1987 . . .

Where can we begin? When we first discovered we were to be co-editors of the yearbook we were very excited. Over the summer we formulated ideas for our expectations of the book. In the beginning of the school year, our ideas materialized. Then reality set in. The task of putting together a yearbook seemed almost too great a burden to bear.

Nothing seemed to go according to plan. Layouts needed to be done, photos were waiting to be developed, copy and pages were late, and the struggle was on.

Yet it was done. The book was completed, and in looking back we see this year as a learning experience. We learned nothing comes from nothing and only hard work produces something.

We'd like to thank everyone who worked on the yearbook, whether their job was big or small. Every single task added up to the whole, and everyone was appreciated.

Special thanks to Mrs. Torralbas, our business editor; Lou, the photographer; and the secretaries in the front office for typing copy.

Very special thanks to our advisor, Mr. Heidleff. He put many hours of hard work into this book. We are grateful for what he has done.

Thanks everyone for making high school four very special years. To you, the Class of 1987, we present EXODUS.

Christy Weber
Lily Gallenagh
