Council expected to appeal Alps court edict

Public opinion on zoning is mixed

BY ROB ERRERA
TODAY Staff Writer

WAYNE — The Township Council will meet in closed session tonight to determine if a Superior Court ruling supporting the increase of the business zone along Alps Road should be appealed.

For nearly 10 years the council, Planning Board and Board of Adjustment have been against allowing landowner Van Houten-Burroughs to build a commercial enterprise on Alps Road near the intersection of the Hamburg Turnpike. But on July 18, Superior Court Judge Frank M. Donato ordered Wayne to rezone six acres of the 15-acre site as commercial. The six acres had been zoned residential, but the judge ruled that building homes on the site would not be a viable use.

That opinion is shared by Van Houten-Burroughs, which has been trying for years to get the township to change the zoning of the property from residential to commercial. The site is landlocked by several commercial businesses, though residential homes are located close by.

It's likely the council will decide to appeal the Superior Court decision during its closed meeting tonight. Mayor David Waks had already recommended an appeal, claiming the township boards have done nothing wrong. The council, Planning Board and Board of Adjustment have repeatedly turned the de-veloper's plans down. Last June, the township council unanimously rejected a zone change that would have increased the business zone along Alps Road, concurring with a similar opinion handed down by the Planning Board last May.

The Board of Adjustment has been reviewing Van Houten-Burroughs' application to build a Stop & Shop supermarket and 557-space parking lot on the site since last October.

Proposal will weed schools of 'illegals'

BY HARRY RAINBOW

WAYNE — Finding a way to prevent taxpayers from spending thousands of dollars so students from other municipalities can go to Wayne schools illegally has become one of the major concerns of the Wayne Board of Education.

At the public portion of the board's Public Work Session, board member Diane Vreeland outlined a the first draft of a proposed plan for the board to consider as a way to remove illegal students from the system.

The proposed plan consists of a series of letters that would be sent home to each student's household. The first letter would explain to the parents or guardians that all students in Wayne are being re-registered and proof of Wayne residency is required. A follow up letter would later be sent to remind parents who have not yet sent in proof of residency that it is required in order for their child to stay in school.

"One of the advantages of this system is that each mailing will get progressively smaller," said Vreeland.

A third letter would be sent as a last reminder and a first warning that without proof of residency, a student would be considered attending school illegally and action would be taken. This would be followed by a fourth letter which would serve as a final warning.

If the parents do not produce the necessary documents, after the fourth letter is sent, a fifth letter is sent informing the parents that their child is now regarded as an illegal student and will not be allowed to continue in the system.

"Naturally the family can appeal our ruling," Vreeland said. Vreeland explained that a similar system had been used by other school districts with a high level of success. She also informed the board that the board's attorney, Steven Fogarty had reviewed and approved the proposed system.

The board expressed interest in the plan Vreeland outlined. They agreed that as an initial idea it showed much promise, but it would have to be closely examined in committee before it was brought before the board again.

"We also must make it very clear that we are just interested in proof of residency, not in any family's financial status," said Board President Joseph Schweighardt.

The board decided that two of the points that they would have to take into consideration is what would exactly constitutes proof of Wayne residency, and what would be the easiest way for parents to get the needed information to the school board, since many parents now work evenings and weekends.

Rules for houses of worship seem firm

BY ROB ERRERA
TODAY Staff Writer

WAYNE — The Township Council is expected to give final approval tonight to an ordinance which sets guidelines for the establishment of houses of worship in the township.

The ordinance, which has taken months to hammer out, was unanimously approved on first reading July 6. The ordinance could become law in 20 days if it is given final approval tonight.

The ordinance defines houses of worship on a sliding scale according to lot size. The original ordinance required houses of worship be built on at least 3.5 acres of land, effectively banning them from residential areas. The ordinance up for approval tonight requires a minimum lot size of 1.5 acres.

The council and township attorneys worked long and hard on the ordinance to assure it would remain valid if challenged in court. A religious group threatened to sue the township last year (Continued On Page 3)

It's Wanaque for PCCC's upcounty campus

WANAQUE — At the urging of Freeholder Richard DuHaime, the seven member Passaic County Freeholder Board formally designated a 35-acre Wanaque site to be the location of the upcounty campus for Passaic County Community College.

In sponsoring a resolution at the Aug. 17 Freeholder meeting, DuHaime said the Wanaque site represents "the best long term investment" for the county.

The Wanaque site, said DuHaime is "larger, more versatile and allows the county to offer more varied programs than any other location presently under consideration. And it presents a more attractive, enticing campus to meet the needs of our county residents."

In addition to offering prospective students a quality campus, DuHaime said the Wanaque site can also be used to fill other county needs. He cited the need for additional space to augment (Continued On Page 3)

'Professional' time away needs pre-approved plan

BY HARRY RAINBOW
TODAY Staff Writer

WAYNE — The issue of how to manage professional and personal days was discussed at great length by The Wayne Board of Education at its last Public Work Session. In order to take a professional day, used mostly to attend teaching conferences and workshops, a staff member must get the approval of either a principal or supervisor. If the time away from the classroom is approved, arrangements must be made through the substitutes office for the class to be covered.

"Professional days are a privilege, not a right," stated Joseph Schweighardt, president of the board.

The board expressed concern about the rising number of teachers who are applying for professional days, as each day taken requires that two salaries be paid, both the teacher's and the substitute's. (Continued On Page 3)

DWI suspect ID questioned

• LINCOLN PARK — On Friday, Aug. 19, at 11 p.m., Patrolman Michael Hackett arrested Sookdeo Maraj for driving while intoxicated and giving false information to a police officer.

Hackett said he originally pulled Maraj over because he was driving in what the officer considered a suspicious manner. When Hackett requested the driver produce a license, the officer was allegedly given one identifying the himself as Ralph Lal of Bogota. Hackett administered several field sobriety tests to the driver, which he allegedly failed.

Hackett then escorted the driver back to police headquarters for a breath test.

While at police headquarters, the driver admitted that his name was not Ralph Lal but really Sookdeo Maraj and that he did not have a driver's license.

Maraj was charged with giving false information to a police officer, DWI and several motor vehicle violations.

Driver nixes breath test

• LINCOLN PARK — On Sunday, Aug. 22, at approximately 2:15 a.m., Helen Muriano, 52, of Pinebrook, was arrested and charged for driving while intoxicated.

Sgt. Thomas Andrascik said he stopped Muriano's vehicle on Boonton Turnpike for driving in an erratic manner. Andrascik administered several field sobriety tests, which she allegedly failed.

Andrascik placed Muriano under arrest for DWI and escorted her to police headquarters, where she refused to take a breath test.

Muriano was charged with DWI, refusal to submit to a breath test and failure to maintain proper lane.

vent the go-go bar from opening last year, but had no legal footing to enforce the closure. Now the council is trying to prevent additional adult entertainment bars from opening in the township. The council cannot legally prohibit go-go bars entirely from the township, but they can limit where the bars would be located through zoning restrictions.

The council members did request a few revisions in the ordinance when it was discussed during a June conference. They asked that adult entertainment centers be allowed only in industrial zones fronting on state or federal highways. That prevents go-go bars from opening along traditional business zones such as Valley Road, the Hamburg Turnpike or in Wayne's mall complexes.

The council also asked how the proposed ordinance would apply to an adult movie theater located in the Ramapo Plaza. An explosion and fire in January caused the theater to shut down and remain closed. "But because the theater operations predate the adult entertainment ordinance there is little chance the town can stop the showing of X-rated films once the repairs are made," said Township Attorney John Fiorello.

'Professional'

Board member Jeanette Makus suggested if they used past years as a guideline it would be safe to assume that approximately 800 to 1,000 days would be used for professional days. This does not mean that every teacher has to have professional day, nor does every school need the same amount of days, continued Makus.

"A larger school may look like it would need more days, but often a smaller school has the greater need because of what is being offered," Makus said.

As a possible solution to this issue, the board passed a motion to address the possibility of the district being limited to 800 to 1,000 professional days per year to be centrally monitored by the administration.

The board then turned its discussions to Wayne's personal day policy. Acting Superintendent John McIntyre, stated personal days are officially to be used for medical, family emergencies or other good causes.

"A teacher is not required to give the reason for a personal day, nor can a principal demand to know the reason one is being taken," said McIntyre.

While no one on the board questioned the right of teachers to take personal days, Board member Diane Vreeland suggested that, perhaps with the budget as tight as it is, personal days should be justified.

"Personal days do mean adding an extra $200,000 a year to the substitute budget and the amount has risen steadily over the past the training at the county's firefighter academy as well as serving the needs of county's special needs children - all of which can be met by development of the Wanaque site.

"On balance, the Wanaque site offers the county greater opportunities to meet the needs of more people far into the future," said DuHaime. He noted that another upcounty campus that was discussed, a storefront site in Pompton Lakes, "lacked parking and the ability to grow to meet increasing demand of students."

DuHaime said many upcounty residents are discouraged from taking college courses because of the lack of a conveniently located campus. County residents, he said, are forced to drive long distances to colleges in Morris, Sussex or Bergen counties.

"Once the Wanaque site is fully developed, I think we will find many people taking advantage of the opportunity presented to them," said DuHaime.

The Bloomingdale freeholder said he pushed the resolution at this time to get the board to commit to an upcounty college site while college expansion plans are being discussed.

Wayne Valley Dance Team places first

BY CHERYL MARINO
TODAY Staff Writer

WAYNE — Move over Rockettes — the Wayne Valley High School Dance Team has recently taken first place in a Universal Dance Association competition at Hofstra University in Long Island, N.Y.

The team of 12 dancers, ranging from freshmen to seniors, was established last year by co-captains Jen Baddan and Tami Virgilio, both are seniors at Wayne Valley.

The team performs during half time at the high school basketball games, promoting motivation and team spirit to the crowd of spectators.

The girls attended a dance camp at Hofstra University, and performed a routine before a panel of judges from the Universal Dance Association, who based their final determination in terms of originality and creativity demonstrated by each high school dance team competing against each other.

Their first place performance qualifies the Wayne Valley Dance Team to compete in the National Competition at Sea World, Florida, which will be taking place February 3-7.

"They have a lot of team spirit and morale," said Tami's mother

Tonya Virgilio, who is a teacher for the Wayne Public School System, and is also the dance teams advisor. "Their routine is very upbeat, it really stirs up the crowd."

Mrs. Virgilio added that even though she is the team advisor, the girls really do all the work.

"They've done a great job in raising money for their uniforms, and they have put a lot of time and effort into this," said Virgilio.

The dance team uniforms which are comprised of a blue spandex leotard and skirt, were purchased with funds raised through canister drives and bake sales, according to Jen Baddan.

enjoy dancing.

"Since there aren't any basketball cheerleaders, we thought it would be a good opportunity to provide some half time entertainment for the crowd, and promote team spirit," said Baddan.

She added that they currently have three to four different routines, and last year they changed the routine every three weeks for a little variety.

"This is the first dance-related activity at our high school that we have been able to get serious about," Baddan said. "Everyone is really dedicated, and work really hard."

The dance team members are gearing up for this year's basketball season which begins in December.

Houses of worship

if such an ordinance were adopted. The Ahavas Torah Temple was looking to build a house of worship in a residential zone on Ratzer Road. The property has since been sold to a third party, but debate over the issue became heated during some public meetings, with representatives of the Temple implying the ordinance was anti-Semitic and local residents demanding an equal voice in community development.

When the ordinance was first introduced last August, it stirred controversy among residents and religious leaders who felt the council was attempting to ban religious houses of worship from residential zones. Many residents supported the ordinance, believing it offered property value protection. Some religious leaders claimed the ordinance was discriminatory. The council opted to revised the ordinance after obtaining more information about zoning, conditional uses and what constitutes a private school.

Daredevil pilot Ordini set for air show

BY ROSALIE LONGO Special to TODAY

He's landed in corn fields in Blairtown and Pennsylvania, a bean field in Virginia, a cow pasture in Florida and a polo field in Mahwah. He's also touched down on a few roads and made a dead stick landing on water.

Despite a few harrowing moments during his early days of piloting, 34-year-old Paul Ordini has never been discouraged from flying. He's now soaring to new heights as a highly skilled, professional aerobatics pilot.

The daring young pilot, a Bergen County native, will be one of the stars at the famous Sussex Air Show set for Aug. 26, 27 and 28 at the Sussex Airport on Route 639.

He has presented an exciting nine-minute show for thousands who attended a convention of the Experimental Aircraft Association in Lakeland, Florida last year. A few months later, he starred at an air spectacular sponsored by the Professional Air Show Performers Association in Mattson, Ill. Then he headed for Oshkosh, Wis. with his nifty, home-built, ultra-light red and yellow RANS S-9 to take part in another EAA show which, last year, attracted 11,000 small-plane pilots.

Anyone seeing the Mahwah daredevil swoop through the clouds marvels at his adventurous spirit, for he manages to maneuver his small aircraft through dozens of breathtaking dips, turns and spins with the bravado of a well-seasoned Hollywood stuntman.

Says Ordini, flying is the realization of a childhood dream. "I became hooked at age 17, when a friend flew me from Lincoln Park to Ellenville, NY in his Cessna 172... I had flown on jets before, but this was my first experience in a small plane. I found it so thrilling, I begged my friend to let me sit in the front seat instead of the back on the way home."

A short time later, the 1976 graduate of Oakland's Indian Hills High School, who had been working in his family's swimming pool and spa business in Paterson, was taking flying lessons at Kitty Hawk Aviation in Fort Lauderdale and studying aerobatics with "French Connection" pilots Montaine Mallet and Daniel Heligoin.

Shortly after receiving his private pilot's license, he found himself doing a Michelob TV commercial when the pilot originally hired didn't show up.

Following graduation from Mudry School of Aerobatics, he obtained his commercial pilot's certificate and began performing in aerobatics shows in his home-built, lightweight (326-lb.) RANS S-9 "Weedwacker" with Rotax 503 engine.

Today, Ordini, the only pilot of an ultralite plane who does precision aerobatics, performs high G maneuvers flying at 80 mph in his plane rated plus-9 and minus-7 Gs.

He revels in vertical 8s and bow tie maneuvers, tail slides, loops, vertical rolls and the "lumpsivocks" forward tumble. At the Flagler County Air Show in Florida, he performed a radio-controlled comedy act never before enacted in front of an audience.

Ordini occasionally flies with a special message. A few years ago, he painted "Say No To Drugs" under his plane's wings and flew over Clifton, Indian Hills and Ramapo high schools.

One of his memorable experiences was the time he was learning to fly solo and the plane blew a tire at Fort Lauderdale International Airport. "I ran off the runway but that wasn't the worst of it. I had to sit in the plane for 20 minutes (it seemed like three hours) for a jeep to pull me out because I was in deep sand. Every time a huge commercial jet turned onto the runway, I got sandblasted... at times, my plane moved 10 feet."

Asked about flying for an airline, he said, "I'd never want to be a commercial pilot. It would be too boring. You make good money, but a throttle jockey is like being a bus driver."

Ordini says he suspects his wife, Linda, and mother, Wilma, aren't as gungho about his aerobatics. But he claims that they do support him. Daughter Jill prefers watching, but he says his son Joey, 5, plans to become a helicopter pilot too.

Ordini will be joined by other stars in the sky at the Sussex show, considered the best in the East. Leo Loudenslager, The French Connection, Patty Wagstaff, the Red Baron Squadron, War Bird Parade, The Misty Blues and several other featured acts, plus surprise attractions, will parade their stuff in the wild blue yonder beginning Friday.

Tickets are $10 for adults, $5 for children under 12 and kids under 6 are free. Friday is Senior Citizen Day at half price.

Amazing Medicines The Drug Companies Don't Want You To Discover!

Drug companies make tremendous profits when they can patent a new medicine. A pill that costs a penny each to make can easily be sold for $1.00 to $4.00 each.

And they get to charge these outrageous prices for 17 years before their patent expires. After that "generic" drug companies can sell them at fair prices.

Can't Patent Anything Nature Produces!
However, they can't patent anything that mother nature produces such as a vitamin or natural medicine! For example, the ingredient in aspirin occurs naturally in the bark of a willow tree—so it can't be patented.

A patent means no competition. The drug companies CAN'T charge a high price for an unpatented medicine because OTHER drug companies can make the same product. Whoever sells it at the lowest price gets most of the business.

Since big drug companies are spoiled by the high prices that they get for patented drugs, they won't make low-profit natural medicines.

Situation Frustrates Medical Scientists!
Scientists worldwide have been annoyed and frustrated by this situation for a long time. Especially because they've established that almost 200 natural medicines may work as well or better than drug company "chemicals".

Finally, in Arizona, University Medical Research has published this book which reveals the extensive laboratory testing and amazing benefits of many natural medicines. Here's a few of the 194 discussed in this book that the drug companies don't want you to know about:

Cholesterol: University of California Medical School researchers discovered that a plant ester, if taken daily, could decrease cholesterol absorption by 42% (page 213).

Arthritis And Back Pain: University of Chicago Medical School found a natural amino acid which is an excellent pain killer with no side effects. It brought relief quickly in several cases (page 170).

Heart Disorders: Scientists found that a rare enzyme increased the survival rate up to 40% of those prone to heart attacks (page 197).

High Blood Pressure: Researchers at University of Texas found a nutrient that lowers blood pressure by up to 23 points. Scientists for the Honolulu Heart Program determined that a mineral in certain vegetables also reduced pressure significantly (page 217).

Breast Cancer: Scientists at University of California and the National Cancer Center Hospital in Japan found that a nutrient, obtained from some exotic foods, reduces the possibility of breast cancer by a very high percentage (page 232).

Ulcers: British doctors at Airdale General Hospital near London double-blind tested 100 ulcer patients with the most popular prescription drug and an extract from a root often used for flavoring. The root extract worked as well without any of the side effects associated with the prescription drug (page 242).

Wrinkles, Brittle Hair And Nails
The Journal of International Medical Research reported that a shell fish protein extract when taken orally increased the body's production of collagen. It dramatically reduced wrinkling of photo-aged skin of subjects taking it. 53% showed a 100% improvement. Their ages ranged from 39 to 71. All those with brittle hair and nails experienced a 100% improvement (page 149).

Impotence: Researchers at Kingston General Hospital and Queen's University in Canada tested a substance obtained from a tree on men from the ages of 18 to 71. 46% had positive improvement. At Stanford University labs, scientists said it caused impotent rats to mate as much as 45 times in 15 minutes (page 131).

Weight Loss: Temple University scientists tested a substance found in minute quantities in a root. It reduced body fat by up to 25% in animals with no reduction of food intake or suppression of appetite. They also believe it inhibits breast cancer (page 165).

Vision: An extract from a berry has been tested on patients with high myopia. Visual acuity and function was increased significantly and night blindness was reduced (page 182).

Prostate Problems: An extract from an African tree has been tested in 12 hospitals on 672 patients. The majority were significantly relieved of many symptoms (page 104).

Hair Loss: Tests of a new hair growth compound at AMA Laboratories showed that it increased vellous hair by 227% and worked on 78% of those tested. And your hair doesn't fall out when you stop using it (page 264).

Osteoporosis: British scientists have tested a cream made from plant progesterone that when applied daily increased bone density up to 25% within a year (page 116).

I.Q. Improvement: A Nobel Prize winner reported that a special mixture of nutrients was given daily to intellectually deficient students. After a few months their I.Q.s increased 25% (page 70).

Memory And Fatigue: A relatively unknown but FDA-approved medicine has shown in tests that it can improve memory and mental alertness, increase appetite, reduce depression and fatigue (page 58).

Jet Lag And Insomnia

• New Zealand scientists have confirmed that a pineal gland substance, taken orally, can alleviate jet lag and prevent insomnia (page 270).

• A total of 194 medicines that relieve 246 ailments and diseases are discussed in this eye-opening new book.

266 Research Projects

Most of the lab tests of these medicines were conducted at major university medical centers following FDA-type guidelines in rigidly controlled double-blind studies. Over 500 scientists participated in these research projects. (All studies are listed in the book.)

Most doctors simply don't know about these medicines because only 25 of 137 major medical schools have courses on natural medicines. Therefore, you'll probably have to learn about them yourself!

Cut Your Medical Costs!

Most of these medicines are non-prescription which means much lower costs and less doctor visits. They are available now and the sources are listed in the book.

This book will save you money and a lot of pain. And why take chemicals when nature has such good cures. Order your copy today!

U.S. Work Force Braces for Retraining

(NU) - Even with strengthening in the U.S. automotive, microchip and other industries, economists say the dramatic rejuvenation will be short-lived unless the nation begins the daunting task of retraining workers.

New technologies continue to change the way U.S. companies do business, and by the end of the decade half of the work force will have to be retrained for jobs that don't exist now, experts predict.

These will include environmental positions and areas such as simulation and virtual reality; and High Definition Television.

Because we will need new skills to perform tomorrow's jobs, businesses are looking to nonprofit associations for specialized training, says the American Society of Association Executives (ASAE). Such training will update crucial job skills for many industry workers. ASAE predicts:

Professional associations such as the Institute of Electrical & Electronic Engineers are already providing training for many future jobs.

"Associations are the nation's leading providers of continuing education," explains ASAE President R. William Taylor. "Their specialized training courses are often the only source of current information on new technologies."

However, there are instances of government cooperation, such as the U.S. Department of Labor joining with the National Association of Manufacturers to encourage manufacturing sector investment in education and training.

Adshead renamed president, promises continued progress

WAYNE — William Adshead was re-elected president of the Preakness Hospital Board of Managers by unanimous acclamation.

Adshead, a retired sales manager for RJR Foods, has served on the hospital board since 1990. He was elected to his first one-year term as president of the 484-bed, long-term care facility last July.

At the July 18 board reorganization meeting in Wayne, Adshead said, in the past year, Preakness Hospital has lived up to the expectations he, other board members and the county freeholders have for the institution.

A North Haledon resident, Adshead noted with particular pride that Preakness recently passed a state Department of Health review with flying colors — scoring a 96 percent rating.

"That is a remarkable score for any nursing home, especially a publicly funded one," said Adshead. "The rating proves beyond a shadow of doubt that the care at Preakness is second to none."

The president said the rating reflects the dedication of the hospital administration and its workers. "It would be hard to find a more dedicated collection of workers — ranging from our top administration to our most junior custodian — than we have here at Preakness. I am proud of all of them and invite them to share in our success story."

Adshead also praised the hospital volunteers for their contribution to the hospital. "Without them, many of the little things that need to get done around here would not get done."

In pointing to accomplishments of the past year, Adshead noted the conversion of an old dormitory-style room in Unit III to a new 27-bed semiprivate wing.

The conversion, said the president, "puts behind us the era of dormitories that serviced us well when we were a communicable disease center, but are now out of date. The new beds will help us meet the demands of the elderly and infirm of the area."

Adshead also pointed to the annual charity golf tournament, which raised $12,000 for the hospital residents, and a successful Living Wills seminar conducted last fall as examples of the hospital's growing recognition in the North Jersey community.

"We have demonstrated that Preakness Hospital can be an important community asset and it is my hope that in the coming year we can conduct more community outreach and invite citizens to participate in events at Preakness," said Adshead.

EMT class offered at Chilton Memorial

POMPTON PLAINS — The Institute for Emergency Training (IET) at Chilton Memorial Hospital will hold an Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) basic course from Sept. 8 to Dec. 17 at the hospital, 97 West Parkway, Pompton Plains.

The course, approved by the Office of Emergency Medical Services of the New Jersey Department of Health, meets the requirements of the EMT curriculum. Upon completion of the course, participants — who must be 16 years old prior to the start of the program — will be eligible to take the certification examination for EMT administered by the New Jersey Department of Health.

Sessions will be held 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. Mondays and Thursdays.

For registration information, contact Jackie McNally, MICP, Mobile Intensive Care Unit (MICU) Clinical Coordinator, at 831-5170.

Beep Dad! Mom is in labor

POMPTON PLAINS — The one certainty of pregnancy is unpredictability. A due date serves as a guideline, but the actual arrival of a newborn is often a combination of fate, health, and timing. To ease the anxieties of parents-to-be, the Chilton Memorial Hospital Parent Education Department has established a pager rental service.

"The peace of mind the pagers provide to parents is incredible," said Cathy Maio, RN, Parent Education Coordinator. "They are much less stressed as the due date approaches."

As pagers increased in popularity and technology, expectant parents began to inquire about a rental service. The Parent Education Department responded to their needs.

"Parents-to-be were very worried about not being able to get in touch with each other when labor began," Mrs. Maio said. "Parent Education instructors constantly heard that sentiment from students taking courses offered by the department."

A pager may be rented four to six weeks before the infant's due date. Minimum rental period is 30 days at a rate of $25. Each additional day costs $1. A $50 deposit is required. All pagers must be returned in good condition within 30 days after birth.

For more information on the pager rental service, call the Parent Education Department at 831-5494.

Porretta will also be attending "Broadway Dance Center" in New York with an award for tuition from his title of "Mr. Superstar." Through an audition, he was selected to represent Passaic County as a member of the "New Jersey Tap Ensemble" founded by Debra Mitchell in Montclair. His 1994 season included the following New Jersey Regional Titles: Stars of Tomorrow - P.D.T.A. Championship, Rhee Gold's Gold Spectrum - Junior Mr. Dance, Showbiz - Junior Mr. Showbiz, Superstar's - Junior Mr. Superstar.

His desire is to pursue a dance career as he moves on to high school for the arts with his ultimate goal of dancing professionally. He also manages to set some free time aside for relaxation with his family and riding his horse. Porretta credits his success to his love and dedication for the art of dance and also to his extremely supportive family and friends who have been there with him from his very first dance step.

SAFETY

Follow ABCs to Lower Your Children's Lead Exposure

(NU) - Your children's health can be affected by exposure to lead.

Lead in drinking water has become a concern, but up to 90 percent of a child's exposure comes from sources other than water, such as house paint and soil. According to the National Rural Water Association, your local water system is doing its part to lower any exposure from water. But, you can do your part too... just follow the ABCs.

UNLEADED PLEASE

Always flush your tap. Let the tap run for a minute or two before using it for drinking or cooking.

Be sure to use cold water. Never use the hot water tap to collect water for cooking or baby formula.

Check home plumbing. Check your home's plumbing for the use of lead in pipes, solder and fixtures.

Few things bring understanding to a subject the way a field trip does. Farmstead Estate, a nine-acre farm with an 18th century farmhouse, will bring your students' lessons to life.

Our agricultural facility offers your students not only the chance to examine farm life with hands-on experience, but also the chance to learn about the history, habitats, and environmental needs of the animals that reside here.

The main farmhouse, used as a residence, was first constructed as a sawmill. Although the house itself is not included in the tour, the stone masonry and hand-hewn beams speak volumes about the architecture of the day. The original cold cellar has a well-type milk cooler which still stands today. A root cellar and working smoke house, requirements for 18th century living, support the farmhouse. The water wheel which once occupied Westbrook stream, a rear boundary line for the estate, generated the power for the saw mill. Today the water wheel is gone, but the stream is now considered one of the largest trout-producing streams in Northern New Jersey.

By combining an educational presentation and hands-on experience with the animals, Farmstead Estate offers a unique learning experience for all to enjoy.

Nursery openings announced

PACKANACK — Packanack Cooperative Nursery School is offering one of the largest number of programs for children from 2 years old through 5 years old.

A few openings have also become available in the afternoon 4-year-old class and a unique afternoon program especially geared especially toward "young" 5 year olds.

The 5-year-olds' program provides an extra transitional year between nursery school and kindergarten for children who, although chronologically eligible, may not be developmentally ready for the social or academic elements of kindergarten. This program bridges the gap for children who will turn 5 years old between June 30 and Dec. 30. These dates, however, are flexible and admission is at the discretion of the director.

Applied academics play a more prominent role than in the school's traditional nursery classes. At the same time, the Pre-K program continues to provide a smaller nurturing environment in which the younger 5 year old can blossom. The class meets four afternoons a week.

Packanack Cooperative Nursery School's traditional program, with classes for 2, 3 and 4 year olds, emphasizes development of socialization skills, large and small motor coordination, creative expression through various media, and language experience through imaginative lessons, story time, crafts, song, snacks and games.

Packanack Cooperative Nursery School is one of the largest and longest thriving cooperative nursery schools in the area, with nearly 100 children participating.

Parental participation provides a link between home and school educational experiences and helps keep the appreciation level high and costs low. For more information call Pat Bullman at 696-1260.

SAT prep training is offered

WAYNE — Educational Services Center, an established tri-state SAT training facility, is offering its PSAT/SAT Preparation Course, beginning Aug. 29 in Wayne for the October PSAT Exams and for the new November-December SAT Exams.

The course teaches test-taking techniques in addition to improving mathematical and verbal skills.

Experienced, licensed high school teachers, experts in preparing students for SATs, conduct eight, three-hour sessions for classes of 10-15 students at a cost of $275, including books and materials. Students can arrange for free, additional help with the instructor.

Marcia Frankel, director of Educational Services Center, says that knowing how to take a test is as important as knowing the material. She teaches that Educational Services Center's PSAT/SAT Course helps students feel relaxed, assured and self-confident.

The center guarantees that students will improve their scores, or they may retake the course free of charge during the next session.

Packanack students upgrade school area

WAYNE — Packanack School students have participated in the community's "Adopt A Spot" Program, a project to provide an attractive and appealing environment for the students and teachers of the school, as well as create a source of pride to the community.

The project included a general "clean up" and planting of flowers on the school grounds.

The flowers were obtained from donations and through a grant provided to the Employment Orientation Program of the Wayne Board of Education. Parents volunteered their time and talents to prepare the flower beds during the prior weekends.

The Packanack School Parent Teachers Organization "Beautification Committee" organized the activity with the county's office of Environmental Protection who supplied materials needed to implement this beautification project.

The students and teachers contributed to the project by planting the flowers and generally cleaning the school grounds of debris.

Lawrence Tilli, the schools' principal who coordinated the activities, stated that this was an excellent example of how parents, teachers, students and the school district have cooperated and pooled their respective resources to bring about site beautification in the community.

"This will result in instilling greater pride in their school and contribute toward preserving the beauty of our natural resources," said Tilli.

BACK TO SCHOOL

Is he sick? Should I send him to school?

One of the problems most often confronting parents of school-age children occurs when a child complains of not feeling well on a school day. A decision must be made as to whether the child stays home or goes to school. What do you do? How do you make the right decision? You don't want to keep him home if he really isn't sick, but you also don't want to send a sick child to school.

The information herein is not intended as medical advice, but is merely designed to provide guidelines to be followed until your doctor can be contacted for his opinion. This should be done without delay.

FEVER

- A fever is a warning that all is not right with the body.
- The best way to check for fever is with a thermometer, which every home should have. No child with a fever over 100 degrees should be sent to school.
- When no thermometer is available, check the child's forehead with the back of the hand. If it is hot, keep the child home until fever can be checked with a thermometer.
- Do not allow the child to return to school until he has been free of fever for 24 hours.

COLD/SORE THROAT/COUGH

- The common cold presents the most frequent problem to parents.
- A child with a "heavy" cold and a hacking cough belongs home in bed, even though he has no fever.
- If your child complains of a sore throat and has no other symptoms, he may go to school. If white spots can be seen in the back of the throat or if fever is present, keep him home and call your doctor.

RASH

- A rash may be the first sign of one of childhood's many illnesses, such as measles or chicken pox.
- A rash, or "spots," may cover the entire body or may appear in only one area.
- Do not send a child with a rash to school until your doctor has said that it is safe to do so.

STOMACHACHE/VOMITING/DIARRHEA

- Consult your doctor if your child has a stomachache which is persistent or severe enough to limit his activity.
- If vomiting occurs, keep your child home until he can keep his food down.
- A child with diarrhea should be kept at home.
- Call your doctor if prompt improvement does not occur.

PAIN

- Toothache — Contact your dentist.
- Earache — Consult your doctor without delay.
- Headache — A child whose only complaint is headache usually need not be kept at home.

Eye problems = slow learning

By DR. RUDOLPH WAGNER, M.D.
Special to North Jersey Newspapers

Children who are slow learners in school may have undetected vision problems. They often find learning difficult because they must cope with fuzzy-appearing blackboards or blurry textbook pages.

Often, these children don't tell anyone about their eye problems because they believe everyone sees the way they do. Thus, it's important for children to be screened annually.

Some of the more common eye disorders in children are strabismus, amblyopia and refractive errors.

Strabismus is a disorder in which the eyes are not aligned or do not move in harmony. One eye may look to the left while the other looks up, straight ahead or to the right. Children with strabismus may appear cross-eyed if both eyes turn in or walled off if both eyes turn out.

Although the causes of strabismus are only partially understood, in some cases the tiny muscles behind the eye that control movement are involved. Usually, the muscles are normal, but the brain signals that direct them are not properly balanced, causing both eyes to look in different directions at once.

Esotropia is the most common type of strabismus. It occurs when one or both eyes turn in towards the nose, but the image from only one eye is recognized by the brain, so the child does not have double vision. This is a dangerous situation since the child may not be aware of a problem and will not complain, leading to a delay in diagnosis and treatment. As a result, the condition worsens with time. Strabismus can be treated with special glasses or surgery to straighten the eyes and, in rare cases, with eye drops. Patching of the better-seeing eye also may be necessary to improve the vision of the eye that turns.

Amblyopia occurs when one eye becomes dominant and the other weakens from lack of use. If left untreated, the non-dominant eye will eventually lose all function, rendering the child partially blind in that eye. By wearing an eye patch over the strong eye, the weaker eye is forced into action and strengthens.

Refractive errors occur when a child doesn't have 20/20 vision, resulting from farsightedness, nearsightedness or astigmatism. Once the condition is diagnosed, corrective glasses are prescribed.

Some signals that may indicate eye problems are:

- A dislike or avoidance of close work.
- Inability to see writing on a blackboard from a distance.
- Excessive rubbing or squinting of the eyes.
- Difficulty in going up or down stairs, throwing or catching a ball, unbuttoning clothes or tying shoes. It's important to remember that many children can also have problems with these tasks because of poor muscle coordination and not vision problems.

Most children occasionally show these symptoms, but if they are frequent, schedule a checkup with an ophthalmologist. To be positive, it's a good idea to have your child's eyes checked each year before school starts or shortly thereafter if a problem arises.

Dr. Wagner is clinical associate professor of ophthalmology at the New Jersey Medical School of the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey, Newark.

Coping with kids material demands

When 7-year-old Stephanie Boutte wanted a television for her bedroom because all of her friends had one, the answer was a resounding "NO!"

"I told her she's better off without one. I tried not to feel guilty," said Dr. Gloria Boutte, an early childhood professor in the College of Education at the University of South Carolina. "We thought a television would keep her from reading and that she would want to stay in her room too much."

Saying "no" isn't that easy for most parents, said Dr. Carol Flake, also a USC early childhood professor.

Today's society equates money with self-worth.

"Parents are made to feel they are no good if they can't provide designer jeans for their daughter," Flake said.

"We're so busy giving children things we didn't have, we neglect to give them things we did have. Our children need to see the real value of money and focus on more of what should be valued, like love, time and respect."

Until society becomes less materialistic, Flake recommends several ways parents can cope with their children's demands:

- Limit television. Children see much of what they want on commercials.

- Teach children the value of money. Give them a small allowance and tell them that once they spend it, that's all they get. Relate it to adult income by showing that once the money is spent, there isn't anything left.

- Guide children on what is and what isn't important to buy.

Flake also suggests that teen-agers earn money, but only at jobs with adult supervision. "Working at a fast-food restaurant with other teen-agers only adds more peer pressure. Adolescents need jobs with adult role models."

School Clothes

Back-to-school wardrobes planned on tight budget

If you're preparing your children's back-to-school wardrobe on a shoestring budget, a University of South Carolina professor has some cost-cutting tips that won't tie your purse strings in a knot.

Potential money-saving factors to consider when buying children's clothes are the child's lifestyle, age and needs versus wants, clothing quality, maintenance and long-term value.

Instructional parents on how to save money is usually the easy part of the budget-making process. But for kids, who usually have little concept of money matters, it can be a difficult lesson, says Dr. Sallie Hook Boggs, an assistant professor in USC's retailing department.

"Conflict created by a child's wants and what parents perceive to be the child's actual needs is probably the number one problem that occurs during the back-to-school shopping ritual," Boggs said.

Children react to merchandise emotionally while the parents' approach is rational, more practical, she says.

Boggs recommends that parents discuss the search for back-to-school wear back at the house to make the experience less stressful for everyone.

"Don't send kids off to choose what they want or there will be disaster. Children won't consider your budget, quality, what they really need or anything else," she said.

The rational approach should start in your child's closet.

Inventory what the child already has that's appropriate for school, what can be accessorized, dressed up or dressed down, repaired or altered. Then make a list to fill in the gaps.

Prioritize clothing needs first and throw in a couple of wants last, if your budget allows. Establish a budget by deciding how much you are willing to spend on each item on the list.

Make sure the child shares responsibility in the list and budget-making process, and establish ground rules before going to the store. This will make shopping easier and be a great learning experience for the child, Boggs says.

Once in the store, remember such basics as avoiding fads, trendy colors or fabrics unless they are low-cost items, Boggs says. For major purchases, stick to classics that never go out of style.

Check for quality construction — simple seam and hem allowances, well sewn-on buttons and button holes, and reinforced stitching.

Name brands or designer labels don't always signal quality, Boggs warns. "House brands or private labels made especially for the store are usually of very good quality, look like the big name labels and are less expensive."

This is important to remember when purchasing items such as t-shirts, socks, turtleneck shirts and other basics that aren't the focal point of an outfit and are subject to frequent wear-and-tear, she says.

Another checkpoint to consider is a return and exchange policy. Reputable stores will guarantee quality through exchange and return of defective clothing. "It pays to buy from a reputable store with a good exchange policy," she said.

If repairs or alterations are an option, Boggs recommends extending the wear of clothes with patches to reinforce wear points at the elbows and knees.

Maintenance, such as the need for frequent dry cleaning, should be considered in the final cost of an item.

Clothes with suede inserts, rhinestones, glitter and painted decorations can be a nightmare to clean and do not hold up very well, she says, suggesting wash-and-wear, permanent press and easy-care labels for children.

The value-over-time of clothing also should be calculated on major purchase items, Boggs says.

"Understanding the value-over-time of an item is important in saving money. A well-made coat that seems expensive at $150 but can be used for five years may be well worth the investment when a cheaply made coat that sells for $100 may only last two years."

And while hunting for bargains, don't overlook the deals that can be found at thrift and second-hand stores and garage sales, she says, especially when looking for clothing items for younger children.

With a little effort and these guidelines you can have your children back at school in style without feeling like you've been to the cleaners.

Classic black ribbed sweater teams with black-and-white checked pleated suspender skirt and over-the-knee socks for back-to-school look. All are available at most larger Sears stores.

School Buses

Getting from here to there safely

School buses are one of the safest forms of motor vehicle transportation. So, why is school bus safety such a serious, and sometimes controversial, issue?

"Some parents are literally scared to death," said Lucy Pearson, associate professor of home economics at Clemson University. "They are concerned about the debate over school bus construction, the controversy over drivers' ages, and the seat belt issue. Their primary concern, however, is that their children get to school safely."

The public expects school districts and bus operators to take all reasonable precautions to protect children as they travel to and from school. While improvements are being made in school bus operation, design, and driver training programs, other measures are necessary to protect passengers.

"It takes safety education and cooperation on everyone's part, not just the school administration and bus drivers, but also teachers, other motorists, parents, and especially students," said Pearson. "Our children's safety is everyone's problem, so everyone should get involved."

Most motorists don't know or ignore the laws regarding school buses. Major violations — refusal to stop for flashing lights, passing on the wrong side of the bus, and cutting in front of the bus — endanger children on the bus, entering or exiting the bus, or standing on the curb waiting for the bus. One solution may be to include questions about school buses on driver examinations. If motorists are aware of the dangers, many accidents can be prevented.

"Many people do not realize that the most dangerous place for a child is not inside a school bus, but outside," said Mark Purschwitz, professor of agricultural and biological engineering at Clemson. "In a typical year, 25 million children are transported to and from school or school-sponsored activities. Each year, an average of 10 children are killed riding on buses, and 38 are killed in loading zones around school buses by motorists or the school bus."

Teachers and parents must teach children how to enter and exit a bus properly, says Purschwitz. They should be taught to walk at least 10 feet in front of the bus so the driver will be able to see them.

The most common reason a child is hit by a school bus is that the bus driver's attention is distracted. A large school bus normally holds 66 passengers. "One person in charge of a lot of energetic children can easily be distracted," said Pearson.

"Students of all ages also need to be taught bus etiquette and reminded of it on a continuing basis," added Purschwitz. School districts can provide safety education programs to stress safe and appropriate behavior on school buses, while parents can reinforce the safety message at home. The heart of school bus safety, however, lies within the students.

Students should heed these bus safety tips:

- The driver is in charge; obey his or her instructions.
- Always be polite and conscious of how your behavior will affect the driver.
- Do not stand or move about while the bus is moving.
- Stand at least 10 feet in front of the bus in full view of the driver.
- Stop, look and listen when crossing the road after leaving the bus stop.
- Get to the bus stop on time.
- Do not horseplay on the bus.
- Keep quiet at all times on the bus.
- Always be careful.

AAA advises motorists to stop for school buses, it's the law!

With the opening of schools in New Jersey, the AAA North Jersey Automobile Club reminds motorists to stop for school buses which are loading or unloading children.

William Visser, manager of Public and Community Services for the club reminded motorists that "The driver of a vehicle approaching a school bus either from the front or rear must come to a complete stop not less than 25 feet from the bus, if it is stopped to discharge or pick up children." A driver must remain stopped until the children have entered the bus or are safely across the road and the bus has resumed movement.

"Motorists convicted of passing a stopped school bus are subject to a fine of not less than $100, possible imprisonment or community service for 15 days and 5 points on their driving record," said Visser.

School buses in New Jersey are equipped with flashing lights to alert motorists when the buses are stopped or preparing to stop. Amber lights go on about 300 feet before the bus stops, followed by red flashing lights when the bus stops. Motorists on a dual highway with a safety island or raised physical barrier which separates them from the lane the bus is in may pass the bus at a speed of no more than 10 miles per hour.

Visser cautioned motorists to "be extremely careful if you approach a stopped school bus and see no flashing lights, lights can occasionally fail." The manager suggested that "you should stop, check for children and then proceed with care at a low rate of speed."

The importance of educating children about school bus safety was also stressed by the AAA official. Visser encouraged parents to discuss proper conduct in and around school buses with their children.

Sounds of silence

Sound barriers placed along highways to mute road noise and afford privacy to those with neighboring property are receiving loud but mixed reviews.

Assemblyman Alex DeCroce of Parsippany has been sent more communications from constituents on this subject than on any other topic. As a result, he has scheduled hearings to determine whether or not more barriers should be constructed, and also to evaluate the efficiency of those already placed.

For those who travel along Route 287, a potentially beautiful stretch of roadway now walled in by high barriers, the sound containment is an ugly sight.

It also traps highway noise and sends it reverberating in this tunnel-like highway.

And if more negatives are needed, the barriers are a target for graffiti.

The argument is often voiced that anyone who bought property so close to a road site should have expected what they got.

But there is a better way.

Why must sound barriers be wooden walls? What's wrong with planting fast-growing greenery, which is not only attractive from both vantage points but is also environmentally beneficial?

Maybe the walls are less costly initially but they have little aside from low cost to justify them.

DeCroce has set a public hearing in Florham Park on Sept. 28. It's a good first step to resolving a problem that is currently pleasing no one.

Input is being solicited now. This is the time to speak out.

Finally, gridlock breaks

After lengthy, tedious bipartisan bickering and public behavior unworthy of elected officials, a crime bill passed the House of Representatives on Sunday night.

Those who watched the posturing and pandering leading to the bill's approval now have a doctored crime bill that totally suits no one but is at least a move in the right direction. They're also left with an indelible impression of the manner in which congressional members expostulate.

In some, it was tiresome. In some, it was logical and earnest. And in others it was frightening as certain members demonstrated their puppet-like loyalty to those who contribute to their campaign warchests, namely the NRA.

It's time government responded more to the people and less to the check-writers but the system seems deeply entrenched.

Maybe it's time to throw them all out and start all over. If we do, we should make it clear that those elected must represent the views of the public, not private interests.

Wine talk makes me heady

Believe me

Nancy Rubenstein

There are many opportunities to be pretentious, but maybe the most ludicrous is the would-be wine expert.

Oenology, as the study of wine is pretentiously called, can be an art form. More often, it's a misnomer embraced by people who have taken a course or two in wine appreciation and subscribe to wine publications. They know all the right words — bouquet, legs, acidity, etc. etc. but seldom are they dealing with a bottle of wine worthy of such analysis.

A bottle of $6 wine, or the bottom of a wine list in a restaurant, somewhere around $12-18, is not a Baron Rothschild vintage and should not be treated as such.

Cork-sniffing is one of the first things step one oenologists learn. They roll a cork from a cheap cabinet as if they really had a clue about its significance.

Holding the glass to the light to examine clarity, cloudiness or maybe find a bug is the second ritual. It's a wonder waiters don't burst out laughing watching this routine.

But we have a couple of friends who truly are wine mavens. They have an electronically chilled wine "cellar" (actually a big cabinet). And they buy wines in restaurants that cost more than my entire meal, including cocktails. With them, however, there are no ceremonies. He knows what he orders and doesn't need to perform lab tests on the sample he's served. Waiters don't even giggle.

A second friend proved his wine worthiness the other night as he scanned the wine list, then ordered "Number 303." It was a very nice number but he didn't feel the need to intimidate anyone with his knowledge.

Credit for the most unpretentious wine service, however, goes to our friends Martie and Jerry, who went to a liquor store and came back with a bottle actually labeled "Cheap Red Wine."

We can deal with all kinds of connoisseurs but we like the low-key approach better than the pretenders. As for me personally, I'm just glad I can spell oenology and connoisseur.

And I can even pronounce them. I never call them Word 12 or Word 32.

Powerless decision in Wayne

Hmmm...

Rob Errera

In the confusing hubbub of protocol and procedure, it's easy to lose sight of the real role of government. Sometimes it takes a crisis to make the obvious apparent.

There was a power failure at last week's Wayne council meeting, the first time in recent memory that a meeting had to be cancelled in the middle of a session. The result, after the lights came back on, was a flurry of activity that best exemplified a government getting things done and making decisions.

"What do we do now?" asked a stressed Council President William Van Giesen. He was joined in a little huddle by the other seven members of the council who were present. Then the township clerk drifted over to help answer questions about un-addressed agenda items, and fill the council in on the schedule of items in upcoming weeks.

Then the Business Administrator came over.

"We've got bills to pay!" Neal Bellet said, urging the council to reschedule the cancelled meeting quickly.

"Where's the attorney?" Where's John," a councilman asked, calling for John Fiorello. Fiorello entered the huddle, which now looked like a small mob gathered around the council dais. The township attorney helped clarify some of the unique legal problems resulting from the canceled meeting.

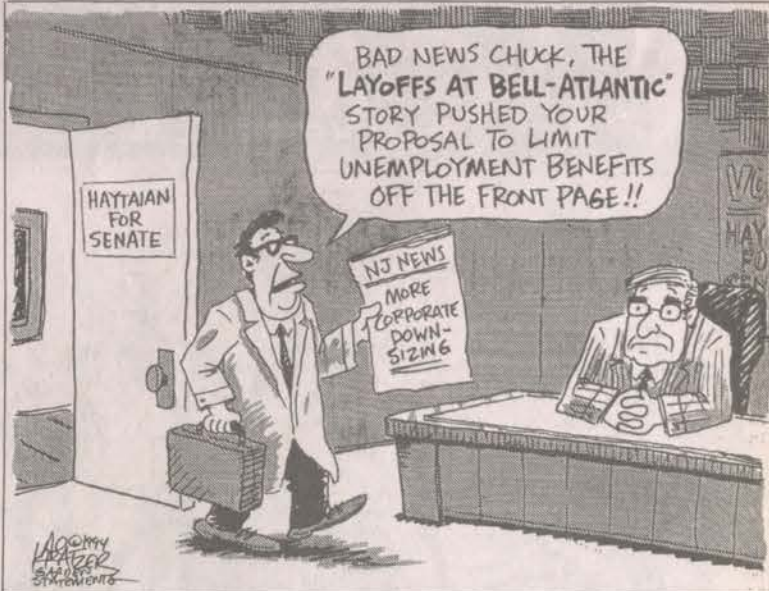

A solution was arrived at fairly simply and quickly — move last week's agenda to tonight and push off the conference meeting for a week. In hindsight, it was one of the simpler decisions the council would have to make that night. The big choices are on tonight's agenda, which is filled with lingering issues, such as appealing a court order allowing business expansion on Alps Road, settling a lawsuit against a local quarry, and voting on ordinances that place restrictions on where houses of worship and adult entertainment centers can be located in the township.

But the image of the township leaders, all gathered in a tight circle, voices rising and falling, asking questions, digesting answers, making decisions, was a priceless scene. You imagine this must be what closed council sessions are like, where the action takes place away from the eyes of the public and the press.

Or those post-meeting diner trips, where opinions and issues are debated over strong cups of coffee. The meeting around the council dais last Wednesday night lacked a cohesive structure and defied Robert's Rules of Order, but it was an example of government officials putting their heads together, (almost literally, ouch!) and getting things done.

It was something that doesn't happen often enough.

Letters to the editor

Not in the best interest of Wayne

Dear Editor:

Last November Councilman Scott Rumana ran for the council seat with the promise that he would lower taxes and make new changes that would benefit the taxpayers of Wayne.

Let's look at his record to date: He voted to give the part time Councilmen full benefits, the same as full time township employees receive. The cost for these benefits can be astronomical. How can you reduce taxes when you are paying for authorized benefits? This will only increase taxes. He will also receive these benefits even though he already has a medical plan at his place of employment. This gives him two plans, but he doesn't care because he isn't paying for the second plan.

Regarding changes that he espoused during the campaign to get elected, the only change to date that he has proposed was to take away the public's portion to speak at 9 p.m. at the Council meeting. He wants to push their right to speak to the end of the meeting, whenever that would be. The television viewers know that the public speaks at 9 p.m. and they listen. If the time is not set, then no one will know at what time the public portion will come on.

Councilman Rumana may be the new, young man on the Council but his record to date is not in the best interests of the taxpayers of Wayne.

Edward Lenczak

Op-Ed

What was that power zapping this council?

Dear Editor:

For those that believe, God displayed his wrath, when a power failure blacked out Channel 20 as Councilman Joseph DiDonato was speaking on his getting full insurance benefits. The law clearly states he is not a full time employee, but has a part time position with the Township. Working beyond 20 hours a week does not entitle one automatically to the status of full time insurance entitlement.

On Wednesday evening, Aug. 17 in Wayne's Council Chamber, the council meeting abruptly came to an end. It occurred, after Wayne Action Coalition (WAC) members, and other residents had a chance to address the second reading of the insurance benefits Ordinance 63. Councilman DiDonato, as he usually does, was the first councilman to respond to the public comments.

Another precedence was in the making. Some may call her Mother Nature and many others an omen. Never before in the history of Wayne council meetings, has a power failure caused a meeting to be cancelled. The TV audience has just gotten through watching Wayne's finest hour. A small group of discontented residents had taken on the government with their unprecedented Initiative/Petition Referendum. Harry Sylvester's dissertation, on what led to the WAC involvement on the insurance position was superb. Art Smith's comments were brief, concise and truthful. Another senior citizen member of WAC displayed his fiery anger with words of contempt against a Township part time attorney and public defender. An attorney, who believes the taxpayers owe him these insurance benefits.

The power failure affected 40 homes in the vicinity of the municipal complex. The severe electrical storm intensity could be associated with the kind of storm Noah and his family witnessed for 40 days and nights. As Mr. Sylvester spoke, he mentioned 40 petitioners were responsible for obtaining over 4,000 signatures. Mr. Sylvester spoke for 20 minutes and 20 seconds, which equals the number 40. Now, you tell me if the power failure was an omen or not.

No dearth of summertime stories

On the spot

David Savastano

Summer is a slow time of year, but it provides an opportunity to catch up on a variety of stories.

Let's pitch right in with the baseball strike, heading toward its third week, and on to obscurity. For a variety of reasons, baseball isn't really being missed. There's little talk about the sport — football, which long ago surpassed baseball in popularity, is just around the corner anyway — and the strike act has long ago lost its novelty.

It's really hard to get torn up emotionally over a bunch of millionaires striking against a bunch of multi-millionaires. As for the batch of records that seemed to be in jeopardy, everyone pretty much knew the strike was coming, so those numbers just seemed an abstraction.

If the strike goes on much longer, there'll be little interest if the two sides get together for the playoffs. By then, baseball will have lost the momentum it needs to keep fan support this year. Major league baseball might as well just shut down for the year, and come back sometime when they're good and ready — there's no need to rush back.

Speaking of three strikes, the House of Representatives finally passed President Clinton's crime-fighting bill, including the three-strikes-and-you're-out law. This new bill now gives everyone, in government at least, something for which to take credit.

Having lost the first time around with 58 Democrats jumping ship away from the crime bill, President Clinton desperately needed a win to show that he is not a political cipher. Meanwhile, the Republicans needed to show that their party wasn't just going to sit around blocking legislation.

It led to a deal: moderate Republicans put the squeeze on Clinton to cut out $3.3 billion from the $33.5 billion bill, eliminating such pork barrel projects as a $10 million grant to an influential legislator's alma mater to study justice. These Republicans get to take credit for saving some bucks while putting more cops on the street, and, like NAFTA, Clinton and the GOP created a team that passed one of the president's initiatives. Somehow, I doubt health care reform is going to go quite the same way.

Speaking of pork barrel legislation, a Republican bill passed last week will prevent Congress from attaching extraneous political projects onto emergency aid bills. This will eliminate the rather cheesy move of sneaking some money for obscure, dubious creations onto a bill that's desperately needed for humanitarian reasons.

Speaking of cheese, the case of the dead rat deserves some mention. Down in Hillside, a man captured a rat chewing up his garden, and called for the Humane Society to come to take it away. Many hours later, no agent had yet arrived, and the rat was making moves to get away, according to the man who trapped it. In order to protect his grandchildren from the possibility of disease, he hit the rat with a broom, killing it.

When the Humane Society agent finally got there, he discovered the dead rodent, and the society initially pressed charges. The man won't let the society drop the charges, in an attempt to get the society to eliminate a ridiculous rule that could be imposed on others.

This story, which has now appeared throughout the nation courtesy of the National Enquirer, has a double edge to it.

The Humane Society does provide care for animals, and needs donations to help care for animals. This sort of publicity hurts fund raising. It's too bad that the society decided to pick a fight that really wasn't worth winning.

Finally, Gov. Whitman's decision to go ahead with a plan to cut off lights on highways and its signs, thus saving $1 million, is another fight that will only cost the state in the long run.

It doesn't take a crystal ball to be able to predict that some major accident is going to be caused by a driver unfamiliar with the area, making a turn at the last minute because he or she can't read a darkened sign. The state will ultimately be blamed, and insurance will have to shell out more money that the state will save. Turning off the lights is an idea that ought to have the political brakes applied to it quickly.

SUMMER SPRUCE-UP HOME IMPROVEMENT

A Home Makeover Often Pays For Itself

(NU)—Come on. Admit it. You think you look great in those new sunglasses. The new haircut. That suntan. So, has it occurred to you to do the same thing for your house, the one you've been referring to lately as "drab"?

Many homeowners may not be aware that exterior makeovers now include a myriad of low-cost, durable vinyl siding and accessory options.

In addition to vinyl, injection-molded exterior fittings and even new aluminum and steel designs can dramatically transform plain homes into expensive-looking designer styles.

Talk about sunglasses, haircut and suntan—how about complementing a home's bright new siding with columns, fishscale trim, window mantels or a new double door with decorative door surround?

Even homeowners with less opulent tastes have discovered that subtle makeovers of their existing home created the "new" house they'd been looking for.

More significantly, exterior makeovers have been proven to add value to the home when it is sold. Real estate experts report that homeowners have gotten back up to 100 percent of their investments on vinyl siding.

Many home repair experts consider vinyl the best material. Besides being one of the most durable man-made materials, it is also easy to care for and, therefore, retains its beauty.

One of the biggest indications of vinyl's growing popularity in exterior design was the decision by Alcoa—the company that revolutionized construction with its aluminum products—to specialize in vinyl building products.

There are additional benefits to vinyl siding products. For example, while vinyl means an end to exterior painting and will not rot, peel, flake or blister like painted wood, it also will not dent, scratch or rust like metal.

Vinyl also makes it possible for Alcoa to add more colors and surface textures to its exterior products. The company has even developed injection-molded siding that looks just like stained cedar. Unlike wood, however, the siding resists stains and mildew. It's also impervious to termites and other insects. In fact, these various siding products are so durable, Alcoa offers a lifetime warranty on all of them.

Homeowners considering such products might wish to take advantage of a free, limited-time Alcoa offer, the 24-page booklet The Art of Exterior Design. For a copy, write Alcoa

Pequannock 10s win State Crown

The Pequannock 10-year-old All-Star team, coached by Jim Bionde and Dave McMorrow, swept through the first inaugural 10-year-old State Baseball Tournament held in Ventnor, N.J., to become the first-ever 10-year-old State Championship team.

Pequannock went 5-0 in the District II tournament, winning the first three games at home, then having to play the finals in Clifton against the Wayne National team.

Pequannock defeated Wayne National twice to advance to the Section 1 tournament being held in New Milford. Once again Pequannock was unbeaten, going 3-0 in defeating Dumont, and Randolph twice to advance to the state tournament.

Now it was time for a road trip, so the coaches, team, and parents all packed up the cars and headed for Ventnor, N.J. (just south of Atlantic City) home of the first ever Little League 10-year-old state tournament.

The week-long tournament saw Pequannock go 3-0 and again having to defeat a good hitting Woodbridge team twice to win the state championship.

Both were come-from-behind victories as Pequannock scored four runs in the last inning of game one to win, 9-7. Then again they scored five runs in the last inning of the final game to win 5-3 and claim State Championship honors.

This is the first Pequannock State Championship since 1971, when Pequannock's 15-year olds went to the Little League World Series. Pequannock Manager Jim Bionde was a 15-year-old on that team, which finished third in the world.

In all, Pequannock finished 11-0 in the tournament, but tournament rules do not allow 10-year olds to advance past the state tournament. This left coaches McMorrow and Bionde to wonder, "just how far could our kids have gone?"

It looks as though all those concerned will just have to wait until the boys from this state championship team turn 12 to get the answer. Until then, those who coached and played on the team of '94 should be congratulated for a great post-season.

The following is breakdown of Pequannock's path to the state championship.

District II Tournament

Pequannock 6, Milton 1 — Shane Boyle threw a complete game two-hitter in Pequannock's victory. Matt Leonard and Mike Bionde combined for five hits and four runs in the game, while Mike Halligan had four RBI on two hits. Matt Ringen and Mike Tanis also had an RBI in the game.

Pequannock 16, Pompton Lakes 2

In a rain-shortened game that lasted just four innings, Mike Bionde threw a complete game two-hitter to earn the win. Matt Leonard and Mike Bionde scored three runs each for Pequannock.

STATE CHAMPS — The Pequannock 10-year-old All-Stars used great pitching, defense and hitting to win the state title. They also had to come-from-behind to record wins, a credit to the team's determination.

Pequannock 7, Tri-Boro 5 — Pequannock used three bunts and a timely hit by Mike Halligan in the last inning. Matt Leonard scored his eighth run of the tournament in the game, while Boyle and Bionde combined on a five-hitter.

Pequannock 4, Wayne National 1 — Mike Tanis pitched a complete game and struck out 10 to pick up his first win of the tournament. Keith Schneider hit two doubles.

Pequannock 11, Wayne National 3 — Shane Boyle picked up his second win of the tournament, going the distance and pitching a five-hitter. Mike Bionde was 2-for-3 with three runs scored, and Keith Schneider had three RBI.

NOTE — In the District II tournament, Pequannock received "four complete games" from its pitchers. Two were by Boyle (2-0), and one each from Mike Bionde (2-0) and Mike Tanis (1-0), along with some great defense supplied by Matt Horesta

Sportfriends eliminated from Cup

Penalty kicks lift Real Wyckoff while Clarkstown shuts out Union

WAYNE — Real Wyckoff (3-1) beat Sportfriends (1-2-1) in a penalty kick tie breaker Saturday night in the semifinals of the N.J. Sportfriends Soccer Cup at Sportfriends (Parish) Oval in Wayne.

Wyckoff will play Clarkstown (4-0) in the championship game Saturday night, Aug. 27 at 7-30 p.m. at Sportfriends Oval. Clarkstown blanked Union County (2-2) 2-0 in the other semifinal.

Real Wyckoff and Sportfriends played to a 1-1 tie during regulation time, then played two scoreless overtime periods before the match was decided on penalty kicks.

Wyckoff goalkeeper Andrew Remias, who came on as a half-time substitute, saved Sportfriends' first two penalty kicks and converted one for his own team. Richard Glandorf and Antonio Strippoli scored on Wyckoff's first two chances while Remias stopped the attempts of Sportfriends' Stephen Reiss and Robbie Krzanowski.

In the third round, Remias and Mike Vollmin of Sportfriends each made their attempts. Mario Ferraro then clinched the match for Wyckoff by converting his penalty attempt and giving Real an insurmountable, 4-1 lead.

During regulation time the two teams traded first half goals. Richard Castaneda put Wyckoff on top at the 32 minute mark on a 22-yard free kick from the left side that he placed inside the far post. Sportfriends' equalizer came one minute before halftime on a goal by John Mohan.

Clarkstown moved one step closer to their second straight Sportfriends Cup title with a 2-0 win over Union County on goals by Mike Hanchar and Victor Rojas.

The Rockland County team broke onto the scoreboard with two minutes remaining in the first half. Hanchar drilled a low, 40-yard shot off a free kick that took a tricky bounce in front of the Union County goal, went off the hands of goalkeeper Rohan Cassells, and rolled into the net.

Union County's chances suffered another setback just before the halftime whistle when defender Charles Lehman was ejected from the game for pulling down a Clarkstown forward, leaving his team one man short.

Clarkstown's insurance goal came in the 88th minute. Rojas took a pass from Shawn O'Neal and outran two Union County defenders before placing a 10-yard shot into the lower left corner of the goal.

That goal was Rojas' fourth of the tournament, tying him with Goce Tolomanoski of Macedonia for the tournament scoring lead. Troy Paris turned in the shutout in goal, making four saves.

Varsity schedule awaits Butler girls and new coach

BY PETER CENTINEO

BUTLER — After two years of junior varsity soccer for the girls at Butler High School, the program will make the leap to a varsity schedule this year.

Such a move requires some solid coaching from a person who knows what it takes to take such a big step and get results, while also realizing the first year of varsity play will be quite a challenge.

Scott Johnson, hired by the Butler school board to undertake the job of varsity girls soccer coach seems to be the perfect person for the job. He knows what it takes to get a soccer program started, and knows it will, at times, be tough for his players and himself to get used to the type of competition they will soon face together.

Johnson said he's very excited to be the head coach at Butler, especially with the number of players signed up to go out for the team. The junior varsity program last year had 17 underclassmen on the squad, but this year Johnson has 28 players out for the team.

"I knew we'd have at least 17 out for the team, but 28 is great. It's going to be a big step for the girls to play varsity, especially when you have to play teams like Morris Catholic and Lakeland. Morris Catholic is always one of the best teams in the state, and Lakeland is a quality team," Johnson said. "There are a lot of good teams in our conference (Northern Hills Suburban Conference), so it ought to be a challenge."

"The skill level at the varsity level is definitely better. With a first-year varsity program, we really have nothing to lose when we go out and play. We want to play tough and gain the respect of other

The golf outing raised over $55,000 for the capital needs of the hospital.

WAYNE — The Wayne Valley Football Booster Club, with over 200 members, is getting ready for the start of the 1994 season.

The organization's sole function is to support the coaches, players, and cheerleaders of Wayne Valley High School. The Booster Club furnishes student athletes with "hidden expenses" including t-shirts, replacement cleats, ice, streamers, banners, decorations and more.

The largest fund raiser is the publication of the WAYNE VALLEY INDIANS FOOTBALL PROGRAM. This program is sold at every Wayne Valley home game and includes the 1994 game schedule, photos and profiles of the coaching staff, players and cheerleaders.

The program also contains advertisements from the business community along with personal advertisements from the family and friends of students participating in the Wayne Valley Football and Cheerleading programs. teams in our conference, and win some games in the process."

Johnson, 24, was a tri-captain while playing at Bloomfield High School his senior year. Although he didn't play in college, he did begin the girls travelling soccer program in Bloomfield. What was once a one-team travelling club has blossomed into four teams for girls of various ages. Johnson also coaches one of the teams, an under 19 team that plays in the spring.

"I think that helped me get the job at Butler. I know what it takes to get a program going, and hopefully we'll do a good job at Butler," Johnson said.

Johnson said he'll emphasize defense right off the bat, as he said a team can't go wrong playing good defense. But he also has some scorers, so look for Butler to have some good offensive output.

While Johnson has some good coaching credentials, he's always looking to improve himself as a coach. This summer, he got the chance to pick up some additional coaching pointers as a counselor at the All-American Soccer Camp, run by Colombia High School Soccer Coach Gene Chyzowich, one of the best soccer coaches around.

"It was my first year there as a coach for the kids, and I was there for a total of five weeks. I got the chance to talk to a lot of other coaches and pick up some new things regarding offenses and defenses, as well as different training drills. It was a great experience, and I'll use a lot of what I learned," Johnson said. "They asked me to go back next year, and I'm going to."

Johnson said he got into coaching to teach young players the right way to play. He said that growing up, he never had a real coach to teach him.

"I had parents teaching me who really didn't know much about the game. It was great of them to volunteer their time to help out, but I didn't learn as much as I could have at a young age. That's probably why I got involved, to teach kids what they should know," he said.

A business major at Seton Hall University, Johnson has now enrolled at Montclair State College where he's studying to become a teacher.

"Teaching and coaching are a lot alike, and it's something I enjoy. As a coach, I love seeing kids improve and learn, and teaching is more or less the same thing," Johnson said.

Distinguished Lecturers

WPC series returns for 15th season with all-star lineup

Human rights, responsibilities of the media, the national debt, the future of urban centers and the American presidency will be the issues explored during the 1994-95 Distinguished Lecturer Series at William Paterson College in Wayne.

Former Presidential candidate Paul Tsongas and former U.S. Senator Warren Rudman will open the series on Oct. 7. Also scheduled to speak during the 15th annual series are author Susan Sontag on Nov. 4, former New York City Mayor David Dinkins on Feb. 3, 1995 and journalists Carl Bernstein and Nat Hentoff on March 3, 1995. Presidential campaign consultants James Carville and Mary Matalin will present the final program on April 21, 1995.

Tsongas and Rudman open the series on Oct. 7 with a discussion of the national debt, the deficit and the economy. Tsongas, who campaigned for the Democratic nomination for president in 1992, ran on a platform that emphasized rebuilding the American economy. Rudman, a Republican who served two terms in the U.S. Senate, was coauthor of the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit reduction law. Both are founders of the Concord Coalition, a non-profit organization dedicated to awakening the American people to the gravity of the country's fiscal crisis.

Sontag, who speaks on Nov. 4, is an award-winning writer and a well-known human rights activist whose works include three novels, a collection of stories, six collections of essays and several screenplays. Former president of the American Center of PEN, the international writers' organization, Sontag was awarded a five-year fellowship from the MacArthur Foundation in 1990 and has won the National Book Critics Circle Award. Her Nov. 4 address, "A Report from a Besieged City," will focus on her recent experiences in Sarajevo, where she worked with Bosnian actors to produce "Waiting for Godot."

Dinkins will discuss "The Future of the American City" in his Feb. 3, 1995 address. Mayor of the city of New York from January, 1990 to December, 1994, Dinkins also served as president of the Borough of Manhattan, New York City Clerk and president of the New York City Board of Elections. He is currently a professor at the Columbia University School of International and Public Affairs.

The responsibilities of the media will be explored by Bernstein and Hentoff on March 3, 1995. Bernstein, who won the Pulitzer Prize for his coverage of Watergate for the Washington Post, is the author of three best-selling books, including "All the President's Men" and "The Final Days," both with Bob Woodward. He has lectured on the press and politics throughout the world, and has been a correspondent for ABC-TV and Time magazine. Hentoff, a columnist at the Village Voice, has become recognized as an authority on First Amendment issues, journalistic responsibility and the rights of Americans to free expression.

Distinguished Lecturers in the WPC series this season include: (clockwise) columnist Nat Hentoff, writer Susan Sontag, journalist Carl Bernstein, Presidential campaign consultant Mary Matalin, and former Presidential candidate Paul Tsongas.

Carville and Matalin close the series on April 21, 1995 with a program titled "He Says, She Says: An Inside View of the Presidency." Carville, a partner in the Carville & Begala political consulting firm, served as President Bill Clinton's chief strategist during the 1992 election; Matalin was President George Bush's deputy campaign manager for political operations. The pair, who married in 1993, have written a joint campaign memoir, "Love, War and the Art of Politics," which is soon to be released.

Subscriptions for the series are $65, $25 for WPC students. The deadline for applications is Sept. 2. A limited number of single tickets may be available at the Shea Center Box Office on the day of each lecture and purchased by calling the box office between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. at 595-2371; prices are $15 standard, $12 for senior citizens and WPC faculty, staff and alumni, $10 for non-WPC students and $7 for WPC students. All lectures begin at 8 p.m. in Shea Center on campus; parking is free.

'Singin' in the Rain' opens Paper Mill season

The stage musical "Singin' in the Rain," based on the classic MGM film that pokes affectionate fun at Hollywood's bumpy transition from silent movies to "talkies," opens the 1994-95 season at the Paper Mill Playhouse. The show has a seven-week run from Sept. 7 through Oct. 23.

Director/choreographer James Rocco, working with co-choreographer Linda Goodrich, has retained much of Gene Kelly and Stanley Donen's original dance arrangements which helped make the 1952 film one of the best movie musicals ever made.

Paper Mill's production stars Michael Gruber as the silent movie idol Don Lockwood and Deborah Jolly as his co-star Lina Lamont, a woman with a face like a goddess and a voice like a squeaky hinge. When even a vocal coach fails to make Lina's voice tolerable, the young ingenue Kathy Selden, played by Christina Saffran, is brought in to dub the star's voice. The role of Cosmo Brown, Lockwood's best friend and early vaudeville partner, is played by Randy Rogel.

Gruber appeared on Broadway in the original companies of "Miss Saigon" and "My Favorite Year" and was the last Mike

Costa in the Broadway company of "A Chorus Line." Saffran's Broadway credits include "Sophisticated Ladies," "Woman of the Year," and the Tony Award-winning "Drood." She also played Kathy Selden for a time on Broadway, and she and her co-stars are recreating the same roles they played together at Sacramento Light Opera. Jolly has numerous regional theater credits and had a featured role as Theresa on ABC's daytime serial Loving.

Rocco has extensive directorial credits at regional theaters all across the country, but Paper Mill audiences will remember him best for his critically acclaimed performance as Judas in "Jesus Christ Superstar." He also directed Paper Mill's 1992 production of "Oklahoma!"

Richard's Cafe

For 44 years, Richard's Cafe has been in operation at 1081 Route 46 East in Clifton. Originally it was a deli. Fairly recently it was a German restaurant. And for a year most recently, it changed hands from the family-run place it always was. Now it's back to ownership by its original family and is a full menu, all-day restaurant. The menu has changed dramatically but the old familiar, friendly management is back.

At lunch there are burgers, deli sandwiches, hot open sandwiches and salad platters ranging from Cobb Salad to Taco Salad to Sirloin Salad. There's a Triple S Salad with shrimp and scallops sauteed in vodka, lime juice, cracked black pepper and cilantro on a bed of greens with cafe salsa. And, of course, there is a chef's salad as well as assorted appetizers and soups.

At dinner the selections include a list of seafood dishes varying from shrimp scampi, stuffed sole with crabmeat, topped with lobster sauce, cafe crab cakes, grilled tuna steak and Monterey cioppino, a classic California seafood stew in a rich tomato sauce.

Pasta, chicken, veal and beef dishes round out the menu and the sandwich and burger list is also available at dinner if you prefer.

But start with first things first. You may opt for seafood bisque, clams either steamed or casino style, stuffed mushrooms or chicken satay, marinated and served on skewers with honey mustard sauce. Don't overlook the onion bloom, it's very different. Billed as "the ultimate onion appetizer," it is a whole, large onion deep fried with its base intact, soft and moist, and its layers separated in a true "bloom" fashion. This unusual appetizer is served with a dipping sauce. You'll also enjoy warm grainy rolls with it.

Veal dijonaise is one of the featured veal dishes. It's a large serving and arrives with your choice of potato and vegetable. The potato salad is a good choice; it's creamy and delicious. The potato salad is another superior recipe. A vegetable medley of broccoli, carrots and squash is a nice serving as well.

One of the most popular entrees at Richard's Cafe is the sliced steak sandwich and it's easy to see why. Priced at just $12.95, this is a platter filled with tender slice beef cooked exactly as you order it. Sitting on toast with butter or garlic sauce (garlic is the recommendation), it is a steak sandwich as it should be served. Instead of french fries, which are popular, try the red roasted potatoes. They're in wedges and nicely seasoned.

If you're a dessert fan, the peanut butter pie is not to be missed. It's rich and delicious.

There's a comfortable bar at the entrance to Richard's Cafe and wine list in the dining room has moderately priced selections.

Twilight specials from 4-7 p.m. are drawing diners to the "buy one entree, get the second at half price (equal or lesser value, of course).

Richard's Cafe accepts major credit cards. Call 473-8184.
