

Big Group of Oakland Motor Car Dealers in All Day Session in Summit Today

New Model Being Described and Demonstrated by Factory Representatives Previous to Public Showing—Nearly 300 Men Here from Northern New Jersey

Nearly three hundred local dealers of the Oakland Motor Car Company practically for the entire State of New Jersey and particularly for all towns north of Trenton, met in Summit today with headquarters in the Y. M. C. A. The meeting was in charge of W. B. Sawyer, general sales manager of the Oakland Motor Car Co.

There were two hundred and seventy-six men present. They went into session this morning at 9:30 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium. In addition to Mr. Sawyer, there were technical engineers who went over in detail the new features of the 1930 model cars manufactured by the Oakland Motor Car Company, with all the dealers and their service managers. Movies were shown, and stereopticon views of the mechanism of these cars were pictured. After luncheon was served at the Y. M. C. A., the entire dealer organization was shown the various models of these cars and demonstrations were given on the various hills located adjacent to Summit.

In addition to representatives from the Oakland Motor Car Company, at Pontiac, Michigan, T. W. Cannon, Zone Manager of the Oakland Motor Car Company for the State of New Jersey, and his organization was present and helped with the introduction of the cars to the dealers. For bill work the cars are being tested on Springfield avenue and Overlook road. The new model cars are designed by the same engineer who designed the Pontiac car.

This big gathering has been brought to Summit by the combined efforts of Harry P. Taylor of the H. F. Taylor Motor Co., the Business Men's Association, and the Rotary Club. The new cars which are to be given the first public showing at the New York show in January, were tuned up yesterday at the garage of the H. F. Taylor Motor Co.

Cars purchased by the United States War Department are subjected to most thorough examinations and exacting tests. The selection, therefore, by the Government of 112 Oakland All-American 4-Door Sedans is a testimonial that should be aggressively used by every salesman. The 112 cars are to be used by U. S. Army Units in 26 states and Hawaii, Philippine Islands, and the Panama Canal Zone.

New Factory Device Recalls Technique of Bill Hart Who Killed 'Em One-Handed

The diet technician of Bill Hart who casually rolled a cigarette with one hand in his western film thrillers, is duplicated at the Oakland-Pontiac factories by a new machine which rolls flat ribbons of steel to perfect tubes and seals them with the fiery tongue of an electric current.

The machine which cost something over $60,000, according to factory representatives, "rolls its own" with such startling rapidity that it can produce the entire supply of tubing needed for exhaust pipes on both the Oakland and Pontiac Sixes. The flat steel stock feeds in a huge reel into one end of the machine and emerges from the other end as a continuous stream of nearly three-quarters of an inch per hour. The diameter of the finished tubing is accurate to five one-thousandths of an inch.

"Big Annie" Has 600,000 Pounds Squeezing Power. Now comes to vie in popularity with the kitchenette, pantalette, cigarette and many other electric bric-a-brac. The story back of this new "ette" is principally one of squeezing, that is, industrially speaking.

"Big Annie" does the squeezing, according to the factory representatives. She is located out in the main foundry of the Oakland Motor Car Company, Pontiac, Mich. "Big Annie" simply puts 600,000 pounds square-inch pressure on cast iron borings and the result is bric-a-brac. Little three and four inches in diameter, three and four inches high, eight pounds in weight and possessing 70 per cent. of the density of solid iron.

The loose iron borings are valueless until compressed by "Big Annie's" powerful arm because they would merely flare up and disappear in smoke if subjected to the intense melting heat generated at the Oakland-Pontiac foundry. The bric-a-brac, however, can be melted in exactly the same manner as scrap or pig iron.

The Prince David Chapter of the Daughters of the British Empire wish to thank their many friends who helped make their bridge party and Christmas sale a success. And to announce that the doll was won by Mrs. Dulmage of Roselle.

A Nash coupe owned by Richard Decker, of 145 Summit avenue, was stolen Sunday evening from the Baturov Country Club. It was recovered yesterday morning by the Paterson police.

Champion Sack Sewer. Palouse, Wash.—Fred Weller, champion sack sewer, won his title by sewing five in one minute and thirty-five seconds for the full period of one hour.

Reeve; vice-president, Conrad Bain; secretary, Thomas F. White; treasurer, James B. Eakley; steward, James Funcheon; representatives to Firemen's Relief Association, W. A. Reeve, William Bender and J. W. Clitt; trustee, James B. Eakley.

Senior Class Play Well Received

"Capt. Applejack" Proves Good Evening's Entertainment at High School Last Friday Night. Directed By M. S. Temple

Romance and adventure may be found at home. This fact was proven on Friday evening at the senior class play, "Captain Applejack," when Charles Clark, the young hero who appeared as Ambrose Applejohn, decided that he would sell the family homestead and find adventure and romance in traveling. His aunt, and her ward, Poppy Fair, are greatly distressed to hear this as it is obvious that Poppy has just more than a passing fancy for Ambrose. That is, it is obvious to everyone except Ambrose himself.

When a ring of crooks discover that an old pirate's treasure is hidden in the old homestead things begin to happen, and Ambrose gets more than his share of excitement. Clark makes a great hero, but some very fine acting is also done by Anna Bloss, who takes the part of Mary Valeka, the famous Russian dancer. She comes to the Applejohn home late at night with a wild man being pursued by Ivan Borolsky, a famous Bolshevik spy, who is seeking to recover some valuable jewels.

Madame Valeka tells Ambrose that she is trying to get the jewels to the owner, a Russian countess who was her patron before the revolution. Ambrose, and even the audience, is fooled until late at night she is discovered prying about the house. Ambrose, however, continues to trust her until she tries to steal the valuable parchment, giving the location of the treasure, out of his coat and he then discovers that she is in league with a band of crooks.

In fact, there are two bands of crooks. They started working against each other at first but on thinking the matter over Borolsky, who is the arch villain, decides that it will be better to combine forces with Mr. and Mrs. Pengard, who are "respectable" crooks seeking the treasure. Everett Goulard plays the part of Borolsky very well, scaring the wits out of poor Ambrose.

A Pirate Rehearsal. The second act is aboard a pirate ship, and is really Ambrose Applejohn, the famous pirate, and his crew. The pirate captain, Captain Applejack, divides the spoils with his crew, the crew mutinies, but Captain Applejack subdues them "by letting fate decide." They cut the cards to see who will get both the treasure, and a woman who has been captured by the captain's mate, who is none other than our old friend, Borolsky. Perhaps in some other life, centuries ago, Applejack and Borolsky also met and matched wits against each other. But Captain Applejack has no fear of any of the "scum" and out the cards fearlessly.

It is a two out of three draw and Borolsky, on the pirate ship, wins the first, but the Captain wins the next two draws with aces. After the mutineers depart the Captain opens his palm and a flock of aces drop out. Fate decided that the Captain couldn't lose, as he had the winning cards all of the time.

The pirates look especially blood-thirsty, and actually break down a door by their rough tactics. It is a very realistic scene and one is amazed to hear the Spanish language. Main until Poppy rudely awakens Ambrose by bringing him his tea. The blood of the Applejohns still runs through Ambrose's veins, however, and at times during the remainder of the play he breaks into some of the phrases used by his famous ancestor, much to the delight of the audience.

The crooks come back and try to get the treasure also immediately after Ambrose and Poppy had discovered it behind a secret panel. The parchment giving the location of the treasure in Ambrosia's possession, and Borolsky tries his best to get it but Ambrose shows Poppy that he is no coward, "letting fate decide," by giving them a "pony" spy. This is irritating and Borolsky is about to shoot when the telephone rings.

Play Well Acted. Ambrose answers the phone and gives everyone the impression that the police are on the way. The crooks make a hasty exit and everything ends very happily with Ambrose telling Poppy that he likes her more than a little. Poppy, however, is puzzled that the phone could ring with the wits-out-and-demands to know how this is possible. Ambrose exhibits an alarm clock that was resting close by and makes it ring, remarking that he had "all aces." The players took their parts as (Continued on Page Two)

Won't You Add the Hospital to Your List?

Just eight days more before Christmas! And already there is a tense feeling of preparation in the air. Everybody is bustling in and out of stores intent upon their Christmas list, but still a great many of those everybody's have not yet thought to send to the committee (Mrs. Charles Petrie, treasurer, 121 Summit Avenue) of the Women's Auxiliary of Overlook that little remembrance for the Nurses' Christmas.

Each year, for many seasons past, this organization has most successfully undertaken a Christmas celebration for the nurses and employees, an event which has increased in size and expense space with the growth of the hospital. Every year the Auxiliary has been most generously supported by Summit and out-lying communities, citizens of which have, many of them, found the hospital a most convenient haven in distress, and those in charge of its operation most kind and helpful in their ministrations. For these "ex-patients" a little gift will be by way of an appreciation, and for the fortunate ones who, so far, have not needed hospital care, such a gift will be also by way of an appreciation of what these workers have done for others.

Summit folk, please do not fall down on the job this year. It is only one more week in which the committee can prepare. These women need and ask for your generous and timely support. Won't everybody just add "nurses' Christmas" to those Christmas lists? And having added, attend to that item as briskly as possible by sending or giving their contribution to either Mrs. Petrie, as before stated, or to any of the following committee members, Mrs. Lawrence Kitching, Mrs. Roger Jones, or Mrs. Allen Underhill.

Treat yourself to that happy feeling one gets at Christmas time, when the little each one does makes up such a glorious whole for a fine cause, the Christmas gifts for the nurses and employees of our splendid Overlook Hospital.

District Scout Officers Elected

Charles H. Beek Succeeds Eddie as Chairman—Headrick Retires as Local Field Executive. Meeting Last Night. The Summit Boy Scout District Committee of the Watchung Council last night held its annual election of officers and Scoutmasters of the local troops met for a discussion of scout affairs.

Charles H. Beek, principal of the Junior High School, was chosen as chairman of the District Committee to take the place of J. G. Eddie, who declined re-election after serving for two years. Other officers of the committee chosen were the following: vice-chairman, D. C. Washington; district commissioner, A. C. Bernard; Court of Honor, Oliver B. Morrill; finance, William M. Bradshaw; camping, J. J. McNulta; organization, William C. Moog; leadership, J. B. Dougall; publicity, Lloyd J. Trethewey; civic service, Harry Fackner; reading, Walter W. Brennan; health and safety, Fletcher Thompson; rally, Ralph H. Wagner; district vice-president of the Watchung Council, J. J. McNulta.

John G. Voegtlin, who declined the office of treasurer for another year, agreed to continue in the office until the committee should choose his successor. It was decided to make L. C. MacDonough, who is assistant to Myron Geddes, Scout Executive of the Council, the local field executive. He will spend one day a week in Summit. It was felt that this arrangement would be wise in view of the fact that the district helps to pay his salary. He will take the place of Luke B. Headrick, local field executive, who has worked manfully during the past year. Mr. Headrick said last night that he would like to become Scoutmaster of some troop again, a position he held before he was made local field executive.

New Telephone Directories Delivered

The new telephone directory in a new winter coat, has been sent to all homes and offices here that have telephones. N. L. Gullifer, manager, announced today for the New Jersey Bell Telephone Company. Delivery was completed in this area on December 7th and anyone who ought to have received a copy, and didn't, can do so by calling the company's business office.

The new coat is a dressy affair, by comparison at least, and makes the directory considerably more presentable. Everything on the front cover and binding is dispensed with that isn't essential to the fact that it is the telephone directory.

Lighter paper has been used this time so that despite forty-nine more pages to accommodate 20,000 more listings, the directory is less bulky than before. Many names have been shifted to new places in the new book to make the listing order conform to the latest methods of standard library practice and assist in locating any number that is wanted quickly.

Christmas Goods in Profusion in Summit Stores. Never before has Summit displayed such an attractive line of merchandise for the Christmas shopper. A visit through the shops and stores reveals a fine discrimination on the part of the buyers, who have achieved wonders in selecting holiday gift goods that take the eye. The average citizen, making the rounds, like this reporter, will find hundreds of items which he would be delighted to own, and more delighted to acquire as a gift.

Choosing Gifts for Sportsmen

Give a Man Something He Can Use Instead of a Cut Glass Fly Swatter or an Empty Hip Flask. Range, 5c to $2,000. If the Man of the House, or for that matter any other member of the family, male or female, happens to be an angler, hunter, golfer, or plain, ordinary lover of the outdoors who does not require any such excuse as angling, hunting or golfing to get him out under the open sky, it is or ought to be easy, for the other members of the household to choose for said gentleman a Christmas gift or a whole flock of Christmas gifts that will be a real joy to the recipient and which will make just a mere dent in the pocketbook of the giver, or, if desired, will flatten said pocketbook beyond recognition. The range of price runs all the way from a 5c box of split shot to a $2,000 shot gun.

Of course when one chooses anything in the line of fishing tackle, hunting tools or golfing implements to be given as Christmas gifts one has to use a certain amount of discretion and is not well informed as to what will in sport account for the friendly dealer who is acquainted with the person who is to receive the plunder, so that something suitable and really acceptable may be secured.

Must Buy Right. Suppose for instance, your husband, sweetheart, dad or brother being a real dyed-in-the-wool angler, you go into a tackle store and for a dollar buy him an "outfit" consisting of a "fish pole," reel, line and three hooks, and on the joyous Yuletide present it to him all dolled up with silver paper, glorified twine and ornamental stickers. The look on his face when he opens that package will be worthy of being recorded for the movies and what he says under his breath will be nobody's business.

One is reminded of that story of the young wife who stopped at the tobacco store to buy hubby a pipe for Christmas. The dealer happened to know the lady's spouse and showed her a fine pipe that he thought would please the man—but the price was $6. She was perfectly willing to spend six dollars, but it seemed a lot of money for a mere pipe. She was shown pipes for 50 cents that looked just about the same. She looked them all over carefully, thought about it awhile and then said:

"Well, now, I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll take a dozen of those 50-cent ones and then George can have a fresh pipe every few days!" A certain practice obtains in some quarters of giving as a Christmas gift an article which the giver himself covets so that later he may borrow the article for his own use.

The Jewish Christmas shopper may figure that if he can persuade mom to let him give dad a fine shotgun for Christmas, very likely dad when tactfully apprised of the actual negotiations that preceded the purchase of the gun—may cheerfully loan it to the budding minor of the family.

Large Range to Choose From. All joking aside, wouldn't it be a lot more fun to give the man some article pertaining to his outdoor hobby, which he will appreciate and use with joy, than to hand him on Christmas morn one of those monotonous consisting of a stand with shaving mirror and brush and places for soap and blades and bay rum or what have you—a misfit that cannot be placed in any suitable light for shaving and which no particular housewife will tolerate standing around in sight for more than a day or two; or for that matter any one of those hundreds of nondescript and perfectly useless objects with which the homes are cluttered at the present time and which will land on the attic shelf or in the ash can where they belong within a very few days after Christmas.

For the Angler. If the man is a trout angler he will be delighted with a pair of hip boots, which will cost around six to ten dollars, or a pair of waders at twenty-five.

A new willow creel would not be amiss. Neither would a leather coat, suede leather jacket or a canvas fishing coat, while two or three pairs of heavy wool socks are always welcome. A fine leather fly book or tackle book would tickle him to death, while a few dozen choice flies, some new lines and leaders, or perhaps a fine reel, would never be amiss.

Rotarians Hear Charles S. Merton

Former District Governor Talks on Vocational Service—Praise Club's Fellowship Activities. Large Number of Visitors. Charles S. Merton, head of the hat manufacturing company of his name in Rutherford, and past district governor of the 34th Rotary District, was the speaker yesterday at the weekly meeting of the Summit Rotary Club. His talk was on vocational service and he emphasized the value of honesty in business.

Incidentally, on his last visit to Summit as district governor, in 1924, Mr. Merton inducted Eugene C. Pierson into membership in the club. Mr. Pierson, who is recovering from illness at his home, was unable to be present yesterday. Members recall that Mr. Pierson was the first chairman of the local club's fellowship committee to build the fellowship of the club to its present standard. During the present year the organization has entertained nearly 650 visitors, an average of more than a dozen at each meeting, it was announced yesterday, after a letter was received from Rotary headquarters in Chicago commending the organization on its fellowship and acknowledging a letter from District Governor Cordie J. Culp, who recently paid his official visit here and reported to headquarters in glowing terms on the quality of fellowship displayed.

Day Resigns From Board of Health

Louis deV. Day has submitted to Mayor George D. Cornish his resignation from the Board of Health, to take effect at the end of the year. Presumably of business was given as the reason. This will necessitate four appointments to be made to that body at the beginning of the year. The terms of two of the members, G. Harry Cullis and William J. Carey, expire at the end of this year. Dr. Cadwell E. Keeney, President of the board, resigned a few weeks ago, after 13 years service in the board, his resignation taking effect also at the end of the year. It was known that he had wished to retire last year and that he consented to serve another year with the express condition that it should be his last.

Police Chief Warns on Magazine Agent

A warning was given by Chief of Police John P. Murphy last night, after he had received a phone call from a woman in Summit whose name he did not disclose but who said that a magazine agent had solicited subscriptions at her house equipped with a letter of recommendation purporting to be from Chief Murphy. No such letter had been given the man by him, Chief Murphy said. The woman who called said she had subscribed to a number of magazines and had given a check in first payment on them. Police immediately went to the bank on which the check was drawn, but the check had already been cashed. Chief Murphy called the woman and the man had claimed to be a man named Greenberger, who had given the same name as had been given the man by him, Chief Murphy said.

Suspended Sentence on Delivering Advertising

Police Justice Williams in Police Court this morning suspended sentence on G. C. Greenberger, of Morristown, who was alleged to have delivered advertising matter in Summit contrary to the provisions of the recently-enacted ordinance forbidding such delivery without a license. Mr. Greenberger admitted he had delivered advertising matter but said he was unaware that there was any such ordinance.

Story of Coddington's Roses' Trip to London Where High Prizes Were Won

In an interesting letter to Lyman B. Coddington, of Murray Hill, C. G. Englemann, governing director of C. Englemann, Ltd., carnation growers in England, gave the details of the transportation to England of roses owned by Mr. Coddington, which were given awards of merit by the Royal Horticultural Society, Mr. Englemann, who is a friend of Mr. Coddington, crossed on the same ship as the roses, and took responsibility for their safe keeping. His letter, in so far as it deals with the roses, follows:

November 27th, 1929.
Mr. L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, N. J.
Dear Mr. Coddington: I must tell you the story of your roses. Mr. Henshaw delivered them safely on board of S.S. "Transylvania." I don't know in what language he talked with the steward, but I think it was the language of the almighty dollar. At any rate the steward was most obliging, and we had no difficulty whatever in the boxes placed into the cool room at once. Here they were left undisturbed until the following Sunday morning. We were then nearing Scotland and had to get our luggage on deck ready for disembarkation. Originally we intended to land at Liverpool, but as there were only 32 passengers booked for that port the captain decided to go direct to Glasgow, and pay the Liverpool passengers about $10 each, which would pay their railroad tickets, etc., from Glasgow to Liverpool. Well, this meant delay for the roses and ourselves, but could not be helped. Worse was to follow. Our steward informed us that the boxes of roses had been taken out of the cool room, labeled and placed with the rest of the luggage. This information was worth $2 to him. When we arrived in the Clyde the tide was low and we had to be taken by tender to Greenock, and from there by rail to Glasgow.

Custom officials examination at Greenock. Now imagine my disappointment when I discovered that only two of your boxes were among the luggage, and of course the box of flowers was missing, evidently still peacefully sleeping among the cabbage, grapefruit, apples, etc., in cool storage on S.S. "Transylvania" miles out on the high seas. All I could do was to tell the luggage master what I thought of the steward, and not even that effectively as there were too many ladies around. He promised to have the boxes sent straight to me to Saffron Walden next morning when he got back to the ship. The custom official was a real swell of a fellow, he did not open one single box, bag, grip or trunk of our sixteen various pieces. I thought there goes our hope of showing the roses at Tuesday's show. We took the night express to London and arrived there at 7:30 a. m. I had sent a wireless message home on Saturday and my nephew, Charlie, met us with a car at Euston station. We managed to pack all our goods inside and on the carrier, but there was no room left for me and as I wanted to go to my Covent Garden store anyway, I left them to go home without me, went to Covent Garden where I found everything in good shape except business which was in bad shape. I did not rely too much on the luggage master's promises, and wired to the chief steward to send the boxes that were left, to my London store. It was fortunate. This gentleman evidently acted at once for the missing two boxes arrived at the store on Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock. Within two minutes Arthur Day, who is the boss of the store, had the boxes open, found the blooms O.K. and telephoned me, asking what to do. As luck would have it I happened to be at the office at the other end of the wire just then. I told him to rush off to the Royal Horticultural Society's Hall, put the flowers up, and try and get an award of merit. No time was to be lost, for the committee met from 11 o'clock to 12. He reached the Hall at Vincent Square about 11:30, filled out the necessary papers, I had told him the names, etc., over the phone, and by 12 o'clock, within one hour of reaching London, we had an award of merit for "President Hoover," and "The Queen." Now if any of you quick stepping Americans can beat that for speed, well, I'll hand it to him. I may add that the award of merit of the Royal Horticultural Society means something in Horticulture. The awards are not to be had for the mere asking—and you may be sure I am pleased with the result of the experiment.

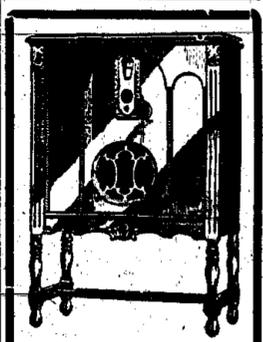

Yours sincerely,
C. ENGELMANN.

Twenty to forty dollars will keep a man sweet for months, while a new oilskin suit will be a great delight. For the Hunter. The first thing a hunter thinks about is his gun and shotgun may be had at any price up to $2,000. A fine gun—good enough for any mortal man—may be had at fifty to seventy-five dollars. For the Golfer. If the madam is a golf widow, though sad her plight, she must make the best of it and one way to do that is to get the duffer a dozen golf balls (find out his favorite brand), or a few pairs of wool stockings, a new pair of shoes, a awater, suede leather jacket—or, best of all, give him an order on the dealer for a new set of clubs—any set desired up to three hundred dollars. And remember, these suggestions are just as applicable to the outdoors woman as they are to the outdoor man.

Bobby Fulton's Puppets Enchant Audience

The story of "Cinderella," with its mingled elements of pathos, humor, and romance, enacted by Bobby Fulton's diminutive puppets, in the auditorium of the Franklin School yesterday afternoon, for the benefit of the P. T. A. activities fund, gave keen delight to a large audience of juveniles augmented by many adults of the type who never can "grow up."

Summit always enjoys Bobby Fulton and his little actors and knows well their charming performances of "Jack the Giant Killer," "Robinson Crusoe," and "The Three Bears"; but this was Cinderella's first appearance in our midst, and most captivating we found her. The stage settings of the tiny theater are very effective. Of the four—the kitchen, the garden, the ante-room of the palace, and the drawing room in Cinderella's home—perhaps the garden is the loveliest. The fairy tale element is greatly enhanced by clever lighting effects and the costumes are beautiful.

The transformation of the pumpkin to a golden coach is fairly breath-taking, and Cinderella's flight at the stroke of twelve most dramatic. Features causing much merriment are: the dancing duet of the flunkies in the palace scene, and the agonized squeals of the sisters as the glass slipper is being fitted.

Much of the dramatic effect in a puppet show is dependent upon the voices of the stage and these were unusually sympathetic. The result was that Cinderella, the prince, the fairy godmother, and the naughty step-mother were so realistic that the youthful audience jumped with joy whenever the song sounded to announce another act.

May the gentle Cinderella have as long and successful a run as her blood-curdling predecessor "Jack the Giant Killer."

Knights Lose To Newark Roamers For Fourth Straight Defeat

Gaskell And Hall On All-State Teams — Coaches Pick Union County Teams

Summit Players Selected on All-County Teams—Some Peculiar Variations

Gaskell on First Team and Hall on Second—A Reversal of All-State Selections—Coaches Meet in Summit at Cornog's Home

By BILL LUCAS

Nate Hall, star Summit tackle, appears on the official all-state class B team picked by Gus Falzer, field secretary of the New Jersey State Inter-scholastic Athletic Association, in the Newark Sunday Call. Jimmie Gaskell, the Galloping Ghost from Millington, appears on the second team, and our friend Tom Conrad, the only Roselle Park player to be placed on any one of the three class B teams, is given a position alongside of Jimmie.

On Friday evening the Union County League coaches got together at the home of Cornog and made their all-county selections after considerable debating back and forth. Here the process was reversed, Gaskell appearing on the first team, as he rightly should, but Hall being relegated to the second team. This makes things look rather "phony" somewhere, as a hunk who is selected for all-state honors should certainly merit greater recognition in his own county.

Falzer also made an all-county selection, which included both class A and B teams, and gave Gaskell and Hall first team berths. But after all is said and done all-star selections are only a matter of personal opinion and your idea on that subject may be as good as the next person's. The all-state first team class B backfield is composed of Hessler, of Burlington; Medwick, of Carteret; Pearce, of Dover; and Hart, of Hackensack.

All-county selections. Seven Roselle Park players were honored by places on either the first or second team picked by the Union County League coaches. Rahway grabbed six places, Linden four, Westfield three, and Roselle one. Cranford and Union had no representatives as they are not members of the league. The number of Linden players is surprisingly large, especially in the case of Linden. When other selections have been made Ted Cooper's men have not fared so well, but certainly came into more than their share of honors on Friday night.

Scott of Westfield, was adjudged the best end in the county and Englishman, of Rahway, and Kline, of Roselle Park, were tied. Rather than make an award by the flipping of a coin it was decided to place both men on the first team. Fleishman, of Linden, and Buckner, of Roselle Park, are placed at tackle, and English, of Linden, and Hoss, of Rahway, at guard. Quinn, the crack Roselle Park center, is placed in the center of the line.

The all-county class B team has a crack backfield in Woods, Gaskell, Conrad and Givens. The second team backfield also shapes up well with Waring, of Westfield; Givens, of Roselle Park; Hawkins, of Westfield; and Seidel, of Rahway, carrying the ball. All members of the all-county team will receive gold medals, but a new system has been put into effect. The player will not receive this medal until he graduates, as this is expected to encourage athletes to remain in school. The sport in which the medal was won will be engraved on the back. Those who are graduating this year will receive their medals in the spring. Those placed on the all-state teams will receive gold footballs, so Gaskell and Hall will be rewarded both ways.

Captain Dave Shawyer and Paul Tapperson were both given honorable mention as outstanding players in the all-state group. Dave was greatly underrated this year, as he is not a flashy player. But his three, four, and five yards at a clip helped to keep Summit on top in many games.

Early December Coasting in Summit — The First in Several Years

CAPT. VAN.

December began in a fashion to delight every boy and girl. The Board of Recreation was quick to seize the opportunity. The usual coasting streets were barred for several hours each day and evening and men placed at the crossroads to prevent accidents. Here we see a coasting procession on Elm Street Hill and up at the Mountain avenue crossing Tommy Colarusso is acting as emergency traffic man. Rather a cold job for Tommy.

If You Want the Fun of Coasting You Must Walk Up the Hill

CAPT. VAN.

Youthful climbers on the Elm street coasting hill. The crossing at Mountain avenue was protected by a watchman, in this case Tommy Colarusso. Knowing this fact, many parents brought the children in autos and then left them to enjoy themselves. In other communities coasting accidents were reported—but Summit makes fine provision for the children.

Nearly a Week of Skating Thus Early in the Season

CAPT. VAN.

Only by much scraping and special care on the part of the park attendants was the skating pond at Summit avenue and the Turpike kept in such excellent condition. The older folks enjoyed it as well as the children and there were large crowds each evening and on the cold Sunday.

Here we see the crew busy in the morning getting ready for the skaters.

S. S. Meet Off—New Court Schedules

The Sunday School swimming meet, scheduled for Saturday night, was called off due to lack of sufficient entries. Only the Presbyterians and Methodists entered, and the rules provided that at least four Sunday Schools must enter to make it an official meet. At a meeting of the board of governors last night it was decided to postpone this event indefinitely. There was, however, much interest shown in the basketball leagues, and schedules are now being drawn up for the junior and senior leagues. Six teams will be entered in each league. The junior loop will get underway on New Year's Day, and the senior circuit on the Saturday after New Year's. The complete schedule will appear in Friday's edition of the HERALD.

"Y" Has First Home Game Tomorrow

The Summit "Y" courtiers open their home season tomorrow night, meeting the Watessing Young Men's Club. The seconds will engage in a preliminary game with the Watessing scrubs. Coach Best put his charges through a stiff workout last night, and feels confident that the "Y" will take the Watessing cagers into camp, as his men have shaped up better than was expected. Walter Wallis and Ken Gilchrist will probably start at forward. Dory or Pierson, at center, and Olson and Clarke at guard. But Coach Best believes in making use of his material and every member of the first team squad will doubtless see some action tomorrow. The first game is slated to start at 8 o'clock.

WRESTLING HISTORY REVIEWED—PART I

From McLaughlin to Hackenschmidt, the "Ruslan Lion"

By "LANK" LEONARD
Interest in wrestling began to drop in 1894 and until 1899 there were no real big matches staged. "Farmer" Burns was generally recognized as American champion during most of this period and it was the "Farmer" who discovered and developed Frank Gotch. Gotch brought the same back to the heights, heights it has never since attained. Tom Jenkins was the stopping stone used by Gotch to attain the crown. Jenkins, now wrestling coach at West Point, had followed Burns as champion and was ruled the roost for almost six years when he consented to a match with Gotch at Bellingham, Wash., in 1904. Jenkins had previously beaten Gotch and hardly expected to suffer the defeat he did. Jim Parr, the champion of England, came over to challenge Gotch after Frank had beaten Jenkins. The match was put on at Buffalo, N. Y., and billed as a world's title affair. Gotch won with ease and continued to beat all comers until he stepped on the mat with Tom Jenkins at old Madison Square Garden, New York, the night of March 15th, 1906. It was the second time the men had faced each other since Gotch had won the title. Jenkins, losing the first time, turned match at Cleveland the next previous. Gotch had gone on a theatrical tour immediately after the Cleveland match with Jenkins and was in poor shape for the meeting in New York. Jenkins won back the crown, two falls out of three. Then the great Hackenschmidt came into the picture, eventually pushed Rober aside in 1908.

Park Board to Push Projects

County Park Com. Approves Pres. Hoover's Recommendation to Expedite Public Work

Works to Be Carried On

At a meeting held December 12th, the Union County Park Commission passed a resolution endorsing President Hoover's recommendations regarding the expediting of all construction projects financed by public funds in order to benefit the existing economic conditions prevailing throughout the country and instructed its Engineer and Secretary, W. R. Tracy, to follow this policy at this time as far as practicable under existing conditions in the County Park System. This action will permit the continuation of the employment of the present maintenance and construction forces of approximately 175 men, some of whom would ordinarily have been temporarily laid off for the winter months.

Caseys Drop Fourth Straight Game

Roamer A. C. Furnishes Stiff Opposition on Local Court—Two Regulars Supplanted

Reserves Defeat Stars

By BILL LUCAS
Disension in the ranks was directly responsible for the K. of C. Big Five dropping its fourth straight game Saturday night at St. Teresa's Hall 59-32. The Roamer A. C., of Newark, furnished the opposition, and for the first half it was a nip and tuck battle, with Summit holding a 22-18 lead at the half. Brenn and Papio had been sinking them in great style, and although the Roamers had displayed a good brand of passwork and some accurate shooting, there was good cause to believe that the Knights would win.

Defense Collapses

Big Five fans were amazed in the last half to see the local defensive works go to smash without warning. Bill Feldman, slippery Newark guard, had a very annoying habit of catching the Casey cagers asleep by sneaking in behind the guards. On more than one occasion he had a free shot with not a Summit man about to molest him in any way. Feldman tallied six field goals and one foul, and those thirteen points were responsible for the Summit defeat.

The Inability to Follow up Missed Shots was Also Costly to the Local

As a Roamer was almost invariably getting the ball on the rebound off the backboard. H. Adee helped the Newarkers along by playing a bang-up floor game and caging five field goals and a foul for a total of ten points. Ray Englund led the locals with eleven points, Papio had ten, and Brenn was next in order with nine. The Knights are not slated to play tomorrow night, but will meet the Forum Club, of Madison, Saturday night at the local court. The Forum Club has a fast team and should give the Knights a stiff fight.

Reserves Win, 32-9

The K. of C. reserves had a romp in the preliminary game against the Geddits Stars, making the decision by the one-sided margin of 32-9. The reserves enjoyed a 12-5 lead at the half, but in the second session played rings around their opponents to cap the verdict. Moses Moroney showed the way with ten field goals and a foul. He had his eye on the basket and seemed to be able to drop them in from all angles.
