiva Art Gallery is unique in its effort to feature only locally crafted artwork, displaying pottery by Island favorite Hanna Hilger and metal sculptures by veterans Larry Hoff and Linda Ritchie.

On special display through Christmas will be exquisitely carved duck decoys and wood sculptures by Patrick Biddle, A.G. Robbins and Island tour guide George Weymouth. Unusually lifelike and dynamic in their poses, the wood carvings might be the focus of attention after the first of the year as well, when Biddle hopes to arrive on Captiva to offer woodcarving workshops under the auspices of the gallery.

Additional highlights at the Captiva Gallery include soft and cerebral hand-painted lithographs such as "Star in Forehead" by Maybelle Stamper and a host of paintings by Island talent in the gallery's ground floor halls, including watercolors by Ruth North, Helene Sparkes, Ruth Searing and Ken Turney and oils by Bob York.

Gallery visitors will be delighted with the exhibit hall's use of natural light via the great east doors that are opened wide daily to admit the sun's full incandescence.

The Captiva Art Gallery is just opposite the entrance to South Seas Plantation. The gallery is open from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. daily.

The Schoolhouse Gallery entertained a crowd of Island residents and visitors Sunday evening at its first artist reception of the winter season for local favorite Ikki Matsumoto.

The crowd came to view Ikki's latest works, a collection of pieces borne of the artist's impressions during his stay in New England this summer that are a departure from his long-established style of art.

Acrylics all, Ikki's most recent pieces are on the whole smaller, less colorful, less expensive and, in their own way, perhaps a bit more static than what Islanders have come to know as "Ikkis".

They show, however, a great depth of understanding of natural coloration and of life in New England as seen through the eyes of an artist impressed by the verdant forests and sandy white shores with which native New Englanders are so intimately acquainted.

Up close, the new Ikkis such as "Cape Cod" may appear to be lifeless. But given space, the acrylics gain tremendous depth and clarity, as though the viewer is paddling the lake in a canoe in the late afternoon, watching the shoreline in the frame.

Most true artists reach a point several times in their careers when they feel the need for a change. Ikki has obviously reached such a stage, and although there are vestiges of the old Ikki style (precise brush strokes, straight lines coming to life), viewers familiar with his works should prepare themselves for a surprise.

Ikki is betting that the surprise will be an enjoyable one.

The local group of Classical Listeners that met last spring following the Music Appreciation Course conducted by Ruth Kaiser at the Sanibel Community Center will hold the season's first meeting at the home of Underwood Graham in Gulf Pines on next Tuesday, Nov. 30, at 7:30 p.m. Additional members are welcome. For information, call Graham, at 472-3235.

Performances of Sorry Wrong Number and The Hitch-Hiker will be presented at Chadwick's when the Estero Island Repertory Company arrives on Captiva on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 26 and 27. The two one-act plays will be sponsored by the Repertory Company, a community theatre group. For curtain times and more details, call Chadwick's, 472-5111.

Enjoy crafts fair on a full stomach

Anyone who attended last year's BIG Arts Crafts Fair on an empty stomach must have arrived well after members of the Sanibel-Captiva Rotary Club had flipped their last pancake and fried their last strip of bacon at the club's annual pancake breakfast.

This year fair goers are forewarned that the Rotary Club will serve breakfast -- All You Can Eat! -- at the Sanibel Community Center from 7 a.m. until noon this Saturday, Nov. 27. For $3 for adults and $1.50 for children 12 and under, club members will be happy to heap steaming pancakes and more on plates for hungry guests.

While you're eating those light-as-a-feather pancakes, remember you've also done your part for the Island community, for all proceeds from the breakfast will benefit Island projects.

Sanibel-Captiva Art League Show opens on Captiva with 40 exhibits

By Carol Kranichfeld

Art lovers had a front-row seat on Sunday, Nov. 21, at the Sanibel-Captiva 1982 Sanibel-Captiva Juried Art Show held at the Captiva Community Center.

The culmination of a year's work, the art show is the "baby" of the late Leon Levy, who founded the art league in 1964 and made it possible for local artists to gather annually for a presentation of their year's best efforts.

Chaired this year by art league President Jean Gibson, the show was juried by Cape Canaveral artist Roberta Snyder. She awarded Betty Arehart's watercolor "Still Water" first place; watercolor "New Orleans" by Joy Reinhardt second place; and for the second consecutive year, Fort Myers artist Sally Lacroux's acrylic efforts for third place. Lacroux's entry this year was "Laminated."

Special Merit Awards were given to artists Joan Bitzer for "Shells" (watercolor); Barbara Dobbs for "Fiddling Around" (watercolor); Cele Fox for "Quiet Time" (acrylic); and Mildred Roedig for "Dots, Dashes and Stripes" (collage).

A variety of mediums was on hand for all viewers to share, with art league exhibit guests encouraged to vote on the show's "Popular Prize and Ribbon" award.

Of special note are works by Helene Sparkes ("Highlands Falls"); Adelaide Edgard's oils ("Periwinkle Way" and "Children at Bowman's Beach"); and Ruth Searing's watercolors ("Thistles"), all of which bring natural settings to life with tremendous understanding of color and light.

All 40 exhibit pieces will be on display at the Captiva Community Center through Sunday, Dec. 5. Viewing hours are 1-4 p.m. daily.

Free gift wrapping will be offered throughout the exhibit. Packing and shipping are also available for the exhibit's duration.

Make your own snowflakes - Sanibel style

By Barbara Boulton

In order to enjoy snowflakes on Sanibel you have to make them yourself. My mother and I started crocheting in July and make them by the dozens.

Once we find a good basic pattern, we make several with slight variations. These are not easy for beginners because the instructions are intricate. If, however, you have crocheted, tackling this skill should be rewarding. The cotton used is inexpensive, and the results become heirlooms.

If you are adventurous, a pattern is not necessary. In fact, it might be easier to make up your own designs as you crochet. Just remember that you should work in multiples of six to make six points for your snowflakes.

Begin by single crocheting around a ring about 48 times or chaining five and slip-stitching into first chain to form a ring.

The easiest design is to chain 10, then single crochet in the ring, chain five, then single crochet in the ring, and continue this pattern until you have six long and six short loops.

You could stop here for a small snowflake. If you wish to do another round, on the final loop of the first round chain three and triple crochet in the ring. This leaves you at the top of the loop, ready to make another round of outside loops.

Add small loops of chains onto long posts of chain stitches. A popular stitch is the picot. To picot, place left thumb nail on last stitch, chain six, slip stitch in sixth chain from hook. Most of the popular snowflake patterns consist of just two or three rounds of loops.

The finishing and shaping is the key to an attractive project. Make at least six snowflakes before you stiffen them. We use sugar syrup made by boiling 1/2 cup of water with 1/2 cup of sugar. (No, the ants don't bother them, even in storage.)

Soak the snowflakes in the cooled syrup and spread them on waxed paper, pulling and stretching them at opposite points.

When they have nearly dried, use two toothpicks to shape the points and nearly open up the loops. Allow to dry completely.

If you use a "bone" ring in the center, you may wish to cross stitch a small design on hardanger cloth and glue it to the circle. Photos, charms or small bells also look pretty in the center.

So readers, dig out your steel crochet hooks and, "Let it snow, let it snow, let it snow!"

If you have any questions, stop in Idle Hours in the Periwinkle Place shopping center.

Interior decorator offers tips to make home your own

By Lori Armstrong

Interior decorating is an art. And, like the artist, you must not be afraid to begin.

An interior is made up of many factors that flow together like the colors on a palette.

It is so easy to come and go from your home each day and not have a feel for the very core of living. Your home is you, your family, your love. All this should simply "ooze" from the walls, windows, the floor, your bedroom and bath.

When you open your front door a feeling of welcome should pull you in.

"But, ah," you say, "to make my home the way it should be takes so much money." Not necessarily so. If you can go carte blanche, fine. Your home is probably one of your greatest investments. If you are renting, it is no less of a retreat. Indulge. Change what you can; banish the clutter; discard the unbearable.

Now that your appetite is whet, let's embark on the adventures and challenges of decorating your home.

Today we feature a simple make-over. Pictured are two full-size beds in a corner arrangement. Dowdy spreads and deflated pillows were replaced by king and queen size pillows and decorator fitted sheets and dust ruffles.

A fresh wall arrangement finishes the look. Now the room has a more functional, relaxed mood. The approximate cost was $150.

In the weeks to come we will explore the many factors that go into putting it all together to create an interesting home for you.

District governor attends Islands Lions Club meeting

By D.E. Cooperrider

The Sanibel-Captiva Lions Club held its regular meeting at the Sanibel Community Association hall on Nov. 17. District Gov. Max Moellinger of Cape Coral conducted his annual visitation to the club.

The season appears to be starting with an influx of guests from out of state. One such guest last week was a past district governor from Minnesota.

Several donations to the Lions charity funds were noted, including a special donation from a visiting Lion from Switzerland.

Numerous announcements were made, and Lion Urban Palmer requested support for the Texas-style Ranch Party that is planned to honor retiring and retired city government officials.

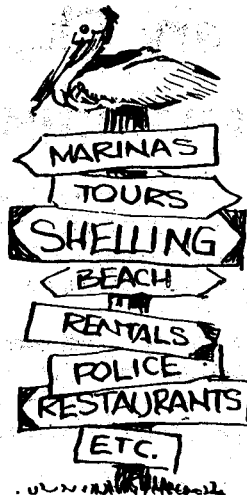

Lion Yaeche asked for those planning to attend the Florida Lions Convention next year to give their names to the secretary as soon as possible so reservations and arrangements can be made.

District Gov. Moellinger gave an interesting talk, "Share the Vision of Service," which is the slogan of the International Lions President Everett Grindstaff of Texas.

Five new members were inducted in an impressive joint ceremony that was conducted by Moellinger, President Wilcox and Lion Duane White. Those inducted were John Goerner, William Moore, Phil Johnson, Jack Samler and Benjamin Bacon.

The next regular Lions meeting will be held at 6:30 p.m. on Dec. 1 at the Sanibel Community Association hall.

Business women plan bake sale this weekend, prize drawing next month

The Sanibel-Captiva Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association will hold a bake sale this Saturday, Nov. 27, in the courtyard of the Periwinkle Place shopping center.

The sale will begin at 10 a.m. and will continue until there is not a single goody left to sell!

The entire proceeds of the bake sale will go to the ABWA Scholarship Fund. The local chapter grants partial academic scholarships to two deserving Island women each year. Islanders Sue Purdy and Jeannie McLoughlin, the current scholarship recipients, are both doing very well in their respective academic fields.

Islanders who are not tempted or who might not wish to be tempted can help our local scholarship students in three ways:

1. Donate a baked item, jar of homemade preserves, etc., for ABWA to sell this Saturday. Prospective donors should contact Barbara Boulton, 472-1039.

2. Contribute any amount to ABWA's Scholarship Fund. Contact Treasurer Nancy Olds, 472-6777.

3. Purchase a ticket for $1 for a drawing to be held on Dec. 9. All members of ABWA are now selling tickets, which will also be available at this weekend's bake sale. Various Island merchants have most generously contributed three outstanding prizes for the drawing:

1. An original Ikki Matsumoto framed print, donated by Schoolhouse Gallery.

2. A full basket of cheer donated by Island merchants who deal in spirits.

3. A cooked holiday meal donated by McT's and Pepper's.

Christian Science Church plans Thanksgiving service

The Sanibel Christian Science Church will hold a special Thanksgiving service at 1 p.m. on Thanksgiving Day this Thursday, Nov. 25. The public is invited.

The service will trace the scriptural record of God's blessings. The Bible lesson will focus on God's provision for daily needs of food, clothing and shelter as well as the deeper yearnings of the heart for fulfillment, health and the opportunity to help others.

The latter part of the hour-long service has been set aside for expressions of gratitude. Hymns, the Lord's Prayer, and the President's Thanksgiving Proclamation will complete the service.

Chadwick's celebrates fifth birthday

Chadwick's restaurant at South Seas Plantation celebrates its fifth birthday with a festive party on Friday, Dec. 10.

Cake, champagne, food, music, dancing and a weekend for two on Marco Island for a lucky winner will highlight the evening's festivities.

Admission is free. Be ready to taste the dishes of the winning recipes from the Island Cook-Off. The party will start at 8 p.m. and end at midnight at Lindbergh Hall behind Chadwick's.

Wednesday competition set for bridge fans

Bridge players now have an opportunity for competition every Wednesday from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Sanibel Community Association Building on Periwinkle Way.

There are cash prizes for 1st, 2nd, 3rd and last. No partners necessary. For more information call 472-2360.

Aerobic dance classes continue

Aerobic dance classes will be held at the Sanibel Baptist Church through Dec. 2. Classes are on Monday and Wednesday mornings from 9 to 10 a.m. and on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6 to 7 p.m.

Name the American player who won a record 13 Davis Cup challenge singles matches in a row.

Shopping

Sanibel is a veritable shopper's paradise. Tasteful boutiques and casual island shops join forces to present visitors with everything and anything a vacation shopper could hope for.

At the Lighthouse (Eastern) end of the island, Punta Ybel Plaza and the Sea Horse Shops are right across the street from one another, providing a variety of products that can cure your sweet tooth or tickle your shell finder's fancy. Need a good haircut or coliffure? You can get it in either of these shopping centers.

Most businesses open at 10 a.m. and close at 5:30 p.m. This holds true for many island stores, although some are open evenings during the winter season.

Tall Australian Pines shade Periwinkle Way and the shopper travels west along this main thoroughfare. This stretch of road is truly a shopper's paradise! It's all here -- the fast and not-so-fast eating spots, casual and elegant boutiques, hand-wrought jewelry, craft designs, shell shops and baits for health product fanatics.

Watch to your right and left as you drive or cycle along. Photographic supplies, bait and tackle, deli foods, fresh seafood and baked goods, knick-knacks and what-nots can all be found along the drive to the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road. Along the way, shopping centers such as the Heart of the Islands, Periwinkle Place and Tahitian Gardens offer a variety of island delights.

Palm Ridge Road, the Periwinkle Way turn-off to Captiva, offers several shopping centers featuring everything from imports to gift shops for the discriminating shopper, plants and shells, a sandwich shop, ice cream parlors, pizza parlor, boutique shop and the Island Apothecary pharmacy.

At the Tarpon Bay-Periwinkle Way intersection, the Island Shopping Center features the island's only supermarket and movie house.

A left on Tarpon Bay Road takes the visitor past Sanibel's original schoolhouse, which now holds original island watercolors and woodcuts.

Then on to West Gulf Drive and westward to an interesting little artisan shop and gallery.

At the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road, you may choose instead to turn right and follow the signs to the Tarpon Bay marina, where you will find a cluster of quaint shops overlooking the back bay. Some antiques, shells and shellcrafts, what-nots and clever clothes can be found here, as well as a great seafood sandwich and soft drinks.

The spectacular ride to Captiva, with its lush foliage and enchanting view of the Gulf, is well worth a day's outing. Talented artists display their works in one roadside shop, while others feature some nifty gifts for Grandma to take home to little hands as a pleasant hodge-podge of remembrances from these barrier islands.

Whether for shopping or merely browsing, island shops offer a surprising variety from one-of-a-kind collectibles for the discerning shopper to postcards for the simple souvenir hunter. And of course, for all shells -- shell jewelry, shell lamps, just plain shells -- the most beautiful shells in the world from the most beautiful shelling beaches in the world.

SHELLING

The City's resolution limiting the taking of live shells to two live shells per species per person is one to be scrupulously obeyed. As a matter of fact, in order to preserve Sanibel's beautiful shelling beaches, most collectors refuse to take any live shells whatsoever.

DOGGY DO'S AND DON'TS

If you are visiting Sanibel with the family Fido in tow, all the better. All family members can enjoy Southwest Florida sun and surf.
 The Chamber of Commerce can tell you what accommodations are available for families with pet:

Remember: Wherever you are, clean up after your pet!
 "Leave nothing on the beach but footprints" applies to dogs, too.
 There's no leash law on Sanibel, but of course an excitable or unruly animal is better off when controlled with a leash.

 YOUR VALUABLES

In order to protect your valuable possessions from theft, it is recommended that you take them to a bank or hotel vault for safekeeping. Do NOT leave them in your room or car.

CAMPING, BEACH FIRES

Camping on the beach is prohibited, as are open beach fires.
 An exemption to the beach fire ordinance is a fire in an approved cooking container (not to exceed 48x24x12 inches deep) with an extruded metal grill for non-commercial food preparation. This type of container will be allowed on the beach without a permit.

 After you have had your beach party, please assume the responsibility for clean up any debris or litter in you ea.

FISHING

While no license is required for saltwater fishing, fishing in freshwater ponds or the Sanibel River requires a Florida fishing license.
 Licenses are available at Bailey's General Store on Periwinkle Way. The fee is $6.50 for residents and $10.50 for non-residents.
Minimum Legal Lengths
 Blue Fish 10 inches

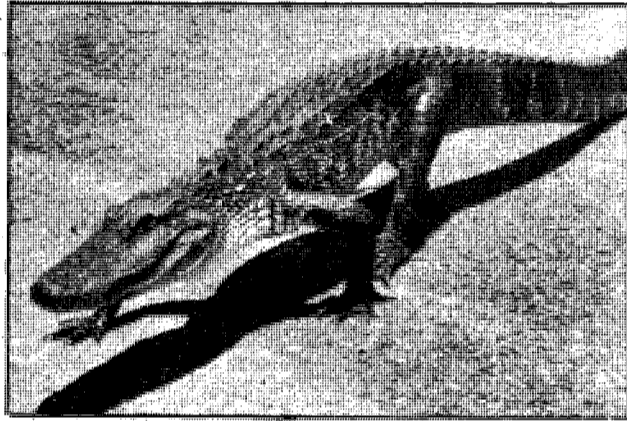

Flounder	11 inches
Grouper	12 inches
Mackerel	12 inches
Mullet	12 inches
Pompano	10 inches
Red Fish	12 inches
Snook	18 inches
Trout	12 inches

Snook fishing is outlawed from June 30-Aug. 1.

SPEED LIMITS

There is very good reason for the varying speed limits. (20-30 mph) along the Causeway. The slower speeds preserve the bridge supports from strain and stress.
 This speed limit is strictly enforced with radar on a 24-hour basis by both the Sanibel Police Department and the Lee County
 Sheriff's Department.

GATORS

Feeding alligators anywhere within the Sanibel city limits is not only illegal, but can be extremely dangerous.
 Alligators can run up to 45 mph, so if you are close enough to feed an alligator, he is close enough to bite you. An alligator fed for fun loses his natural fear of humans and becomes a potential threat to children and pets.
 Dogs should never be permitted to run free on Sanibel.

Fence them, walk them on a leash or, if you must free your dog for a walk, keep him under voice control. Never tie your dog in an unfenced back yard.
 For help with a nuisance alligator, call the following representatives of the Southwest Florida Alligator Association.
 They are licensed and have permits to legally handle gators: George Campbell, 472-2825; Steve Phillips, 472-2329;
 Mark Westall, 472-5128.
