La Croix accepts city attorney post, Bowen joins Daytona Beach firm

By Barbara Brundage

A Gainesville lawyer with extensive experience in zoning and land use regulations and litigation will take over as Sanibel's city attorney on Feb. 7.

Before David La Croix comes on board, however, Neal Bowen, who served in the post for almost seven years, will depart for Daytona Beach. There he will join as an associate Cobb and Cole, a governmental law firm that has a state-wide practice.

"It's a tremendous opportunity," says Bowen, who during his tenure has successfully defended several challenges to the city's landmark land use plan. He will work closely with State Representative Sam Bell, who is also an associate in the firm's governmental law section.

Bowen earlier agreed to stay on with the city on a week-to-week basis until his replacement would be available. But last Tuesday he alerted the council that would no longer be possible. Friday will be his last day as Sanibel's city attorney. He told the council he will do everything he can to "make the transition a smooth one."

Bowen, who grew up in Miami, said he has been thinking for some time of moving back to Florida's east coast.

With his Dixie Beach Boulevard home on the market, Bowen, his wife, Carlene and daughter, Christine, will soon leave the Island.

La Croix, a partner in the Gainesville law firm of Sieg, Comfort, Hawk, La Croix and Reid, emerged as the top candidate for Bowen's job and was offered the position last Friday at an annual salary of $40,000.

He originally said he needed $50,000 to make the move, but last Tuesday La Croix agreed to the $45,000 annual stipend authorized by the council. In addition the city will contribute an amount equal to 6 percent of his gross salary to a deferred compensation plan or another retirement program. He will also receive a $90

Goss appointment made official

By Barbara Brundage

Former Sanibel Mayor Porter Goss' appointment to the Lee County Commission became official last Thursday just in time for Goss to participate in the regular meeting of the Metropolitan Planning Organization.

Goss was named a week ago by Gov. Bob Graham to fill the commission seat vacated by the suspension of Commissioner Mike Roeder. He "sat in as an observer only" at last Wednesday's regular board meeting.

Goss legally did not have the right to vote at the commission meeting on Wednesday because a bond public officials must post by state law was not yet in the hands of the secretary of state.

But at 1:45 p.m. Thursday he was notified that the bond had been received and he was "officially in."

The 46th Annual Sanibel Shell Show is several weeks away (set for March 3-6), but enthusiastic volunteers have busied themselves for the past several weeks creating shell knick-knacks, bouquets and curiosities that help distinguish this yearly event.

Driftwood Workshop chairman Georgette Laforet says the turnout has been excellent during the first four sessions. She encourages prospective shell and driftwood artists to join in this creative venture, which will continue for the next five Mondays at the Sanibel Community Association hall.

"They're good workers," Laforet said of the dedicated crew of about 35 who turned out last week. Sessions begin at 10 a.m. and finish at 3 p.m. Bring a bag lunch.

Although the city charter stipulates the city attorney must reside in Sanibel, the council agreed to allow La Croix to live off-Island for as long as the first year.

La Croix and his fiancée both have homes in Gainesville to sell, and the high cost of living on Sanibel would be a burden, the council agreed.

If his employment is terminated by the city council at any time La Croix must be given either three months notice or three months severance pay.

Another concession granted La Croix will allow him to spend up to four days a month for the first three months to complete work on litigation in which he is currently involved. Otherwise he cannot engage in any outside legal work.

Terms of La Croix's employment are outlined in a resolution approved by a 4-0 vote of the council last Tuesday. Councilman Fred Valtin was absent.

La Croix received his undergraduate degree from the United States Air Force Academy in 1964 and graduated with honors from the University of Florida College of Law in 1972.

While deputy city attorney for the city of Gainesville from 1978-81, he worked with Sanibel City Manager Bernie Murphy.

week's commission meeting he was encouraged by Vice Chairman Ernie Averill to voice his opinion on any issue.

As Sanibel's mayor he long tried to interest the county and the two other cities in establishing an interagency council consisting of representatives of all local governments. Goss took advantage of this first opportunity to promote his plan to the commission last week.

He told the commissioners he envisions the agency as similar in makeup to the MPO. But its purpose, unlike the MPO, which focuses on transportation problems only, would cover all areas of county life.

Goss also aired his views on Summerlin Road and the danger of overdevelopment along the route that originally was designed as a speedy, limited access north-south alternative route to the beach.

He emphasized that the commission must decide what kind of growth it wants in the area and then plan for it.

Though Islanders are delighted with the presence of their former mayor on the County Commission even though it may be short lived, Cape Coral residents were not happy. As the largest voting bloc in the county Cape residents felt the seat should have gone to a resident of their city.

Power outage hits Islands

The lights were out on Sanibel and Captiva for 40 minutes last Wednesday night in the first major power outage of 1983.

The outage occurred when a lightning arrester exploded and put the Lee County Electric Cooperative's transmission station in North Fort Myers out of commission.

Jim Reed, the co-op's director of communications, said the power failure affected more than 17,000 customers on Sanibel and Captiva Islands, Pine Island, Cape Coral, parts of Burnt Store and North Fort Myers.

The outage began at 10.56 p.m. and power was restored at 11.32 p.m., Reed said.

Ensemble exercises students' imaginations

The Lyric Chamber Ensemble brought its collective musical talents to the Sanibel Elementary School last Thursday much to the delight of students and teachers alike.

The widely acclaimed musicians introduced each instrument to the students and played a series of classical works. After each piece, students were asked to draw on their imaginations and describe what they saw through the music.

"It sounded like a robber in a silent movie," one student said about Robert Schumann's Fantasy for Clarinet, Viola and Piano.

"It reminded me of a lady and a dragon, and a prince chasing the dragon away," said another.

Lenore Lams' piano finesse in Tchaikovsky's Variations was likened to the pitter patter of rain and the graceful flight of the hummingbird.

"It sounded like three big balls, and one little ball chasing it," said Rio Gralnick.

Violinist Elaine Skorodin told the group she began playing at age five, and clarinetist Marilyn Lauriente said that would make some of the students who have yet to take up an instrument already "over the hill," musically speaking.

The students' imaginations, however, proved in prime condition.

"It reminded me of a lady and a dragon, and a prince chasing the dragon away."

COMMENTARY

Howe lauds governor's choice for County Commission

A copy of the following letter to Gov. Bob Graham was given to The Islander for publication.

Dear Gov. Graham:

Your appointment of Porter Goss as a replacement to the Lee County Commission was a remarkable and appreciated display of statesmanship.

Despite the most undemocratic and knee-jerk reaction of a few unrepresentative "good ol' boy" types, you can be assured that the preponderance of concerned local citizens lauds your courageous action.

The enclosed copy of pages one and two of the local section of the Jan. 20 Fort Myers News-Press amply confirms your belief that Goss would "hit the ground running" in his efforts to put the county government's course on the winning lane. Regrettable to all of us locals, that course for too many years had been drifting toward the financial and moral pits.

You will probably be pleased to note from page two that a steering committee has started the ball rolling toward chartering the county. The enhanced tenor of the commission membership, which you have helped to wrought, promises that it will quickly form a charter commission of high caliber to produce the most modern and effective form of government for Lee County.

Thank you for the shot-in-the-arm that you have given us Lee Countians to restore our waning pride in working together to build Florida's fastest growing area into the jewel of Florida.

Commissioner Goss' reported proposal on page one for a new broadly-based Interagency Council will, indeed, help realize your high aspirations for our county.

Howe reconsiders amendment to proposed shelling ordinance

A copy of the following letter to the Sanibel City Council was given to The Islander for publication

Dear Councilmen,

My Dec. 30, 1982, memorandum on the live shelling ordinance proposed amending section 2 of the ordinance by inserting after the word "take" the words "or possess."

After meaningful discussions with seasoned members of the Sanibel-Captiva Shell Club, I have concluded that the word "possess" might seriously inhibit desirable research and study of live shells by students of the Sanibel Elementary School and others in higher schools as well as recognized malacologists specializing in Sanibel shells.

I recommend, therefore, that the word "possess" not be used. The word "taken" suffices.

Insofar as the word "transport" is concerned, I recommend that a modest licensing system be adopted to authorize the transport of live shells for such study purposes and for shells that have not been "taken" on Sanibel.

The city's Live Shelling Committee might be continued as a standing committee to provide recommendations to the city manager on applicants for live-shell transportation licenses.

My findings also support the desirability of an annual review by City Council of the need for amending or continuing the ordinance.

Council balks at paying for vegetation buffer on private property

The City Council faced a dilemma last Tuesday. The councilmen were in accord that they must live up to an agreement made with Stanley Johnson to exempt the new parking lot at the rear of the Priscilla Murphy Realty office on Causeway Road from vegetation buffering requirements.

The city had agreed to install the necessary buffers on the city's side of the north and south property line with each party contributing $500 to purchase the plantings.

The deal was negotiated as a condition of the city's purchase of property needed to connect two other city-owned parcels on Causeway Road.

But the council balked at paying for a 10-foot vegetation buffer at the front of the realty office on Johnson's land.

The Planning Commission insisted on the buffer to screen the complex from Causeway Road at the time it recommended council approval of the specific amendment excluding Johnson from the vegetation requirements.

Assistant City Manager Gary Price clouded the issue further last Tuesday when he revealed, "There is no way I can buffer even the two side property lines for $1,000." The project would cost closer to $5,000, he added.

City Manager Bernie Murphy said in any event he cannot ask Johnson to put up more money. "And I have a real problem in using taxpayers money to beautify private property," he said.

"We negotiated in good faith with Johnson and as a part of the deal made the concessions to plant the buffers on city land because there was no room on Johnson's side," Murphy said.

The council agreed to the compromise in order to finalize the purchase of the land at a very good price, he added.

Councilman Louise Johnson pointed out that the city has "a responsibility to abide by its own standards."

Some councilmen were puzzled why the vegetation buffer on Causeway Road was not required when Johnson's development permit for expansion of the Causeway office was approved several months ago.

Planner Ken Pfalzer said that roadside buffers are required only for new commercial construction or remodeling that classifies as a "substantial improvement." Priscilla Murphy's expansion was neither, he added.

The council "put off until tomorrow" looking for a solution to the dilemma. "This is only a first reading," Mayor Mike Klein said. "We have until March 1 to come up with an answer."

Public hearing scheduled for discussion of netting ban in Sanibel saltwater canals

A hearing to test public reaction to a proposal to prohibit netting saltwater fish in manmade saltwater canals on Sanibel has been set for the Feb. 1 City Council meeting.

The city has asked the state Legislature to prohibit netting saltwater fish in Sanibel's saltwater, manmade canals. The city has no control over private waters, but the Legislature does.

Fritz Holtz, newly elected chairman of the Committee of Neighborhood Associations, told the council last Tuesday that commercial fishermen using fixed nets were taking hundreds of fish from inland waters late at night and creating problems for Islanders who live on canals.

"After two such visits there are no fish left," a Shell Harbor resident confirmed.

Holtz said CONA's board of directors had voted to ask the City Council to petition state legislators to introduce legislation similar to a statute passed for Cape Coral that would make it unlawful for anyone to take any fish from manmade waters except by hook and line or no more than five crab traps.

Mayor Mike Klein feared that such a restriction would not be enforceable.

Councilman Louise Johnson said she hated to see the use of casting nets by individuals prohibited. Councilman Bill Hagerup agreed that is a form of sport fishing, but he labeled commercial netting "barbarous."

Although recognizing commercial netting on a big scale is a threat to the Island's fish population, the council was reluctant to take any action without hearing the "other side of the story."

"Commercial fishermen are an integral part of our community," Councilman Francis Bailey reminded his colleagues. The council agreed that input from the city's Marine Advisory Committee would be helpful.

City Manager Bernie Murphy suggested that members of the local legislative delegation should be contacted informally for their reaction.

Bowen was asked to draft a resolution the council could approve outlining a suggested state statute based on Cape Coral's law that could be presented to the delegation.

Historical Preservation Committee elects officers for 1983-84

The city's Historical Preservation Committee met on Jan. 21 for the election of new officers. Those elected include Evelyn Pearson, chairman; Paul Howe, vice chairman; and Mary Lee, record secretary. Jack Worth and Don Whitehead joined the committee as new members.

Other members of the committee include Charlotte White, Elinore Dormer, Anne Marsh, Francis Bailey and Betty Sears.

The Historical Preservation Committee meets on the last Friday of every month at 9 a.m. in the conference room at City Hall.

Request continued for Sanibel Isles subdivision home

A large delegation of Sanibel Isles residents who oppose the construction of a single-family home only 35 feet from the centerline of San Carlos Bay Drive did not object last Tuesday when the City Council continued the scheduled public hearing on the request to Feb. 15.

Attorney James Dvorin asked for the postponement. He represents Barry Young, who is seeking a specific amendment to permit the encroachment.

Dvorin told the council he needed more time to familiarize himself with the background of the case.

The Planning Commission recommended council denial of Young's request for a variance on Jan. 10.

Prospective builders receive ROGO allocation extensions

Two prospective home builders whose Rate of Growth allocations would have expired on Feb. 28 received extensions for their allocations last week. Feb. 28 is the deadline for obtaining building permits in the first triennium of the 1983 ROGO year.

Both J.H. Snyder and the Raymond Dorrays now have until June 30, the end of the next ROGO period, to begin construction of their homes.

Snyder, of Hanover Park, Ill., explained to the City Council that his wife's health problems delayed the completion of plans for their new home in the Rocks. "We had expected to be breaking ground by this time," he said.

Contractor Mark Comer, representing the Dorrays, said they needed an extension because final council action on their request for a setback variance on their property in Kearns subdivision is not scheduled until March 1.

Neighbors in the subdivision expressed strong objections to permitting the Dorry's home to encroach 15 feet into the setback from the centerline of Hurricane Lane at the first council hearing of the specific amendment last week.

A week earlier the Planning Commission recommended council denial of the request. The commissioners based their decision on the lack of conformity that would be created by siting the house at an angle on the small lot.

The adjacent property owners complained that the plans for the house that were presented to the council differed from the plans they originally opposed.

Comer admitted the house had been redesigned and is now sited 35 feet from the centerline of the road. Setbacks of existing homes range from 35 to 40 feet, he said.

"The degree of angling the house is very slight," Mayor Mike Klein pointed out. "Are you sure you really find it that objectionable?" he asked.

Council consensus was that a smaller house would solve the problem. Comer agreed to follow Councilman Louise Johnson's suggestion and get together with the neighbors and work things out before the second reading on March 1.

Deli owners, neighboring attorney appeal order to remove picnic table

Attorney James Dvorin, whose law office is next door to the Dr. Munchies deli in Punta Ybel shopping center, told the City Council last week he would be the first to complain if the deli were not operated "in a proper manner."

Dvorin appeared before the council with Ken Ziegler, a partner in the Dr. Munchies operation, to appeal Code Enforcement Officer Dick Baker's ruling that an outdoor picnic table violates the deli's "take out only" occupational license.

Baker said the table constitutes "on-premise restaurant seating."

Ziegler contended that "on-premise" is confined to the 1,200-foot space he leases in the Punta Ybel building. He added he had no intention of breaking city laws when he installed the table for the use of customers who were "sitting on the stoop" to eat food purchased in the deli.

He said he considered it "a public service to provide a place for the elderly to rest" and would like to at least provide benches for this purpose.

The picnic table has been removed, he said.

Dvorin showed snapshots of benches outside ice cream stores, a doughnut shop, near trash cans and at the Island Shopping Center.

"You can buy fried chicken at Bailey's store and sit down on a bench outside and eat it," he pointed out.

Councilman Francis Bailey said he had no objection to the installation of a couple of benches not to exceed six feet in length, but only Councilman Bill Hagerup supported the suggestion. Bailey's motion failed by a 2-2 vote with Councilman Fred Valtin absent.

Councilman Louise Johnson said the council had imposed the ban on on-premise eating in response to fears of residents of the neighborhood that the deli would "become a hang out for young people and a nuisance."

Mayor Mike Klein said Ziegler had previously agreed to the restriction and his actions were "flying in the face of the council."

Johnson withdrew her motion to deny the request for a table and-or benches outside the deli when Dvorin, foreseeing another deadlock, asked for a continuance until Feb. 1, when a full council will be present.

Meantime Dvorin said he hoped the council members will pay a visit to the deli to see for themselves.

Density increase approved to permit duplex project

H.L.U., Inc. received final council approval last week for an increase in density to pave the way for a 24-unit duplex project on a 4.5-acre tract on Periwinkle Way just east of the Burger Emporium.

The council agreed to double the density as an incentive for residential use of the 49-acre property that was zoned commercial until last February.

The specific amendment was approved last Tuesday by a 3-1 vote of the council with Councilman Louise Johnson dissenting. Councilman Fred Valtin was absent.

Though Johnson agreed with her colleagues that the conceptual plan for the project was good, she said 24 units were too many for the 4.5-acre area of the property that is developable. Twenty units would be more reasonable, she added, and would not set a precedent.

During the city's revision of the commercial element of the Comprehensive Land Use Plan last year the zoning on H.L.U.'s property was downgraded to residential in line with the city's goal to slow down commercial development on Periwinkle Way.

Attorney Beverly Myers, representing H.L.U., told the council her clients had agreed to dedicate to the city a 26-foot right-of-way along Periwinkle Way and in addition would plant a 20-foot vegetation buffer behind the new property line to screen the project from the road.

The 12 duplex structures will be sited 91 feet from the center line of Periwinkle Way, she said.

Myers said H.L.U. will submit a covenant that there will be no development of the approximately 45 acres of lowlands wetlands in the rear. The property will be preserved in its natural state either by a homeowners association or a non-profit conservation organization, she added.

H.L.U. will remove Brazilian peppers on the site using a chemical injection to kill the noxious plants, she said.

Council approves special use for Pirate Playhouse

After four months of deliberations and delays the City Council last week approved establishment of a Special Use District to provide for the continuance of the 19-year-old Pirate Playhouse as a community theatre.

By the council's action the front 50,000 square feet of the two-acre property on Periwinkle Way was rezoned from residential to special use to permit construction of a new 150-seat theater and a parking lot for 50 cars and retention of the original playhouse as a museum.

But the council agreed that if a development permit for this use is not applied for within three years the parcel will revert to residential uses only.

The present residential zoning will be retained on the 69,500 square feet of the property remaining at the rear and up to four dwelling units will be permitted.

Access to the residential area must be provided that is separate from the theater parking lot. Purdy Drive was ruled out as an access because its use is confined by deed restrictions to property owners in the Sanibel Lakes subdivision.

The theater can be used for "entertainment and cultural performances only with 10 percent of the operating time devoted to other than live performances."

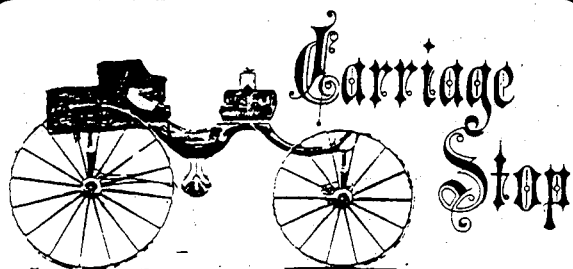

This restriction allayed council fears that the facility sometime in the future might be converted to a movie house but at the same time left the door open for showing occasional classic films or other non-live art forms of entertainment.

The Pirate Playhouse, one time the school for white children on the Island, was operated for almost 20 years by Philip and Ruth Hunter.

To insure continuance of the repertory theater featuring local talent after their retirement, the Hunters last September requested removal of the playhouse from its lawfully existing use category.

Council approves special use for Pirate Playhouse continued

New commercial regulations adopted by the city last February that prohibit expansion of these properties and rebuilding in the event they are 50 percent or more destroyed after Jan. 1, 1990, were viewed as a threat to the Hunters' dreams.

The original plan for the future use of the property included an enlarged theater, three special retail art studios and three single-family homes.

The Planning Commission could not support the commercial studios on residential land and turned down the Hunters' request but with the recommendation that the council continue to work toward a solution to the problem.

On Dec. 7 the council continued a second hearing of the request until the planning staff reviewed a revised plan that deleted the studios and asked for four single-family homes.

Philip Hunter died on Christmas Day, and his daughter Robin said this week that worry over the playhouse's future may have been a contributing factor in his fatal heart attack.

Last Tuesday Hunter's widow breathed a sigh of relief when the council voted 4-0 to approve the Special Use District designation for the playhouse property. Councilman Fred Valtin was absent.

"I'm glad its finally settled," the 81-year-old Ruth Hunter said after the meeting. "I couldn't take any more of it."

Her son-in-law, Eugene Karr, who appeared before the council with architect

Ray Fenton, said from "seven hours distance I can't see that the city rubber stamped anything or acted impulsively.

His mother-in-law was going back to Jacksonville with them for a "visit for a week or two," Karr said. "It's too soon for her to make long range plans," he added.

"Sanibel is Ruth's home," a long-time friend commented. "But because of vision problems she's afraid to stay alone."

ON THE WATER

By Captain Mike Fuery

One comment I often hear from first-time fishermen goes like this: "The water seems awfully dirty. Is it always like this?"

Florida seems to have the reputation of clear waters where you can see down a dozen feet or so. That is true on the lower southeastern coast, but the majority of the coastal waters around the state are of various colors and clarity.

The usual water condition is a kind of semi-clear water where you might be able to see a lure or bait say two feet below surface. This condition does not imply that our waters are contaminated that something else is wrong.

The same holds true with our Pine Island Sound and the adjoining Gulf of Mexico waters. Rarely do they ever clear up to where you can see the bottom other than right next to shore.

There are exceptions to this, and just so you don't run out of things to worry about while on the water, about the worst time to go fishing is when the water is what they call "gin clear."

I have rarely seen it fail. Get the wind just right, usually after it has blown gently out of the same direction for two or three days, and the waters will clear up considerably.

Only trouble is, the fish don't bite!

After observing this on several occasions and finding out through painful trial and error fishing, fish not only don't feed well, they even seem to leave that clear water area.

There are pockets of water south and west of Useppa Island and Cabbage Key where waters will clear with gentle winds from the northeast. This generally happens in a wind shadow of the islands. Often you can look down as the boat drifts and spot large shells or bottom features.

Why do the fish, particularly sea trout, stop biting if the water clears too much? I have to guess, but I suspect that it comes down to the presence (or lack) of baitfish.

I think when the waters clear too much visibility becomes very good for predatory fish. The baitfish know they can be found hiding in the grasses or around structures more easily. So they seek out more "normal" water where they are comfortable and have some degree of protection.

Just the opposite can be true, too. We notice that around the large passes such as Redfish, Captiva and Boca Grande, a murky, stirred-up incoming tide from the gulf will drive inside waters fish away.

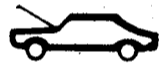

Too much turbulence suspends great amounts of sand in the water and makes it difficult for fish such as the popular sea trout to find food.

What is the ideal water condition? As you might have noticed, our normal water color is a kind of clear-coffee hue. This is from staining from mangrove trees that line the shore. It is as pure and clean as any around the state--it's just coffee colored. And that's just what the fish look for. You should, too.

If you find yourself fishing in water that is very clear or way too murky, keep moving until you get into stable conditions. This might mean a move down the shore or in the boat of a hundred yards. Sometimes in those clear waters found up around the northern islands, a mile run with the boat will be needed to locate stable water.

The best thing is that whether it's clear or cloudy, it probably won't be like that for very long. Wind and tide conditions will alleviate the condition, often in as little as six hours or the time of a normal tide change.

Good fishing this week. Keep warm and get to know your water conditions for the best "luck."

SHELLING TIPS

By Captain Mike Fuery

Have you ever walked the beach, picked up a curious shell you can't identify and made a mental note to check it as soon as you get home?

As you learn shells this will happen a great deal at first. But for a couple of years I've been saying to myself that I'll look up one particularly interesting specimen.

During the past couple of years I've called this one a bubble shell. Sometimes I call it a margin shell. And sometimes I just think, "Who cares what it's called? I'll take it anyway."

It took some looking, but the roundish, striped shell that only stands half an inch high at maturity is what I believe to be a coffee bean snail.

They have a coffee colored exterior shell with thin cream colored stripes around it. The trouble with these bean snail shells is that they look a great deal like a couple of others, particularly the margins and bubbles I've mentioned.

Actually, there might be two different kinds of these shells often lumped into a group of shells called salt marsh snails.

As with so many of the more interesting and valued shells found locally, I've never come upon a live coffee-bean snail. So you are welcomed to take all you can find, as long as they are dead. I find the best of the shells in the higher shell lines on the beaches.

Being round, they offer little resistance to wave land tidal action and, therefore, can reach way up on the beaches. Other shells, like Florida Fighting Conchs and so on are designed by nature not to roll or move. But roundish shells travel more at the whim of nature.

When you are looking for a half-inch shell, you need to get down on the shell lines and carefully search. Their color is not a stand-out as a golden horse conch might be, so be diligent.

There might even be a couple of types of salt marsh snails around our waters. Besides the coffee bean, there is a necklace snail. These are all the same size, incidentally.

While checking one of my reference books the other day I found that these snails are supposed to be a food source for wild ducks in some areas. We have a lot of wild ducks on our waters at this time of the year, but in the depth of water I see them, I doubt they are searching for snails.

Another thing I found interesting about these snails is that they have the ability to live out of water for some time. They also are active in natural state, being able to attach to and climb up wide blade sea grasses as they feed.

Getting back to the common bubble shell, the similarities are many in the living shells. There is one great difference, however, should you find that you have collected bubbles and coffee bean snails and can't tell which is which.

The bubble will have a lighter shell, and if you want to give it the final test you will find that without much pressure you can break a bubble between thumb and forefinger quite easily. Of course, too many tests like this will eliminate your supply of bubbles!

Good shelling this week and please remember the limit of only taking two live shells per species, per person. Watch for the outcome of the city of Sanibel's action on possibly stopping all live shelling with exception of a couple of species.

Capt. Mike Fuery offers daily shelling trips to North Captiva and Cayo Costa Islands. Call 472-3459 for information.

Senate committee approves eminent domain bill that applies to Cayo Costa, Upper Captiva

A bill to give the state Department of Natural Resources power to condemn and acquire environmentally endangered lands in Southwest Florida and three other Florida counties passed its first legislative hurdle late last week and appears to be heading for early consideration by the Florida State Senate.

The bill by State Sen. Frank Mann and State Sen. Pat Neal would allow the DNR to exercise eminent domain power to acquire land on Cayo Costa, Upper Captiva and Mound Key in Lee County; Rookery Bay and the Fakahatchee Strand in Collier County, and several other tracts around the state.

The Senate Natural Resources Committee voted to approve the eminent domain bill last week. The committee also adopted an amendment to add Josslyn Island in Lee County to the list of projects slated for eminent domain acquisition at the request of Mann.

Mann said that the bill is moving smoothly through the legislative process and added he has had several conversations with House leaders to smooth the way for passage on the House side of the legislative chambers also.

The House Natural Resources committee is expected to consider early an identical companion bill to Mann's legislation being sponsored by State Rep. Fred Burrall and State Rep. Keith Arnold.

Mann emphasized again that the legislative granting of eminent domain authority to DNR is only for acquisition of the specific parcels listed in the legislation and is not a broad delegation of this power to the department.

"The important thing to remember in this limited eminent domain bill is that we are not granting this power to some state bureaucracy with no controls, but rather the power to exercise eminent domain is limited to only those projects identified by the legislature," Mann said. "Thus the ultimate authority over the use of this power rests in the hands of elected officials responsive to the voters."

A similar measure passed the House during the last session of the state legislature but died without consideration by the Senate. The Senate passed the same measure during one of the special sessions of the legislature last year also, but that measure was unilaterally killed by then-House Speaker Ralph Haben when it came to that side of the legislature.

Legislative Delegation plans hearings

The Lee County Legislative Delegation will conduct public hearings on Tuesday, Feb. 15, for the purposes of taking public testimony on local legislation and other concerns.

The delegation includes Senators Frank Mann and Patrick Neal and State Representatives Keith Arnold, Fred Dudley, Vernon Peeples and Mary Ellen Hawkins.

ALCOHOL & STILL BIRTH

Even moderate drinking during pregnancy greatly increases the risk of stillbirth, report separate medical researchers in N.Y. and California. Pregnant women who drink even small, non-intoxicating amounts of alcohol twice or more each week, have about a 30% chance of aborting. As drinking more than 1 oz. of alcohol (1 can of beer, 1 glass of wine, or 1 small cocktail) more often than once a week can be so very toxic to the fetus, it is wise to avoid alcohol entirely during pregnancy.

Betty Lloyd

Age: 67

Height: 5'8"

Roots: Denver, Colorado

Pleasures: "I take great pleasure in not having to exercise at all. I also enjoy looking out windows and contemplating as I get older. And I enjoy smoking."

Last Books Read: The Collected Lyrics of Edna St. Vincent Millay and When Bad Things Happen To Good People by Rabbi Harold Kushner.

Mentor: Lucretius, the young philosopher-poet in the Augustan age who wrote De Rerum Natura; Margaret Meade; the Book of Ecclesiastes.

Wish: "That I can be kind and not hurt anyone's feelings. And that I not slip in the bathtub."

Words of Wisdom: "Men seldom make passes at girls who wear glasses."

Every young woman who has ever questioned her capabilities should take a lesson from Betty Lloyd. Young men could learn from the educated, liberated 67-year-old, too; her philosophy about learning and living applies across-the-board.

Betty's advice to young people is that they should get the best liberal arts education they can "to help sort out what is important to you, what you stand for."

Then, she says, "Pass on the marvelous information you learned to help better the human race." That's just what she has tried to do.

Encouraged and inspired by a mother and father who were both well educated and liberated even by today's standards, Betty never thought that as a woman she shouldn't have her own education, her own job, her own money and her own vacations. After all, her mother had all those things.

"I thought all children wore latch keys around their necks so they could get in the house after school," she laughs. "I didn't know any mothers were waiting at home after school."

A professor at the University of Denver, Betty's mother passed along to her only daughter a deep desire to learn. "She was most upset when I got married before I earned a master's degree," Betty remembers. "She thought that was a terrible waste."

Betty's marriage to Allen Lloyd, however, proved anything but a waste. The couple has always enjoyed "great intellectual sparring," Betty says, and they consider it a challenge every day to see who will come up with the most interesting information.

Their marriage came only after Betty graduated sixteenth in a class of more than 400 women at New York's Smith College and after she worked on her own in New York as a research assistant for an anthropologist at the Carnegie Institute.

Domesticity was all new to the young career woman, who confesses she "knew how to cook rice and thought I should buy a broom" as a bride. But she raised three children and "did the whole routine from PTA to Cub Scouts" before she went after a master's degree.

She was 40 years old when she started graduate school at the University of Cincinnati in teaching exceptional children with physical handicaps.

With master's degree in hand, Betty started teaching children who suffered from cerebral palsy, multiple sclerosis and other crippling diseases. Most of her students were black, and she went from house to house to teach them.

"I adored those children," she says. "But sometimes the black neighbors resented the white teacher, and I wasn't always very safe."

So she moved to Cincinnati's public schools and then to the area's prestigious private schools to teach Latin.

The Lloyds moved to Sanibel in 1975. They are active in several community concerns and are forever nurturing their love of reading and learning.

"We're not much interested in jewelry, cars or furnishings," she says. "But we've always been able to have good books and take nice trips."

Betty is convinced that she has been afforded no extraordinary opportunities in her lifetime. "I always worked for what I wanted," she says. "It's just through luck that I happen to be a woman to whom the Equal Rights Amendment does not apply."

All information in the following reports was taken directly from Sanibel Police Department records.

Police are continuing their investigation of a small red car that reportedly struck a fence and ran through some shrubs on Captiva early Saturday morning, Jan. 15. Two Captivans reported the incident, and one provided police with the license number of the suspect car, which is registered to a Cape Coral man.

A Periwinkle Trailer Park resident reported on Saturday, Jan. 15, that she had lost her silver ladies' Rolex watch while bicycling on Sanibel on Monday, Jan. 10. The watch was valued at $200.

A 55-year-old Shelbyville, Ind., man was arrested for indecent exposure after he was positively identified by five witnesses as the man who exposed himself to them on the beach near Santiva Cottages on Sunday afternoon, Jan. 16.

Although he denied the charges, John Yantis of 207 N. Washington St., Shelbyville, Ind., was charged after the beachgoers identified him.

Two Hunter ceiling fans valued at $150 were reported stolen from a car that was parked in a vacant lot on Periwinkle Way across from Captains Walk on Monday morning, Jan. 17.

The owner of the car told police car trouble forced him to leave his locked car in the lot the night before. The fans were in the back seat. When he returned the next day the passenger door had been pried open and the fans removed. The box for one of the fans was found nearby.

Police said the car door was badly damaged and might have to be replaced.

A Fort Myers woman reported she lost a $275 gold bracelet somewhere between her home and the Oyster Shell restaurant and Bank of the Islands on Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 18.

The owner of two dogs on Fitzhugh Street was advised of a Main Street neighbor's complaint about the dogs' barking on Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 18. The owner told police she would try to keep the dogs quiet.

Seven wrought iron chairs valued at $40 each were reported missing from the Court Yard restaurant at 2411 Periwinkle Way on Tuesday evening, Jan. 18. The chairs were taken sometime between Jan. 3 and Jan. 18. Police are continuing their investigation.

Dogs, photographic equipment lost as fire guts Seagrape Lane duplex

By David Meardon

Fire destroyed one side of a wooden duplex on Seagrape Lane last week, taking with it two dogs owned by winter residents Holger and Ann Stockholm.

The fire damaged much of Stockholm's photographic equipment and slides only three days after the wildlife photographer delivered a presentation at the Sanibel-Captiva Audubon Society's weekly meeting at the Sanibel Community Association hall.

The blaze broke around 6 p.m. on Sunday, Jan. 16, while the Stockholms were attending a dinner party on Captiva. Pressure inside the duplex was so great it blew out the front picture window. One fire engine and 16 firemen and volunteers responded to the scene after a neighbor noticed flames creeping up the roof.

A search for the two dogs, Reggie and Rose, proved futile as they had already died of smoke inhalation.

The cause of the fire is unknown; but fire officials believe it was accidental.

The Stockholms have moved into the other side of the duplex, which was untouched by the flames. Stockholm said the damaged house and camera equipment were insured, but said he and his wife were most distressed by the loss of their dogs.

Stockholm spoke of the sentimental value of what was lost. "You can replace the stuff but it still isn't the same," he said.

Optometrist takes the scare out of bifocals

Bifocals. Few words in the English language elicit such a response. To many people bifocals are a sign of old age. To others they symbolize the arrival of middle age, and to still others bifocals mean weak eyes.

But to everyone bifocals should symbolize the normal and natural changes that occur in the human body.

The word bifocals is given to a special kind of lens. "Bi" means two, and "focal" means to be clear at two different points. One wears bifocals to facilitate clear vision at two distances.

Unknown to some people who wear bifocals, the two distances can be any place they desire. Most, however, choose to see clearly at a far distance and close up. Trifocals give clear vision at three distances. And, yes, there are quadfocals to facilitate clear vision at four distances away from the wearer.

What is all this for? To see clearly, of course. From the moment you are born the lens inside your eye grows by adding layers of cells. Instead of losing cells in everyday life, as occurs with other body cells, however, eye cells grow more dense and compacted to accommodate the new cells. This makes the lens stiffen and toughen as time goes on.

When a person focuses on something small muscles inside the eye pull on the lens. The tension varies with the amount of focusing needed, which increases as objects get closer to the eye.

But as cells in the eye accumulate the lens does not bend as much as it used to. The muscles are not weakening; they simply cannot do their job as well. People react to this by either straining their eyes or by moving the object farther away.

Eventually, however, arms get too short -- and bifocals are prescribed. The top part of the bifocal lens is the distance lens; the bottom part is the close up lens.

As time goes on the eye lens gets less and less malleable, which is why the bottom of your bifocals will need stronger power. That explains why you need "new" glasses every few years.

By the time you reach 65, however, you will have lost almost all the ability to focus and your bifocals do it all for you. Changes from now on are mostly from other causes.

Almost everyone who wears them has some problems with bifocals. They are not ideal, and they take some getting used to. Small changes in your reading, watching and walking patterns will have to be made to accommodate bifocals.

Just remember -- it's all a part of being lucky enough to live a long and healthy life to the stage where you need bifocals.

LIBRARY REPORTS

Cosmopolitan World Atlas joins reference collection

By Mildred Chamberlin

What is the 1980 population of Sanibel? What is the largest city in Florida? Where are the following cities in the United States — Livonia, Downey, Shaker Heights, Monroeville, Berwyn?

What state was the first to enter the Union and when did it enter? What is the 1980 population of Durham, N.C., Poughkeepsie, N.Y., the state of Michigan?

Where are the following foreign cities — Killarney, Rotterdam, Karachi, Hokkaido, Nanking?

Do you know the population of the world? The largest country in population? The largest country in area?

All these questions and many more can be answered in a recent addition to the Reference Collection of the Sanibel Public Library, the Rand McNally Cosmopolitan World Atlas, New Census Edition, 1981.

Here is a remarkable selection of maps including general reference maps, individual states and Canadian provinces, environmental maps of the continents and United States, global views showing the earth as it might be seen from outer space, metropolitan area maps and United States travel maps.

A 100-page index to 82,000 places contributes to the usefulness of the book.

While Rand McNally has published atlases for many years, this edition has been revised and updated with 1980 census figures. It also contains a new feature called "Human Patterns and Imprints," which endeavors to show humanity's impact upon the land.

Crowded and empty areas of the earth are described; the distribution of settlements on the earth throughout the ages is explained; then the modern, contemporary use of the land is described. Our present energy crisis, our transportation systems, pollution, the high cost of progress and finally the artificial environment that has evolved are all discussed.

To summarize, we quote: "As we strive to create new patterns and imprints on the earth, we cannot tell if our evolving creation will result in a more attractive and productive world. We do know it will be different. We can hope that as we become more aware of our effect upon the environment, we will act more wisely in the future in order to live within the limits of our earth for the well-being of all humanity."

The article is profusely illustrated in color with photographs as well as maps and charts not only of United States but of the world. It is international in scope.

Although the Sanibel Public Library has several other atlases, this one is the newest and contains the 1980 census figures. Other atlases in the Reference Collection include the National Geographic Atlas of the World; U.S. Department of Interior National Atlas of U.S.A.; Rand McNally New International Atlas; Rand McNally Our Magnificent Earth; a Rand McNally atlas of Earth Resources; the Hammond Contemporary World Atlas; Global Atlas, a New View of the World from Space edited by Frank Debenham with an introduction by Bertrand Russell; Hammond Large Type World Atlas.

The Sanibel Public Library on Palm Ridge Road is open daily except Sunday from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. on Wednesday.

Fiddlers on the marsh

By George Campbell

Illustrated by Ann Winterbotham

Sanibel is populated by many kinds of crabs. Some are edible, such as the Stone Crabs and the Blue Crabs; some are hard to see, such as the Ghost Crabs, those sand-colored nighttime phantoms of the Gulf Beach; some are Hermits that utilize the empty shells of mollusks for protective homes rather than growing hard shells of their own.

Among our most interesting crabs are the 1- to 1½-inch long crabs of the genus Uca, commonly called Fiddlers for reasons that are immediately apparent upon examination.

These tiny denizens of beaches and mud flats are of several species, all equipped with two claws or chelipeds immediately forward of the four pairs of legs. In the females these claws are useful appendages for feeding. After all, females must feed efficiently in order to produce lots of eggs loaded with sufficient nutrients to feed the incubating babies.

In the males, one claw is of modest, useful size. The other claw, either left or right, is a great, cumbersome, inch-long, fearful looking pincer that is of no use in food gathering but is very useful for posturing, driving off rival males and attracting females.

This macho gesturing has a dual purpose -- war and love. As in most animals, the warding-off of competing males is largely ritualistic; real warfare and injuries seldom take place during male encounters. Occasionally two males will lock claws briefly and usually harmlessly.

But the same gestures that drive away males are used to attract females, though they are sometimes speeded up a bit once a female has been identified. Only females that are physiologically and reproductively ready will mate.

Let's assume our ludicrously gesticulating male has sent all rivals packing and has succeeded in attracting a ripe female. Love has conquered war. He will attempt to herd the already submissive female into his burrow and, once successful, he plugs the entrance and follows her down to a subterranean chamber where mating takes place.

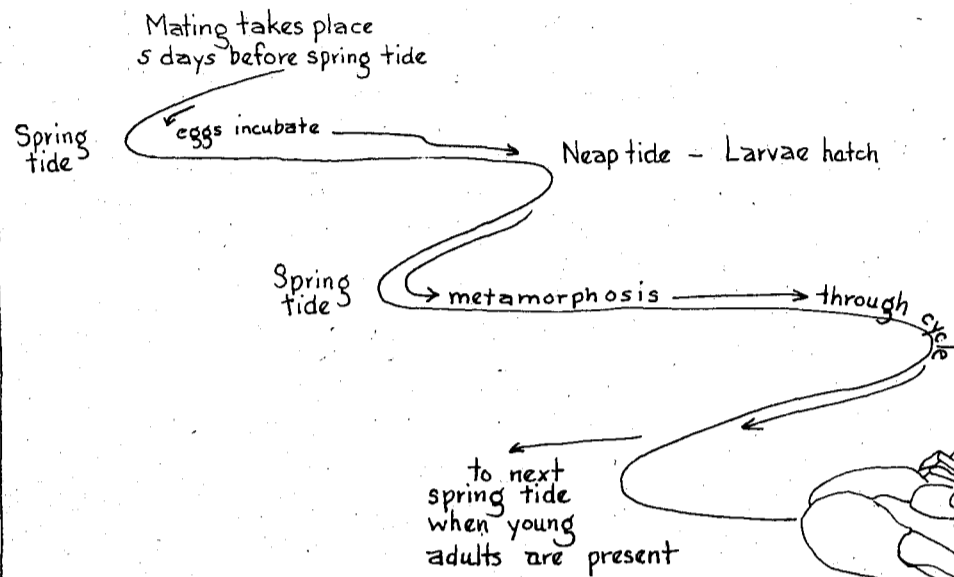

The female will remain in the burrow during incubation. The male, meanwhile, will emerge and start his fiddle-waving beside a newly dug burrow.

Strong, successful males may breed again and again, thus passing along to future generations strong and successful genes. Darwin, if he were here, would approve of all this.

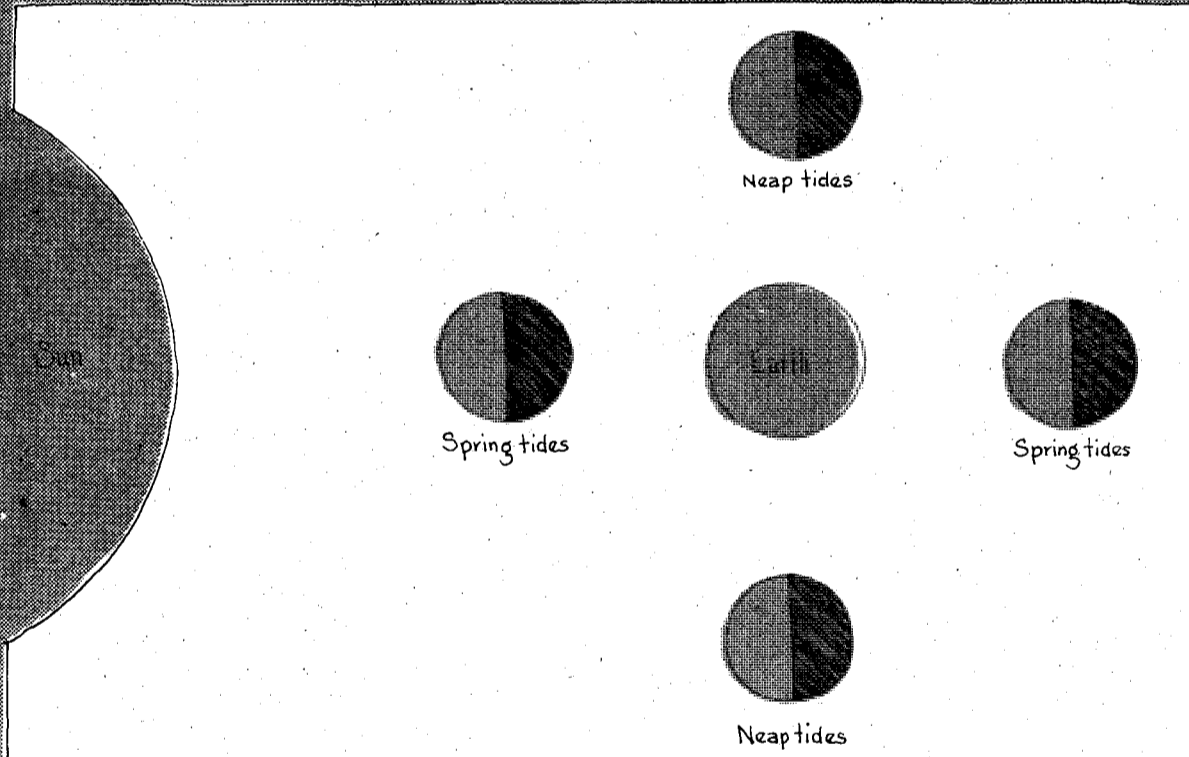

The burrows are dug by the males, who pelletize the sand or mud and carry it out to the entrance where it can be seen in little spoil mounds until washed away by the next tide. The pelletized spoil is rolled up to the entrance hole by the sideways-moving crab, employing, naturally, the legs on only one side of his body.

Crabs have adjusted their behavior to the tides. Normally, diurnal males wave their fiddles on low tides to drive off males or attract females only in daylight. But what if there is a good nighttime low tide during which reproductive activities should be taking place if the economics of life, energy and time are to be fully exploited?

With nightfall the males cease waving their fiddles and undertake a new activity to attract females and ward off competitors. They scrape their major, or fiddle, cheliped on the front edge of their shells and produce sound -- an attraction to females, but a warning to intruding males.

How Fiddlers on the Marsh Have Learned to Adjust to the Lunar Month (29.531 days)

The relationships of Sun, Earth, and Moon determine the times of the high spring tides and the low neap tides.

Thus these animals utilize to the best advantage reproductive opportunities in darkness as well as in daylight.

Fiddler females practice a kind of birth control. They have been observed refusing to mate until about five days before a spring tide is due. This way the larvae will hatch on the next neap tide and have sufficient time (about three weeks) to metamorphose through several instars, changing into the young adult form from the planktonic larval stages exactly at the time of the next spring tide. (See chart). Thus one lunar month plus about five days passes from mating to young adulthood.

In other ways, too, Fiddler Crabs adjust to the tides, enabling the young adult to be on the right estuarine territory to start a new generation cycle. The larvae migrate upstream near the water's surface on flood tides, thus riding into the estuary on a rising tide. In order to stay there, they then move toward the bottom where the out-going current is slower on falling tides.

As a result, when they finally become young adults, they are more likely to find themselves well up in an estuarine situation.

I have been having some trouble figuring out how this process works. But not wishing to be out-smarted by a crab, I persisted and reduced the process to the simple explanation above, ably illustrated by Ann Winterbotham's accompanying charts.

Fiddler Crabs mob (zoologists call it "drove"). Huge mobs appear, the males waving aloft their fiddle batons. They may mob to find food more efficiently, or perhaps they seek more suitable habitat after a major disturbance such as a storm.

Mobbing is not well understood, but this social function is beautiful to watch. On a warm day on many small beaches of the J.N. "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge one can see, at low tide, huge armies of Fiddler Crabs migrating first in one direction then, on disturbance, reversing in unison.

A skilled choreographer could develop a charming Crab Ballet. (Apres-midi d'un Crabe'?) Maybe Nureyev would come and perform it on our beach.

But if you are a snowbird, you probably won't see such a ballet, for most of the Fiddlers are hibernating this time of year. In any case, you should come some summer and see the true Sanibel. For Sanibel really comes alive in the summertime!

'Wildlife hot spots' take center stage as Audubon society winter program series continues

Nature photographer Lee Canfield has focused on 14 of the nation's "wildlife hot spots" for his color slide presentation-lecture at the Sanibel Community Association hall this Thursday evening.

Canfield's program is the fifth in the winter series presented by the Sanibel-Captiva Audubon Society. Capacity audiences have greeted each of the first four programs, society President Bud Ryckman reports.

Canfield, who usually spends the winter on Sanibel, now resides in Wilmington, N.C., and has recently concentrated his photographic efforts on the water birds of the Cape Hatteras area as well as those of Sanibel.

The "hot spots" depicted in his local lecture will include Big Bend National Park, Texas Rio Grande, Arkansas Sanctuary, Saguaro country, Madiera Canyon, Organ Pipe Park, Grand Canyon, the Tetons, Yellowstone Park, Banff-Jasper in Canada, the Buckeye country and the Maine wilderness in addition to the Carolina coast and Sanibel.

The season's lecture and slide show programs are held at 8 p.m. each Thursday evening through March 31 at the Sanibel Community Association. The final presentation will be a "slide surprise" show combining carefully selected nature photographs taken on Sanibel and Captiva by members and friends of the society.

The schedule of programs follows:

Jan. 27 -- Lee Canfield -- "Nature Trail Number 6" -- Birds, animals, scenes and wildflowers from coast to coast.

Feb. 10 -- Drs. Lorus and Margery Milne -- "Butterflies and Other Fascinating Insects of Florida."

Feb. 17 -- Aileen Lotz -- "Trip to Antarctica" -- Penguins, albatross and other birds found only in the land at the bottom of the world, Falkland Islands and Antarctica.

Feb. 24 -- Alvah Sanborn -- "Sea Bird Islands" -- Slides and motion picture on Bonaventure and Machias Seal in quest of the great Gannet colony and the Puffins.

March 10 -- Victor Emanuel -- "Birds of Peru" -- The world's most diverse avifauna with slides and tape recordings of bird songs.

March 17 -- Dr. Herbert Kale -- "Avian Research and Conservation in Florida" -- By the director of ornithological research of the Florida Audubon Society.

March 24 -- Steve Phillips -- "Reptiles and Amphibians on

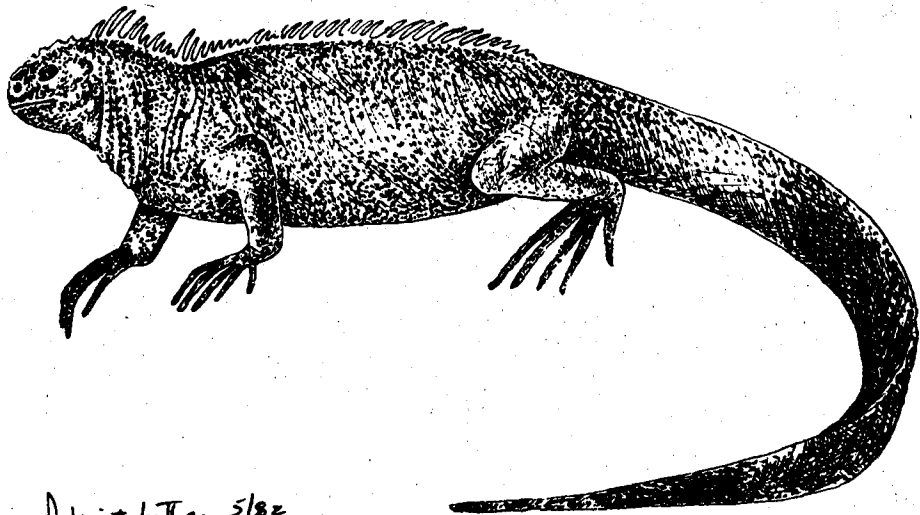

Lee Canfield

Sanibel" -- By the manager of the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation.

March 31 -- "Audubon Slide Surprise" -- Watch local papers. Brief business meeting.

GALAPAGOS ISLANDS

A. Wintershian 5/82

with George Campbell

Due to unforeseen circumstances, several openings are available on the April 15-27 Galapagos Islands expedition.

This is without doubt the very best Natural History Field Trip to the Galapagos Islands because:

1. We visit a maximum number of sites, four more than on my first trip 5 years ago.
2. We now have the capability of searching out wild populations of Galpagos Giant Tortoises.
3. A very small group of only 15 people is accommodated.
4. The 104 foot yacht Isabela is very comfortable and the cuisine excellent.
5. The time is best from the point of view of cool equatorial temperatures, currents and calm seas.
6. Cost is modest compared to more pretigious names or undesireably large vessels; often overcrowded with 50 to 70 passengers, making conditions for animal viewing much less desirable while costing much more.
7. Experience counts. This will be George Campbell's sixth annual expedition.

If interested, please write Box 685, Sanibel, Fl. 33957.

Live Shelling Committee discusses Shell Club survey

By George Campbell

The city's Live Shelling Committee met on Friday, Jan. 21, in a special session as requested by the City Council in response to a survey recently conducted by the Sanibel-Captiva Shell Club.

The agenda was limited to a review with Shell Club representatives of the results of the club's survey regarding the proposed ordinance that would ban live shelling on Sanibel.

Seven members of the Live Shelling Committee joined committee Chairman Dr. K.C. Emerson for the meeting with eleven members of the public. Shell Club President Art Ford and Alice Anders, chairman of the club's ad hoc committee to study the proposed ordinance, represented that organization.

Each of the more than 10 issues raised in the survey questionnaire was addressed in detail. Everyone at the meeting was given repeated opportunities to address each issue.

Of much interest was the issue of taking and possessing live shells for educational and scientific purposes. The committee will recommend to the City Council that a permitting procedure similar to the vegetation permitting procedure be enacted for this purpose.

The committee adjourned without setting a date for its next meeting.

Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation Research Committee starts fourth year

By George Campbell

The initial meeting of the SCCF Research Committee took place on Jan. 15, 1980, under the leadership of Dr. Kenneth Preston and during the tenure of Dr. William Webb as foundation chairman.

As SCCF chairman, Webb was instrumental in establishing several committees, including the Publications and Environmental committees. One of the most significant committees, however, was the Research Committee.

Five members attended the first meeting of the Research Committee with the chairman. Eleven members attended the most recent meeting of the committee at the home on Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Rhinesmith on Jan. 14, 1983.

In the three years since its formation the committee has grown substantially and has undertaken a number of projects and studies, including those on barn owls, osprey nesting structures, composting using soldier flies and beach renourishment employing "natural" erosion control and sand accumulation structures.

Perhaps the most significant Research Committee project, however, deals with

Refuge sets winter programs

The program schedule for the 1983 winter season at the J.N. "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge has been set, acting refuge Manager Bob Ziobro said last week.

In order to help the more than 160,000 visitors who normally tour the refuge between February and April understand what the refuge does to manage wildlife, the following programs will be given from Tuesday, Feb. 1, through Saturday, April

Orientation slide program -- At 9 a.m., 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays at the Visitor Contact Station auditorium.

Wildlife talks -- At 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. on Wednesdays and Saturdays at the observation tower on Wildlife Drive. At 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. on Fridays at the boardwalk on Wildlife Drive. Subjects will vary.

No sign-ups are required for either program. The five-mile Wildlife Drive, walking trails and the two canoe trails on the refuge are open to the public seven days a week from sunrise to sunset. Wildlife observation is best at sunrise, sunset and at low tides.

The Visitor Center Contact Station off Sanibel-Captiva Road is open from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Anyone with questions is encouraged to visit the center or call 472-1100.

Research Committee starts fourth year from page 3B

water -- its quality, management and preservation in aquatic habitats.

Rhinesmith advises a volunteer team on sampling and testing water samples for many water quality factors such as acidity, alkalinity, sulfites, carbon dioxide, dissolved oxygen, calcium, total solids and salinity.

The city of Sanibel and the SCCF jointly support this important project. Automatic digital titrators that are both very accurate and easy to operate have been acquired to aid the study. Reagent cartridges for different tests are simply inserted in this equipment and the results are accurately and quickly shown on liquid crystal displays.

There are almost three dozen sampling sites at various points on Sanibel's waterways. The study group has been responsive to special water problem situations, but they are not equipped to respond to every fish kill or waterway odor problem.

The base line data being accumulated will provide answers to many of Sanibel's habitat deterioration questions.

Dee Slinkard was invited to suggest projects from her perspective as manager of the SCCF Native Plant Nursery. She chose to highlight certain plant species of special interest and potential to the native plant industry: Leather Fern (Acrostichum danaeae-folium); Myrsine (Rapanea guianensis); and its close relative, Marlberry (Ardisia escallonioides).

Slinkard also cited Joewood (Jaquinia keyensis) and Coontie (Zamia floridana) as being of much interest. Because of its slow growth, Joewood would hardly ever become an important plant in the industry. But Coontie could well become so.

Coontie is a member of the cycad group related to the conifers in spite of its somewhat "palm-like" appearance.

SCCF Manager Steve Phillips said the widespread planting of Coontie would possibly enable a dependent endangered butterfly species that feeds on Coontie leaves to populate Sanibel if it were reintroduced.

The species of primary interest to Slinkard among those listed was the Leather Fern. She said she hopes data can be accumulated relating to culture techniques, growth rates and growth periods and whether the plant should start from spores or gametophytes.

Slinkard explained that in the Leather Fern there is an alternation of generations. Guidance from an expert in fern culture will be sought, and the name of Penny Rogers was mentioned.

Preston sought the committee opinion on the live shelling issue so he could report to the SCCF Board of Directors. Other foundation committees has also been asked to address the live shelling issue.

After considerable discussion the Research Committee reached the consensus to support the pending ordinance that would ban live shelling on Sanibel except for whelks, clams and oysters.

The control of harvesting whelks, clams and oysters is preempted by the state of Florida. The state does not provide any definitions beyond the designations cited above.

Preston will carry the committee's recommendation to the next SCCF board meeting, which will take place before the ordinance goes to the City Council for final action.

The next meeting of the Research Committee will be held at 2 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 11.

'Eagle Lady' returns to Island for encore

By David Meardon

As part of the ongoing celebration of the 200th anniversary of the bald eagle as the nation's symbol, "Eagle Lady" Doris Mager will lead an encore eight-mile walk through the J.N. "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge on Saturday, Feb. 5.

Young and old alike are invited to participate in the walk or to sponsor walkers on a per mile basis. Last June 20 walkers on Sanibel braved a searing sun and biting insects to raise more than $400, which benefitted the Florida Conservation Foundation's raptor research and education program, which Mager heads. She led similar walks in 15 Florida communities last summer, covering 200 kilometers.

Mager has spent much of her life working to improve the plight of raptors. Over the past 20 years she has rehabilitated hundreds of birds of prey, including 45 eagles.

In 1979 Mager garnered national attention by staging a "nest sit-in," spending seven days and six nights in an abandoned eagle's nest in an effort to draw attention to the plight of the bald eagle.

Mager will bring a bald eagle to Sanibel and plans to show it to elementary school students the day before the walk and to walkers at the end of the eight-mile trek.

Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation Manager Steve Phillips says he hopes to double participation and pledges this year.

The first 50 finishers in the walk will earn a signed bald eagle print donated by artist Lew Phillips. The top pledge-getter will receive a framed Florida bald eagle print, a limited edition signed by artist Richard Younger and valued at over $200. Second and third prizes are a bicentennial eagle print by artist Guy Coheleach.

Registration for the eagle walk starts at 7 a.m. at the Ding Darling Visitor Center on Feb. 5. The walk will begin at 8 a.m. The entry fee is $1, and each walker will receive a bald eagle guardian pin and identification card. There will be checkpoints and refreshments at each mile.

Mager will lead the walk through the refuge and back to the Visitor Center via the bike path on San-Cap Road.

In addition to Mager and other walkers who participate, pledgers will have an opportunity to sponsor the following Sanibel "celebrity" walkers who have already signed up for the event: Holly Davies, Bill Hagerup, Louise Johnson, Mike Klein, Charles LeBuff, Dick Noon, Steve Phillips, Mark "Bird" Westall and George Weymouth. For more information, contact Phillips, 472-2329.

The eagle walk on Sanibel is sponsored by the Sanibel-Captiva Audubon Society, SCCF and The International Osprey Foundation.

Copies of this signed print by artist Lew Phillips will be awarded to the first 50 finishers in the Eagle Walk.

Sculptor works with humor, practicality

Just when you think you've seen every type of metal sculpture possible, Fort Myers artist Lee Wallace can expand your horizons.

A serious metal sculptor for more than 20 years, Wallace is a humorous but practical man whose personal qualities find their way into each sculpture he creates. His works are on exhibit on Sanibel this winter exclusively at the Rooftop Gallery in the Sea Horse Shops plaza.

Pink plastic flamingos have nothing on Wallace's lifelike copper birds and animals, whose bills are often closing fast on a carefully formed pinfish or pecking hard at an insect-filled piece of driftwood.

The driftwood is real, too. Wallace says he collects it everywhere he goes, even on the shores of Lake Michigan when he visits Ann Arbor to participate in that city's highly respected Artists and Craftsmen Guild Fair. A former steering committee member for the fair that is sponsored by the University of Michigan, Wallace has displayed his works widely and has also been a part of the renowned Gold Coast Fair.

Commission work is his specialty, and since he covers all his pieces with a fine coat of polyurethane, his creations are in great demand as outdoor ornaments.

One piece he remembers with a special fondness was of an eagle with a 34-inch wingspan. But Wallace is happy to try his hand at other natural subjects such as palm trees, fishes and flowers.

His studio is outfitted for just about everything under the sun, says the sculptor, whose inventive nature finds an outlet adapting and creating new tools specifically for his work. "I have 18 different hammers, for example," he says.

Islanders who are looking for that perfect lawn decoration may find just what they want from Wallace. The artist will make personal appearances at the Rooftop Gallery on Tuesdays throughout the winter season to explain his work and take commission orders. For more information call the gallery, 472-1858.

Super Supper Show, symphony top calendar

The casting call has been made for the Islands' Fourth Annual Super Supper Show coming up on Saturday, April 16.

Auditions will be held this Thursday and Friday, Jan. 27 and 28, at 7:30 p.m. at the Sundial. This year's show promises to be even more exciting than its predecessors. If you can act, sing, dance, play an instrument, wear a funny hat and tell jokes, work back stage, cook or if you have any special talent, be at the Sundial this Thursday or Friday.

The fourth subscription concert of the Southwest Florida Symphony Orchestra will be presented this Saturday, Jan. 29, at Cape Coral High School. Feature soloist mezzo-soprano Beverly Wolff perform excerpts from Carmen; La Favorita, Orpheus and Samson and Delilia.

The concert program also includes Emmanuel Chabrier's Joyeuse Marche, Delibes' Coppelia and Rimsky-Korsakov's Capriccio Espagnole.

Wolff is continually engaged by the leading opera companies, orchestras and music festivals here and abroad. A versatile artist, she has achieved a reputation as much for her association with contemporary music as for her skill in the standard repertoire.

She has created leading roles in world premieres or works by Bernstein, Menotti and Moore and has sung and recorded works by Rorem and appeared in concerts with him.

Tickets for Wolff's Jan. 29 performance with the Southwest Florida Symphony Orchestra are $8, $6 and $4 in advance and $8, $7 and $5 at the door. Student tickets are half price. For more information call the symphony box office, 334-3256.

Selections from the works of James Thurber's reports, stories and fables will be portrayed by William Windom at the Fort Myers Exhibition Hall on Saturday, Jan. 29.

The charm, wit and truth of Thurber's work was expressed for years through his cartoons in The New Yorker magazine. He was also known for his humorous short stories and essays.

Windom became interested in Thurber when he portrayed him in the Emmy Award-winning television show,

Lions hear about leader dogs

By D.E. Cooperrider

The regular meeting of the Sanibel-Captiva Lions Club was held at the Sanibel Community Association hall on Jan. 19. The program was about the Leader Dog School that trains canines for the visually handicapped.

Plans were made for January activities including a Ladies Night at the Naples Dog Track, a trip to the Lions Camp and an Island golf match at the Dunes.

The Jan. 18 Bloodmobile drive netted 18 pints of blood for the Lions bank, nine for the Rotary and seven for the Kiwanis. A total of 43 people offered blood, but several were not accepted for various medical reasons.

The trip to the camp under the direction of Lion Dan Baker will deliver numerous articles of value donated by Lions members for the use of camp personnel and clients.

The Ladies Night at the dog track will be Jan. 26 with a bus load leaving the Chamber of Commerce at 5:30 p.m. The golf match will be held on Jan. 29 at the Dunes with a shotgun start at 8:30 a.m.

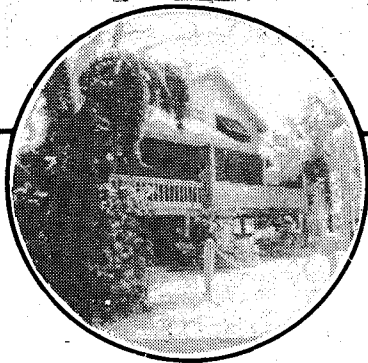

Bill Arthur, Lions state chairman for leader dogs, reported an excellent program on the activities of the leader school in Michigan. A total of 308 dogs were trained and released to legally blind clients in 1982, he said.

Four of the 308 leader dogs were sent to Florida, and the area hopes to receive more dogs for the blind in 1983. Florida has received 15 dogs over the years and is fifth in donations in the school.

There is no charge to the client for the leader dogs, even though it costs $6,500 to train each dog. The training expense is covered by Lions Clubs all over the United States. Anyone who desires more information about lead dogs should contact the local Lions Club.

The next regular meeting of the Sanibel-Captiva Lions Club will be held at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday evening, Feb. 2, at the Sanibel Community Association hall.

Baptists move services to community association, start new church on Captiva

Sanibel's First Baptist Church Sunday services will be held in the Sanibel Community Association hall beginning this Sunday, Jan. 30, to accommodate crowds of winter churchgoers.

Sunday and Wednesday evening services will remain at the church facility on San-Cap Road just past the Sanibel Elementary School.

Pastor Jamie Stilson said the church building on Sanibel-Captiva Road cannot hold the more than 300 participants he expects to have for Sunday services once the season is in full swing.

"We're already having more than 200 each Sunday," he said. "Our church can only hold 225." The community association hall can hold 400 people, and Stilson expects a full house come February and March.

Stilson also announced plans for a new church on Captiva that will be ministered by Pastor David Hope, Stilson's associate in the Sanibel church.

The Captiva Christian Fellowship, a mission of the Sanibel church, will hold its first service on Sunday, Feb.

6, at the Captiva Community Center.

A core group of fellowship founders have been meeting in various Captiva homes on the past several Friday evenings in preparation for the first service at the community center. The fellowship, Stilson said, is in response to the need for a full-time ministry on Captiva for that Island's residents and for resort employees and guests.

A pastoring class will be held before the regular Sunday service at the community center. Those who attend the Captiva service are invited to attend the Sunday and Wednesday evening services on Sanibel.

First Baptist Church Sunday school classes at the Sanibel Community Association hall will begin at 9:45 a.m. Sunday, followed by regular worship at 11 a.m. Evening services at the church on San-Cap Road begin at 7 p.m. on Sunday and Wednesday. The nursery is available during all services.

Pastoring classes at the Captiva Christian Fellowship will begin at 8 a.m. Sunday, Feb. 6, at the Captiva Community Center. Worship services will follow at 8:45 a.m.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

Artists, gardeners, readers, eaters gear up for library arts and crafts fair

Approximately 50 artists and craftsmen will participate in the 12th Annual Sanibel Library Arts and Crafts Fair on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 4 and 5, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Sanibel Community Association hall.

But that's not all. The fair will also boast a plant sale, galley for the hungry, bake sale, books, books, books, magazines and the raffle on Saturday, Feb. 5.

Amateur craftsmen can donate any hand-crafted item to be sold at the fair. Donations will be appreciated, and proceeds will go to the Sanibel Library. Call Betty Parke, 472-2946, for details.

Sanibel anglers plan open house

Sanibel members of the South West Anglers Club will host their annual open house for anglers and boaters at the Sanibel Community Building on Wednesday evening, Jan. 26.

Capt. Duke Sells, fishing guide out of Tween Waters Marina, will be the guest speaker.

Many items of new and used fishing, boating and household articles have been donated for auction or raffle during the program that will benefit the club's Special Projects Fund, which provides charter fishing trips for handicapped citizens of Lee County and contributions to organizations working to preserve the state's fishery resources.

Doors will open at 7 p.m. For more information call 472-2685.

Sanibel-Captiva Shell Club plans shell count revival for Jan. 28

The revival of the shell count sponsored by the Sanibel-Captiva Shell Club will take place this Friday, Jan. 28. All residents and visitors on the Islands are invited to participate in the count. The last count was taken in 1967.

The date for this year's count was chosen carefully to coincide with the extra low tide that will be at 7:21 a.m. on Friday. Last week's notice of the count incorrectly reported the count would take place on Saturday. Please make note of the correction and plan to take part in the count this Friday, Jan. 28.

It is important that as many people as possible participate so results can be compared with previous counts. Those who choose to count in the dark or by the moonlight can start anytime after midnight Thursday. The counting period will end at 10 a.m. Friday, Jan. 28.

Shellers should bring their finds to the Sanibel Community Association hall between 9 and 11 a.m. Friday for tallying and identification. The authoritative guide for identification is A Field Guide To Shells by Percy Morris.

Counters should collect one shell of each species they find. Broken shells will be counted. Take note of where each shell is found. Each participant in the count will receive a wallet-sized certificate. Coffee and doughnuts will be served at the community association hall while shells are tallied.

Common Visions presents poetry on Captiva

Common Visions, a group for the arts, will present an evening of poetry by Island artists on Monday, Feb. 14, at 7:30 p.m. at the Captiva Community Center.

Admission and refreshments are free. Please contribute your work by calling Terri or Tori, 472-4373, before Monday, Feb. 7.

Another welcome contribution are bits of fine old lace and rare fabric pieces that a group of talented needle-workers has made into charming boudoir pillows. The sale of the pillows and all other ABC items will benefit the Captiva Civic Association and Captiva Memorial Library.

All offerings are happily received. Call Lyle and Donna Jackson, 472-6609, or Bob and Jean Snider, 472-5232, for information about donating items from your attic, basement or closet.

ISLANDER SPORTS

Island sports quiz

Congratulations to Tom Mosca and Walt Cieslenski, who knew that curling originated in Scotland for the correct answer to last week's Islander Sports Quiz.

Now try this tennis teaser: Who won the Virginia Slims Tennis Championship in 1976? Here's a hint -- it was either Chris Evert, Rosemary Casals or Evonne Goolagong.

If you think you know the answer, call The Islander, 472-5185. If you're right we'll print your name in next week's paper. Good luck!

Islander picks

Islander Picks ended last week with the AFC and NFC championships. Our faithful participant Dick Traucht picked both winners in the Miami-New York and Washington-Dallas games and is considered the expert picker for the Super Bowl coming up this Sunday. Traucht picks the home team, Miami, for this week's big game.

The Islander thanks all the football fans who played Islander Picks every week and would welcome suggestions for another sports picks game you would like to see now that football is over. Call us at 472-5185 with your suggestions.

Shopping

Sanibel is a veritable shopper's paradise. Tasteful boutiques and casual island shops join forces to present visitors with everything and anything a vacation shopper could hope for.

At the Lighthouse (Eastern) end of the island, Punta Ybel Plaza and the Sea Horse Shops are right across the street from one another, providing a variety of products that can cure your sweet tooth or tickle your shell finder's fancy. Need a good haircut or coiffure? You can get in either of these shopping centers.

Most businesses open at 10 a.m. and close at 5:30 p.m. This holds true for many island stores, although some are open evenings during the winter season.

Tall Australian Pines shade Periwinkle Way and the shopper travels west along this main thoroughfare. This stretch of road is truly a shopper's paradise! It's all here -- the fast and not-so-fast eating spots, casual and elegant boutiques, hand-wrought jewelry, craft designs, shell shops and balms for health product fanatics.

Watch to your right and left as you drive or cycle along. Photographic supplies, bait and tackle, deli foods, fresh seafood and baked goods, knick-knacks and what-nots can all be found along the drive to the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road. Along the way, shopping centers such as the Heart of the Islands, Periwinkle Place and Tahitian Gardens offer a variety of island delights.

Palm Ridge Road, the Periwinkle Way turn-off to Captiva, offers several shopping centers featuring everything from imports to gift shops for the discriminating shopper, plants and shells, a sandwich shop, ice cream parlors, pizza parlor, boutique shop and the Island Apothecary pharmacy.

At the Tarpon Bay-Periwinkle Way intersection, the Island Shopping Center features the island's only supermarket and movie house.

A left on Tarpon Bay Road takes the visitor past Sanibel's original schoolhouse, which now holds original island watercolors and woodcuts.

Then on to West Gulf Drive and westward to an interesting little artisan shop and gallery.

At the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road, you may choose instead to turn right and follow the signs to the Tarpon Bay marina, where you will find a cluster of quaint shops overlooking the back bay. Some antiques, shells and shellcrafts, what-nots and clever clothes can be found here, as well as a great seafood sandwich and soft drinks.

The spectacular ride to Captiva, with its lush foliage and enchanting view of the Gulf, is well worth a day's outing. Talented artists display their works in one roadside shop, while others feature some nifty gifts for Grandma to take home to little hands as a pleasant hodge-podge of remembrances from these barrier islands.

Whether for shopping or merely browsing, island shops offer a surprising variety from one-of-a-kind collectibles for the discerning shopper to postcards for the simple souvenir hunter. And of course, for all, shells -- shell jewelry, shell lamps, just plain shells -- the most beautiful shells in the world from the most beautiful shelling beaches in the world.

The city's resolution limiting the taking of live shells to two live shells per species per person is one to be scrupulously obeyed. As a matter of fact, in order to preserve Sanibel's beautiful shelling beaches, most collectors refuse to take any live shells whatsoever.

FISH Friends in Service Here

Neighboring help for Islanders in need of transportation, regular phone checks and assorted non-emergency neighborhood services. Call 472-0404, 24 hours a day.

WARNING! SAFEGUARD YOUR VALUABLES

In order to protect your valuable possessions from theft, it is recommended that you take them to a bank or hotel vault for safekeeping. Do NOT leave them in your room or car.

DOGGY DO'S AND DON'TS

If you are visiting Sanibel with the family Fido in tow, all the better. All family members can enjoy Southwest Florida sun and surf.
 The Chamber of Commerce can tell you what accommodations are available for families with pets.

Remember: Wherever you are, clean up after your pet! "Leave nothing on the beach but footprints" applies to dogs, too.
 There's no leash law on Sanibel, but of course an excitable or unruly animal is better off when controlled with a leash.

CAMPING, BEACH FIRES

Camping on the beach is prohibited, as are open beach fires.
 An exemption to the beach fire ordinance is a fire in an approved cooking container (not to exceed 48x24x12 inches deep) with an extruded metal grill for non-commercial food preparation. This type of container will be allowed on the beach without a permit.

 After you have had your beach party, please assume the responsibility for cleaning up any debris or litter in your area.

FISHING

While no license is required for saltwater fishing, fishing in freshwater ponds or the Sanibel River requires a Florida fishing license.
 Licenses are available at Bailey's General Store on Periwinkle Way. The fee is $6.50 for residents and $10.50 for non-residents.
Minimum Legal Lengths
 Blue Fish 10 inches

Flounder	11 inches
Grouper	12 inches
Mackerel	12 inches
Mullet	12 inches
Pompano	10 inches
Red Fish	12 inches
Snook	18 inches
Trout	12 inches

Snook fishing is outlawed from June 30-Aug. 1.

GATORS

Feeding alligators anywhere within the Sanibel city limits is not only illegal, but can be extremely dangerous.
 Alligators can run up to 45 mph, so if you are close enough to feed an alligator, he is close enough to bite you. An alligator fed for fun loses his natural fear of humans and becomes a potential threat to children and pets.
 Dogs should never be permitted to run free on Sanibel.

Fence them, walk them on a leash or, if you must free your dog for a walk, keep him under voice control. Never tie your dog in an unfenced back yard.
 For help with a nuisance alligator, call the following representatives of the Southwest Florida Alligator Association. They are licensed and have permits to legally handle gators: George Campbell, 472-2825; Steve Phillips, 472-2329; Mark Westall, 472-5128.

SPEED LIMITS

There is very good reason for the varying speed limits (20-30 mph) along the Causeway. The slower speeds preserve the bridge supports from strain and stress.
 This speed limit is strictly enforced with radar on a 24-hour basis by both the Sanibel Police Department and the Lee County Sheriff's Department.
