State approves permit for Captiva renourishment

By Carol Kranichfeld

Captiva is well on its way to full-scale protection from beach erosion with the state's recent approval of a permit for the Island's proposed beach renourishment project.

The project will be financed partially by $3.5 million raised by Captiva residents through a Municipal Service Taxing Unit.

A workshop explaining the MSTU package, which was recently mailed to Captiva residents, will be held next Monday, Dec. 20, the CEPD board informed its audience at last week's monthly meeting.

Copies of the proposed tax plan have been sent to more than 181 Captiva voters and should be returned by Jan. 1, 1983, so that financing for the proposed Captiva beach renourishment program can be completed.

Twenty-five MSTU packages have already been signed and returned, according to the CEPD board. The 25, however, are far from the 65 percent Lee County will look for before contributing county funds to the program.

Should the total number of votes favoring the project constitute less than 65 percent but more than 50 percent, a public hearing will be held to determine if there is sufficient public interest in the project,

Captran released from bankruptcy

By Barbara Brundage

Captran Resorts International was released from bankruptcy last week, five months after the pioneer interval ownership developer filed for protection from its creditors under Chapter 11.

Keith Trowbridge of Sanibel, Captran founder and president, viewed the dismissal by Bankruptcy Court Judge Alexander Paskay as a "vote of confidence for Captran and the whole interval ownership industry."

Last July 16 Captran filed for reorganization under federal bankruptcy law, which allowed the company to operate while a debt repayment plan was drawn up by a committee of its major creditors.

At a hearing in federal bankruptcy court in Tampa last week, Paskay approved the plan that calls for a transfer to a creditors trust of about 1,150 unsold weeks at Captran resorts in southwest Florida.

Also transferred to the trust are a $250,000 interest in two promissory notes from Captex, a former joint venture partner of Captran in a Florida Keys resort; the loan portfolio interest held by Captran with General Electric Credit Corporation and Security Pacific; and undeveloped property at Captran's Shell Island Beach Club on Sanibel.

These assets total $3.7 million, according to a report sent to creditors by the trust

Klein elected mayor by council peers, Valtin named vice mayor

Two-year City Council veteran Myron "Mike" Klein is Sanibel's new mayor. He has served as vice mayor for the past year and a half and was elected to the mayoral post by a 4-1 vote of the council last Tuesday.

Councilman Fred Valtin was named vice mayor. Both will serve for one year.

Former Planning Commissioner Louise Johnson, elected in a run-off Nov. 16 to fill Porter Goss' council seat, was sworn in to office last week. Her husband, Arthur, held the Bible as she took the oath of office administered by City Manager Bernie Murphy.

Goss, who did not seek re-election, quietly left the council chambers after the swearing-in ceremony. A member of the first council and Sanibel's first mayor, Goss retired after almost eight years of service to the city.

Dinner honors Sanibel officials

More than 300 Islanders honored outgoing City Council members Porter Goss and Duane White, former Councilman Charles LeBuff and City Attorney Neal Bowen last Monday evening at a ranch-style extravaganza.

By Barbara Brundage

Two San Francisco-style trolleys made their first runs of the season Monday on Sanibel.

The City Council last Tuesday gave the green light to the Naples Transit Company to resume the operation for a second season by approving a new franchise agreement.

The trolleys will carry passengers for a 50-cent fare from the Chamber of Commerce on Causeway Road up and down Periwinkle Way and along Middle Gulf and West Gulf drives as far as the West Wind Inn.

The two routes are identical to last year's routes. The green route begins operations at 9:30 a.m., and the orange route starts at 10 a.m. The last round trip of the day starts at 4 p.m.

Councilman Louise Johnson was the only dissenter in the 4-1 vote approving the franchise. She is not convinced that continued operation of the trolleys is in the best interest of the Island.

The city's survey of ridership made last March shows that the trolleys do not serve a transit function, Johnson maintains.

"It is a sightseeing concession that I can't support," she said, adding she would like to see another survey made.

Johnson asked Ed Verdesca, president of the transit company, if he would consider an earlier starting time to carry people to work and a run after 5 p.m. to transport them home.

Verdesca agreed that another survey would be desirable with an additional question to determine how the trolley can serve residents better. He said he would consider the additional runs if the need was demonstrated.

Mayor Mike Klein and the three other councilman said because of future growth projections the city should view the trolley operation as an experiment and the first step to a mass transit system that would better serve residents.

The survey conducted by John Shepard last March revealed that 70 percent of the riders used the trolley for "sightseeing." Nineteen percent were property owners, and only 5 percent permanent residents.

Resident Saul Goodman told the council he was opposed to the "buses" because they benefit only daytrippers. He complained that the buses hold up traffic when they stop on Periwinkle Way.

Klein pointed out that the franchise is only a short term one -- through April 20, 1983 -- and added it is worth another try for one season.

Under its terms the city will not subsidize any shortfall and will receive no franchise fee. The agreement is renewable, with or without a fee, at the option of the city for one additional year with notice from the transit company within 90 days of its current termination.

The Sanibel City Council and the Lee County Commission met in a special workshop session last week and set the stage for continued negotiations for the sale of the Causeway.

Discussion of the conditions of sale brought assurances from county officials that the $26 million price will be negotiable.

Zelda Butler, a member of Sanibel's original City Council and the city's vice mayor during its first three years of home rule, was elected to serve as the second mayor of the Island city last week by a unanimous vote of her fellow councilmen. Councilman Francis Bailey was elected vice mayor.

Chadwick's, the plush restaurant at South Seas Plantation, opened for business last week. The restaurant is named after Clarence Chadwick, who purchased the north end of Sanibel and all of Captiva at the turn of the century and turned the property into a key lime plantation.

Dee Amon, James Smith and Glenn Sikes were initiated into the Sanibel-Captiva Lions Club last week. The three new members bring to 54 to total membership of the club, which is the largest in the club's history.

The number of entrants continues to rise for the first annual Sanibel Christmas Bicycle Race scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 23. The aim of the race is to demonstrate to county and state officials the need for and interest in bicycle paths on the Island.

Teen Corner columnist Chris Gault reported a good turnout at last week's Sunday movie at the Sanibel Community House. This week's movie will be This Happy Feeling starring Debbie Reynolds, Curt Jurgens, John Saxon and Mary Astor.

Islanders had a real scare last week when Colin Moore, mosquito control dragline operator, failed to check in at headquarters at his regular 5:30 p.m.

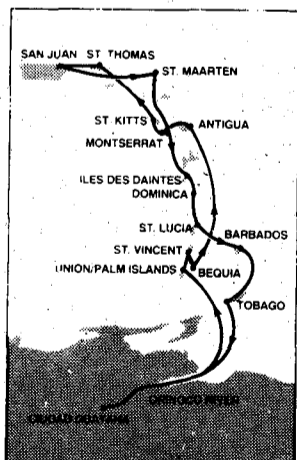

By 6 p.m. mosquito control head Pat Murphy called an alert and rounded up Jake Stokes, Tom Wood, Aden Stonecypher, Clarence Rutland, John Ridge and Turner Folsom for a search party.

The search team fanned out in motor boats to cover the Island's canals. Meanwhile, Moore was marooned in another canal trying in vain to start his motorboat. He finally met up with the search team and was amazed at how many people were looking for him.

The Coconut Grove restaurant open house last week drew a large crowd of Islanders who were pleased to see the addition to the restaurant. The new dining room can seat 100 customers. Decorative additions include artwork by Bernice McCall and Mary Aleck's shell collection.

COMMENTARY

Appreciation party proved Sanibel spirit alive and well

The citizens of Sanibel have long been noted for their community spirit and pride, and last Monday's appreciation dinner in honor of retired and retiring city officials provided a perfect backdrop to prove the spirit still thrives.

Islanders expressed their thanks to former City Councilmen Porter Goss, Duane White and Charles LeBuff and to City Attorney Neal Bowen during a fun-filled evening of dinner, dance, music and entertainment.

The evening drew more than 300 Islanders in a show of support for the honored guests, whose tireless efforts to ensure a Sanibel we all could live with began long before the city was incorporated.

Urban Palmer deserves a special notice of appreciation for orchestrating the entire affair. His dedication and hard work produced an evening of which we all should be proud. It was a fitting tribute to a deserving group of men.

Captivan protests to county commission

A copy of the following letter written to the Lee County Commission from the Captiva Erosion Prevention District was given to The Islander for publication.

Re: Captiva Erosion Prevention District mailing of a petition to gulf-front property owners asking them to vote yes to the CEPD plan of establishing a Municipal Service Taxing Unit funding program for beach nourishment.

Dear Commissioners

I hope that you as Lee County commissioners will not accept the CEPD count. I feel it will not show the true feelings of the property owners in proportion to the amount they will be taxed.

We are told that Sunset Captiva, a development that borders on the gulf, has not one vote but 59 votes of equal value even though the gulf-front is only 450 feet (claiming seven and two-thirds feet per owner).

As an example, a property owner with 200 feet of gulf-front property will be forced to pay $40,000 as his share of the MSTU if this MSTU receives a yes vote of 65 percent of those permitted to vote. However, under the plan a person owning a condominium not on the gulf in the Sunset Captiva project of 59 units has an equal vote. Fifty-nine votes! His cost of the MSTU assessment would be 1-59th of the total (450 feet times $400) or only $3,051.

The CEPD claims that the Sunset Captiva property owner, as an individual, has a piece of the development's gulf-front property (about seven and two-thirds feet).

I say that the Sunset Captiva association, not the individual, has a vote showing the feeling of its members.

Unlike South Seas Plantation's privately financed project, this project is being conducted by a supposedly elected body, the CEPD. Under these conditions, you as an elected body must govern the petition so that those who are true property owners have the only right to vote.

Very truly yours,
John Mount

The Islander now sparkles with news and enthusiasm! You have turned a dull newspaper into a communication media that I can not get along without. I am glad I am a regular subscriber.

It is hard to pick out a star among your reporters. They are all good. Brundage, Kranichfeld, Campbell and Winterbotham are treasures to be preserved. Now I find that I must also add David Meardon to your list of excellent reporters. David has always taken good pictures, but recently he has taken to writing as well. He is very good, and probably deserves a raise in pay.

I am moved to write this because the article on Barn Owls in your Nov. 6 issue was excellent. The writing by David Meardon was as good as the pictures by David Meardon -- and they were excellent.

Minnesota visitors lament no-see-ums

To The Editor
The Islander

We recently spent a week's vacation over Thanksgiving on your beautiful Sanibel Island. The weather was very cooperative, the shelling was okay, accommodations were fine and dining out was great.

This was our third visit to Sanibel, and we have always considered it one of our favorite spots in the world. So much so that we purchased time sharing there.

On our recent visit my wife and daughter were bitten so badly by what the natives called your No-See-Um insect that it became pure agony. It was impossible to even sleep at night. It is now a week later and they are finally getting some relief.

I would hope the city fathers would consider putting something in their budget for doing something about this situation. As I would estimate about one third of the people at our location were having the same problem. In Minnesota we spray for mosquitoes.

I would end by saying that if this happens next year, and as much as we love Sanibel, it isn't worth it. We will sell our time sharing and try to forget Sanibel.

Thank you

Bay Drive is back

Cost of bridge repairs spawns movement to vacate

His "worst fears were realized" when he learned that $35,000 will be the price tag for replacing the deteriorating wooden bridge on Bay Drive, City Manager Bernie Murphy told the City Council last week.

This bad news has spawned a new "grass roots" movement to launch a petition asking the city to once again vacate the bridge and 300 feet of shell road to private ownership.

Clark Newcombe last Tuesday asked the council about the feasibility of the Committee of Neighborhood Associations starting a drive for signatures calling for a referendum to reverse the decision that returned the bridge and road to public ownership last September.

Newly elected Councilman Louise Johnson's opinion that the council should encourage a new initiative was strongly opposed by Councilman Fred Valtin.

"The council should remain neutral," Valtin said. "The people by a majority have spoken," he added in reference to the 539-496 vote that rescinded an ordinance adopted in March 1982 that turned over ownership of the bridge and road to Larry and Sheila Snell.

The road and bridge provide the Snells access to their bayfront property.

After September's referendum, ownership and maintenance of the road reverted to the city.

Engineers Howard Needles, Tammen & Bergendoff, after inspecting and rating the bridge, pronounced its overall condition as "fair to poor."

Load rating calculations indicate the bridge is capable of supporting three-ton gross loads. State law requires that a bridge be closed if it is not capable of carrying that load.

HNTB warns that any further deterioration will necessitate closing the Bay Drive span. Continuing erosion of the bay beach on either side of the bridge at the estimated rate of one foot a year presents a long term threat to both the structure itself and the roadway to the east, HNTB reported.

At this time, the engineers recommend minimal repairs including installation of railings. But before further deterioration requires the bridge's closing, they recommend the existing bridge be replaced with a structure similar to the Bowman's Beach crossover.

This construction is estimated to cost between $30,000 and $35,000.

Other steps needed to bring the bridge up to standard include replacing the existing retaining-groin wall; filling scoured area of the channel with stable material; installing appropriate lighting; and investigating methods to deter beach erosion.

Assistant City Manager Gary Price reported that more than $4,000 has already been spent on minor repairs.

Canal maintenance district abolished

The Shell Harbor Canal Maintenance District is officially dead.

Circuit Judge Robert Shafer has signed the final judgment invalidating the city's ordinance that established the special taxing district in 1980, City Attorney Neal Bowen reported to the City Council last Tuesday.

Property owners have already been refunded the more than $300,000 in taxes collected by the district in 1981, City Manager Bernie Murphy confirmed.

Newly-elected Mayor Mike Klein was concerned that, "Though the district is dead, the problem is still here." He suggested the council should meet once again as the district's Board of Governors to consider the options of how to dredge and maintain the network of canals in the Shell Harbor area that is filling up with sand and threatens to become un-navigable.

But Bowen reminded the council that Shafer's order dissolved the Board of Governors along with the district. Any further action would be up to the council, he said.

Murphy said the burden for impetus to do something is on the property owners who are affected by the canal situation.

The district had been in limbo pending settlement of a lawsuit filed more than year ago by the Mariner Pointe Condominium Property Owners Association asking to be removed from the special taxing district.

The Mariner Pointe owners objected to the ad valorem tax method being used to finance the proposed canal dredging and maintenance operations.

They claimed that even though they had only 3 percent of the canal frontage they were paying 25 percent of the taxes.

Shafer declared the ordinance that set up the district invalid after ruling in favor of Mariner Pointe on its claim that the original engineering survey setting the district's boundaries was incorrect. The judge agreed that the condominium complex should not be included in the taxing district.

In exchange for the city's pledge not to appeal Shafer's judgment, Mariner Pointe owners agreed to drop their claim to any of the interest earned from the tax monies while the funds were held in escrow pending settlement of the litigation.

Rabbit Road property owners get reduced setback

Richard and Carmen Donlin can have the big back yard they want at their new home on Rabbit Road.

The City Council last week approved a specific amendment permitting the Donlin's house to be sited 55 feet from the center line of Rabbit Road.

Current regulations require a 75-foot setback, but this will be reduced to 65 feet when a pending amendment to CLUP is adopted.

Donlin had originally requested a 40-foot setback, but he increased that to 55 feet before the council's first hearing on his request.

In return for favorable consideration Donlin offered to deed to the city a 10-foot easement along Rabbit Road to give the city the right-of-way needed if the road were ever widened in the future.

'Dark horse' appointed to Planning Commission

"Dark horse" 71-year-old Henry McKee, a seven-year veteran of the Hudson, Ohio, village city council, was named to the Planning Commission last week to fill the unexpired term of new City Councilman Louise Johnson.

McKee, a last minute entry, was appointed last Tuesday by a unanimous vote of the City Council to serve until Dec. 31 with the intent that he will be reappointed in January for a full three-year term.

The five other nominees, Garth Good, Gail Reynolds, William Grossman, Donna Kraeger and Robert Diederick, indicated to the council several months ago their willingness to serve on the commission.

McKee, a Dartmouth College classmate of former Planning Commissioner Joe Searing, has been a Sanibel resident since January 1979.

He was assistant to the president of General Rubber & Tire Co., before his retirement. In addition to serving on the Hudson council, he was a member of that area's Utilities Commission and the Board of Zoning Appeals.

In a resume submitted to the council, McKee said Hudson, a village with a population of 3,500, had many problems similar to those of Sanibel. "I feel my municipal experience there will have applicable value in Sanibel," he said.

Since coming to Sanibel McKee has served on the Management Committee of the Dunes subdivision where he lives, has been a volunteer at the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Center and has been active in COTI. He is currently finance chairman of the 1983 Sanibel Library Arts and Crafts Show.

Appraisal too low

Silver Key owners withdraw offer to sell

An offer to sell Silver Key, an island off the western tip of Sanibel, to Lee County has been withdrawn by the owners, City Manager Bernie Murphy reported to the City Council last week.

Attorney James Humphrey, representing the owners, said the decision to suspend further negotiations for the sale was made because the $200,000 appraisal did not accurately reflect the market value of the island.

Silver Key, adjacent to Bowman's Beach, lies within Sanibel's corporate limits.

The city joined with the county and the land owners in hiring Stewart & Stephan, Inc., to make an appraisal. Each of the three parties paid one third of the cost of a little more than $900.

The county would like to acquire Silver Key, which is accessible only by boat, as an adjunct to its regional park at Bowman's Beach.

The city also would like the environmentally sensitive island kept in the county park system rather than developed by private interests.

In a letter to County Administrator Lavon Wisher, Humphrey indicated that should the city and-or-county wish to have the property re-appraised or make an offer in keeping with the island's current market value, his clients would reconsider.

"However, it would have to be significantly higher than the $3,500 per acre shown on the Stewart appraisal report," Humphrey added.

The owners' original asking price was $750,000, Murphy said. He agreed that Stewart's was "not a good appraisal" and left the county nothing to bargain with.

The council last year authorized the expenditure of "up to $10,000" to participate in obtaining an appraisal of the property.

Last Tuesday the council agreed to join with the county in seeking a new appraisal and voted 5-0 to spend up to $3,000.

Murphy said the county planned to acquire the island at no cost to taxpayers using the remaining Causeway bonds.

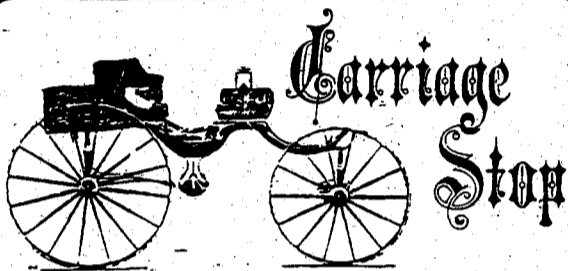

Beach Road home approved

B.S. Yeomans of Fort Myers got the green light from the City Council last week to build a second home on Sanibel's Beach Road sited only 50 feet from the centerline of the road.

Current regulations require a structure to be set back 75 feet from the road's center. A general amendment now pending will reduce the setback to 62.5 feet.

But Yeomans still might not be able to have the home of his dreams because it must also be located 20 feet from a mosquito ditch on the property that carries overflow from the Sanibel River.

Yeomans said he intends to try to get permission to fill in or relocate the ditch. If he is successful, the council said, he must then comply with the 62.5-foot front setback.

City Council members last Tuesday said they need "more specifics" about the revised plan for future use of the Pirate Playhouse site before they can make a decision to change the zoning on the property to Special Use District.

Architect Ray Fenton said he didn't know how he could be more specific.

Fenton had already indicated that Philip and Ruth Hunter, playhouse owners, want authority to build a larger (1,500-square-foot) theater with 130 seats; remove the 90 seats and stage from the existing playhouse and convert it to a theatrical museum and studio; and build four single-family homes eligible for home occupation licenses on the rear 150 feet of the 2.7-acre site on Periwinkle Way.

But Councilman Bill Hagerup said the new plan is "so far from the original ... entirely different" that it should go back to the Planning Commission and to the Planning staff for comments before council takes action.

Mayor Mike Klein and Councilman Louise Johnson also wanted planning staff input to help them make a decision.

Johnson said the intensity of use for a theater plus the four homes would be much greater than that of six single-family homes that are permitted under the property's current residential zoning.

She requested staff to come up with facts and figures on the potential intensity of use.

Since adoption of the land use plan, the Pirate Playhouse has been a lawfully existing commercial use in a residential zone.

Under new commercial regulations it cannot be expanded and if, after Jan. 1, 1990, it is more than 50 percent destroyed, the structure cannot be rebuilt.

The Hunters, now in their 80's, have operated the playhouse for 18 years. They have no immediate plans for retiring, but they are looking to the future and seeking ways to ensure the playhouse will continue to be run as a community theater.

They are asking the council to remove the property from the lawfully existing commercial category and rezone it Special Use District, a designation intended to include culturally oriented business.

Klein expressed the fear that some future owner unable to make a success of live theater might turn it into a movie house.

Hunter said with the threat of extinction in less than 10 years the property is not saleable.

"But since we do not have a buyer waiting in the wings we are not able to determine how the buildings would be sited," he said.

In any event it would have to comply with the city's development standards, Fenton added.

Planning Director Bruce Rogers threw another cloud on the discussion when he disclosed for the first time after two hearings that the Hunters' request is not "really a specific amendment."

Fenton's plan is not consistent with the standards for Special Use District, he said, adding that single-family homes are not included in the list of permitted uses.

Councilman Fred Valtin said when the new zoning district was set up it was not the intent to exclude residential uses.

Hunter, after listening patiently for an hour, expressed his bewilderment.

"I'm puzzled about what you're afraid of," he told the council. "There is no difficulty where the theater is now," he said. "All I am asking for is a little larger theater with some homes in the back. What is bothering you? I think you're making a mountain out of a molehill," he concluded.

The principal change from the original is the elimination of three retail studios that caused council concern at a first reading in October.

Three single-family homes were included in the first request.

Some councilmen felt it might open up the property to heavier commercial use if the studios designed for teaching the performing arts were not a financial success.

Councilman Valtin was willing last Tuesday to approve changing the playhouse zoning to Special Use, but he had no support for his motion.

Valtin voted with his fellow councilmen on Johnson's motion for a continuance until the staff has the opportunity to review Hunter's new proposal and provide further information on the intensity of use.

ON THE WATER

By Captain Mike Fuery

The past weeks of Autumn have made many anglers forget that the warm, mild days with southeasterly winds will soon end, and with them will go the days of fishing in open waters.

The coming of cool, windy, winter days means we will have to find protected fishing waters, so let's talk about where to look for fish under such conditions.

The advent of typical December weather usually means that wind and wave conditions will bring an end to trolling along the gulf or fishing for trout in the middle of Pine Island Sound. We will have some days when we still can get in some fine, relaxed angling in such places, but usually the opposite takes place.

Most successful fishermen know how to switch their fishing spots so that even though the winds are blowing and the temperatures are down, they can take some good eating fish.

One of the most protected, popular fishing areas around Sanibel Island is Tarpon Bay. You will need a boat to work for redfish under the mangrove limbs, however. Many a nice fish has come from this shallow protected bay on the northern side of the Island.

Several oyster bars and the ruins of houses in the sound make great spots for sheepshead, snapper and reds. When working the pilings, some fishermen plan ahead and catch a few dozen fiddler crabs, which the sheepshead love.

Fiddlers can be caught during low tides on the sound side of the islands. They come out at low tide to look for food themselves, so be fast at scooping them up and put them in a bucket with a little wet sand.

Sea trout also like the protected waters of Tarpon Bay, and there are days when fellow guide Randy White has to go barely over half a mile from the marina at Tarpon Bay to catch trout for his charter groups.

Other great cold weather spots for reds and possibly snook are the many canals on the eastern end of Sanibel. These deep water canals offer many homeowners a good "back yard" fishing hole, but if you have a boat you can work them, too.

Having lived on one of these canals for nearly a year and a half, I know that landowners along the canals cherish their spots and don't appreciate outside boaters tying up to seawalls or making an early morning ruckus when fishing. If you want to work the canals, stay on public property, have permission to fish private property or use a boat.

Many snook have been taken from these canals over the winter months, some even by trolling larger lures. But the majority of the fish come from live shrimp or pinfish. Tossing pink jigs, size 3-0, tipped with shrimp also works well when the temperature dips.

The national sanctuary is another great out-of-the-wind place to fish, but again this means you need a small, shallow draft boat.

There are many openings in the islands on the northern side of Sanibel where the saltwater works its way into the famous wildlife protected area. Some are what anglers call "creeks," but they are more like small, narrow drainage streams. No matter what you call them, though, when the waters get riled and temperatures drop the fish in Pine Island Sound often look for protective waters, and these creeks can be a bonanza for you.

I would suggest working two rigs. Use one with a large head with a combination of artificial shrimp bodies. I like pink, smoke and clear bodies with red or white lead head jigs.

Use the other outfit with the standard popping cork, an 18-inch leader and 2-0 hook for reds under the bushes and trout in the deeper waters. Look for those safe, fishable spots when the winds blow.

SHELLING TIPS

By Captain Mike Fuery

Most people think of fishing and lobster dinners when they head for a vacation in the Bahamas, but I grabbed the dive mask and the shell book when my wife told me we were going on a short vacation to the Out Islands.

It had been years since I visited the remote islands of the Bahamas, and aside of the usual abundance of conchs I didn't have any idea what to expect.

We settled into a tiny, secluded resort on the shallow waters of Eluthera Island and were in the water just after sunrise to try our hand at shelling, Bahamas style.

No matter what the photos in the island brochures look like, there are very few sandy beaches around the majority of these islands, so collectors have to work over rocky shores to reach the very clear waters.

We noticed there were spots where local residents often cleaned their conchs, and it wasn't unusual around some of the better diving beaches to see literally mounds of freshly cleaned conchs.

What struck me was that there were still so many large, colorful conchs left in the island waters. Even 20 years ago the natives appeared to be overharvesting their shells.

But once we were in the waters it wasn't hard to find many live conchs. Most were queen conchs, which can grow to nearly a foot in length and are valued both cooked and raw for a variety of dishes.

The queen conchs are also found in the Florida Keys, but rarely are they found as far north as Sanibel and Captiva Islands.

Finding conchs in the Bahamas was the easy part; locating the finer shells for collecting proved to take some looking.

The wide, shallow Bahamas Bank is covered with pock-marked holes, rises of living coral and other underwater features that make it attractive to underwater animals.

However, we found some of our better shells in waters right next to the rocky shores, often in water only a foot deep. Using mask and snorkel, Carol and I worked the shores and gathered some interesting specimens. All the shells we found, I might add, were dead and generally in fine condition.

One of the most colorful and plentiful shells we found was the magpie shell, which looks something like a large, black and white striped turban we might find around here.

The magpie can grow to about four inches in height, but we found them half that size. Some friends we met there told us of another use for the common magpie. They went fishing for bonefish one morning and found that their Bahamas guide hunted live magpies and broke them open for the meat inside, which he then used for prime bonefish bait.

There were some familiar shells on those outer islands, including the Atlantic winged oyster, pen shells, augers, and sand dollars plus a variety of top shells and turbans.

We also found what I believe was an imbricated star shell. They look somewhat like a Florida top shell, but they are larger and have a more pearly covering that is nearly white.

My overall reaction to Bahamas shelling was that it was a long way to travel to discover that shelling right in my own back yard is as good as or even better.

We are fortunate to have easy shelling. It is not as good as what some people want, but it is also better than what a lot of other places offer. Good looking this week.

Capt. Mike Fuery offers daily shelling trips to North Captiva and Cayo Costa Islands. Call 472-3459 for information.

A fishing rod and reel were reported missing from a Tennisplace unit by a resident of the condominiums on Tuesday evening, Dec. 7. The Daiwan reel with a blue and white rod was valued at $40.

A West Gulf Drive resident reported vandalism was done to her car on Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 8. The woman told police when she lifted the hood of her car she discovered the fan belt was missing and several wires around the engine had been cut.

She told police she suspected someone was prowling around her property the night of Monday, Dec. 6, and thought they might be responsible for the vandalism, which caused her car to overheat in Fort Myers.

An officer on routine patrol discovered the emergency call box on Pine Tree Drive was vandalized on Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 8. The receiver of the phone had been cut from the phone box.

A construction supervisor at Spanish Cay condominiums reported the temporary phone line at the site was severed twice on Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 8. The man told police he suspected two men he fired earlier that morning were responsible for the vandalism.

The men, one from Fort Myers and one from Sanibel, were located at Bailey's and advised of the complaint. They denied having anything to do with the phone line but were warned that they would be first suspects if anything suspicious occurred again at the construction site.

A Sanibel-Captiva Road resident reported a man was riding a bicycle on the road with no lights and no reflectors shortly before dawn on Thursday, Dec. 9. Police looked for the man but could not find him. The resident made the same complaint at 6:30 a.m. the next day, but police were unable to locate the cyclist.

Police investigated an attempted break-in at a Pyrua Street home on Thursday morning, Dec. 9. The resident of the house showed police a torn screen on a porch door. No entry was gained to the house and nothing else was disturbed.

No charges were filed after a two-car accident in a Palm Street parking lot on Friday morning, Dec. 3. Virginia Vaughan of 3038 McGregor Blvd., Fort Myers, backed out of a space and struck a parked car that belonged to Robert Edward Heffron of 920 Palm St., Sanibel. Police estimated there was $85 damage to Heffron's 1975 Volkswagen and no damage to Vaughan's 1977 Toyota.

AN EYE FOR THE ISLANDS

By Maggie Greenberg

Is it ever possible to go shopping in a resort community without losing a financial arm and a leg in the process? Oddly enough, Sanibel Island (a resort community par excellence — whether one admits it or not), is the home of a store that specializes in bargains!

In today's world, a bargain is almost an anomaly. In a resort community, however, it is an absolute anachronism. No wonder a delighted customer referred to The Island Book Nook on Palm Ridge Road as "the greatest invention since sliced bread!"

Nancy Olds, the owner and sole employee of the Island Book Nook, does not sell sliced bread — yet. However, for nearly two years her store has been a happy hunting ground for browsers, book lovers and bargain hounds.

Primarily, the Island Book Nook is an emporium that specializes in "recycled" literature, i.e., some 10,000 used paperbacks that Nancy buys, sells or trades. All are divided into various categories and, at 9:30 every morning all are neatly arranged on the shelves (horizontally, to avoid anging-like contortions) in alphabetical order by author. (By 5 p.m., of course, the alphabetical order has suffered considerably from the singular inability of the literate to cope with the alphabet.)

Since I like to keep things tidy, I often drop by the Book Nook to restore a semblance of order to the shelves. When customers are in the store, I rather doubt that the proprietress appreciates my running commentary: "Boy, someone fought the Battle of the Bulge in the war section!" Or, "Harold Robbins is all messed-up again. Sex always sells!" Or, "Good heavens! How did this marital manual get into the Harlequin romances?"

In addition to collectors' books and a plethora of "recycled" literature, the store carries new copies of best-selling paperbacks, the various guides to native shells, bugs and birds, a wide range of books by local authors and the full spectrum of the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation's publications.

Most recently, Nancy became an official agent for National Ocean Survey; she may now sell nautical charts — and indulge her passion for underwater basket weaving.

I once asked Nancy what kinds of books were the most popular. Without a moment's hesitation, she replied, "Cookbooks and diet books." And, indeed, I overheard one well-upholstered customer remark that she loved to read diet books while consuming the culinary concoctions inspired by her cookbooks!

Of course, not everyone likes to read. When an entire family troops into the store, there is bound to be at least one maverick. Fortunately, the Book Nook carries a variety of inexpensive items that have nothing whatever to do with books: license plates, cassette tapes, calendars, mugs, shell magnets, posters, post cards, used tennis racquets, et al.

The Book Nook's customers are as varied as the store's inventory. Ladies who are addicted to Harlequin romances, and gentlemen who are equally devoted to westerns, have something in common — they often initial the covers of the books they have read (lest they forget that they have read them).

Moreover, one soon realizes that some of the mildest, most self-effacing souls often have an overriding passion for books dealing with the supernatural and sheer, unadulterated horror.

The Book Nook rivals both Bailey's and the Post Office as a stage for the human comedy (divine or otherwise). A gentleman once asked me (sotto voce) whether the store carried any "adult books." Naturally, I directed him to the children's section.

On another occasion a septuagenarian friend of mine came into the store with her husband and asked for some "nice romances." I immediately steered her to the wholesome Harlequins, assuring her that all descriptive passages stopped abruptly at the waist — indeed, that nothing at all untoward would occur either north or south of that Maginot Line.

"Oh, but I want the sex!" protested my friend. She subsequently purchased four novels by Harold Robbins, winked mischievously at her octogenarian husband and warned him, "You'd better watch out tonight, honey!"

Some people will say or do just about anything. One young woman changed her baby's diaper right on the counter. (She eventually removed the baby, but not the dirty diaper.) Another woman paraded up and down the aisles with a minuscule monkey crawling all over her. (Minus the monkey, she would have been nearly naked.)

"These are all dirty books! Don't you dare come in here kids!" This, in piercing tones worthy of a great operatic diva, was the comment of a massive matriarch as she blocked the entrance and gazed in horror upon thousands of used (i.e., "dirty") books.

Although most people are utterly delighted to find such a bargain, a few voice the question posed by one embarrassed customer: "Now, I don't want to hurt your feelings, but is there a, uh, well, a 'regular' book store on Sanibel?"

"Heck, I can't find shells as good as these on the beach!" chortled one customer as he happily tore the magnets off a quantity of shells that he had just purchased. "Here, stick those on some other shells!"

Since my appearances at the Book Nook are most

Visions of sugarplums become a reality at The Candy Man

By Catherine Battista

No Christmas would be complete without holiday foods, especially the sweets - aged fruit cakes, sensuously sweet taffies, marzipan candies, the pervasive but comfortable scents of vanilla, peppermint, nutmeg, cloves, anise and, last but not least, chocolate!

You will find it all at the Candy Man, the home of the Super Kiss and homemade fudge. One visit to the new chocolate factory on the corner of Tarpon Bay Road and Florence Way and your holiday mood will heighten and those "visions of sugarplums" will become a reality.

Any concern you might have had about calories will be left at the doorstep as you are greeted by blue calico cottage curtains, a shiny red brick tile floor and the friendliness of Norma and Fred Leas.

The Leas moved to Sanibel eight years ago from Pennsylvania, better known for its famous Hershey Chocolate. Islanders might best remember Fred and Norma when they operated Leas' Candy Shop in Periwinkle Place.

The Candy Man's specialty, which is fudge, comes in such tantalizing flavors as chocolate, vanilla, coconut, penuche, marshmallow and rocky road.

The Leas also carry London's Bulk Chocolate, a superior American candy made in Canton, Ohio. London's Pretzel Joy is crushed pretzel rolled in white chocolate with nuts. Take it from one who has tried - it is delicious!

You will discover a wonderful assortment of hard candies and after dinner mints. For Christmas the store has stocked marzipan and fruit cake. Jordan almonds are sold from apothecary jars.

The Candy Man also has a fine selection of dietetic candies.

Gift boxes of candy can be shipped anywhere, but don't forget yourself when thinking of presents from the Candy Man. And don't forget to leave a treat for Santa and his elves!

New sales director named at South Seas Plantation

Gary Cherrett has been promoted to director of sales at South Seas Plantation on Captiva. The announcement was made last week by Jim Tierney, the resort's vice president of sales and marketing.

In his new position, Cherrett will coordinate sales efforts for both the social and group markets and work with meeting planners, tour operators and travel agents.

He came to South Seas Plantation as group sales manager in March of 1981 and has since served as director of tours and agency sales. Before joining South Seas Plantation, Cherrett was convention service manager at the Breakers Hotel in Palm Beach, Fla.

The post office on Tarpon Bay Road is open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. The Captiva Post Office is open from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and closed for lunch from noon to 1 p.m. Monday through Friday.

sporadic, I miss a great deal of the Divina Comedia. However, I shall always cherish the memory of one particular elderly couple.

While the wife was earnestly engaged in a hopeless search for a cookbook dedicated to those afflicted with gout, her gout-stricken husband wheezed his way to the "erotica" section - where he entertained himself royally for nearly an hour.

Nancy Olds' father owned and operated the general store in a small New England village for 50 years. That fact may explain why The Island Book Nook, in many respects, carries on the tradition of the general store of a bygone era.

Many regular customers soon become pleasant acquaintances rather than just customers, or good friends rather than mere acquaintances. "Glad to see you back!" is Nancy's warm welcome to returning winter residents. "I don't charge for that!" is her typical greeting to those who admit that they are "just browsing."

It isn't long before the proprietress of the Book Nook acts as a branch office of our Chamber of Commerce, extolling the virtues of Island stores, restaurants, accommodations and shelling beaches.

With bankruptcies among small businesses reaching record proportions, it is rather astonishing to find that a small enterprise - one dealing in bargains, no less - has braved the economic doldrums. In fact, the store seems to be expanding all the time!

"My how you've grown!" exclaim returning winter residents. (Nancy assumes that her customers are referring to the proportions of her inventory, and not to the personal dimensions of the proprietress.)

Birders make count this weekend

By Carol Kranichfeld

Local weather experts expect cool weather on the Islands this Saturday, when members of the Sanibel-Captiva Audubon Society will conduct the Annual Christmas Bird Count.

But the weather is not expected to be nearly as bracing as last year, when more than 70 birdwatchers made use of everything from mufflers to warm thoughts to ward off the cold.

"I've been on some Christmas bird counts up north," Sanibel-Captiva Audubon Society President Bud Ryckman said last week with a shiver. "And it's a lot more fun down here."

The local audubon chapter will meet at dawn for the Christmas Bird Count, which is part of an ongoing worldwide study made annually from the Yukon Territory to the Panama Canal Zone.

Knowledgeable birders, recorders and counters are needed to identify the species seen on Sanibel and Captiva, Pine Island, Upper Captiva, Cayo Costa and the Causeway islands.

This year's bird count will be led by one of the Island's foremost men-behind-the-scenes, Dr. K.C. Emerson, a board member of the local Audubon Society.

One of the main questions facing this year's bird counters will be whether or not the robins have returned. Two years ago robins overwhelmed the Islands, spreading Brazilian pepper seeds, their preferred foodstuff, throughout Sanibel and Captiva.

The Christmas birders will also be a reliable source of information regarding endangered species and birds seen infrequently in the area, such as the avocet that was spotted during last year's bird count.

This year's count will be altered to fit national count standards and will be extended to include three days before and after Dec. 18, so that individual sightings of endangered species close to the actual date of the bird count can technically be included in the final data.

Sanibel and Captiva have been divided into sections that will be covered from dawn to dusk by teams of birders and their designated leaders by foot, car and boat.

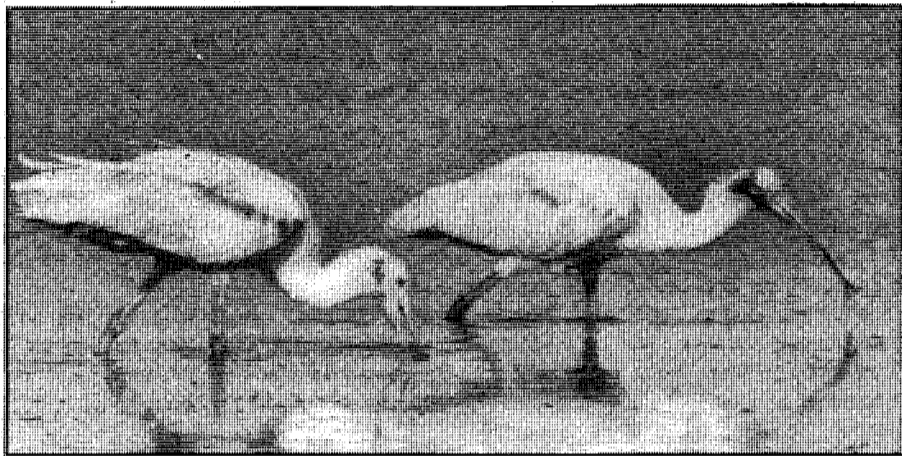

Participants are invited to compare results at the end of the day at a buffet sponsored by Fred and Lou Hill at their home. A ham will be provided, and everyone is asked to bring a dish to serve six. Those who plan to attend should call Lou, 472-2511.

Team leaders are beginning to enroll birders for the day's activities. To enlist with the local Audubon Society for its Christmas event, please contact the team leader supervising the area of your choice.

Team leaders are Conrad Lickel, 472-4752 (Causeway and Lindgren Boulevard to the Lighthouse); Elizabeth Holden, 472-

441 (Lindgren Boulevard to Dixie Beach Boulevard-Casa Ybel Road-Middle Gulf Drive); Lorimer Moe, 472-4408 (Dixie Beach Boulevard-Casa Ybel Road-Middle Gulf Drive to Tarpon Bay Road); F.M. Saxinger (Tarpon Bay Road to Island Inn Road and the Mosquito Control Canal, including the Bailey Tract); Steve Phillips, 472-2329 (Island Inn Road-Mosquito Control Canal to Rabbit Road); Mary Emerson, 472-9156 (Rabbit Road to Chateau Sur Mer); William Webb, 472-4084 (Tahiti Drive to Blind Pass and Wulfert Tract); Sarita Van Vleck, 472-134 (Captiva); Griffing Bancroft, 472-114 (J.N. "Ding" Darling Refuge); and William Martin, 472-1614 (Tarpon Bay and islands in San Carlos Bay).

The day's findings will be recorded in the American Bird Journal next year, a publication sponsored by the National Audubon Society.

Our Dining Room is a Christmas wonderland. A Currier and Ives horse-drawn sleigh, filled with wrapped gifts, seemingly races through the woods on a wintry night. A nostalgia filled tableau. Little elves work with strings of popcorn decorating Santa's own Christmas tree.

Portrait

Olga Palmer

Age: 71

Height: 5'3"

Roots: "New York City, born of a Russian mother and a French father."

Pleasures: "My first love was dancing, and my second love was horses — and I still love them."

Last book read: Maria Callas: The Woman Behind the Legend by Ariana Stassinopoulos

Mentor: "Oh, I must say my husband — after all I've been married to him for 53 years."

Wish: "Wishes you don't have much control over, but I do wish that 'they' would leave this Island alone. I'm so afraid 'they' are going to concrete the whole Island."

Words of wisdom: "Compassion and consideration of the other fellow."

"My life has never been dull," says Baroness Olga Palmer, who inherited the title from her Russian mother, Helen. "I've really had three careers — as a dancer, horse rider and housewife."

Though titles like duke and baroness may mean little in the United States these days, Olga is still an American whose ambitions and love of horses earned her the Ladies World Champion of American Saddlebred Riders for six consecutive years. "So far as I know no one else has ever done that," she reveals with obvious pride.

She didn't even begin riding competitively until the 1960's. Her daughter, Jocelyn, was the horsewoman until then, she explains, and two women in the same family competing for the same trophies just wasn't considered.

"It's rather an emotional business, you know," she says. "You fall in love with your horse and are sure he is the best in the world."

Olga's trainer, Tom Moore, recognized early on Olga's special way with horses, observing hers were among the best pairs of "hands" in the world. Her ability to work with horses was also exceptional. "The horses can feel the love you have for them," Olga believes.

Moore's insight into Olga's uncanny ways with his stable of equines proved correct when she went on to win the championship, in competition against the best riders in the world.

"Tom Moore was the finest trainer in the country," says

Olga with great humility. "He was responsible for my winning."

Olga's natural physical ability definitely contributed to her success on horseback. A professional dancer in the 1920's, she performed in some of Chicago's posh supper clubs and at the city's numerous theaters, which were all the rage at the time.

With the benefit of instruction under Chicago's David Gould, a dancing director in one of the city's biggest theaters, Olga was able to embellish and perfect her dancing skills.

"He saw to it that I worked and worked and worked," she recalls about Gould. "The only time off I had in all that time was two weeks, when I tore a ligament in my knee."

Such an intense training might have been overwhelming for some, particularly with the travel it involved. But Olga positively blossomed. "I loved it," she says flatly. "I was young and loved to dance, and at the end of each performance I looked forward to the next one."

All that changed in 1929, however, when Olga met and married Urban Palmer. "I was used to sleeping days and working nights, but I stopped doing that," she remembers. "You can't make a marriage work under those kinds of circumstances."

Surviving the Depression ("It was rough," she says), the couple saw Urban's wholesale meat business flourish in Evanston, Ill. They took their annual vacation in Fort Myers Beach, where they would while their time away fishing.

During one such vacation they decided to make use of the newly-built Sanibel Causeway and visit the Islands. "We knew it when the bugs owned it," says Olga of their first trip. One glimpse of Sanibel, and "Urb" and his "Babe" were sold on it for life.

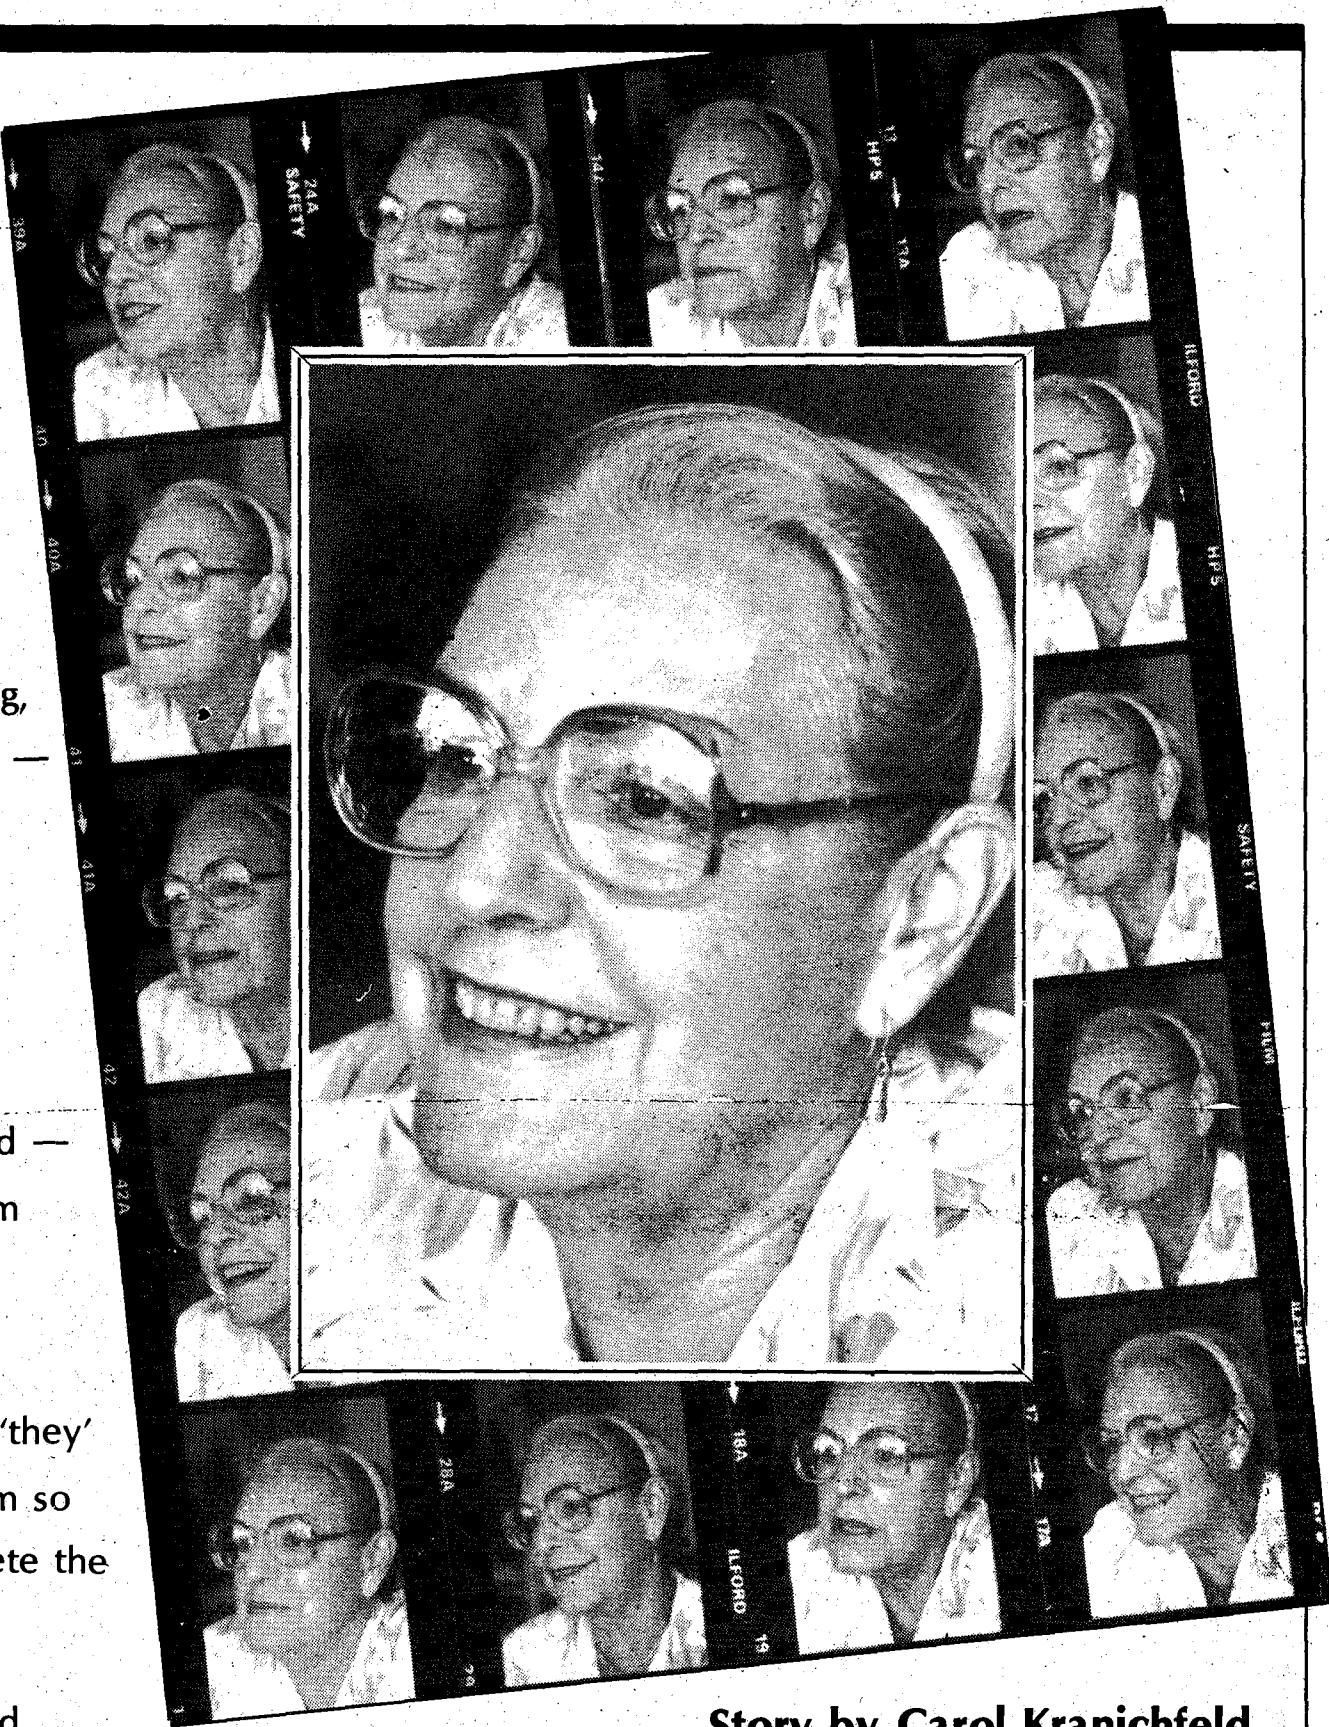

The Palmers built their home here in 1972 and moved here permanently in 1975, when Urban retired.

Olga occupied her first days on Sanibel walking the beaches. A back injury from being thrown by a horse restricts her from taking walks quite as much nowadays, but she has found an adequate substitute exercise, peddling her way around the Island on her three-wheeled bicycle.

Her attitude, however, is probably the most important reason for her total enjoyment of Island life, despite her physical limitations. "You don't know how I love it here," she sighs.

As Urban's right arm in all his Committee of Neighborhood Associations activities, Olga's daylight hours bustle with activity. Swimming everyday and frequenting the Jacuzzi Urban installed next to their pool, she maintains the ease of her gait is her philosophy — "You've got to keep yourself active and love what you're doing.

It's clear that Olga Palmer certainly does both.

Nicknames dictionary joins reference collection

By Mildred Chamberlin
Reference Librarian
Sanibel Public Library

Did you know that the popular British author Victoria Holt writes under seven pseudonyms, and her real name is Eleanor Hibbert?

Or did you know that former president Harry Truman had seven nicknames, i.e. "Give 'em Hell, Harry," "HST," "High Tax Harry," etc.? Or that Laura Lee Hope, Victor Appleton, Carolyn Keene and Oliver Optic are only four out of 75 pseudonyms of a writer of popular young people's books?

Who was known as "Gloomy Gus"? Who was "Scar-face," or "The Millionaire Gorilla?" Who was "Swivel Hips" or "The King of Rock 'n' Roll?"

Among the new reference books received at the Sanibel Public Library is one outstanding volume that answers all these questions and many more. It is most useful for identifying contemporary or historical people.

The title tells it all, so here it is: Pseudonyms and Nicknames Dictionary, a guide to aliases, appellations, assumed names, code names, cognomens, cover names, epithets, initialisms, nicknames, noms de guerre, noms de plume, pen names, pseudonyms, sobriquets and stage names of contemporary and historical persons, including the subjects' real names, basic biographical information and citations for the sources from which the entries were compiled.

The book covers actors, aristocrats, artists, athletes, authors, clergymen, criminals, entertainers, film stars, journalists, military leaders, monarchs, musicians, playwrights, poets, politicians, popes, rogues, saints, theatrical figures and other prominent personalities of all nations throughout the ages. It is edited by Jennifer Mossman, second edition, published in 1982.

Nicknames dictionary joins reference collection from page 14A

Historical figures are included in this second edition so we can now find information about such people as Johann Sebastian Bach, Charlemagne, Leonardo da Vinci, Dante, Napoleon Bonaparte and Michelangelo.

People use pseudonyms for a variety of reasons such as to cover a shady past, to protect their privacy or to project a desired image. Writers use pseudonyms; entertainers use stage names; criminals use aliases. People acquire nicknames throughout their lifetime that are usually given to them by their associates.

In this hefty volume are listings of 90,000 names. Of this number 40,000 are original names and 50,000 are assumed names. Authors, entertainers and athletes comprise the majority of names with the remainder consisting of criminals, military leaders, monarchs, clergymen, business executives and others.

There are other books on this subject in the Reference Collection; but this one is by far the most comprehensive. Other books on the subject include Pseudonyms, The Names Behind the Names by Joseph Clarke. This is a much smaller but good book that contains 3,400 pseudonyms. It has a little more biographical information about some of the entries and is limited to pseudonyms entirely — no nicknames, aliases, etc.

Another one is Twentieth Century American Nicknames edited by Laurence Urdang. Nicknames can be of interest for several reasons. A linguist is concerned with the creation of words; a dictionary editor defines them because they have a referential value; a sociologist is interested in the reasons for nicknames; the journalist is interested in the anecdotes associated with the names. Nicknames record the progress of American language and culture. This book is more entertaining reading than many reference works.

Needlework news

Knit a pullover in one week

By Barbara Boulton

I am really serious about our extra easy sleeveless pullover that actually takes only 20 hours to make. I sometimes call it a "7-11" sweater because those numbers are the knitting needle sizes required.

Because of the larger needle size, the amount of yarn needed is less. Not only do you save time, but money, too.

Use a yarn that is slightly heavier than a worsted weight. If you add a baby weight yarn or a "bedspread" cotton to the worsted weight, you would reach the required gauge of three stitches to an inch. Sometimes I blend a lightweight sport yarn in acrylic with a heavy weight sport yarn in cotton or mohair for an interesting effect. You need seven to nine ounces or 250 grams of yarn.

Cast on 40 stitches for size small, 50 stitches for medium and 60 stitches for large. With number seven needles, rib in knit one, purl one for three inches. Change to number 11 needles and knit one row, purl one row (stockinette stitch) until half the yarn is used or you have reached the desired length to the shoulder (17-20 inches).

You can use either side as the right side. An interesting effect is to reverse your stockinette stitch for the last two inches. Make two. Sew side seams, leaving eight to 10 inches for armholes. Sew shoulder seams four inches from armhole to neck edge. That's it!

The neck and armhole edges naturally roll inward for a soft look. This pattern works well for a man's vest. The neckline can be varied and sleeves are easy to attach.

It's not too late to make that handmade gift for someone special.

Council hears case for mandatory trash collection

Mandatory collection of garbage will reduce the rates for residential customers with everyone sharing the cost of disposal equally, but it may turn the city into a collection agency, some Sanibel councilmen fear.

The onus is on Sanibel Disposal for identifying the 20 percent of all Sanibel property owners who do not now subscribe for garbage collection, but the city will be responsible for forcing the holdouts to comply, Richard Roosa, attorney for the hauler, explained.

Sanibel Disposal, holder of the refuse disposal franchise for Sanibel, appeared before the council last Tuesday asking for a direct franchise with the city. The company's current franchise is with Lee County.

By changing to mandatory collection, Sanibel Disposal maintains, the rates for residential users in 1983 would be reduced 5 percent as opposed to a 15 percent increase that will be required under the present system. Commercial rates would stay the same.

If the estimated 20 percent of householders were included, they would share the cost of hauling the Island's garbage off-Island to the Buckingham landfill. Under such a system, the current monthly rates of $9.33 for curb service and $11.43 for house service would be cut to $7.73 and $9.83, Roosa said.

There would be no more garbage than there is now, Roosa maintained, since now most non-subscribers' trash gets dumped into a commercial dumpster or on vacant land and eventually gets hauled off the Island.

Councilmen Bill Hagerup and Fred Valtin both strongly favored mandatory collection, but Valtin expressed fears that the city would face filing hundreds of enforcement actions against people who refused to subscribe.

Once residents become subscribers, Sanibel Disposal is charged with collecting the fees, Roosa said.

Mayor Mike Klein said he thought the plan "might be more trouble than it's worth."

Since the title of the ordinance does not specify that it is dealing with mandatory garbage collection, Klein emphasized that, "We owe it to the residents to let them know loud and clear what's happening."

Islander Paul Howe suggested that before getting into mandatory garbage collection the city should study the feasibility of going into the garbage business itself.

"The service could be contracted for with a hauler and the fees collected from the users as part of the ad valorem property tax, which would make it tax deductible," Howe said.

Planning Commissioner Lennart Lorenson agreed with Howe and said that mode would lower the cost even more.

The public can have its say on the merits of mandatory refuse collection and a new franchise for Sanibel Disposal when the two ordinances are discussed on second reading at the Jan. 4 council meeting.

Council approves $25,000 for Causeway Road property

The City Council voted unanimously last week to pay Gaystan Properties $25,000 for 23,939 square feet of land that will link two parcels the city already owns along Causeway Road.

The land was appraised at $46,800 last July.

Stanley Johnson, a principal with his wife in Gaystan Properties, has agreed to accept $10,000 on conveyance of the title to the city. The remaining $15,000 is due no later than Oct. 31, 1983.

County adopts Simpson hurricane system

Lee County officials will use the Simpson-Saffir Probabilistic Hurricane Warning System if they have to make a decision to evacuate during the 1983 hurricane season.

Terry Dillon, director of Emergency Medical Services for Lee County, said funds are now available to implement the warning system developed by Dr. Robert Simpson while Simpson was a consultant for Sanibel's Hazard Mitigation study. The system was first tested on Sanibel during Hurricane Dennis in August 1981.

The in-house computer and software required for the system should be in place at the county's Emergency Operations Center by February, Dillon said. He added that two or three "dry runs" are scheduled during the month of April.

Sanibel retained Simpson on an "as needed" basis to monitor possible storms during the 1982 hurricane season that ended Nov. 30.

"We received some very helpful and on-target advice from Dr. Simpson early on when Sanibel appeared to be directly in the path of Hurricane Alberto last June," City Manager Bernie Murphy recalled last week.

Although his system was not fully operational at the time, Simpson accurately informed Sanibel officials that at best Alberto would be a minimal hurricane with top winds of 80 mph and tides of up to three feet. He advised that evacuation would not be necessary except possibly for some waterfront areas of the Island.

Council maintains stance, won't waive church fees

The City Council held firm to its policy of not waiving fees and took no action last Tuesday on a proposal to reduce the fees for certain non-profit, charitable or community service organizations.

Councilmen Fred Valtin and Louise Johnson were willing to consider a reduction for some groups. But Valtin said the term "non-profit" is "too broad," and added no one has been able to come up with a generic list of eligible organizations.

The question arose when St. Isabel's Catholic Church, currently expanding its facilities, asked for some relief from the "excessively high fees" the church paid for construction permits.

City Manager Bernie Murphy urged the council to stick to its no waiver policy as one that was more fair to everyone and

At the insistence of council members Johnson said he would contribute $500 to the city for the installation of vegetation buffers along the boundary lines of a portion of the property he is retaining for use as an employee parking lot for the Priscilla Murphy Realty office that fronts Causeway Road.

Johnson made the concession contingent on the city's planting a buffer on the south property line to screen his office building from the public restroom at the Chamber of Commerce building next door.

City Manager Bernie Murphy recommended the council accept the negotiated offer and pointed out that, "This parcel may well, in the future, be a very integral and important linkage."

The city's property on Causeway Road extends from the bay to Periwinkle Way and has been earmarked for passive recreational use in the future.

easier for the city to administer.

But former Planning Commissioner Betty Robinson said she was upset by the strict policy.

"We say we want to be a residential community, but we're failing to recognize the need for certain amenities for full time residents that are not in themselves growth producing," she said.

"Churches expand when they need more room generated by growth they are not responsible for," she explained. "Instead of making it harder to respond to residents' needs you should be doing something to grease the wheel."

Valtin agreed the fees for some groups ought to be reduced, but he said the city needs to define which groups those are.

Councilmen Francis Bailey and Bill Hagerup said they did not want to change the no waiver policy.

There were no objections when Mayor Mike Klein stated that no action would be taken at this time.

Highlands property owners gain permission to build

After seven years and "eight costly visits" to the Island, Matthew and Virginia Stewart gained permission last week to build a house on their undersized lot in Sanibel Highlands.

The City Council by a 4-1 vote last Tuesday approved a specific amendment that will give the Largo couple the right to use the Piedmont Street property they purchased in 1970.

The Stewarts have sought a way to meet city regulations since 1975. Stewart told the council. "We've gone the last mile," he said last week.

On the recommendation of the Planning Department the council was reluctant to permit any more development in the Sanibel Highlands subdivision until the drainage and sewage problems in that lowlands areas are resolved.

Planning Director Bruce Rogers admitted that it would be at least a year before any progress could be made on implementing solutions recommended in a recently completed study on drainage.

Councilman Fred Valtin pointed out that the Stewarts' land is at a higher elevation than most Highlands property and is not prone to flooding.

Though outraged at Stewart's threat to sue the city and each councilman individually if favorable action were not taken, Valtin moved to approve the request for the single-family home with the condition that fill be limited to that needed to provide access to the house and that the septic system be installed following the best engineering practices.

Councilman Louise Johnson was the only dissenter. She said approval would only compound past errors made by permitting further development.

The Stewart's son, Kirk, who also has requested approval to build a single-family house on property near his father's, did not fare as well.

Beause his two lots are on much lower ground overlooking the Sanibel River and are flooded after heavy rains, the council denied his request by a unanimous vote. But the council agreed that Kirk Stewart could reapply at a later date without paying another fee.

Tip your glass with holiday libations from Sanibel establishments

By Catherine Battista

Holidays bring joy to everyone. Feasts, family reunions, music, gifts and decorations stir our noblest aspirations. Everything and everyone urges us to celebrate. And celebrate we do!

As party invitations mount and neighbors initiate impromptu gatherings, we know it is the season to tip our glasses. No holiday would be complete without flaming wine punch, soul warming wassail and other foamy, fizzy, slushy, exotic or creamy smooth concoctions.

Whether you are entertaining yourself, going to someone else's party or dining out at a favorite Island restaurant, you will find colorful drinks garnished with luscious fruits, flowers, mint sprigs or even nuts, chocolate shavings, ice cream and candies like Tootsie Rolls, jelly beans or peppermints.

The following are some recipes to help you eat, drink and be merry this holiday season. Skol, salute, down the hatch, for the next hundred years and here's looking up your ancestors!

according to project manager Dick Stevens.

MSTU packages that are not returned will be considered unfavorable votes.

The erosion control line for the project will be determined according to the mean high water line established in 1980 by the governor and his cabinet. Because the mean high water mark has changed since then, coming closer to Captiva in places, Stevens assured the board that a survey will be made just prior to construction so that the final cost will be a true reflection of the amount of sand laid down. The new beach will be about 100 feet wide.

Additional funds will be sought from the federal and state governments to meet the projected $5 million project costs. But Stevens warned the audience that, "You have to remember beach projects are fairly low priorities these days."

A suggestion that upon completion of the renourishment extra funds in CEPD's account be earmarked for beach maintenance was made by Commissioner Peg Hoffschneider.

"We've been lucky for 23 years," Hofschneider remarked in reference to the last major hurricane on Captiva. "I don't know how much longer we will be that lucky." It was suggested that until use of the funds was necessary, the maintenance monies could draw interest in a bank.

Although the MSTU packages have already been mailed, Stevens indicated they might not be binding on the point of leftover funds. He added he would take that matter up with the CEPD attorney. Funds left in CEPD's account after the new beach has been installed were initially meant to be returned to the voters.

Potential parking capacities were also explored at the meeting, and Stevens reported that the potential for parking along the county road does exist.

Hearty opposition to county road parking might be resolved by provision of parking areas inland on Captiva, Stevens suggested. He indicated he would acquire as much information as was available for presentation to the Captiva voters before the MSTU deadline on the first of the new year.

Captran released

committee.

In return the Captran Creditors Trust will assume the debts owed by Captran, which it plans to repay by selling the assets.

The first to be paid off, according to the plan, will be 116 creditors with claims of less than $1,000. Next will be 56 creditors with claims less than $2,500, who will receive a maximum 75 percent settlement.

Then available proceeds will go to Jack Grabowski, owner of Club Baha in Freeport, Bahamas, to settle the $1.6 million court judgment in a joint venture dispute with Captran that triggered the bankruptcy.

Grabowski has agreed to accept only $1.38 million in exchange for Captran's dropping its appeal of the judgment.

Captran has also agreed to transfer $1.1 million equity in two parcels of land at Vanderbilt Beach to its joint venture partners in those properties.

Donald Fasig and Gerald Lupoff, partners with Captran in Vanderbilt Gulfside, will assume the $1.3 million liabilities and complete the project.

Trowbridge, who first started selling "vacations by the slice" at the Sanibel Beach Club in 1975, said he felt the best thing about the outcome is that, "No owners were hurt."

"This shows the safety of the investment, even though we'd lost a major lawsuit, declared bankruptcy and suffered a cash shortage," he concluded.

In a recent survey conducted for the time share industry, Pollster George Gallup Jr. said he was surprised that only 9 percent of the respondents were opposed to buying a time share unit because of the "bad publicity" the industry has received. But 4 percent opposed them because of "bad sales techniques."

Gallup, who discussed the results of the poll at a seminar in Miami recently, said the poll indicates that, "Worries over inflation and unemployment weigh too heavily on most persons to have them jumping into the interval time share market."

But Gallup also said the poll reflects a "strong note of optimism for the economic future of this country."

The tragedie of finalitie

Topi or not Topi — that is the question

By George Campbell

Illustrated by Ann Winterbotham

The tragedy being faced today by the great herds of Pleistocene megafauna of Africa is sad to contemplate.

Africa, continent of dozens of economically suffering countries and burgeoning protein-starved population explosions (exceeding 10 percent per year in some places!) and torn by strife, is divided arbitrarily according to European whim -- not ethnically, by tribal patterns.

The legacy of European colonialism places too great a burden on states like Cameroon, Niger, Kenya and Uganda and dozens of others. Nigeria is largest of all with a population of 80 to 90 million and is burdened with several great sprawling megalopoli, the largest of which, Lagos, increases by 35 families each hour!

Nigeria and much more of West Africa is really a biological desert. All, or almost all, of the wild, indigenous animals of that region are gone -- wiped out, extinct.

Too often new countries -- freed colonies -- have traded organized and sometimes brutal governmental administration (as in former French and Belgian colonies) or more humane and reasonable government (as is the case of the ex-British colonies) for despotic brutality under the hard fists of their own native sons.

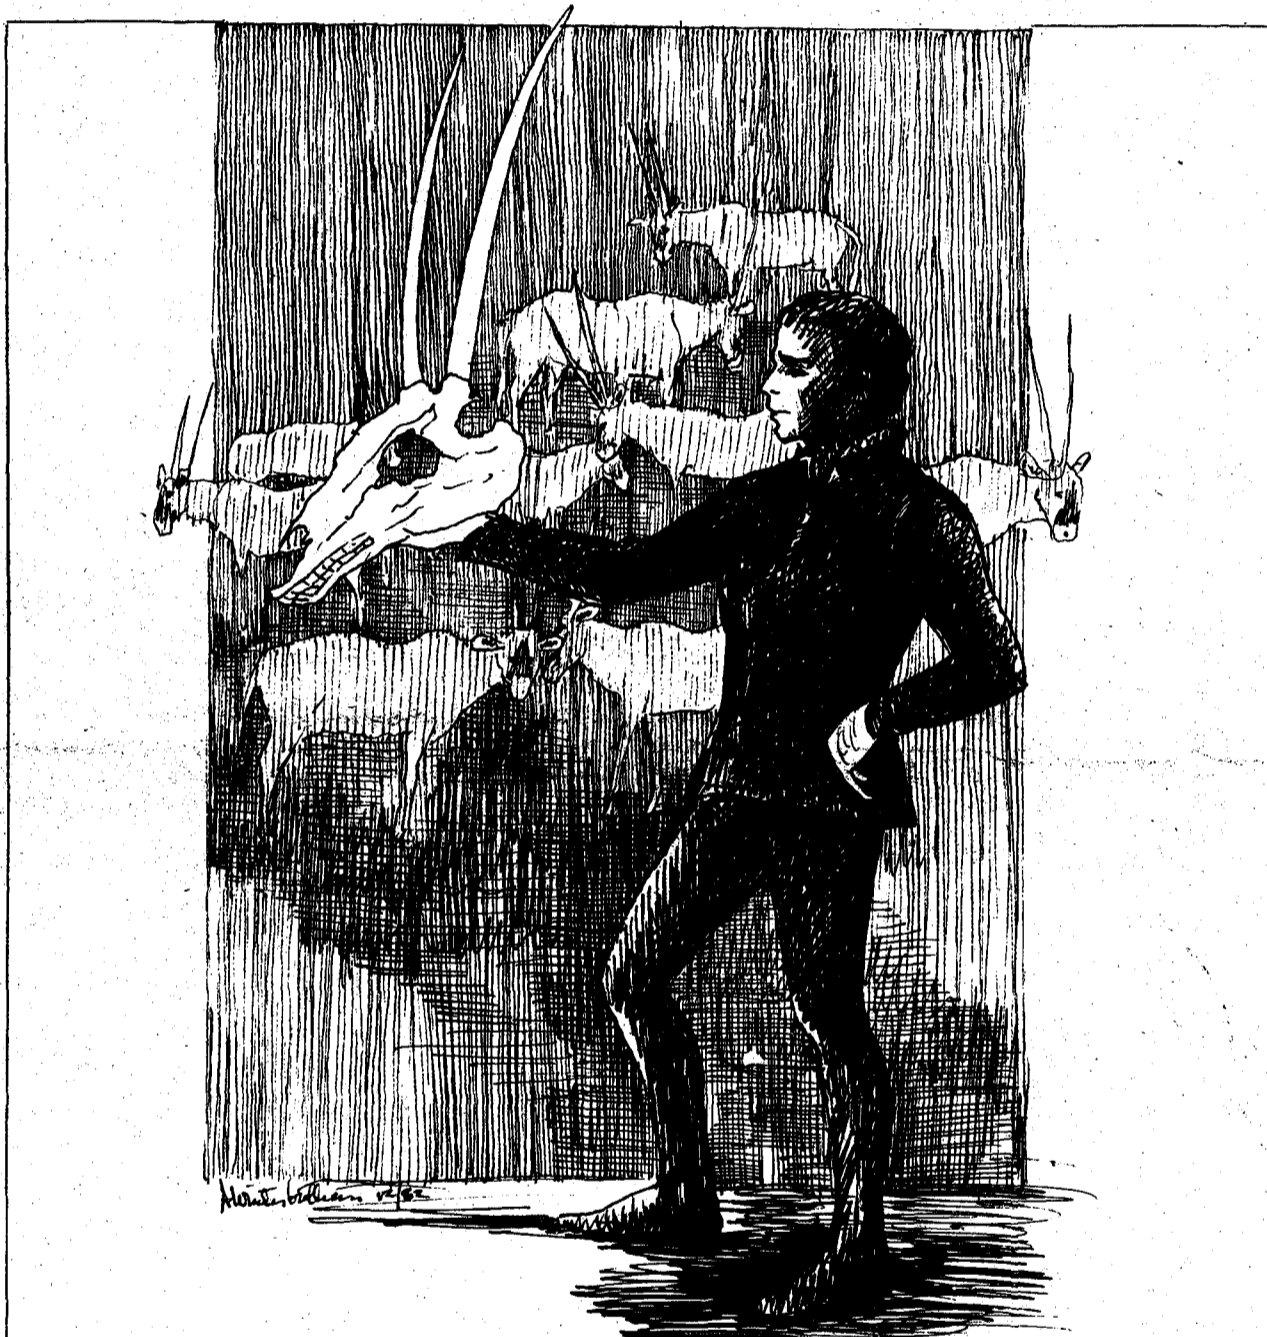

Consider, for example, Amin and Bokassa. Let's not even try to think about Qaddafi. (That last was hard for me to do on a recent evening when I flew over Tripoli and recalled that mad dictator's penchant for playing with firepower.)

One recent African dictator displayed the heads of his enemies at a state banquet, like a gross modern day Salome. He also brutally killed his nation's children.

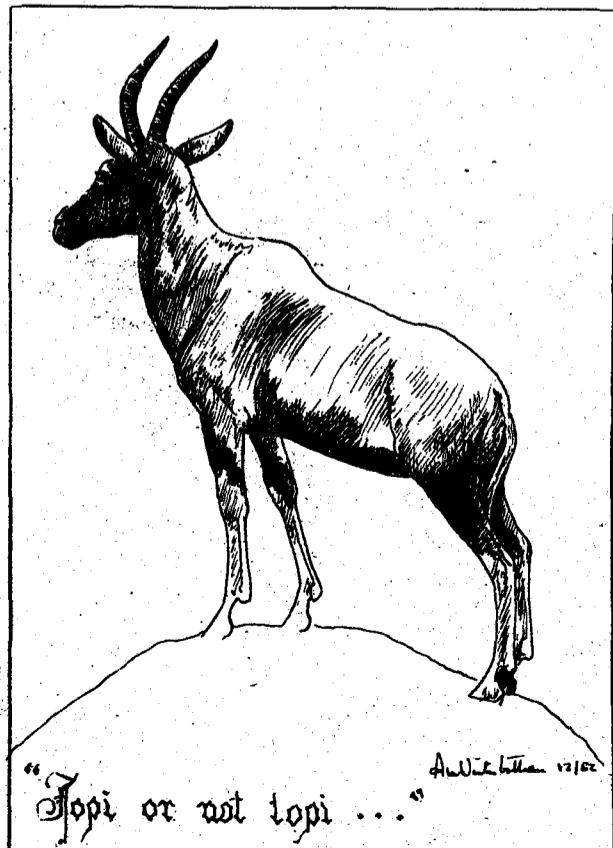

The sad antics of African leaders today spell disaster for many countries. Strife and warfare will continue leading to borders being redrawn along more reasonable ethnic lines. In the process many innocent people will die and -- of great interest to the world conservation community -- the last of the great herds of wild animals may well succumb.

Topi or not Topi -- That is the question

Fortunately a few countries are trying valiantly to preserve their stressed wildlife resources. Kenya is a

*Alas poor ox I you nam well . . .
where be your symbols now?*

"Topi or not topi . . ."

shining example. A poor country, it raises most of the coffee used for "instant" blends, some pyrethrum, and sisal fiber, two products of diminishing value on the world market.

But Kenya's big industry is tourism. That is what earns the foreign exchange -- what there is of it. That is what pays for the OPEC petroleum (gasoline is U.S. $4 per gallon) and other necessary imports like medicines, surgical supplies, Mercedes Benz cars and Volkswagens, too.

And of course tourism -- the big earner -- depends on well-protected wild animals in the many national parks, which are the very best parks in the world. But even these parks suffer intolerable pressures -- poaching, overgrazing, erosion and, worst of all, human population encroachment.

Tsavo National Park, the world's largest, has been invaded, illegally, by Masai tribesmen who herd their emaciated cattle, goats and asses into an area about the size of New Hampshire.

Illegally, you ask -- then why not order them out? Answer: the bellicose mystique of the Masai is still greatly feared today. The central government is powerless to move against them. Besides, one or two cabinet ministers are Masai.

A better regulated area is the Mara. Here Masai are excluded from major areas by agreement. That exquisite antelope the Topi, here pictured, still stands sentinel high up on an old termite hill, guarding the herd.

What organization the Topi have! Sentinels are on duty at stations all around the compass. Sentinels stand watch for a time -- perhaps two hours -- and are replaced by rear guardsmen with real organized efficiency. Will Topi stand guard in 20 years?

Topi or not Topi -- That is the question

Already many forms are disappearing. The "common" Black Rhinoceros was a strong population of 14,000 animals in Kenya when I last visited a few years ago. Today there are probably fewer than 1,000. The rest have been slaughtered for their horns.

China has recently cooperated, as has Hong Kong, by banning horn imports. Rhino horn, that mythical

New outdoor recreation planner joins refuge staff

By Carol Kranichfeld

"Each of us owns a part of this refuge, so I see the public as my main responsibility," says Chris Olsen, the new outdoor recreation planner at the J.N. "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge.

Olsen replaces Donna Staneck, who left the refuge staff earlier this year. She comes to Sanibel from a position at Bosque del Apache National Wildlife Refuge in Socorro, N.M., where she worked for five years.

Olsen has arrived on Sanibel in time to supervise completion of the visitors center exhibits, and in March she expects to see the birth of the Refuge Cooperative Association.

She says she plans to continue and possibly expand the refuge's newly acquired slide presentation, which is narrated by Island resident Pam Horne. Because it serves as an excellent introduction to the refuge and its unique characteristics, Olsen hopes to make the presentation available to center visitors every half hour or so.

Olsen is also considering adopting a free tour program for the refuge's visitors. "But mostly I'm just getting my feet on the ground right now," she says, indicating an intrigue in the Islands' vegetation and natural history.

Her transfer to Sanibel is quite a change of pace from New Mexico and Utah, where she was first employed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in 1977. "Fish Springs National Wildlife Refuge was along the old Pony Express Route," she explains. "A bell went off every time someone entered the refuge drive -- that gives you an idea of how few people we saw. Can you imagine if they used that kind of system here on Sanibel?"

The new outdoor recreation planner expects to continue offering the weekly film presentations, a program begun by Biological Aide Gina Swails, who will be leaving the staff later this month. Swails plans to complete her bachelor of science degree at the College of Charleston and then pursue a career in Veterinary Medicine.

In addition to the film series, Swails has been active in the refuge's public relations as one of the primary tour guides since her arrival last year. She was also acting outdoor recreation planner during the refuge's transition between Staneck and Olsen, and served on the Cooperative Association Board during its planning stages.

New board members elected at SCCF meeting

By Carol Kranichfeld

A brief report by Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation Chairman Rose Rogers regarding the foundation's activities and land acquisitions preceeded the election of four new board members at the SCCF Annual Meeting on Friday.

Coming on board are Dr. K.C. Emerson, Barbara Toomey, Anina Hills Glaize and Charlotte Carrington.

Outgoing directors of the board were Nancy and Art Johnson. The other two vacancies resulted from previous resignations.

This year's land acquisition program has been a success and resulted in several parcels of undisturbed land added to the foundation's holdings along the Sanibel River. SCCF hopes to pursue the purchase of riverfront acreage in an effort to maintain Sanibel's only sizeable freshwater supply as a natural habitat for the Island's wildlife.

Following the business meeting, which was held under a tent in the SCCF parking lot, members were invited to tour the center's recently enlarged and remodeled gift shop.

SCCF officials plan barn owl banding after bird lecture

By Carol Kranichfeld

Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation Center visitors will have a rare opportunity to observe the banding of barn owls today.

The young barn owls, which live adjacent to the SCCF center, are nearing fledgling stage and will be banded immediately after this week's Tuesday at the Center lecture.

This week's lecture on "Beach Nesting Birds" will be delivered by local ornithologist and former tour guide Griffing Bancroft, who will focus on the birds' ability to compete with beach-loving humans.

A resident of Captiva since 1958, Bancroft is an original member of the Ding

Darling Memorial Committee, which established the Ding Darling Sanctuary and later became the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation. He is also the author of three books, Snowy: The Story of an Egret; Vanishing Wings: A Tale of Three Birds of Prey and The White Cardinal.

Today's program will be the last one until Tuesday, Jan. 4, when Jenna Venero of the Florida Marine Patrol will talk about manatees.

Tuesday at the Center programs begin at 2 p.m. General admission for non-members is $1 for adults and $.50 for children.

For more information contact Steve Phillips, 472-2329.

aphrodisiac of such great monetary value, is no longer consumed legally in China or Hong Kong.

But Taiwan did not play along, nor did Singapore nor Indonesia, where Rhino horn is still used by some of the millions of overseas Chinese. Also, macho Yemenites, newly oil-rich, pay huge sums for Rhino horn with which to fashion intricate dagger handles, symbols of manhood.

How long will the remaining thousand Rhinos last under such pressures?

Twenty years ago I proposed that Rhino be darted with capture guns and "put down" or anesthetized, their horns cut off and the animals released to carry on their lives sans horns. I was laughed out of the East African Wildlife Society.

"Hornless Rhinos," they joked. "Who wants to see hornless Rhinos running around the veldt? Ho ho, what a looney idea. Only a bloody Yank could come up with such an idiotic scheme!"

Well, people are coming around a bit. Better hornless Rhinos, what? than no Rhinos. So maybe, just maybe, there will be a Rhino Recovery Program based on the theory that poachers won't kill useless, hornless Rhinos. Whether this program should be financed by the sale of horn poses an interesting ethical question.

Alas, poor Oryx -- I Gnu him well

At Samburu and at the Mara the elegant Oryx with the long scimitar-like horns, here pictured, can still be found in sizable herds. These beautiful creatures are easily domesticated so they may, after wild herds are only a memory, live on as artificial domestic herds -- meat animals, like cattle.

The Gnu, or Wildebeest (see accompanying drawing) still marches in untold multitudes from the Mara across Tanzania's Serengeti and back each year. Pressure of poaching in Tanzania, where illegal hunting is big business, is beginning to evidence stress.

Some say 10 years, others 15, after which the great migrations may be no more. "The Serengeti Shall Not Die," Dr. Grzimek?

Alas, poor Oryx -- I Gnu him well

Where be your Gambols now?

One must appreciate the effort being made in Kenya to forestall the transformation of that country into a biological desert comparable to that of much of West Africa.

One hopes the handwriting on the wall is false, that miraculously the great herds will survive, that Kenya will enter the 21st Century with parks intact despite a forecasted doubling of the population in that small country.

I hope I'm wrong. I shall scrutinize the situation closely both through the literature and at first hand. Already the 1983 safari is planned and scheduled.

Mosquito control director talks

Despite progress, Florida still plagued

By Carol Kranichfeld

Did you know male mosquitoes emerge from their eggs one or two days before the females? That only the female mosquito bites? That the life expectancy of the average Florida resident in 1877 was only 33 years because of the mosquito-related plagues that swept through the state?

Mosquitoes have played a major role in Florida history that is documented well back into the state annals.

When Florida was up for statehood in 1845, John Randolph of Virginia rose up before his fellow congressmen to vehemently oppose the state's bid. His reasons, he said, were wholly justified because Florida was an unfit place to live and was unlikely to ever be successfully developed.

Florida, Randolph maintained, was a "land of swamps, of quagmires, of frogs and alligators and mosquitoes."

Today, Florida is the nation's ninth most populous state and is growing exponentially every year. And Lee County Mosquito Control Director T. Wayne Miller is among the first to acknowledge our state is still plagued by mosquitoes.

"Florida does have a mosquito problem," he said during his lecture at the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation Center last week.

The greatest culprit on Sanibel and Captiva is Culex nigripalpus, the vector for St. Louis Encephalitis, which has plagued Florida since 1933.

Lee County's most recent encephalitis outbreak, according to Miller, may have been caused by the migration of small animals out of the Everglades when the area flooded this summer.

Since St. Louis Encephalitis circulates in the animal kingdom, and because it is probably endemic to the Everglades all the time, small mammals can be a reservoir for the disease.

The cycle of "brain fever" is carried from birds to mammals and back to the mosquito. Local control of the disease includes careful monitoring of specified island locations using mosquito traps and sentinel chicken flocks, both of which are used on Sanibel and Captiva.

Chickens posted in the Wulfert area, which this summer indicated the presence of St. Louis Encephalitis, have since been given a clean bill of health when laboratory blood tests proved the disease had faded from the area.

"Mosquitoes probably bite the people who raise them," Miller said, explaining that C. nigripalpus rarely flies more than 300 feet from its birthplace. Perfect for hatching its eggs are areas containing bodies of standing water, including small amounts of stagnant water in old tires, tin cans and even bird baths.

A nocturnal insect, Culex nigripalpus searches for dark, warm, humid places in which to spend the daylight hours, often resting close to the ground under vegetative debris.

More active during the rainy season, the mosquito is infective with St. Louis Encephalitis for its entire lifespan once it has contracted it.

"The mosquito would prefer to bite a bird or small mammal anyway," Miller said. But prime candidates for the arthropod's attention are the people who sit quietly in their lawn chairs watching the sun go down, he added, explaining that the mosquitoes are especially active at dawn and dusk. "Then they may fly out and nail you," he said.

Ongoing research by the Lee County Mosquito Control District includes work with a nematode that eats the insect and with two bacteria that together possess the potential for killing the insect spore.

But because Lee County is home to 45 of the world's 35,000 species of mosquitoes, many of which have very specific life-requirements, the battle against the insect goes on.

And though it may seem the struggle between man and the mosquito has a long way to go, things have nevertheless come a long way — particularly from the days when the Sanibel postman made his rounds dressed "like an Eskimo" in parka and yards of mosquito netting.

Michl voted vice president pro temp at CROW

By Catherine Battista

Maxene Michl has been elected vice president pro temp of Care and Rehabilitation of Wildlife to fill the vacancy of Dr. Phyllis Douglass. The vote was taken at the recent CROW Board of Directors meeting.

Because of pressures from her veterinary practice, Douglass resigned from her position as first vice-president, but she plans to remain active on the CROW board.

CROW is among Michl's favorite involvements on Sanibel. Once again this year she will head the fund raising drive that will get under way after the first of the year. But as far as she is concerned raising money for CROW is already a seven day a week job. "We need all the help we can get!" she says.

Recommendations of the nominating committee to adopt bylaw changes were accepted by the board at the recent meeting. The bylaws committee, which consists of Elijah Camp, Catherine Battista and Barbara Toomey, will present the final draft of the bylaws at the Jan. 5 meeting.

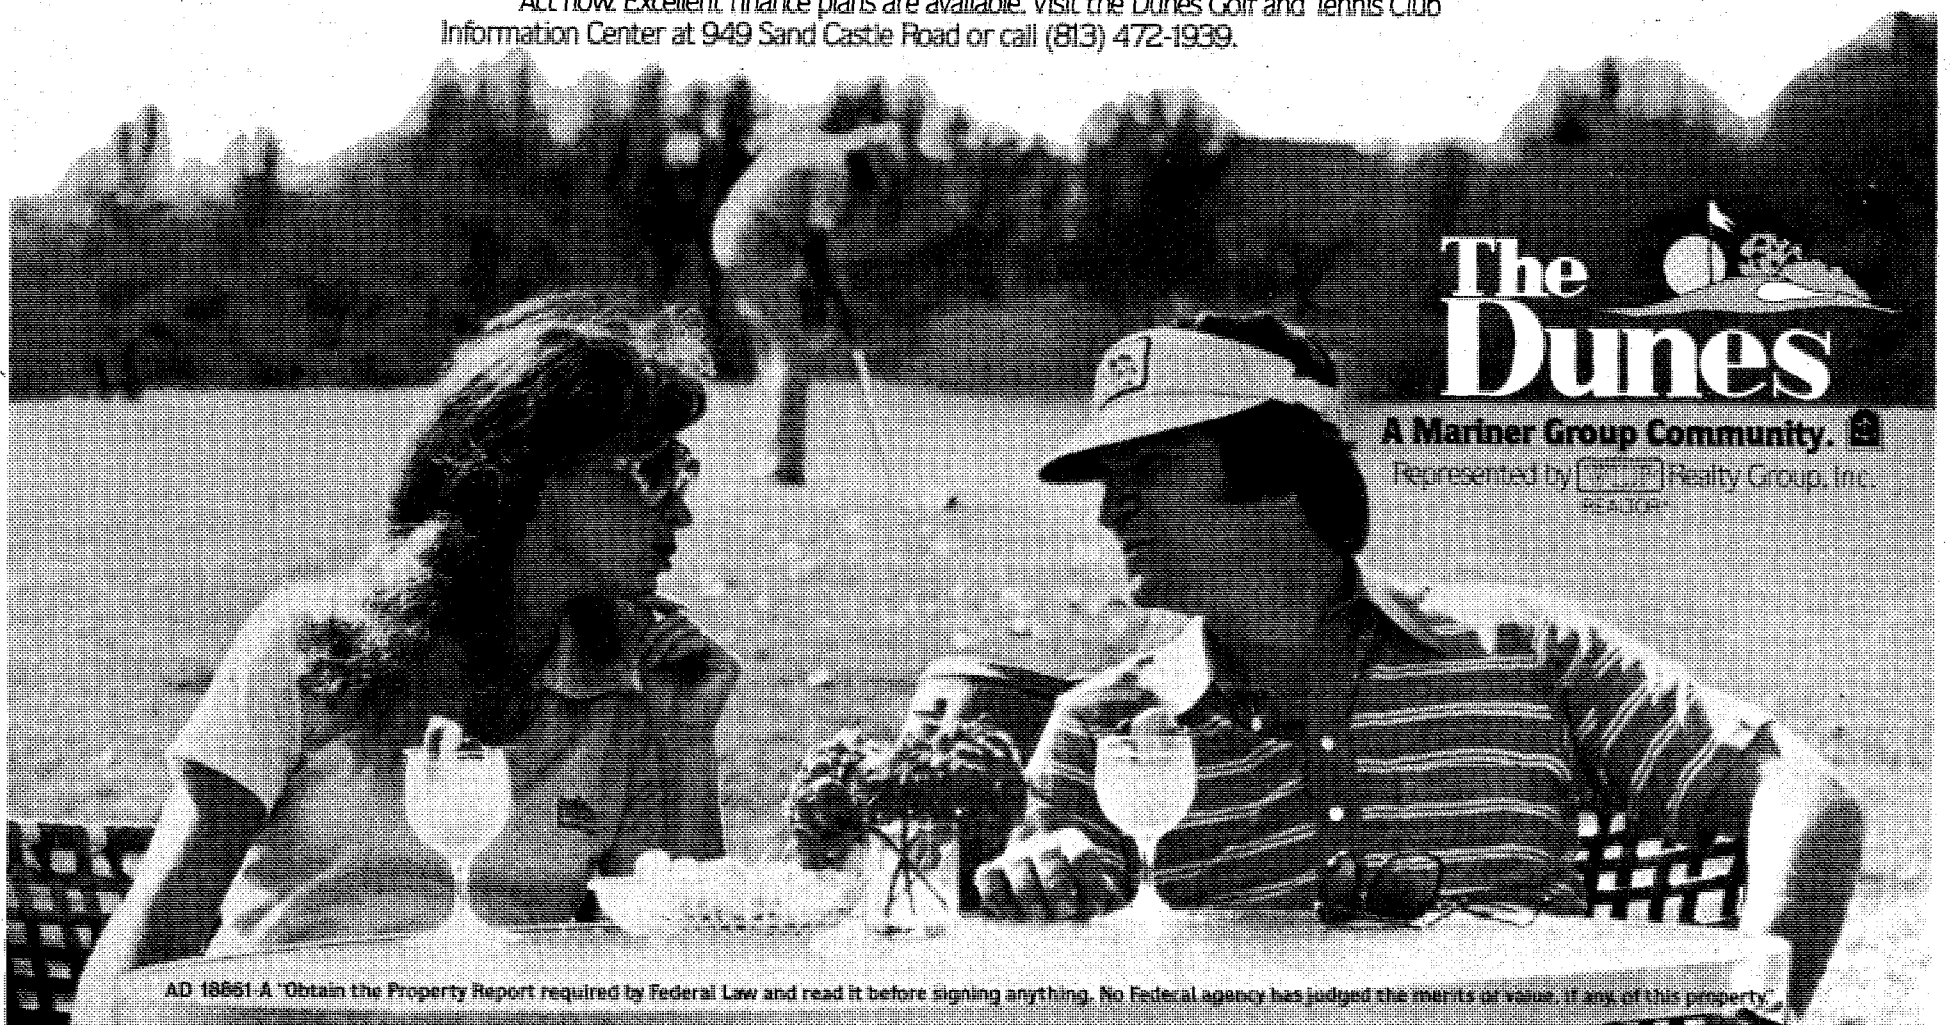

Michl will retain the post until CROW's next annual meeting scheduled for March, at which time an election of officers will take place. All members of CROW are invited to participate at the annual meeting.

Artist's 'burst of nativity' yields ceramic creches at the Sanibel Gallery

On Dec. 19, 1976, Jane Crume Valtin bravely threw open the doors to the Sanibel Gallery for the first time. Four pictures graced the walls inside.

As the Sanibel Gallery nears its sixth anniversary this week, Islanders who have visited Valtin's domain know exactly how far she and the gallery have come.

But perhaps the best news this Christmas is Valtin's handmade nativities, fired in the electric kiln installed in her garage-studio and transported with tender loving care to the gallery to share with the Islands and their guests.

"I've always had a fetish for nativities," Valtin says. "This is really like a dream come true."

The handful of creches that have come out of Valtin's "cottage industry" are unique in all the world, made from Miami clay fired to the point of vitrification (hard and weather-proof), perfect for the out-of-doors and left entirely unglazed.

The creches vary from a set of three to one with 125 pieces, complete with wind chimes of stars, angels and birds.

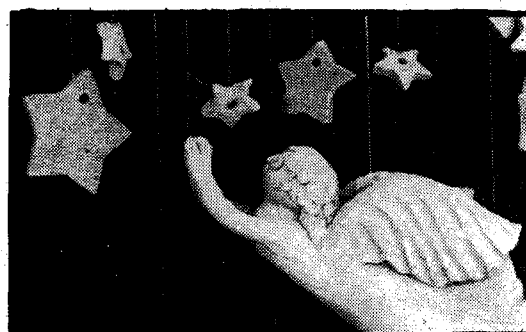

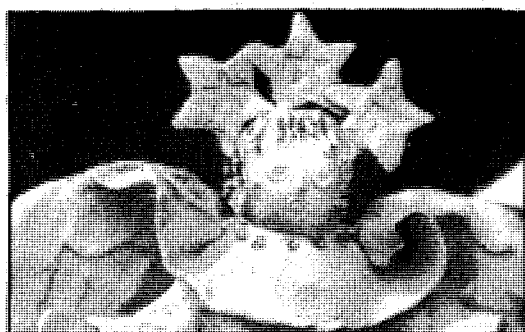

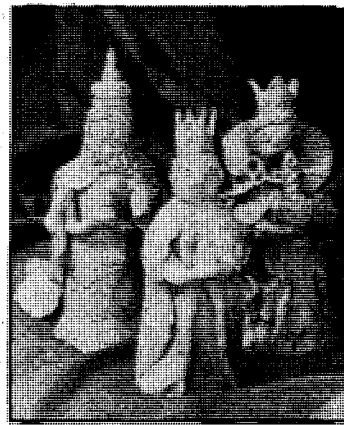

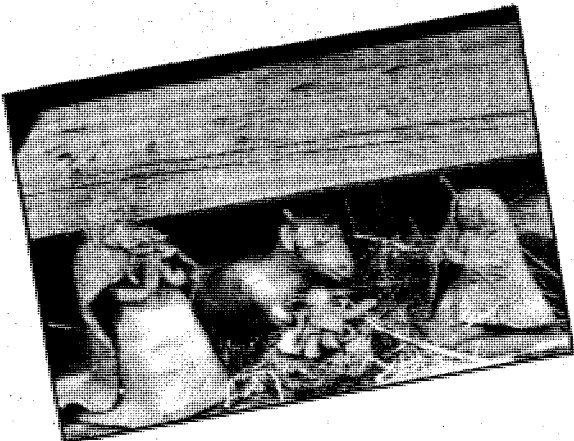

"I had a burst of nativity," explains Valtin, who stayed up until the wee hours of the morning for three weeks finishing her pieces. She describes her creations as "a fantasy" she never expected to materialize and says she she owes it all to one customer who persistently asked her about the nativities' progress -- for four years -- until she finally sat down to her kiln with the creches.

Her largest nativity heralds wise men, camels, donkeys, lambs and even palm trees to set the ancient manger scene complete with straw and handmade barn.

Carrying price tags from $75 to $700, the ceramic nativities are sure to complement the landscaping or window seat of any home.

Carrying out a fantasy is always a rare treat, but Valtin's nativities are timely and a wonderful way to say "Happy Birthday" to the Sanibel Gallery.

BIG Arts announces comedy film festival

Barrier Island Group for the Arts invites everyone to put a little comedy into their holiday season by attending the association's free Comedy In Our Time Film Festival at Sundial Beach and Tennis Resort.

At the top of the festival on Wednesday, Dec. 15, will be a showing of the famed My Little Chickadee starring the outrageous duo Mae West and W.C. Fields along with Margaret Hamilton.

West's only collaboration with Fields, Chickadee was stormy from the start, but there's no doubt it was a winner. Snake-oil salesman Cuthbert J. Twillie woos Flower Belle Lee on an Indian-besieged train and in Greasewood City, where he dispenses wisdom in the saloon (the great Chicago Molly story about kicking women in corsets) and she teaches schools ("two and two is four and five'll get ya ten if ya know how to work it").

A special presentation of Dr. Strangelove will follow on Wednesday, Dec. 29. Theatre critic George Bouwman will attend at each film presentation and discuss the films and the history of movie comedy through the years.

A showing of Some Like It Hot will be part of the BIG Arts Christmas Party on Wednesday, Dec. 22 and will be free to BIG Arts members. Non-members will be charged $5.

Movie time for all three presentations is 8 p.m. A cash bar will be available at each of the three events.

Workshops begin Jan. 3 for shell show crafts

Monday morning, Jan. 3, 1983, is the magic date when the first Driftwood Workshop session begins at the Sanibel Community Association building.

On that day the association hall will open wide for all those creative workers whose goal is to help make the 46th Annual Sanibel Shell Show the best in the world.

There are only nine weeks between the first session on Jan. 3 and the show on March 3, 4, 5 and 6. Show workers need your help.

So all you shell flower arrangers who have a talent for putting together related and unrelated shell flowers into the most fantastically beautiful designs created anywhere, please do a favor for the Driftwood Shop. Make a contribution to the big box in the association hall.

Your contribution of 10 or more shell flowers, with or without stems and of any kind of shells will add to the shell flower inventory that is necessary to start the creative juices flowing at the Driftwood Workshops.

Remember, the box will be open for your contributions from this moment on, whenever you visit the community center. The workshop workers will use every single one.

All kinds of shells are needed to keep the workshop production rolling. We beg you to bring all those cleaned and deodorized shells you've been storing and moving around for ages to the community center.

Don't forget to come to the Driftwood Workshop on the first Monday in January. Start the New Year right from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Brown bag lunch. Coffee will be provided.

Shell Club announces party, auction plans

The annual auction of specimen shells and Christmas Party of the Sanibel-Captiva Shell Club will be held at 8 p.m. next Monday, Dec. 20, at the Sanibel Community Association building on Periwinkle Way.

A Christmas Party with a raffle is scheduled. Carol and Walter Hedden, 472-3890, are in charge of hospitality. Here is your chance to bid for a specimen shell at your price!

New members are most welcome. For information call membership chairman is Al ZuHone, 472-2615.

The highlight of the season for the club is the annual Shell Fair early in March. Driftwood Shop will start on Monday, Jan. 3, 1983. Members have fun while making shell articles to raise money for our various causes. Many of the items sold at the Shell Fair become tomorrow's "heirlooms" and souvenirs of a visit to Sanibel. Members bring their own lunch; coffee is served. The Driftwood Shop is headed this year by Georgette Laforet and will meet from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. every Monday.

Annual dues for membership in the Shell Club are $6 for an individual and $10 for a couple.

Brochures prepared for Shell Show exhibition

Have you picked up your copy of the new Shell Fair brochure? It's all about the 46th Annual Sanibel Shell Show, which promises to be bigger and better than ever! Smart Sanibel businesses have them on hand, all you have to do is ask for one.

The brochure's 32 pages include information, photographs and the rules and regulations for entering exhibits in this year's "Tiffany of shell shows."

Although the show is not until March 3, 4, 5 and 6, 1983, editor Sue Stephens put the brochure together to ensure that interested exhibitors have all the details for entering the show early.

Sanibel merchants, as always, are supportive of the 1983 show. Just under 100 advertisers appear in this year's brochure and are to be commended for their financial backing.

Interior design begins with 'shell' of your home

By Lori Armstrong

Interior design begins with the "shell" of your home - the walls, ceiling, windows and floor.

Physically walk around and examine the shell of your home. It would be futile to consider a fresh paint job or new carpeting when you have a plumbing problem in need of repair or a ceiling that leaks. Know the physical condition of your home or single room if that is the project at hand.

Next, analyze what furnishings and accessories will remain. If budget is a factor, by all means work with the best that you have. And in planning new selections, go with the very best you can afford.

In re-doing a single room, quite often you can disperse some existing furnishings to other rooms in the house and make way for the new look.

In planning your project, whether it be on a large or small scale, you must consider the look you are trying to achieve. The function of the room may dictate the resulting effect. You, your family and your lifestyle play an all important part. In the end your home must be emotionally pleasing to the eye.

Spend time simply browsing through stores and magazines, noting those rooms that are pleasing to you. Is it the color you like? The furnishings? Are you attracted to a particular wood finish? (For example, the "bisque" look of bleached wood has a unique charm all its own.) Maybe you find yourself attracted to the glossy, mica look.

As you do your browsing, ask yourself, "What makes this room work?"

Consider the problem factors you may have to work around such as too many windows or doors or a room that is too rectangular.

Do not fear working with a decorator. Most major department and fine furniture stores offer this service automatically.

built into their pricing. And there are many notable free lance designers who can pick the best from here and there to achieve the custom look you personally desire. They can help you evaluate and coordinate and generally put together a plan that in the end says, "you."

In deciding a scheme, you might find it in something as simple as a flower arrangement or a painting, the out-of-doors, a designer scarf or an ethnic rug.

When you have no idea where to begin you are safest to go neutral and perhaps monochromatic as well. There is nothing more appealing and sophisticated than white on white on white sparked by large, healthy, green plants and oversized paintings.

In our next article we will talk about instant changes - some that cost nothing.

If you have a special decorating problem, address your inquiry to P.O. Box 872, Sanibel, Fl 33957.

'Restless' describes ocean's constant motion

Of all the many adjectives that have been used to describe the ocean, the word "restless" somehow seems most appropriate. For those who have seen and experienced the ocean's awesome beauty, power and motion, no other word describes it better for even at its calmest, the ocean is never really still.

The definite patterns of motion are the ocean currents, those masses of horizontal movement of water within water. Some are only narrow ribbons of shallow surface water. Others are wide, deep and swift. Sometimes the direction is constant, sometimes varied, set in motion by the wind.

Because of the rotation of the earth, currents flow clockwise north of the equator and counter-clockwise south of the equator. Although surface currents move continuously, the courses and rates of movement vary. The water is warm as it flows away from the equator, but it gradually cools as it travels and returns there as cold water.

An obvious example for Floridians is the Gulf Stream, which is born where the current in the Gulf of Mexico meets the waters in the Florida Straits between Cuba and the Florida Keys.

These waters join the Antilles Current flowing northwest along the Atlantic side of the West Indies and continue along the coast of Florida at speeds of up to 70 mph.

Off Palm Beach the Gulf Stream is only about three miles from shore, but at Jacksonville it can be as far as 150 miles out. Off Charleston, S.C., it slows to about 40 miles a day and by the time it reaches the Grand Banks of Newfoundland it is moving even slower - only about 10 miles a day.

From there it ceases to be strong, spreads out and begins a general drift toward Europe, where it is called the North Atlantic Current and is responsible for the fact that many ports in Europe are ice-free all winter.

Other currents include the Brazil, California, Peru, Labrador and West Australian currents.

Although a world map illustrating the paths of the different currents depicts a rather orderly path of circular patterns as well as horizontal flows, changes in the courses do occur from time to time. These changes can make a difference in temperature, which, in turn, affects the fish life in the waters.

Many species of fish depend upon the currents for food and are temperature-sensitive, which accounts, partially, for the fluctuations in fish populations.

Because of its currents and winds, the sea is indeed restless - a virtually untapped source of infinite energy.

Single copies of a fact sheet, "The Gulf Stream - Locating It Off Florida's Coasts," are available free of charge from the Florida Sea Grant Marine Advisory Program, G022 McCarty Hall, University of Florida, Gainesville, FL 32611.

ISLANDER SPORTS

Islander sports quiz

Sorry, sports fans -- we forgot to write a question for last week's Islander Sports Quiz. We'll try to make up for the omission with this week's teaser. Call The Islander, 472-5185, if you think you know the answer to this golf question. If you're right, we'll print your name in next week's edition.

Who was the first golfer ever to make $1 million in his career?

Island golf

Beachview men

Tournament play at the Beachview Men's Golf Association on Tuesday, Dec. 6, drew 48 players. The winners at plus-nine were Bob Marye, Dale Reudig, Bob Dormer and Bob Schneider.

The second place team with plus-seven was Bill Blankenship, Ted Hartshorne and Hank Groh. Jerry Kohmescher won the high gross points with 18. Individual high with plus-six was Bill Blankenship.

Sixty-two players turned out for tournament play on Saturday, Dec. 10. Two teams tied for first place with plus-10. Those teams were Jim Esson, John Forster, Al Helo and Bid Risto and the team of Buhl Burgoyne, G. Houck, Al Johnson and Milt Reik.

Tied for high individual with plus-five were Bruce Henderson, Hank Groh, Bud Ristow and George Phillips. High gross with 19 points was Bruce Henderson.

Beachview women

The Beachview Women's Golf Association had a beautiful day for the 18-hole tournament on Wednesday, Dec. 8. Twenty players participated.

Mary Jane Preston took the low gross honors in the A Flight competition with an 80. Joy Benedict and Nancy Reidig shared low net with 72 and 73.

In B Flight play, Herta Howland came in with an 88 for the low gross. Low net was won by Ruth Komescher and Connie Dingerson, both with a 68.

Maureen Hawthorn had low gross in Flight C with a 96. Cyril Ivler Rubin and Patsy Esson won low net with 73 and 76, respectively.

Dunes men

Members of the Dunes Men's Golf Association played a two-man, team scramble, half handicap tournament on Wednesday, Dec. 8. Finishing first with a 16 was the team of Al Lloyd and Len Lorensen. In second place with a 21 was the team of Bill Shepard and Fred Hanson. Wendell Lapp and Tony Ioppolo tied with the team of Spade Ogle and Scott Vanderbeck with a 22 for third place.

Sanibel woman wins "Name The Golf Course" contest

Sanibel resident Barbara Gardiner of Venus Drive was recently named first-place winner in Mariner's "Name The Golf Course" contest at the Dunes Golf and Tennis Country Club.

Because of the heavy volume of entries, a drawing was held to select the top winner. The official name for the entire course will now be "The Dunes." The front nine will be referred to as the "Mild Dunes," and the back nine will be called the "Wild Dunes."

Mariner Properties, developer of The Dunes, awarded Gardiner a complimentary week's vacation at South Seas Plantation on Captiva, a year's family membership at The Dunes and a custom golf towel with the Dunes imprint. She is already using her family membership and looks forward to her vacation at South Seas Plantation.

Thirteen runners-up received towels and $20 gift certificates to be used at the Dunes. Another 60 entrants also received golf towels.

The back nine holes at The Dunes have been under construction since June and are nearing completion. With direction from Mariner, Master Links Builders of Middleberg have added several hundred trees, made significant use of elevation and contouring to highlight to playing areas and added rolling hills to the back nine. A new irrigation system was also installed.

Shopping

Sanibel is a veritable shopper's paradise. Tasteful boutiques and casual island shops join forces to present visitors with everything and anything a vacation shopper could hope for.

At the Lighthouse (Eastern) end of the island, Punta Ybel Plaza and the Sea Horse Shops are right across the street from each other, providing a variety of products that can cure your sweet tooth or tickle your shell finder's fancy. Need a good haircut or coiffure? You can get it in either of these shopping centers.

Most businesses open at 10 a.m. and close at 5:30 p.m. This holds true for many island stores, although some are open evenings during the winter season.

Tall Australian Pines shade Periwinkle Way and the shopper travels west along this main thoroughfare. This stretch of road is truly a shopper's paradise! It's all here -- the fast and not-so-fast eating spots, casual and elegant boutiques, hand-wrought jewelry, craft designs, shell shops and balms for health product fanatics.

Watch to your right and left as you drive or cycle along. Photographic supplies, bait and tackle, deli foods, fresh seafood and baked goods, knick-knacks and what-nots can all be found along the drive to the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road. Along the way, shopping centers such as the Heart of the Islands, Periwinkle Place and Tahitian Gardens offer a variety of island delights.

Palm Ridge Road, the Periwinkle Way turn-off to Captiva, offers several shopping centers featuring everything from imports to gift shops for the discriminating shopper, plants and shells, a sandwich shop, ice cream parlors, pizza parlor, boutique shop and the Island Apothecary pharmacy.

At the Tarpon Bay-Periwinkle Way Intersection, the Island Shopping Center features the island's only supermarket and movie house.

A left on Tarpon Bay Road takes the visitor past Sanibel's original schoolhouse, which now holds original island watercolors and woodcuts.

Then on to West Gulf Drive and westward to an interesting little artisan shop and gallery.

At the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road, you may choose instead to turn right and follow the signs to the Tarpon Bay marina, where you will find a cluster of quaint shops overlooking the back bay. Some antiques, shells and shellcrafts, what-nots and clever clothes can be found here, as well as a great seafood sandwich and soft drinks.

The spectacular ride to Captiva, with its lush foliage and enchanting view of the Gulf, is well worth a day's outing. Talented artists display their works in one roadside shop, while others feature some nifty gifts for Grandma to take home to little hands as a pleasant hodge-podge of remembrances from these barrier islands.

Whether for shopping or merely browsing, island shops offer a surprising variety from one-of-a-kind collectibles for the discerning shopper to postcards for the simple souvenir hunter. And of course, for all shells -- shell jewelry, shell lamps, just plain shells -- the most beautiful shells in the world from the most beautiful shelling beaches in the world.

SHELLING

The city's resolution limiting the taking of live shells to two live shells per species per person is one to be scrupulously obeyed. As a matter of fact, in order to preserve Sanibel's beautiful shelling beaches, most collectors refuse to take any live shells whatsoever.

FISH
 Friends in Service Here

Neighborly help for Islanders
 in need of transportation, regular phone checks and assorted non-emergency neigh-borly services. Call 472-0404, 24 hours a day.

WARNING! SAFEGUARD YOUR VALUABLES

In order to protect your valuable possessions from theft, it is recommended that you take them to a bank or hotel vault for safekeeping. Do NOT leave them in your room or car.

DOGGY DO'S AND DON'TS

If you are visiting Sanibel with the family Fido in tow, all the better. All family members can enjoy Southwest Florida sun and surf.
 The Chamber of Commerce
 can tell you what accommodations are available for families with pets.

Remember: Wherever you are, clean up after your pet!
 "Leave nothing on the beach but footprints" applies to dogs, too.
 There's no leash law on Sanibel, but of course an excitable or unruly animal is better off when controlled with a leash.

BICYCLING

If you aren't used to a lot of bicycle traffic, watch out on Sanibel. The extensive network of bike paths on the Island is clearly marked along the edge of the road.
 Observe caution when driving near the bike path. A state law and city ordinance combine to prohibit parking or driving on the bike path. Mopeds are not permitted on the bike paths.
 If you plan to spend some time
 on a bike to enjoy the Island sun and sights, make sure your vehicle is equipped with a bike flag, horn, good brakes and a light for night riding.
 Under Florida law, bicycle riders have the same rights and responsibilities as motor vehicle drivers.
Drive safely!

CAMPING, BEACH FIRES

Camping on the beach is prohibited, as are open beach fires.
 An exemption to the beach fire ordinance is a fire in an approved cooking container (not to exceed 48x24x12 inches deep) with an extruded metal grill for non-commercial food preparation. This type of container will be allowed on the beach without a permit.

 After you have had your beach party, please assume the responsibility for cleaning up any debris or litter in your area.

FISHING

While no license is required for saltwater fishing, fishing in freshwater ponds or the Sanibel River requires a Florida fishing license.
 Licenses are available at Bailey's General Store on Periwinkle Way. The fee is $6.50 for residents and $10.50 for non-residents.
Minimum Legal Lengths
 Blue Fish 10 inches

Flounder	11 inches
Grouper	12 inches
Mackerel	12 inches
Mullet	12 inches
Pompano	10 inches
Red Fish	12 inches
Snook	18 inches
Trout	12 inches

Snook fishing is outlawed from June 30-Aug. 1.

GATORS

Feeding alligators anywhere within the Sanibel city limits is not only illegal, but can be extremely dangerous.
 Alligators can run up to 45
 mph, so if you are close enough to feed an alligator, he is close enough to bite you. An alligator fed for fun loses his natural fear of humans and becomes a potential threat to children and pets.
 Dogs should never be permitted to run free on Sanibel.

Fence them, walk them on a leash or, if you must free your dog for a walk, keep him under voice control. Never tie your dog in an unfenced backyard.
 For help with a nuisance
 alligator, call the following representatives of the Southwest Florida Alligator Association. They are licensed and have permits to legally handle
 gators: George Campbell, 472-2825; Steve Phillips, 472-2329;
 Mark Westall, 472-5128.

SPEEDLIMITS

There is very good reason for the varying speed limits (20-30 mph) along the Causeway. The slower speeds preserve the bridge supports from strain and stress.
 This speed limit is strictly enforced with radar on a 24-hour basis by both the Sanibel Police Department and the Lee County Sheriff's Department.
